Preface

THE first edition of the "Chandos" Milton was issued in 1872. It was carefully edited from the early editions; and some of the best notes of Hume, Dunster (for "Paradise Regained"), Bishop Newton, and Todd were retained, and original ones added. But a change was made in the placing of one line. In Book IX., line 25, we had in Milton's account of his choice of a subject for an epic—

" Since first this subject for heroic song
Pleased me, long choosing and beginning late,
Wars, hitherto the only argument
Heroic deemed, chief mastery to dissect," etc.

Here the line, "not sedulous by nature to indite," was evidently meant to follow "beginning late," thus—

" long choosing and beginning late,
Not sedulous by nature to indite
Wars, hitherto the only argument," etc.—

but that line was found at line 96, where it destroyed the sense, thus—

" For in the wily snake
Whatever sleights none would suspicious mark,
As from his wit and native subtlety
Proceeding, which in other beasts observed
*Not sedulous by nature to indite*¹
Active within beyond the sense of brute."

The line removed to its right place left—

" Proceeding, which in other beasts observed
Active within beyond the sense of brute."

¹ How could the snake or other beasts "indite"?

Preface

It was with reluctance that even this obvious misplacement was rearranged;—the misplaced line is still retained in the new Aldine Edition—but we are glad to see that Professor Masson, the biographer of Milton, has made the same correction in his Globe Edition of the poems in 1877. With this exception, the text has been faithfully followed.

In the present edition the only change made is that of putting ed instead of 'd at the end of the past tense of verbs; with an accent over the è when it is to be pronounced; but we have retained the apostrophe over omitted syllables, though the modern editions give the full word, thus either making the line a syllable too long, or encouraging the modern slovenly habit of pronunciation, by which we often hear such a nobly-sounding word as "history" hissed out as "hist'ry," "Freeman's Hist'ry," "Lecky's Hist'ry," etc. We have also retained the spelling of words peculiar to Milton's period, as highth for height—meath for mead, etc. (It is singular how the people of Hampshire still say "highth" not "height.") Modern writers and editors seem to have generally discarded that valuable stop, the colon, which was much used by Milton and his contemporaries, and is surely of great importance in the "Paradise Lost." Its place is generally taken now by a period or full stop. The punctuation of this edition is kept as near to that of the poet as is possible for modern readers.

The Notes explain Milton's allusions to the astronomy and philosophy of his age, and give some account of the persons to whom his sonnets are addressed, or to whom reference is made in his minor poems.

Many suggestions have been made as to whence Milton might have derived the idea of a poem on the Fall of Man. Of these, the only probable sources seem to be Cædmon's "Paraphrases of Holy Writ," in which the monk of Whitby (whose strange story is told in Bede's Ecclesiastical History) relates, also dramatically, the fall of the rebel angels, and tells, in short Anglo-Saxon measure, how Satan led the others into rebellion. There is a kind of likeness in the sense of the archangel's speeches, as in—

“This narrow place is most unlike
That other that we ere have known,” etc.;

but the story of the Temptation is quite different. Cædmon's poem was published in 1655 by Francis Junius, eleven years before the appearance of “Paradise Lost.”

Andreini has been also supposed to have suggested the great poem by his “Adamo,” which Cowper translated for Hayley's Edition of Milton.

The strongest resemblance, however, to the “Paradise Lost” is found in Joost Van Den Vondel's “Lucifer,” published in 1654. Vondel, one of the most distinguished Dutch poets, was born at Cologne in 1587, and died in 1659. His name is still honoured in Holland, as that of Shakespeare is in England. An elaborate comparison between “Lucifer” and “Paradise Lost” was given in 1885, in “Milton and Vondel; a Curiosity of Literature,” by G. Edmundson. That age and the one immediately preceding it were, however, fruitful in great authors everywhere; and it is quite likely that Milton never saw the Dutch “Lucifer.” The mere title of a poem would be suggestion enough for him, as the question of Ellwood was for the “Paradise Regained,” and this he must have found in Dante's “Divine Comedy,” resemblances to which we have ventured to point out in the Introductory Memoir, showing that there was a likeness of thought, sometimes of expression, between the great poet of Italy and the sublime poet of England.

Introductory Memoir

THE genius of Milton has been acknowledged for more than two hundred years, and his work has been criticised by our greatest writers. Yet, while Italy burst forth into a pæan at the glorious intellect of the young poet from beyond the seas; while the patron of Tasso welcomed him and told him—imitating Gregory the Great—that if he were not a heretic he would be—"not an Angle but an angel," he had not attained great fame in his own calmer and colder land. But his genius was acknowledged by the next great poet of his age, Dryden, in the well-known lines—

"Three poets in three distant ages born,
Greece, Italy, and England did adorn,
The first in loftiness of thought surpassed
The next in majesty; in both the last.
The force of Nature could no farther go,
To make a third she joined the former two."

This tribute Milton never saw; but, during his life, his friend Andrew Marvel praised his poems in a Latin epistle. Addison introduced the, at that time, neglected Epic to his public, through the criticism in the Spectator, and from that time Milton's fame has been growing with the years. The writers of his life and the critics of his works are too numerous to recount, and their names are the best known in our literature. Very little remains to write on the subject; yet we can scarcely pass on to our brief biographical notice without pointing out how the spirit of the age in which our great poet lived is reflected in his work. And this is invariably the case. Only the nineteenth century, with its culture, refinement, and long series of preceding great poets, could have given us a Tennyson or a Browning. Introspection, doubt, pessimism, over-culture, are of this age, which could not have produced a Shakespeare or a Milton; for, talk and dream as men will, of writing for lasting fame, they (in reality) write of and for their present.

Introductory Memoir

We may therefore be thankful that a happy providence has been manifested in the periods when our greatest poets have appeared.

The days of chivalry—though then passing away—gave us Chaucer; the glorious reign of Elizabeth, Spenser and our world-renowned Shakespeare; the age of Puritanism and the Commonwealth, Milton's grand Epic. In fact, this powerful influence of the present on writers is strikingly manifest in Milton himself at two different periods. In his youth there was a king, a court, a peaceful England, and he wrote his exquisite "Allegro" and "Penseroso," and his matchless "Comus," his "Epitaph on Shakespeare," and his sonnets. Nearly twenty years pass. England is under the shadow of a stern Puritanism, and Milton, who has then reproached his king for reading our glorious dramatist's plays, lays aside his dream of an Arthurian Epic, and chooses a biblical subject, making it, by his genius, one of the grandest poems ever written, but in a strain from which the old beauty and music of the "Allegro" and "Penseroso" are gone. With the gravity of the times, the poet's measure changes, and blank verse in a far different strain, though as sublime as it is peculiar, is used instead; while "Samson Agonistes" replaces "Comus." Yet the great classic scholar, who wrote Latin poems as no Englishman had ever done before, who could write Italian sonnets that won the praise of Tasso's friend, the Marchese Manso, still brought his knowledge of heathen poets and of Italian literature to his solemn task, and when memory recalled their descriptions, he embellished and improved them, bringing truly out of his treasures "things new and old."

Addison, in his celebrated criticism on the "Paradise Lost,"¹ has pointed out the passages in which Milton has followed Homer; but he (Milton) seems also to have been greatly influenced and impressed by Dante, with whose Divine Comedy he was doubtless well acquainted. May not the "Inferno" and "Paradiso" have even suggested the "Paradise Lost," with its pathetic subject and title, different as the fiends of the latter are from the hideous beings of the first; and superior as are the angels of Milton to those of Dante or even of Tasso? That the English poet found suggestions in the Italian poets is evident, since we find in the "Paradise Lost" many lines and ideas closely resembling them. We give a few instances from Dante. The Italian poet describes the sounds of hell as whirling—

"Round through the air with solid darkness stained,
Like to the sand that in the whirlwind flies,"

"Inferno," can. i. 29.

Introductory Memoir

Milton describes the embryo atoms of Chaos as—“Unnumbered as the sands

Of Barca or Cyrene's torrid soil,
Levied to side with warring winds.”
“Paradise Lost,” bk. ii. 904.

Dante speaks of the fate of the condemned as doomed—

“Into eternal darkness there to dwell
In fierce heat and in ice.”
“Inferno,” can. iii. 106, 107.

Milton says—

“Thither, by harpy-footed Furies haled,
At certain revolutions all the damned
Are brought; and feel by turns the bitter change
Of fierce extremes, extremes by change more fierce,
From beds of raging fire to starve in ice¹
Their soft ethereal warmth, and there to pine
Immovable, infixed, and frozen round,
Periods of time; thence hurried back to fire.”
“Paradise Lost,” bk. ii. 596.

Dante makes the heathen poet Virgil speak of those in Limbo as—

“Only so far afflicted that we live, Desiring without hope.”
“Inferno,” can. iv. 72, 73.

Eve, in her lamentation, speaks of—

“With desire to languish without hope.”
“Paradise Lost,” bk. x. 995.

Dante says of the glory of God—

“His glory by whose might all things are moved Pierces the universe, and in one part,
Sheds more resplendence, elsewhere less.”
“Paradiso,” can. i. 3.

Milton writes—

“His magnetic beam that gently warms
The universe, and to each inward part,
With gentle penetration, though unseen,
Shoots invisible virtue even to the deep.”
“Paradise Lost,” bk. iii. 586.

The description of Satan turning into a serpent closely follows that of Dante in the “Inferno,” canto xxv. 121.

There are, in fact, numerous instances of Milton's acquaintance with the other Italian poets. His Limbo, or Paradise of Fools, is evidently taken, not from Dante's “Limbo,” but from Ariosto's.

Introductory Memoir

There are even lines in the poem reminding us of Guarini's "Pastor Fido;" and Dr. Johnson thought that Milton might have taken the idea of writing in blank verse from Trissino's "Italiae Liberata." But Milton's blank verse, solemn and grand, "a mighty line," is entirely original; though he brings to his treatment of his subject the most wonderful amount of varied knowledge possible. His prodigious memory must have been saturated with all that the other great poets had written, and with all the science of his time which he constantly reproduces. He had formed for himself a style capable in great measure, if not entirely, of expressing his sublime thoughts. That there are faults in this great poem is merely saying that it is human. Yet we may venture to regret that Milton left the two singular blunders of

"God and His Son except, Created thing nought valued he nor shunned."

Here, of course, Milton never meant to say (as he does) that God and our Lord are created beings.

"The fairest of her daughters Eve," is also something bewildering, undoubtedly, but they are, in fact, mere inadvertencies, mistakes that, could Milton have used his own eyes, would assuredly have been corrected. We must not, indeed, forget that this grand Epic was the production of a blind man, and may rather wonder at the few faults that have been found in it, than at mistakes like these. He had to trust to his memory for every correction, and it must have been difficult for him to follow unerringly the voice that read to him. In our own century, great wonder and admiration have been expressed for the American historian who, with imperfect sight, compiled and wrote his admirable History of Ferdinand and Isabella; but few remember that our own great blind poet dictated twelve books of an Epic that would have been, as some critic has said, "the greatest in the world had not Homer preceded him."

The life-story of this wonderful genius has more of incident in it than is to be found in that of most writers; for the period to which we owe his marvellous poem was one of remarkable events,—of change, and trouble, and civil war. But all was yet peace, under that most pacific monarch, James I., when, early on the morning of December 9, 1608, the infant destined to immortal fame was born. He was the son of John Milton, a gentleman of old family, whose ancestors had formerly possessed the estate of Milton, near Thame in Oxfordshire; but this property they lost during the Wars of the Roses, and the poet was born at his father's house, "The Spread Eagle," in Bread Street, London—the house taking its name from his father's armorial bearings, as gentlemen's houses then did, the numbering of dwellings being unknown.¹

Milton's grandfather, John Milton, keeper of the forest of Shotover, was a bigoted Roman Catholic. He sent his son John to Christ Church, Oxford; and the youth, a man of great ability, as his son has told us, imbibed the principles of the Reformation, and was in consequence disinherited by his father. Compelled to work for his living, John Milton adopted the profession of a scrivener—or lawyer—which he practised at the "Spread Eagle," Bread Street. He married a Miss Sarah Jeffreys. There has been much disputation as to the name of the poet's mother, but her true surname was discovered in 1868 by Colonel Chester, an American antiquary, who informed the Athenæum for November (of that year) that, in examining the Bishop of London's registry of marriages, he had found one attested by John Milton, "who had married the sister of the bride, Margaret Jeffery." This register confirmed the parish register of All Hallows, where there is an entry, February 22, 1610, of the burial of "Mrs. Ellen Jefferys, the mother of Mr. John Mylton's wife, of this parish." Sarah Jeffreys (Mrs. Milton) became the mother of the poet who has immortalised his name. The beautiful and gifted infant was reared in a home of intelligence and harmony. His father was a good classical scholar, and a fine musician, and was capable of appreciating and training the child's precocious intelligence. Milton has given us some account of his parents. He describes his mother as "most excellent," and particularly known for her charities in the neighbourhood.

"My father," he says in his "Second Defence," "destined me from my infancy to the study of polite literature, which I embraced with such avidity, that, from the age of twelve, I hardly ever retired from my books before midnight. This proved the first source of injury to my eyes, whose natural weakness was attended with frequent pains in the head; but as all these disadvantages could not repress my ardour for learning, my father took care to have me instructed by various preceptors, both at home and at school."²

The precocious genius of the boy might well have incited his father to give him every advantage; Aubrey, who was acquainted with Milton, tells us that he wrote poetry at ten years old; and a beautiful portrait by Jansen, of the child at that age, exists to attest the paternal pride in him.

The tutor whom Mr. Milton engaged for his wondrous son was the Rev. Thomas Young of Essex, for whom his pupil formed a sincere attachment. In 1623, when the lad was fifteen, Young quitted his native land on account of religious persecution, leaving a lively and tender remembrance of him in the mind of his pupil. Milton was then at St. Paul's School, where he worked hard under Alexander Gill for a twelvemonth. At this time he translated the 114th and 136th Psalms. The following year, 1625, he was admitted a pensioner of Christ's College, Cambridge. During his residence there he composed most of his Latin poems, of which Dr. Johnson says, "I once heard Mr. Hampton, the translator of Polybius, say that Milton was the first Englishman who, after the revival of letters, wrote Latin verses with classical elegance."

While at Cambridge he wrote his Elegy, "Ad Thomam Junium præceptorem suum, apud mercatores Anglicos Hamburgæ agentes, Pastoris munere fungentem."

Young returned to England, thus fulfilling the young poet's earnestly expressed wishes, in 1628, and was appointed to the Mastership of Jesus College, Cambridge, in 1644. Afterwards he became Vicar of Stow Market for thirty years.

At Cambridge, Milton formed a friendship for Edward King, whose death he laments in "Lycidas." Another early and dearly-loved friend of his youth was Charles Diodati, the son of an Italian physician who had settled in England, and practised his profession there with great success. Charles Diodati's uncle, Giovanni (John) Diodati, was the translator of the Bible into Italian; the family had adopted the principles of the Reformed faith, and Giovanni was a professor of theology at Geneva.

Milton was remarkable in his youth for his great personal beauty, which obtained him the name of the "Lady" of his college. He was not tall, but graceful in person, and, like Tasso—"He of the sword and pen"—he was a skilful swordsman and fond of the exercise. His long and light-brown hair was parted on his brow and fell to his shoulders; his eyes were dark grey, his complexion fair and delicate. In after-years, when time and sorrow were creeping on him, he still looked ten years younger than he was; and his eyes did not betray by their appearance the sad secret of their blindness. "His harmonical and ingenuous soul," says Aubrey, "dwelt in a beautiful and well-proportioned body."

He passed seven years at Cambridge, with the exception of a brief interval of absence, during his first year there, caused by some difference with his tutor, Chappell; but he returned, and was allowed to select another tutor—Nathaniel Tovey. He took his degree of B.A. in 1629, and M.A. in 1632. He had designed, when he first went to Cambridge, to enter holy orders, but could not bring himself to sign the Articles of the Church or submit to its discipline. He determined, therefore, to return to his home and lead the life of a student.

His father had, by this time, made a competence, retired from business, and taken a house at Horton, in Buckinghamshire. Thither Milton repaired from Cambridge, his indulgent parent being ever ready to yield to his wishes.

During his residence at the University he had written all the earlier poems, amongst them the magnificent "Hymn to the Nativity," but it had not yet won him fame, or even general notice. His poem on Shakespeare was the first published. It appeared in the Folio Shakespeare of 1632.

In the lovely seclusion of his country home he read, it is said, all the Greek and Latin authors, and also wrote some of his most charming poems. He was, like his father, an accomplished musician, and counted amongst his friends the great lutanist of the time, Henry Lawes, who taught music in the family of the Earl of Bridgewater. In the year 1634, Lord Bridgewater was President of Wales, and held his court at Ludlow Castle, in Shropshire. On a journey thither to join their father, his two sons, Lord Brackley, and Mr. Egerton and his daughter, Lady Alice Egerton, were benighted in Haywood Forest, in Herefordshire, and the young lady for a short time was lost. At Lawes's request, Milton commemorated the incident in the exquisite "Mask of Comus," which was "presented" before the Earl at Ludlow; his children and Lawes being the chief actors. We cannot refrain from adding that the "Lady" afterwards married the Earl of Carbury, and at his seat, "Golden Grove," in Carmarthenshire, sheltered and protected Milton's great contemporary, Jeremy Taylor, during the usurpation of Cromwell. The eloquent divine preached her funeral sermon, in which her character is admirably drawn. Her sister, Lady Mary, was married to the celebrated Lord Herbert of Cherbury.

The "Comus" had been preceded by the "Arcades," which the youthful poet wrote for the family of his fair neighbour the Dowager Countess of Derby, who lived near Uxbridge, and at whose house he frequently visited. Here, probably, also he had made the acquaintance of the Bridgewater family, for Lord Bridgewater had married a daughter of Lady Derby's. This lady was a very accomplished woman, and of kin to Spenser the poet.

During his five years' residence in his father's house, Milton

Introductory Memoir

occasionally visited London, to buy books, enjoy the society of his friends, and to visit the theatres, in which he greatly delighted at this period of his life—that brilliant and gifted youth which we so reluctantly quit for his harder and sterner manhood.

In 1637 his friend Edward King was lost in the Irish Sea, and Milton honoured his memory by writing “Lycidas” as a monody on his death.

It is not possible to fix the date of the composition of the “Allegro” or the “Penseroso,” but there is every reason to believe that those enchanting pictures of rural life, of mirth and melancholy, were written at Horton.

He was beginning to grow weary of the country, and had thoughts of taking chambers in one of the Inns of Court, when his mother died; and his father shortly afterwards was persuaded to let him travel on the Continent. Before his departure, he received from the celebrated Sir Henry Wotton the wise instruction to keep “i pensieri stretti ed il viso sciolto,” i.e. “close thoughts and a frank countenance.”

In 1638 he quitted England, and went first to Paris. Here Lord Scudamore, the English ambassador, gave him an introduction to Grotius, the learned ambassador of the singular and (also) learned Christina, Queen of Sweden. From Paris, after a short stay, Milton proceeded to Italy, then the classic land of Europe, to which his thoughts and affections had continually travelled. There Tasso had quite recently charmed the world with his “Gerusalemme Liberata”; Ariosto was still a modern poet, and the renown of Dante and Petrarch, now two centuries old, was at its height. In the recent reigns of Elizabeth and James, the intercourse between Italy and England had been frequent. “To have swum in a gondola” was, as Shakespeare tells us, the boast of travelled youths. The fame of the arts and science of “le belle contade” was world-spread. No marvel that Milton eagerly mastered the language and hurried to its shores.

The Italians were deeply interested in all literature, and far better able to appreciate the gifted Englishman than the generality of his less cultivated countrymen;—amongst whom, as Johnson says, with respect to the sale of “Paradise Lost,” “to read was not then a general amusement; neither traders, nor often gentlemen, thought themselves disgraced by ignorance: the women had not then aspired to literature, . . . and of that middle race of students who read for pleasure or accomplishment, the number was comparatively small.”

To pass from the England of 1638 to the Italy of that period must have been like going from darkness to light.

Introductory Memoir

Milton went from Nice to Genoa, thence to Leghorn and Pisa, and proceeded to Florence, where he remained two months. Sir Henry Wotton (whose heart had been won by the "Comus") had given the poet introductory letters to the chief literary men of the city, and Milton met with a most enthusiastic reception.

He formed friendships with the celebrated Carlo Dati, Frescobaldi, and Antonio Malatesta, and during his residence there he visited the recently liberated prisoner of the Inquisition—Galileo. It is thought probable that Grotius had urged Milton to see the great astronomer, for in the very month in which the young English poet was presented to him, he wrote thus to Vossius of Galileo:—"This old man, to whom the universe is so largely indebted, worn out with maladies, and still more with anguish of mind, gives us little reason to hope that his life can be long. Common prudence, therefore, suggests to us to make the most of the time while we can yet avail ourselves of such an instructor."

Milton next paid a short visit to Sienna, then proceeded to Rome, where he remained two months. Holstenius, a savant of European renown (who had known Milton when he (Holstenius) was at Oxford) was then Librarian to the Vatican. He introduced the young Englishman to Cardinal Barberini, afterwards Pope Urban VIII., who invited him to a concert, received him at the doors, and presented him, in the most flattering terms, to the brilliant assembly. Amongst them Milton's eyes lighted on a woman, beautiful, with the rare and intellectual loveliness of a Grecian muse: she was Leonora Baroni—the first singer in the world. Her mother as beautiful and nearly as fine a singer as herself, sat near her with her lute. The rapture of the poet may be imagined when he heard the fair wonder sing to her mother's accompaniment. He celebrated her genius in three fine Latin epigrams. Whether she was the "Donna" of his Italian sonnets we cannot tell; her name recalled the Leonora of Tasso; her talent was just that which Milton best loved.

From Rome Milton travelled to Naples, in company with a hermit, who must have been able to appreciate the poet, as, on their arrival at Naples, he introduced him to Manso, Marquis of Villa, the friend, patron, and biographer of Tasso. Manso was delighted with his new acquaintance, and addressed to him a distich, with the same play on words with which Gregory the Great inaugurated his plan for the conversion of Britain—

"Ut mens, forma, decor, facies, mos, si pietas sic Non Anglus, verum hercle Angelus ipse fores."

Introductory Memoir

Thus translated by Cowper—

"The Neapolitan, John Baptist Manso, Marquis of Villa, to the Englishman, JOHN MILTON.

"What features, form, mien, manners, with a mind,
Oh, how intelligent! and how refined!
Were but thy piety from fault as free,
Thou wouldst no Angle, but an angel be."

Milton, in return, addressed to the Marquis a Latin poem, which must have greatly impressed the learned Italians.

Milton purposed visiting Sicily and Greece, but letters from home told him how England was shaken to its centre by the differences between the King, Charles I., and his Parliament, and the young man thought that duty and patriotism alike forbade his absence from his native land in her hour of sore trial. Therefore he bent his steps homeward, not, however, hurrying his journey. Again he visited Rome, though warned of plots formed by the Jesuits against him on account of the openness with which he had discussed religious topics. At Naples, Manso had told him that his religion alone precluded him from great distinction. He felt sure that his nationality protected him from personal danger, and remained again two months in Rome. From thence he went to Florence, to Lucca, and to Venice. From the latter city he sent his father a collection of music and books, and proceeded to Geneva, then the seat of Puritanism, and the spot from whence republican doctrines were promulgated over Europe. Here he found a friend in Charles Diodati's uncle, John (or Giovanni), and in Frederick Spanheim, who was also a learned Professor of Divinity. From Geneva he returned to France, and thence home, having been absent from England a year and three months.

The youth of Milton closes with this grief. He was now a man of thirty-one years of age, and it behoved him to take up the work of life in earnest. He had drawn largely on the means of his generous father, and he was not the only child—he had a brother Christopher, a lawyer; his sister Anne was well married before he went to Cambridge. She had recently been widowed and married a second time. Milton at once decided on his own course. He resolved to take pupils, and the first he received were his sister's sons by her first husband—John and Edward Philips. He took a lodging at the house of a tailor named Russell, in St. Bride's Churchyard, and began the prosaic task of teaching ; but the locality was unendurable to him, and he removed into a pleasant house, standing in a garden, at the end of a passage leading out of Aldersgate Street. Here he received more private pupils to board and teach.

And now we come to the reverse of the brilliant picture of his youth. For twenty years the poet sang no more. All that long period was occupied in school duties, political controversy, and household troubles. In considering this period of Milton's life, when he used his great abilities (obscured in prose) against his sovereign and the National Church, we must pause for a moment to consider the age in which he had been born and brought up.

When his infant eyes unclosed in Bread Street, James I. had been five years king of Britain. The glorious reign of Elizabeth, with its host of great Statesmen, Warriors, Poets, and Discoverers, was succeeded by that of a contemptible and pedantic sovereign, whose favouritism led to crimes of the darkest dye. Our readers will find in the vivid pages of Mr. Hepworth Dixon's Her Majesty's Tower, a picture of corruption disgraceful to any country. The murder of Sir Thomas Overbury must have been the talk of Milton's nursery. He must have heard continually the extravagances and wickedness of the favourite Villiers made the theme of animadversion ; the death of Sir Walter Raleigh must have been to him a boyish horror ; all England lamented that murder ; and the persecution of his tutor, and the bigotry of his grandfather, which had robbed him of a fair heritage, must have all conspired to sway him towards the side of the Puritans.

True, his "gentle" instincts, his fine taste and early associations, and the better character of Charles I., for a time held the balance, but now he had to choose his side : no one at that time could remain neutral, and he threw in his lot with the Parliament.

In 1641, he published a Treatise of Reformation, in two books, against the established Church, being anxious to help the Puritans, who were, he said, "inferior to the prelates in learning."

Hall, the Bishop of Norwich (with whose quaint Meditations our readers are probably acquainted), had published a Humble Remonstrance in defence of Episcopacy, to which five ministers, the initial letters of whose names made the celebrated word Smectymnuus,¹ replied. "Of this answer a confutation was attempted," says Johnson, "by the learned Usher." To this confutation Milton (seeing that the Archbishop had the best of the argument) replied.

His next work was The Reason of Church Government urged against Prelacy.

"In this book," says Johnson, "he discovers, not with ostentatious exultation, but with calm confidence, his high opinion of his own powers ; and promises to undertake something, he yet knows not what, that may be of use and honour to his country." "This," says he (Milton), "is not to be attained but by devout prayer to that Eternal Spirit that can enrich with all utterance and knowledge, and sends out His Seraphim with the hallowed fire of His altar to touch and purify the lips of whom He pleases. To this must be added industrious and select reading, steady observation, and insight into all seemly arts and affairs ; till which in some measure be compassed, I refuse not to sustain this expectation."

Milton's controversial writings did not interrupt his school duties. He did everything diligently and with earnestness. His youth had been pure and moral ; his manhood was almost ascetic ; he lived sparingly, drank water, and set his pupils an example of hard study. Now and then he took a day's recreation with some gay friends of Gray's Inn, and displayed his beautiful and well-dressed person on the fashionable promenades of Gray's Inn Gardens and Cheyne Walk, Chelsea.

After Reading was taken by the king's forces, Milton's beloved father came to live with him, and in 1643, at Whitsuntide, he brought home a fair young bride, whom he had wooed and won from the adverse party of the Cavaliers.

Mary Powel was the daughter of a country gentleman, a justice of the peace for Oxfordshire, and had been used, as Philips, her husband's nephew, tells us, "to a great house, much company," and the fun and joviality of the ranting Royalists. She was beautiful, but seems to have been a spoilt child, and not to have possessed the intellect her husband needed in a companion ;—this is inferred from his own words when he speaks of a "mute and spiritless mate."

It is only just, also, to give a glance at Mary Powel's side of the question. She found herself, when barely seventeen, suddenly transplanted from a lively and liberal home to a house where profound stillness reigned, save when it was broken by the crying of punished schoolboys. No visitors came to the house ; or if they came, they were of the solemn Puritans, whom she had been brought up to laugh at as rogues and hypocrites.

Introductory Memoir

Her gay Cavalier songs were exchanged for solemn hymns ; her feasting for hard fare ; her husband, occupied by his pupils and his controversy, could have given her but a small portion of his time ; there was no sympathy round her,—in her passionate loyalty, her country tastes and habits. Her parents asked if she might spend part of the summer with them, and, her husband assenting, she left him. He pursued his studies, occasionally visiting the accomplished Lady Margaret Leigh, but at Michaelmas he wrote to Mary to summon her home. He received no answer ; he wrote again and again with the same result. At last, knowing how uncertain was the arrival of letters in the now distracted country, he despatched a messenger for Mistress Milton. The man was sent back with contempt. Milton, excessively angry, resolved to divorce his disobedient wife, and published, as a preliminary justification of his conduct, a treatise on The Doctrine and Discipline of Divorce, which was followed by The Judgment of Martin Bucer concerning Divorce, and his Tetrachordon.

The clergy, then holding their famous assembly at Westminster, were greatly scandalised by these productions, and had the writer brought before the House of Lords. But that House had matter of more import to engage it than the dreams (as they doubtless thought) of a visionary Puritan, and the case was dismissed. But Milton never forgave his former friends, the Presbyterians, for their share in this prosecution. He proceeded to put his theory in practice by wooing Miss Davis, the daughter of Dr. Davis, who, however, had scruples on the legality and morality of such a marriage. Whilst she still hesitated, a circumstance decided the doubt for her. As Milton was one day at the house of a relative of the name of Blackborough, in St. Martin's Lane, his wife rushed from an adjoining room and threw herself at his feet, imploring his forgiveness. He resisted her entreaties for a time, but yielded at length, and received her to his heart and home once more. Their reunion proved happier than might have been expected. Baby hands came to draw them together, and Mary Milton lived to give birth to a son and three daughters, and then died at the age of twenty-six. But long before that period the generous poet had given shelter in his house to all her family, when the Republican party had risen to power. Subsequently he arranged their affairs for them. The next year Milton published his Areopagitica, a speech for the liberty of unlicensed printing, his best prose work.

The new Council of State, in which were Bradshaw and Sir Harry Vane, chose Milton as their Latin Secretary, and employed him to write against the celebrated book called Icon

Introductory Memoir

Basilike, then supposed to have been written by the unhappy Charles I., and which was turning the hearts of the people back to him. Milton wrote against it the Iconoclastes. But we must not omit to mention the much more interesting fact that in 1645 his Latin and English poems were published. It is with regret we add that, after the execution of the king, Milton wrote a treatise to justify it to the Presbyterians, and to "compose the minds of the people." He was right, however, in declaring that the Presbyterians had, in fact, brought about the king's death themselves. He was now suffering from gutta serena, which threatened him with loss of sight; but on being called on by the Parliament in 1651 to answer the celebrated Salmasius's Defensio Regia pro Carolo I., written at the request of Charles II. (then an exile at The Hague), he undertook the task, and pursued it steadily, knowing all the time that its cost would be his sight. But he believed it to be his duty, and from that he never flinched. He was rewarded for it with a present of a thousand pounds.

Cromwell now assumed the Protectorate, but Milton, who appears to have had at that time a sincere admiration for Oliver, and who must have seen that Government, in such a state of anarchy, could not be carried on without him, retained the Latin Secretaryship, assisted towards the close of the Protectorate by the Puritan poet, Andrew Marvel.

It would be a weary task to chronicle all the controversial writings of Milton during the ensuing years; we will rather return to his domestic history. Four years after the death of Mary Powel, he married again. His second wife appears to have won his whole affections. Her name was Katherine Woodcock, the daughter of Captain Woodcock of Hackney. But their happiness continued only a year: she died in giving birth to a child, that survived only a few weeks, and Milton deplored her loss in a pathetic sonnet, something resembling the famous one of Petrarch to his dead Laura.

Milton now set himself to three great works: preparing a Latin Dictionary, writing a History of England, and commencing his Epic. If an author of our own day had not shown us how possible research and study is even to the blind, we might marvel at such undertakings being attempted by a sightless man, but we think of Prescott, and marvel no longer.

The Dictionary—probably the most difficult undertaking for him—was never finished; the History goes only to the Norman Conquest; the Epic is the immortal "Paradise Lost." He had already prepared the same subject for a drama or mystery, which was to begin with Satan's address to the Sun, but his increasing Puritanism, and the remembrance of his having reproached the dead king in the Iconoclastes, for making a companion of the works of Shakspeare, probably caused him to turn the singular drama into an epic poem.

The death of Oliver Cromwell led to the Restoration, and Milton, who had retired from the service of the Parliament on a pension for life, was in considerable danger from his writings against the Royal cause, for, just before the Restoration, he had written a work entitled, The ready and easy way to establish a Free Commonwealth, and the excellence thereof, compared with the inconvenience and dangers of readmitting Kingship in this Nation. While all England held festival on the return of her exiled sovereign, the great poet was therefore obliged to seek safety in concealment; and it is said that his enemies were deceived by a report of his death and a mock funeral. Whether there is truth in this story cannot now be ascertained; but the Act of Oblivion, passed August 19, enabled him again to appear openly. A prosecution was commenced against him for his defence of the execution of the king, but it fell to the ground; Charles was not vindictive, and we perhaps owe to his easiness of temper the greatest poem in our language,—moreover, Milton had a friend at court in Sir William Davenant.

Milton retired to Jewin Street, near Aldersgate Street, and though now poor and blind, gained a third wife, who survived him—Elizabeth Minshull, the daughter of a Cheshire gentleman. They lived happily, it is believed, but Philips, who remembered Mary Powel, says that the stepmother “oppressed her (Mary’s) children in Milton’s lifetime, and cheated them at his death.”

In 1661, Milton published a school book, Accidence commenced Grammar, to make grammar easy to children. About this time Ellwood, the Quaker, was recommended to him as a reader; and he attended the poet every afternoon, except on Sundays. Milton, who hated to hear Latin read with the English accent, taught him to pronounce it in Italian, and his ear was so quick, that if the young Quaker did not understand a passage (Ellwood relates this fact), Milton would find it out by the want of expression or emphasis, and would make him pause, that he might explain it to him.

Milton now removed to a house in Artillery Walk, leading to Bunhill Fields, and set seriously to work at the “Paradise Lost,” the subject of which he says he had been “long choosing and begun late.”

But though Milton had passed out of the field of politics and statecraft, his genius still brought him visitors of distinction, both from the Continent and of his own countrymen.

Richardson describes him as sitting before his door in warm sultry weather, to enjoy the fresh air, dressed in a grey coat of coarse cloth ; and there, as well as in his own rooms, he received his guests. It is supposed that "Samson Agonistes" was written about this time.

In 1665, the Plague broke out in London, and Ellwood, who was living in the family of an opulent Quaker at Chalfont, in Bucks, advised his friend to quit the city. Milton desired him to find his family a refuge in his neighbourhood, and it was at the temporary home thus selected that he finished the "Paradise Lost." He gave the manuscript to Ellwood to read. The young Quaker appreciated it, but added pleasantly, "Thou hast said much here of 'Paradise Lost,' but what hast thou to say of 'Paradise Found'?" This hint, Milton afterwards told his friend, gave birth to the idea of "Paradise Regained."

On his return to London, Milton, in 1667, sold the copyright of his great poem to a bookseller, called Samuel Symmons, for £5 in hand ; £5 more when 1,300 copies were sold, and the same sum on the publication of the second and third editions. The number of each edition was limited to 1,300 copies. Of this agreement, Milton lived to receive £15 ; his widow sold her claims for future editions for £8.

But though Milton gained but little pecuniary benefit from his masterpiece, it won him "golden opinions" from the best writers of the age,—Dryden, Marvel, and Denham. Yet the poem was never thoroughly brought before the public till after the Revolution, when Addison, by his elegant criticism in the Spectator, discovered to the nation the treasure so long hidden from them ; which they were then far better able to value than in the troubled days when it first issued from the press.

In 1671, Milton published "Samson Agonistes" and "Paradise Regained." He preferred the latter poem to the "Paradise Lost," it is said.

We have a record of how the blind poet spent his day. He rose at four in summer and five in winter, and began each day by hearing a chapter in the Hebrew Bible ; the man who read then left him to meditation, and returning at seven, read or wrote for him till twelve. He then allowed himself an hour for exercise, generally walking, but sometimes he had recourse to a swing. After his early and temperate dinner, he was wont to play for a time on the organ or violoncello ; he had a fine voice, and sang well.

It is said that his domestic relations were not happy. Philips gives some clue to the home disturbances by his mention of the stepmother's oppression of his two daughters, who were employed to read to him in languages they did not comprehend. When, however, the poet discovered how great this infliction was on his children, he released them from their detested task, and sent them to learn embroidery in gold and silver, so that they should be able to support themselves by a trade if required to do so. The youngest, Deborah, spoke with great affection of him after his death.

In July, 1674, he felt so ill that he sent for his brother Christopher, a bencher of the Inner Temple, to explain his last wishes to him.

"Brother," said he, "the portion due to me from Mr. Powel, my first wife's father, I leave to the unkind children I had by her. But I have received no part of it; and my will and meaning is that they shall have no other benefit of my estate than the said portion, and what I have besides done for them; they having been very undutiful to me. And all the residue of my estate I leave to the disposal of Elizabeth, my loving wife."¹ Such was the brief testament of the great poet. He sold his books before his death, and left £1,500 to his widow. The daughters received from their stepmother £100 each.

On the 15th November, 1674, on Sunday night, quietly and silently, John Milton passed away from earth. He was buried in the Church of St. Giles, Cripplegate, attended by a numerous concourse of friends.

Of his family, Anne, the eldest daughter, who was deformed, married a master-builder, and died in child-birth. Mary died single. Deborah married Abraham Clark, a weaver in Spitalfields, and died in August, 1727. She had seven children, but all died childless except Caleb and Elizabeth. The latter married Thomas Foster, a weaver in Spitalfields, and had seven children, who all died. For this descendant's benefit "Comus" was performed at Drury Lane, in 1750, with a prologue by Dr. Johnson, who tells us that this was the only pecuniary advantage that Milton's family received for his great work. Caleb went to India, and had two sons; it is said that the last descendant of Milton died a parish clerk at Calcutta, but we know of no authority for the assertion beyond an East Indian rumour.

Milton's brother took the opposite side in the politics of the time, and when the Republican Party was in the ascendant, his brother's influence enabled him to live quietly. He supported himself so honourably by chamber practice, that, soon after the accession of James II., he was knighted and made a judge, but retired shortly afterwards into private life, on account of bad health. He was thus saved from the difficulties which beset the path of conscientious judges when Jeffreys was head of the law. Both the nephews of Milton became authors: one his biographer.

The judgment of two centuries and of all Europe has decided as to the merits of Milton. A word more on the subject of his poems is therefore superfluous. Of his prose, few general readers know much. His controversial writings were chiefly in Latin, and of those in English many would be objectionable and tedious in the present day ; nevertheless, he wrote English prose with as masterly a pen as he wrote poetry, and when the subject was worthy of his genius, his style was as noble as in the "Paradise Lost."

At the close of two hundred years, Milton occupies a niche of fame beside Shakspeare and the great poets of antiquity ; his faults, his mistakes, and his controversial writings buried in a merciful oblivion, while the good he did rejoicing, for all times, the nation which holds as one of its claims to glory the name of John Milton.

A memorial window to Milton was placed in St. Margaret's Church, Westminster, February 18, 1888, by Mr. George Childs of Philadelphia. It is very beautiful ; four panels are on subjects from the poet's life. The two upper represent him dictating "Paradise Lost" to his daughters. The two below are the boy Milton at St. Paul's School, and Milton visiting Galileo. Eight other panels are of scenes in "Paradise Lost" and "Paradise Regained."—At the base of the window is inscribed—

"To the glory of God and in memory of the immortal poet John Milton, whose wife and child¹ lie buried here, this window is dedicated by George W. Childs of Philadelphia, 1888.

Yet art thou not inglorious in thy fate ;

Could Heaven for pity thee so strictly doom ?
Oh no ! for something in thy face did shine
Above mortality, that showed thou wast divine.

Or wert thou of the golden-wingèd host,
Who having clad thyself in human weed,
To earth from thy prefixed seat didst post,
And after short abode fly back with speed,
As if to show what creatures heaven doth breed,
Thereby to set the hearts of men on fire
To scorn the sordid world and unto heav'n aspire ?

But oh, why didst thou not stay here below
To bless us with thy heav'n-loved innocence,
To slake His wrath whom sin hath made our foe,
To turn swift-rushing black Perdition hence,

To stand 'twixt us and our deserved smart ?

PART LATIN, PART ENGLISH.

The Latin speeches ended, the English thus began :—

HAIL, native Language, that by sinews weak
Didst move my first endeavouring tongue to speak,
And madest imperfect words with childish trips,
Half unpronounced, slide through my infant lips,
Driving dumb silence from the portal door,
Where he had mutely sat two years before :
Here I salute thee, and thy pardon ask,
That now I use thee in my latter task :
Small loss it is that hence can come unto thee,
I know my tongue but little grace can do thee :
Thou need'st not be ambitious to be first,
Believe me I have thither packed the worst ;
And, if it happen as I did forecast,
The daintiest dishes shall be served up last.
I pray thee then deny me not thy aid
For this same small neglect that I have made :
But haste thee straight to do me once a pleasure,
And from thy wardrobe bring thy chiefest treasure,

Early Poems

Not those new-fangled toys, and trimming slight¹
Which takes our late fantastics with delight,
But cull those richest robes, and gay'st attire
Which deepest spirits, and choicest wits desire :
I have some naked thoughts that rove about,
And loudly knock to have their passage out ;
And weary of their place do only stay
Till thou hast decked them in thy best array ;
That so they may without suspect or fears
Fly swiftly to this fair assembly's ears.
Yet I had rather, if I were to choose,
Thy service in some graver subject use,
Such as may make thee search thy coffers round,
Before thou clothe my fancy in fit sound :
Such where the deep transported mind may soar
Above the wheeling poles, and at Heav'n's door
Look in, and see each blissful Deity
How he before the thunderous throne doth lie,
List'ning to what unshorn Apollo sings
To the touch of golden wires, while Hebe brings Immortal nectar to her kingly sire :
Then passing through the spheres of watchful fire,
And misty regions of wide air next under,
And hills of snow, and lofts of piled thunder,
May tell at length how green-eyed Neptune raves,
In Heav'n's defiance mustering all his waves ;
Then sing of secret things that came to pass
When beldam Nature in her cradle was ;
And last of kings and queens and heroes old,
Such as the wise Demodocus² once told,
In solemn songs at king Alcinous' feast,
While sad Ulysses' soul, and all the rest,
Are held with his melodious harmony,
In willing chains and sweet captivity.
But fie, my wand'ring Muse, how thou dost stray !
Expectance calls thee now another way,

¹ Milton alludes to the affected phraseology of the period, called Euphuism, which originated in Lily's Euphuës, and his England, a book intended to refine the English language. Scott has given us a lively picture of this affected jargon in his Sir Piercie Shafton, in the Monastery.

Thou know'st it must be now thy only bent
To keep in compass of thy predicament :
Then quick about thy purposed business come,
That to the next I may resign my room.

Then Ens¹ is represented as father of the Predicaments² his ten sons, whereof the eldest stood for Substance with his canons, which Ens, thus speaking, explains :—

GOOD luck befriend thee, Son ; for at thy birth
The fairy ladies danced upon the hearth ;
Thy drowsy nurse hath sworn she did them spy
Come tripping to the room where thou didst lie,
And sweetly singing round about thy bed
Strow all their blessings on thy sleeping head.
She heard them give thee this, that thou shouldst still
From eyes of mortals walk invisible :
Yet there is something that doth force my fear,
For once it was my dismal hap to hear
A Sibyl old, bow-bent with crooked age,
That far events full wisely could presage,
And in time's long and dark prospective glass
Foresaw what future days should bring to pass ;
"Your son," said she "(nor can you it prevent),
Shall subject be to many an Accident.³
O'er all his brethren he shall reign as king,
Yet every one shall make him underling,
And those that cannot live from him asunder
Ungratefully shall strive to keep him under,
In worth and excellence he shall out-go them,
Yet being above them, he shall be below them ;
From others he shall stand in need of nothing,
Yet on his brothers shall depend for clothing.
To find a foe it shall not be his hap,
And peace shall lull him in her flow'ry lap ;

² A Predicament is a category in logic ; that is, a series of all the predicates or attributes contained under a genus. The logic of Aristotle comprised ten categories: Substance, Quantity, Quality, Relation, Action, Passion, Time, Place, Situation, and Habit. These were personified in the Mask.

Or Severn swift, guilty of maiden's death,³
Or rocky Avon, or of sedgy Lee,
Or coaly Tine, or ancient hallowed Dee,
Or Humber loud that keeps the Scythian's name,⁴
Or Medway smooth, or royal towered Thame.

The rest was prose.

¹ It is said that there were thirty sorts of fish in this river, and thirty religious houses on its banks.

² At Mickleham, near Dorking, the river Mole, in hot summers, sinks through its sands, and finds a subterranean channel. In winter, and when heavy rains fall, it keeps its usual bed.

³ Sabrina. See "Comus," verse 827.

⁴ Humber was a Scythian king, said to have been drowned in this river by Locrine, three hundred years before the Romans landed in Britain.

Early Poems

ODE ON THE MORNING OF CHRIST'S NATIVITY.

I.

THIS is the month, and this the happy morn,
Wherein the Son of heaven's eternal king,
Of wedded Maid, and Virgin Mother born,
Our great redemption from above did bring ;
For so the holy sages¹ once did sing,
That He our deadly forfeit should release,
And with His Father work us a perpetual peace.

II.

That glorious form, that light unsufferable,
And that far-beaming blaze of majesty,
Wherewith He wont at heaven's high council-table
To sit the midst of Trinal Unity,
He laid aside ; and here with us to be,
Forsook the courts of everlasting day,
And chose with us a darksome house of mortal clay.

III.

Say, heav'nly Muse, shall not thy sacred vein
Afford a present to the Infant God ?
Hast thou no verse, no hymn, or solemn strain,
To welcome Him to this His new abode,
Now while the heav'n by the sun's team untrod,
Hath took no print of the approaching light,
And all the spangled host keep watch in squadrons bright ?

Odes

IV.

See how from far upon the eastern road
The star-led wizards¹ haste with odours sweet :
O run prevent them with thy humble ode,
And lay it lowly at His blessèd feet ;
Have thou the honour first thy Lord to greet,
And join thy voice unto the Angel-quire,
From out His secret altar touched with hallowed fire.

THE HYMN.

I.

It was the winter wild,
While the heaven-born child
All meanly wrapt in the rude manger lies ;
Nature in awe to Him
Had doff't her gaudy trim,
With her great Master so to sympathize :
It was no season then for her
To wanton with the sun, her lusty paramour.

II.

Only with speeches fair
She woes the gentle air
To hide her guilty front with innocent snow,
And on her naked shame,
Pollute with sinful blame,
The saintly veil of maiden white to throw,
Confounded that her Maker's eyes
Should look so near upon her foul deformities.

¹ The Magi. The word "wizard" meant simply wise men, and is so used in Sir John Cheke's translation of St. Matthew's Gospel.

Early Poems

III.

But He her fears to cease,
Sent down the meek-eyed Peace ;
 She, crowned with olive green, came softly sliding
Down through the turning sphere
His ready harbinger,
 With turtle wing the amorous clouds dividing ;
And waving wide her myrtle wand,
She strikes a universal peace through sea and land.

IV.

Nor war, or battle's sound
Was heard the world around :
 The idle spear and shield were high up hung,
The hookèd chariot stood
Unstained with hostile blood,
 The trumpet spake not to the armèd throng,
And kings sat still with awful eye,
As if they surely knew their sov'reign Lord was by.

V.

But peaceful was the night,
Wherein the Prince of light
 His reign of peace upon the earth began :
The winds with wonder whist¹
Smoothly the waters kist,
 Whispering new joys to the mild ocean,
Who now hath quite forgot to rave,
While birds of calm sit brooding on the charmèd wave.

VI.

The stars with deep amaze
Stand fixed in steadfast gaze,
 Bending one way their precious influence,
And will not take their flight,
For all the morning light,
 Or Lucifer that often warned them thence ;
But in their glimmering orbs did glow,
Until their Lord Himself bespake, and bid them go.

VII.

And though the shady gloom
Had given day her room,

The sun himself withheld his wonted speed,
And hid his head for shame,
As his inferior flame

The new enlightened world no more should need ;
He saw a greater sun appear
Than his bright throne, or burning axletree could bear.

VIII.

The shepherds on the lawn,
Or ere the point of dawn,

Sat simply chatting in a rustic row ;
Full little thought they then
That the mighty Pan¹

Was kindly come to live with them below ;
Perhaps their loves, or else their sheep,
Was all that did their silly thoughts so busy keep.

IX.

When such music sweet
Their hearts and ears did greet,
As never was by mortal finger strook,
Divinely-warbled voice
Answering the stringèd noise,

As all their souls in blissful rapture took
The air such pleasure loth to lose,
With thousand echoes still prolongs each heavenly close.

Nature that heard such sound,
Beneath the hollow round

Of Cynthia's seat, the airy region thrilling,
Now was almost won
To think her part was done,

And that her reign had here its last fulfilling ;
She knew such harmony alone
Could hold all heaven and earth in happier union.

Early Poems

XI.

At last surrounds their sight
A globe of circular light,
That with long beams the shamefaced night arrayed ;
The helmèd Cherubim,
And sworded Seraphim,
Are seen in glittering ranks with wings displayed,
Harping in loud and solemn quire,
With unexpressive notes to Heaven's new-born Heir.

XII.

Such music (as 'tis said)
Before was never made,
But when of old the sons of morning sung,
While the Creator great
His constellations set,
And the well-balanced world on hinges hung,
And cast the dark foundations deep,
And bid the welt'ring waves their oozy channel keep.

XIII.

Ring out, ye crystal spheres,
Once bless our human ears,
If ye have power to touch our senses so ;
And let your silver chime
Move in melodious time,
And let the base of heav'n's deep organ blow ;
And with your ninefold harmony
Make up full concert to the angelic symphony.

XIV.

For if such holy song
Inwrap our fancy long,
Time will run back, and fetch the age of gold,
And speckled Vanity
Will sicken soon and die,
And leprous Sin will melt from earthly mould ;
And Hell itself will pass away,
And leave her dolorous mansions to the peering day.

Odes

xv.

Yea Truth and Justice then
Will down return to men,
Orbed in a rainbow ; and, like glories wearing,
Mercy will sit between,
Throned in celestial sheen,
With radiant feet the tissued clouds down steering ;
And heav'n, as at some festival,
Will open wide the gates of her high palace hall.

xvi.

But wisest Fate says No,
This must not yet be so,
The Babe yet lies in smiling infancy,
That on the bitter cross
Must redeem our loss ;
So both Himself and us to glorify ;
Yet first to those ychained in sleep,
The wakeful trump of doom must thunder through the deep ;

xvii.

With such a horrid clang
As on mount Sinai rang,
While the red fire, and smouldering clouds out brake :
The aged earth aghast,
With terror of that blast,
Shall from the surface to the centre shake ;
When at the world's last session,
The dreadful Judge in middle air shall spread His throne.

And then at last our bliss
Full and perfect is,
But now begins ; for from this happy day

Early Poems

The old Dragon under ground
In straiter limits bound,
Not half so far casts his usurpèd sway,
And wroth to see his kingdom fail,
Swinges the scaly horror of his folded tail.

XIX.

The oracles are dumb,
No voice or hideous hum
Runs through the archèd roof in words deceiving.
Apollo from his shrine
Can no more divine,
With hollow shriek the steep of Delphos leaving.
No nightly trance, or breathèd spell
Inspires the pale-eyed priest from the prophetic cell.

XX.

The lonely mountains o'er,
And the resounding shore,
A voice of weeping¹ heard and loud lament ;
From haunted spring, and dale
Edged with poplar pale,
The parting genius is with sighing sent ;
With flow'r-inwoven tresses torn
The Nymphs in twilight shade of tangled thickets mourn.

XXI.

In consecrated earth,
And on the holy hearth,
The Lars,² and Lemures³ moan with midnight
plaint ;
In urns, and altars round,
A drear and dying sound
Affrights the Flamens at their service quaint ;
And the chill marble seems to sweat,
While each peculiar Pow'r foregoes his wonted seat.

¹ Alluding to the voice said to have been heard by mariners at sea, crying, "The great Pan is dead." The story is told by Plutarch.

Odes

XXII.

Peor and Baälim
Forsake their temples dim,
 With that twice-battered God of Palestine ;¹
And moonèd Ashtaroth,
Heav'n's queen and mother both,²
 Now sits not girt with tapers' holy shine ;
The Lybic Hammon shrinks his horn,
In vain the Tyrian maids their wounded Thammuz³
 mourn,

XXIII.

And sullen Moloch, fled,⁴
Hath left in shadows dread
 His burning idol all of blackest hue ;
In vain with cymbals' ring
They call the grisly king,
 In dismal dance about the furnace blue ;
The brutish gods of Nile as fast,
Isis and Orus, and the dog Anubis haste.

XXIV.

Nor is Osiris⁵ seen
In Memphian grove or green,
 Trampling the unshowered grass with lowings loud :
Nor can he be at rest
Within his sacred chest,
 Nought but profoundest hell can be his shroud ;
In vain with timbrelled anthems dark
The sable-stolèd sorcerers bear his worshipped ark.

XXV.

He feels from Judah's land
The dreaded Infant's hand,
 The rays of Bethlehem blind his dusky eyn ;

³ Adonis. He was killed by a wild boar on Mount Lebanon, and was worshipped once a year by the Syrian women.

⁴ The god of the Ammonites.

⁵ The Egyptian ox-god.

Early Poems

Nor all the Gods beside,
Longer dare abide,
Not Typhon huge ending in snaky twine :
Our Babe, to show His Godhead true,
Can in His swaddling bands control the damnèd crew.

XXVI.

So, when the sun in bed,
Curtained with cloudy red,
Pillows his chin upon an orient wave,
The flocking shadows pale
Troop to the infernal jail,
Each fettered ghost slips to his several grave ;
And the yellow-skirted Fays
Fly after the night-steeds, leaving their moon-loved maze.

XXVII.

But see the Virgin blest
Hath laid her Babe to rest,
Time is our tedious song should here have ending :
Heaven's youngest teemèd star
Hath fixed her polished car,
Her sleeping Lord with handmaid lamp attending ;
And all about the courtly stable
Bright harnessed Angels sit in order serviceable.

UPON THE CIRCUMCISION.

YE flaming Pow'rs, and wingèd Warriors bright,
That erst with music, and triumphant song,
First heard by happy watchful shepherds' ear,
So sweetly sung your joy the clouds along

Odes

Through the soft silence of the list'ning night;
Now mourn, and if sad share with us to bear
Your fiery essence can distil no tear,
Burn in your sighs, and borrow
Seas swept from our deep sorrow :
He who with all heaven's heraldry while
Entered the world, now bleeds to give us ease :
Alas, how soon our sin
Sore doth begin
His infancy to seize !

O more exceeding love, or law more just !
Just law indeed, but more exceeding love !
For we by rightful doom remediless
Were lost in death, till He that dwelt above
High throned in secret bliss, for us frail dust
Emptied His glory, ev'n to nakedness ;
And that great covenant which we still transgress
Entirely satisfied,
And the full wrath beside
Of vengeful justice bore for our excess,
And seals obedience first, with wounding smart,
This day, but O ere long,
Huge pangs and strong
Will pierce more near His heart.

THE PASSION.

1629.

I.

EREWHILE of music, and ethereal mirth,
Wherewith the stage of air and earth did ring,
And joyous news of heav'nly Infant's birth,
My Muse with Angels did divide to sing ;
But headlong joy is ever on the wing,
In wintry solstice like the shortened light
Soon swallowed up in dark and long out-living night.

Early Poems

II.

For now to sorrow must I tune my song,
And set my harp to notes of saddest woe,
Which on our dearest Lord did seize ere long,
Dangers, and snares, and wrongs, and worse than so,
Which He for us did freely undergo :

Most perfect Hero, tried in heaviest plight
Of labours huge and hard, too hard for human wight :

III.

He, Sov'reign Priest, stooping His regal head,
That dropped with odorous oil down His fair eyes,
Poor fleshly tabernacle enterèd,
His starry front low-roofed beneath the skies :
O what a mask was there, what a disguise !

Yet more ; the stroke of death He must abide,
Then lies Him meekly down fast by His brethren's side

IV.

These latest scenes confine my roving verse,
To this horizon is my Phœbus bound ;
His god-like acts, and His temptations fierce,
And former sufferings other where are found ;
Loud o'er the rest Cremona's trump¹ doth sound ;

Me softer airs befit, and softer strings
Of lute, or viol still, more apt for mournful things.

V.

Befriend me, Night, best patroness of grief,
Over the pole thy thickest mantle throw,
And work my flattered fancy to belief
That Heaven and Earth are coloured with my woe ;
My sorrows are too dark for day to know :

The leaves should all be black whereon I write,
And letters where my tears have washed a wannish white.

Odes

VI.

See, see the chariot, and those rushing wheels,
That whirled the Prophet up at Chebar flood ;¹
My spirit some transporting Cherub feels,
To bear me where the tow'rs of Salem stood,
Once glorious tow'rs, now sunk in guiltless blood :
There doth my soul in holy vision sit
In pensive trance, and anguish, and ecstatic fit.

Mine eye hath found that sad sepulchral rock
That was the casket of Heav'n's richest store,
And here though grief my feeble hands up lock,
Yet on the softened quarry would I score
My plaining verse as lively as before ;
For sure so well instructed are my tears,
That they would fitly fall in ordered characters.

VIII.

Or should I thence hurried on viewless wing,
Take up a weeping on the mountains wild,
The gentle neighbourhood of grove and spring
Would soon unbosom all their echoes mild,
And I (for grief is easily beguiled)
Might think th² infection of my sorrows loud
Had got a race of mourners on some pregnant cloud.

This subject the Author finding to be above the years he had, when he wrote it, and nothing satisfied with what was begun, left it unfinished.

ON TIME.¹

FLY, envious Time, till thou run out thy race,
Call on the lazy leaden-stepping hours,
Whose speed is but the heavy plummet's pace ;
And glut thyself with what thy womb devours,
Which is no more than what is false and vain,
And merely mortal dross ;
So little is our loss,
So little is thy gain.
For when as each thing bad thou hast intombed,
And last of all thy greedy self consumed,
Then long Eternity shall greet our bliss
With an individual kiss ;
And Joy shall overtake us as a flood,
When everything that is sincerely good
And perfectly divine,
With truth, and peace, and love, shall ever shine
About the supreme throne
Of Him, to whose happy-making sight alone
When once our heav'nly-guided soul shall climb,
Then all this earthly grossness quit,
Attired with stars, we shall for ever sit,
Triumphing over Death, and Chance, and thee,
O Time.

AT A SOLEMN MUSIC.

BLEST pair of Sirens, pledges of heav'n's joy,
Sphere-born harmonious sisters, Voice and Verse,
Wed your divine sounds, and mixed pow'r employ,
Dead things with inbreathed sense able to pierce ;
And to our high-raised phantasy present
That undisturbèd song of pure concent,
Aye sung before the sapphire-coloured throne
To Him that sits thereon,

Odes

With saintly shout, and solemn jubilee,
Where the bright Seraphim in burning row
Their loud uplifted angel-trumpets blow,
And the cherubic host in thousand quires
Touch their immortal harps of golden wires,
With those just Spirits that wear victorious palms,
Hymns devout and holy psalms
Singing everlastingly :
That we on earth with undiscording voice
May rightly answer that melodious noise ;
As once we did, till disproportioned sin
Jarred against nature's chime, and with harsh din
Broke the fair music that all creatures made
To their great Lord, whose love their motion swayed
In perfect diapason, whilst they stood
In first obedience, and their state of good.
O may we soon again renew that song,
And keep in tune with Heav'n, till God ere long
To His celestial concert us unite,
To live with Him, and sing in endless morn of light.

SONG. ON MAY MORNING.

Now the bright morning star, day's harbinger,
Comes dancing from the east, and leads with her
The flow'ry May, who from her green lap throws
The yellow cowslip, and the pale primrose.
Hail, bounteous May, that dost inspire
Mirth, and youth, and warm desire ;
Woods and groves are of thy dressing,
Hill and dale doth boast thy blessing.
Thus we salute thee with our early song,
And welcome thee, and wish thee long.

AN EPITAPH ON THE MARCHIONESS OF WINCHESTER.¹

THIS rich marble doth inter
The honoured wife of Winchester,
A Viscount's daughter, an Earl's heir,
Besides what her virtues fair
Added to her noble birth,
More than she could own from earth.
Summers three times eight save one
She had told ; alas ! too soon,
After so short time of breath,
To house with darkness, and with death.
Yet had the number of her days
Been as complete as was her praise,
Nature and Fate had had no strife
In giving limit to her life.
Her high birth, and her graces sweet
Quickly found a lover meet ;
The virgin choir for her request
The god that sits at marriage feast ;
He at their invoking came,
But with a scarce well-lighted flame ;
And in his garland as he stood,
Ye might discern a cypress bud.²
Once had the early matrons run
To greet her of a lovely son,
And now with second hope she goes
And calls Lucina to her throes ;
But whether by mischance or blame
Atropos³ for Lucina came ;

¹ This lady was the wife of John, Marquis of Winchester, one of the noblest and most devoted of the adherents of Charles I. His house at Basing, in Hants, stood a two-years' siege by the rebels, and was finally levelled to the ground by them. Lord Winchester died in 1674. On his monument in Engelfield Church is an epitaph by Dryden. "It is remarkable," says Warton, "that both husband and wife should have severally received the honour of an epitaph from two such poets as Milton and Dryden."

² An emblem of death.

³ The Fate who cuts the web of life.

Epitaphs

And with remorseless cruelty
Spoiled at once both fruit and tree :
The hapless babe before his birth
Had burial, yet not laid in earth,
And the languished mother's womb
Was not long a living tomb.
So have I seen some tender slip,
Saved with care from winter's nip,
The pride of her carnation train,
Plucked up by some unheedy swain,
Who only thought to crop the flow'r
New shot up from vernal show'r ;
But the fair blossom hangs the head
Side-ways, as on a dying bed,
And those pearls of dew she wears
Prove to be presaging tears,
Which the sad morn had let fall
On her hastening funeral.
Gentle Lady, may thy grave
Peace and quiet ever have ;
After this thy travail sore
Sweet rest seize thee evermore,
That to give the world increase,
Shortened hast thy own life's lease.
Here, besides the sorrowing
That thy noble house doth bring,
Here be tears of perfect moan
Wept for thee in Helicon,
And some flowers, and some bays,
For thy hearse, to strew the ways,
Sent thee from the banks of Came,
Devoted to thy virtuous name ;
Whilst thou, bright Saint, high sitt'st in glory
Next her, much like to thee in story,
That fair Syrian shepherdess,¹
Who after years of barrenness,
The highly favoured Joseph bore
To him that served for her before,

Early Poems

And at her next birth much like thee
Through pangs fled to felicity,
Far within the bosom bright
Of blazing Majesty and Light :
There with thee, new welcome Saint,
Like fortunes may her soul acquaint,
With thee there clad in radiant sheen,
No Marchioness, but now a Queen.

AN EPITAPH ON THE ADMIRABLE DRAMATIC POET W. SHAKSPEARE.¹

1630.

WHAT needs my Shakspeare for his honoured bones,
The labour of an age in pilèd stones?
Or that his hallowed reliques should be hid
Under a starry-pointing pyramid?
Dear son of Memory, great heir of Fame,
What need'st thou such weak witness of thy name?
Thou in our wonder and astonishment
Hast built thyself a live-long monument.
For whilst to the shame of slow-endeavouring art
Thy easy numbers flow, and that each heart
Hath from the leaves of thy unvalued book
Those Delphic lines with deep impression took,
Then thou our fancy of itself bereaving,
Dost make us marble with too much conceiving ;
And so sepúlchred in such pomp dost lie,
That kings for such a tomb would wish to die.

¹ This Epitaph was prefixed to the folio edition of Shakspeare, 1632, but without Milton's name. It is the first of his poems which was published.

Epitaphs

ON THE UNIVERSITY CARRIER.

Who sickened in the time of his vacancy, being forbid to go to London, by reason of the Plague.

HERE lies old Hobson ;¹ Death hath broke his girt,
And here, alas, hath laid him in the dirt ;
Or else the ways being foul, twenty to one,
He's here stuck in a slough, and overthrown.
'Twas such a shifter, that if truth were known,
Death was half glad when he had got him down ;
For he had any time this ten years full,
Dodged with him betwixt Cambridge and the Bull.
And surely death could never have prevailed,
Had not his weekly course of carriage failed ;
But lately finding him so long at home,
And thinking now his journey's end was come,
And that he had ta'en up his latest inn,
In the kind office of a chamberlin
Showed him his room where he must lodge that night,
Pulled off his boots, and took away the light :
If any ask for him, it shall be said,
Hobson has supped, and 's newly gone to bed.

ANOTHER ON THE SAME.

HERE lieth one, who did most truly prove
That he could never die while he could move ;
So hung his destiny, never to rot
While he might still jog on and keep his trot,
Made of sphere-metal never to decay
Until his revolution was at stay.
Time numbers motion, yet (without a crime
'Gainst old truth) motion numbered out his time :

¹ This carrier gave rise to the old proverb of "Hobson's choice : this or none," by always obliging the person who hired a horse of him to take the one standing next to the stable-door ; "so that every customer should have an equal chance of being well served, and every horse be used in its turn."—See Spectator, No. 509.

Early Poems

And like an engine moved with wheel and weight,
His principles being ceased, he ended straight.
Rest that gives all men life, gave him his death,
And too much breathing put him out of breath ;
Nor were it contradiction to affirm
Too long vacation hastened on his term.
Merely to drive the time away he sickened,
Fainted, and died, nor would with ale be quickened ;
“Nay,” quoth he, on his swooning bed out-stretched,
“If I mayn’t carry, sùre I’ll ne’er be fetched,
But vow, though the cross doctors all stood hearers,
For one carrier put down to make six bearers.”
Ease was his chief disease, and to judge right,
He died for heaviness, that his cart went light :
His leisure told him that his time was come,
And lack of load made his life burdensome,
That even to his last breath (there be that say’t)
As he were pressed to death, he cried “more weight ;”
But had his doings lasted as they were,
He had been an immortal carrier.
Obedient to the moon he spent his date
In course reciprocal, and had his fate
Linked to the mutual flowing of the seas,
Yet (strange to think) his wain was his increase :
His letters are delivered all and gone,
Only remains this superscription.

L’ALLEGRO.¹

HENCE, loathèd Melancholy,
Of Cerberus and blackest Midnight born,
In Stygian cave forlorn,
’Mongst horrid shapes, and shrieks, and sights unholy !

¹ These two Poems—“L’Allegro” and “Il Penseroso”—are supposed to have been written in Milton’s youth at Horton but were first published in 1648.

L'Allegro

Find out some uncouth cell,
Where brooding Darkness spreads his jealous wings
And the night raven sings ;
There under ebon shades, and low-browed rocks,
As ragged as thy locks,
In dark Cimmerian¹ desert ever dwell.
But come thou Goddess fair and free,
In heaven y-clep'd Euphrosyne,
And by men, heart-easing Mirth,
Whom lovely Venus at a birth
With two sister Graces more,
To ivy-crowned Bacchus bore ;
Or whether (as some sager sing)
The frolic wind that breathes the spring,
Zephyr with Aurora playing,
As he met her once a Maying ;
There on beds of violets blue,
And fresh-blown roses washed in dew,
Filled her with thee a daughter fair,
So buxom, blithe, and debonair.
Haste thee, Nymph, and bring with thee
Jest, and youthful Jollity,
Quips, and Cranks, and wanton Wiles,
Nods, and Becks, and wreathèd Smiles,
Such as hang on Hebe's cheek,
And love to live in dimple sleek ;
Sport that wrinkled Care derides,
And Laughter holding both his sides.
Come, and trip it as you go,
On the light fantastic toe ;
And in thy right hand lead with thee
The mountain nymph, sweet Liberty ;
And if I give thee honour due,
Mirth, admit me of thy crew,
To live with her, and live with thee,
In unprovèd pleasures free.
To hear the lark begin his flight,
And singing startle the dull night,

¹ The Cimmerians were proverbial for dwelling in dark caves.

Early Poems

From his watch-tower in the skies,
Till the dappled dawn doth rise ;
Then to come in spite of sorrow,
And at my window bid good morrow,
Through the sweet-briar, or the vine,
Or the twisted eglantine :
While the cock with lively din
Scatters the rear of darkness thin,
And to the stack, or the barn-door,
Stoutly struts his dames before,
Oft listening how the hounds and horn
Cheerly rouse the slumb'ring morn,
From the side of some hoar hill,
Through the high wood echoing shrill :
Some time walking, not unseen,
By hedge-row elms, on hillocks green,
Right against the eastern gate,
Where the great sun begins his state,
Robed in flames, and amber light,
The clouds in thousand liveries dight ;
While the ploughman near at hand
Whistles o'er the furrowed land,
And the milkmaid singeth blithe,
And the mower whets his scythe,
And every shepherd tells his tale
Under the hawthorn in the dale.
Straight mine eye hath caught new pleasures
Whilst the landscape round it measures ;
Russet lawns, and fallows gray,
Where the nibbling flocks do stray,
Mountains, on whose barren breast
The lab'ring clouds do often rest ;
Meadows trim with daisies pied,
Shallow brooks, and rivers wide.
Towers and battlements it sees
Bosomed high in tufted trees,
Where perhaps some Beauty lies,
The Cynosure¹ of neighb'ring eyes.

¹The Polestar—alluding to its magnetic attraction. The magnetic needle always points to it. "Your eyes are lodestars" is said by Shakspeare.

L'Allegro

Hard by, a cottage-chimney smokes,
From betwixt two agèd oaks,
Where Corydon and Thyrsis met,
Are at their savoury dinner set
Of herbs, and other country messes,
Which the neat-handed Phillis dresses ;
And then in haste the bower she leaves,
With Thestylis to bind the sheaves ;
Or, if the earlier season lead,
To the tanned haycock in the mead,
Sometimes with secure delight
The upland hamlets will invite,
When the merry bells ring round,
And the jocund rebecks ¹ sound
To many a youth, and many a maid,
Dancing in the chequered shade ;
And young and old come forth to play
On a sunshine holiday,
Till the live-long daylight fail ;
Then to the spicy nut-brown ale,²
With stories told of many a feat,
How fairy Mab the junkets eat ;
She was pinched and pulled, she said,
And he by Friar's lanthorn ³ led,
Tells how the drudging Goblin sweat,
To earn his cream-bowl duly set,
When in one night, ere glimpse of morn,
His shadowy flail hath threshed the corn,
That ten day-lab'ers could not end ;
Then lies him down the lubber fiend,⁴
And stretched out all the chimney's length,
Basks at the fire his hairy strength,
And crop-full out of doors he flings,
Ere the first cock his matin rings.
Thus done the tales, to bed they creep,
By whispering winds soon lulled asleep.

Early Poems

Towered cities please us then,
And the busy hum of men,
Where throngs of knights and barons bold
In weeds of peace high triumphs hold,
With store of ladies, whose bright eyes
Rain influence, and judge the prize
Of wit, or arms, while both contend
To win her grace, whom all commend.
There let Hymen oft appear
In saffron robe, with taper clear,
And pomp, and feast, and revelry,
With mask, and antique pageantry,
Such sights as youthful poets dream
On summer eves by haunted stream
Then to the well-trod stage anon,
If Jonson's learnèd sock be on,
Or sweetest Shakspeare, Fancy's child,
Warble his native wood-notes wild.

And ever against eating cares,
Lap me in soft Lydian airs,
Married to immortal verse,
Such as the meeting soul may pierce,
In notes, with many a winding bout¹
Of linkèd sweetness long drawn out,
With wanton heed and giddy cunning,
The melting voice through mazes running,
Untwisting all the chains that tie
The hidden soul of harmony ;
That Orpheus' self may heave his head
From golden slumber on a bed
Of heaped Elysian flowers, and hear
Such strains as would have won the ear
Of Pluto, to have quite set free
His half regained Eurydice.

These delights if thou canst give,
Mirth, with thee I mean to live.

IL PENSEROSO.

HENCE, vain deluding joys,
The brood of folly without father bred,
How little you bestead,
Or fill the fixèd mind with all your toys !
Dwell in some idle brain,
And fancies fond with gaudy shapes possess,
As thick and numberless
As the gay motes that people the sunbeams,
Or likest hovering dreams
The fickle pensioners ¹ of Morpheus' train.
But hail thou Goddess, sage and holy,
Hail divinest Melancholy,
Whose saintly visage is too bright
To hit the sense of human sight,
And therefore to our weaker view
O'erlaid with black, staid Wisdom's hue ;
Black, but such as in esteem
Prince Memnon's ² sister might beseem,
Or that starred Ethiop queen ³ that strove
To set her beauty's praise above
The Sea-Nymphs, and their pow'rs offended :
Yet thou art higher far descended ;
Thee bright-haired Vesta, ⁴ long of yore,
To solitary Saturn bore ;
His daughter she (in Saturn's reign,
Such mixture was not held a stain).
Oft in glimmering bow'rs and glades
He met her, and in secret shades

¹ Followers. The term was used first in this sense by a band of courtiers, who were enrolled by Queen Elizabeth under that title. They were young nobles of the highest fashion of the period.

² Memnon was king of Ethiopia, an ally of the Trojans. He was slain by Achilles.

⁴ The goddess of fire. "The meaning of Milton's allegory," says Warton, "is, that Melancholy is the daughter of Genius, which is typified by the 'bright-haired goddess of eternal fire.' Saturn, the father, is the god of saturnine dispositions, of pensive and gloomy minds."

Early Poems

Of woody Ida's inmost grove,
While yet there was no fear of Jove.
Come, pensive Nun, devout and pure,
Sober, steadfast, and demure,
All in a robe of darkest grain,
Flowing with majestic train,
And sable stole¹ of cyprus lawn,
Over thy decent shoulders drawn.
Come, but keep thy wonted state,
With even step, and musing gait,
And looks commercing with the skies,
Thy rapt soul sitting in thine eyes :
There held in holy passion still,
Forget thyself to marble, till
With a sad, leaden, downward cast
Thou fix them on the earth as fast :
And join with thee calm Peace, and Quiet,
Spare Fast, that oft with gods doth diet,
And hears the Muses in a ring
Aye round about Jove's altar sing :
And add to these retired Leisure,
That in trim gardens takes his pleasure ;
But first, and chiefest, with thee bring Him that yon soars on golden wing,
Guiding the fiery-wheelèd throne,
The Cherub Contemplation ;
And the mute Silence hist along,
'Less Philomel will deign a song,
In her sweetest, saddest plight,
Smoothing the rugged brow of night,
While Cynthia checks her dragon yoke,
Gently o'er the accustomed oak ;
Sweet bird, that shunn'st the noise of folly,
Most musical, most melancholy !
Thee, chauntress, oft the woods among
I woo, to hear thy even-song ;
And missing thee, I walk unseen
On the dry smooth-shaven green,

Il Penseroso

To behold the wandering moon,
Riding near her highest noon,
Like one that had been led astray
Through the heav'n's wide pathless way ;
And oft, as if her head she bowed,
Stooping through a fleecy cloud.
Oft on a plat of rising ground,
I hear the far-off curfew sound,
Over some wide watered shore,
Swinging slow with sullen roar ;
Or if the air will not permit,
Some still removèd place will fit,
Where glowing embers through the room
Teach light to counterfeit a gloom,
Far from all resort of mirth,
Save the cricket on the hearth,
Or the bellman's drowsy charm,
To bless the doors from nightly harm.
Or let my lamp at midnight hour
Be seen in some high lonely tower,
Where I may oft out-watch the Bear,¹
With thrice-great Hermes,² or unsphere

What worlds, or what vast regions hold
The immortal mind, that hath forsook
Her mansion in this fleshly nook :
And of those Demons³ that are found
In fire, air, flood, or under ground,
Whose power hath a true consent

Early Poems

Or what (though rare) of later age
Ennobled hath the buskined stage.
But, O sad Virgin, that thy power
Might raise Musæus ¹ from his bower,
Or bid the soul of Orpheus sing
Such notes as warbled to the string,
Drew iron tears down Pluto's cheek,
And made Hell grant what love did seek.
Or call up him ² that left half told

Of Camball, and of Algarsife,
And who had Canace to wife,
That owned the virtuous ring and glass,
And of the wondrous horse of brass,
On which the Tartar king did ride;

Of tourneys and of trophies hung,
Of forests, and enchantments drear,

With the Attic boy ⁵ to hunt,
But kerchiefed in a comely cloud,
While rocking winds are piping loud,

When the gust hath blown his fill,
Ending on the rustling leaves,
With minute drops from off the eaves.
And when the sun begins to fling
His flaring beams, me, Goddess, bring

And shadows brown that Sylvan loves

II Penseroso

Of pine, or monumental oak,
Where the rude axe with heavèd stroke
Was never heard the Nymphs to daunt,
Or fright them from their hallowed haunt.
There in close covert by some brook,
Where no profaner eye may look,
Hide me from day's garish eye,
While the bee with honied thigh,
That at her flow'ry work doth sing,
And the waters murmuring
With such consort as they keep,
Entice the dewy-feathered sleep;
And let some strange mysterious dream
Wave at his wings in airy stream
Of lively portraiture displayed,
Softly on my eyelids laid.
And as I wake, sweet music breathe
Above, about, or underneath,
Sent by some Spirit to mortals good,
Or the unseen Genius of the wood.
But let my due feet never fail
To walk the studious cloister's pale,¹
And love the high embowèd roof,
With antic pillars massy proof,
And storied windows richly dight,
Casting a dim religious light:
There let the pealing organ blow,
To the full voiced quire below,
In service high, and anthems clear,
As may with sweetness, through mine ear,
Dissolve me into ecstasies,
And bring all heav'n before mine eyes.
And may at last my weary age
Find out the peaceful hermitage,
The hairy gown and mossy cell,
Where I may sit and rightly spell
Of every star that heav'n doth show,
And ev'ry herb that sips the dew;

And I with thee will choose to live.

ARCADES.

Part of an entertainment presented to the Countess Dowager of Derby,¹ at Harefield, by some noble persons of her family, who appear on the scene in pastoral habit, moving towards the seat of state, with this song :—

SONG I.

Look, nymphs, and shepherds look,
What sudden blaze of majesty
Is that which we from hence descry,
Too divine to be mistook :
 This, this is she
To whom our views and wishes bend :
Here our solemn search hath end.
Fame, that her high worth to raise,
Seemed erst so lavish and profuse,
We may justly now accuse
Of detraction from her praise ;
 Less than half we find expressed,
 Envy bid conceal the rest.
Mark what radiant state she spreads,
In circle round her shining throne,
Shooting her beams like silver threads ;
This, this is she alone,
 Sitting like a Goddess bright,
 In the centre of her light.

¹ Alice Spenser, daughter of Sir John Spenser, of Althorpe. Milton lived in the neighbourhood of Harefield, which was near Uxbridge. His father held his house near Colnebrook, and at Horton, under the Earl of Bridgewater. Lady Derby was a generous patroness of poets. Spenser was related to her family.

Arcades

Might she the wise Latona be,
Or the towerèd Cybele,
Mother of a hundred Gods?
Juno dares not give her odds;
Who had thought this clime had held
A deity so unparalleled?

As they come forward, the Genius of the Wood appears, and, turning toward them, speaks.

GEN. Stay, gentle Swains, for though in this disguise,
I see bright honour sparkle through your eyes;
Of famous Arcady ye are, and sprung
Of that renownèd flood, so often sung,
Divine Alphéus, who by secret sluice
Stole under seas to meet his Arethuse;¹
And ye, the breathing roses of the wood,
Fair silver-buskin'd Nymphs, as great and good,
I know this quest of yours, and free intent
Was all in honour and devotion meant
To the great mistress of yon princely shrine,
Whom with low reverence I adore as mine,
And with all helpful service will comply
To further this night's glad solemnity;
And lead ye where ye may more near behold
What shallow-searching Fame has left untold
Which I full oft amidst these shades alone
Have sat to wonder at, and gaze upon:
For know, by lot from Jove I am the Power
Of this fair wood, and live in oaken bower,
To nurse the saplings tall, and curl the grove
With ringlets quaint, and wanton windings wove;
And all my plants I save from nightly ill
Of noisome winds, and blasting vapours chill:
And from the boughs brush off the evil dew,
And heal the harms of thwarting thunder blue,
Or what the cross dire-looking planet smites,
Or hurtful worm with cankered venom bites.

¹ A river of Arcadia, which sinks into the earth, passes under the sea without mixing its waters with the salt waves, and rises near Syracuse, in Sicily, where it joins the Arethusa, and flows conjointly with that stream to the sea. See Shelley's exquisite poem, "Arethusa."

Arcades

When evening gray doth rise, I fetch my round
Over the mount, and all this hallowed ground ;
And early, ere the odorous breath of morn
Awakes the slumb'ring leaves, or tasselled horn
Shakes the high thicket, haste I all about,
Number my ranks, and visit every sprout
With puissant words, and murmurs made to bless ;
But else, in deep of night, when drowsiness
Hath locked up mortal sense, then listen I
To the celestial Sirens' harmony,
That sit upon the nine infolded spheres,¹
And sing to those that hold the vital shears,
And turn the adamantine spindle round,²
On which the fate of gods and men is wound.
Such sweet compulsion doth in music lie,
To lull the daughters of Necessity,
And keep unsteady Nature to her law,
And the low world in measured motion draw
After the heav'nly tune, which none can hear
Of human mould, with gross unpurgèd ear ;
And yet such music worthiest were to blaze
The peerless height of her immortal praise,
Whose lustre leads us, and for her most fit,
If my inferior hand or voice could hit
Inimitable sounds : yet as we go,
Whate'er the skill of lesser Gods can show,
I will assay, her worth to celebrate,
And so attend ye toward her glitt'ring state ;
Where ye may all that are of noble stem
Approach, and kiss her sacred vesture's hem.

² This is Plato's system. Fate, or Necessity, holds a spindle of adamant ; and with her three daughters,—Lachesis, Clotho, and Atropos (the Fates),—who handle the vital web wound round about the spindle, she conducts or turns the heavenly bodies. Nine Muses, or Sirens, sit on the summit of the spheres, which, in their revolutions, produce the most ravishing musical harmony. To this harmony the three daughters of Necessity perpetually sing in correspondent tones. In the meantime, the adamantine spindle, which is placed on the lap of Necessity, . . . is also revolved.

SONG II.

O'ER the smooth enamelled green,
Where no print of step hath been,
Follow me as I sing,
And touch the warbled string,
Under the shady roof
Of branching elm star-proof.
Follow me,
I will bring you where she sits,
Clad in splendour as befits
Her deity.
Such a rural Queen
All Arcadia hath not seen.

SONG III.

NYMPHS and Shepherds dance no more
By sandy Ladon's ¹ lilled banks,
On old Lycæus or Cyllene hoar
Trip no more in twilight ranks,
Though Erymanth your loss deplore,
A better soil shall give ye thanks.
From the stony Mænalus
Bring your flocks, and live with us ;
Here ye shall have greater grace,
To serve the lady of this place ;
Though Syrinx your Pan's mistress were,
Yet Syrinx well might wait on her.
Such a rural Queen

COMUS, A MASK.

1634.

Presented at Ludlow Castle before John, Earl of Bridgewater, then President of Wales.

"Comus" was suggested to the Poet by the fact that the two sons and the daughter of the Earl of Bridgewater, on their return from a visit to some relations in Herefordshire, were benighted in Haywood Forest; and the Lady Alice was, for a short time, lost. The Mask was written for the Michaelmas festivities of 1634, and was acted by Lord Bridgewater's children. The music composed for it was by Henry Lawes, who performed in it the part of the Spirit, or Thyrsis. He was the son of Thomas Lawes, a Vicar-Choral of Salisbury Cathedral, and was at first a chorister himself. He became finally one of the Court musicians to Charles I. Masks and music fled before the stern gloom of the Commonwealth, and Lawes was compelled to gain his living by teaching the lute. His greatest friends during this period of difficulty and poverty were the Ladies Alice and Mary Egerton. He lived to the Restoration, and composed the Coronation Anthem for Charles II. "Comus" was first published by Lawes, without Milton's name, in 1637, with a dedication to Lord Brackley. Masks were the fashion of the age; and Milton was probably called on by Lord Bridgewater to produce one, because he had already written the "Arcades" for Lady Bridgewater's mother, Lady Derby, at Harefield, in Middlesex.

The attendant Spirit¹ descends or enters.

BEFORE the starry threshold of Jove's court
My mansion is, where those immortal shapes
Of bright aerial spirits live insphered
In regions mild of calm and serene air,
Above the smoke and stir of this dim spot,
Which men call Earth, and with low-thoughtèd care
Confined, and pestered² in this pinfold here,
Strive to keep up a frail and feverish being,
Unmindful of the crown that virtue gives,
After this mortal change, to her true servants
Amongst the enthronèd Gods on sainted seats.

¹ The Spirit is called "Dæmon" in the Cambridge MS.—WARTON.

² Crowded; from pesta, a crowd.

Comus

Yet some there be that by due steps aspire
To lay their just hands on that golden key,
That opes the palace of eternity ;
To such my errand is ; and but for such,
I would not soil these pure ambrosial weeds
With the rank vapours of this sin-worn mould.

But to my task. Neptune, besides the sway
Of every salt flood, and each ebbing stream,
Took in by lot 'twixt high and nether Jove
Imperial rule of all the sea-girt isles,
That like to rich and various gems inlay
The unadornèd bosom of the deep ;
Which he, to grace his tributary Gods,
By course commits to sev'ral government,
And gives them leave to wear their sapphire crowns,
And wield their little tridents. But this Isle,
The greatest and the best of all the main,
He quarters to his blue-haired deities ;
And all this tract that fronts the falling sun
A noble Peer of mickle trust and power
Has in his charge, with tempered awe to guide
An old and haughty nation proud in arms :¹
Where his fair offspring, nursed in princely lore,
Are coming to attend their father's state,
And new-intrusted sceptre. But their way
Lies through the perplexèd paths of this drear wood,
The nodding horror of whose shady brows
Threats the forlorn and wand'ring passenger ;
And here their tender age might suffer peril,
But that by quick command from sov'ran Jove
I was dispatched for their defence and guard ;
And listen why ; for I will tell you now
What never yet was heard in tale or song,
From old or modern bard, in hall or bower.

Bacchus, that first from out the purple grape
Crushed the sweet poison of misusèd wine,
After the Tuscan mariners transformed,
Coasting the Tyrrhene shore, as the winds listed,
On Circe's island fell : who knows not Circe,

Comus

The daughter of the sun, whose charmèd cup
Whoever tasted, lost his upright shape,
And downward fell into a grovelling swine?
This Nymph that gazed upon his clust'ring locks,
With ivy berries wreathed, and his blithe youth,
Had by him, ere he parted thence, a son
Much like his father, but his mother more,
Whom therefore she brought up, and Comus¹ named :
Who ripe, and frolic of his full grown age,
Roving the Celtic and Iberian fields,
At last betakes him to this ominous wood,
And in thick shelter of black shades imbowered
Excels his mother at her mighty art,
Offering to ev'ry weary traveller
His orient liquor in a crystal glass,
To quench the drouth of Phœbus ; which as they taste,

(For most do taste through fond intemperate thirst)
Soon as the potion works, their human count'nance,
Th' express resemblance of the Gods, is changed
Into some brutish form of wolf, or bear,
Or ounce, or tiger, hog, or bearded goat,
All other parts remaining as they were ;
And they, so perfect is their misery,
Not once perceive their foul disfigurement,
But boast themselves more comely than before,
And all their friends and native home forget,
To roll with pleasure in a sensual sty.
Therefore, when any favoured of high Jove
Chances to pass through this adventurous glade,
Swift as the sparkle of a glancing star
I shoot from heav'n, to give him safe convoy,
As now I do. But first I must put off
These my sky robes spun out of Iris' woof,
And take the weeds and likeness of a swain,
That to the service of this house belongs,
Who with his soft pipe, and smooth-dittied song,
Well knows to still the wild winds when they roar,

¹ Comus was the god of good cheer. He had appeared as a dramatic personage in one of Jonson's Masks before the Court, in 1619.

Comus

And hush the waving woods ; nor of less faith,
And in this office of his mountain watch,
Likeliest, and nearest to the present aid
Of this occasion. But I hear the tread
Of hateful steps, I must be viewless now.

Comus enters with a charming-rod in one hand, his glass in the other ; with him a rout of monsters, headed like sundry sorts of wild beasts, but otherwise like men and women, their apparel glistening ; they come in making a riotous and unruly noise, with torches in their hands.

COMUS. The star that bids the shepherd fold
Now the top of heaven doth hold ;
And the gilded car of day
His glowing axle doth allay
In the steep Atlantic stream ;
And the slope sun his upward beam
Shoots against the dusky pole,
Pacing toward the other goal
Of his chamber in the east.
Meanwhile welcome Joy, and Feast,
Midnight Shout and Revelry,
Tipsy Dance and Jollity.
Braid your locks with rosy twine,
Dropping odours, dropping wine.
Rigour now is gone to bed,
And Advice with scrupulous head,
Strict Age, and sour Severity,
With their grave saws in slumber lie.
We that are of purer fire
Imitate the starry quire,
Who in their nightly watchful spheres
Lead in swift round the months and years.
The sounds and seas, with all their finny drove,
Now to the moon in wavering morrice¹ move ;
And on the tawny sands and shelves
Trip the pert fairies and the dapper elves.
By dimpled brook, and fountain brim,
The wood-nymphs decked with daisies trim,

¹ The morrice or Moorish, dance, long a great favourite with our ancestors. It was introduced by John of Gaunt, it is said, in the reign of Edward III., on his return from Spain. See Douce's Illustrations of Shakspeare.

Comus

Their merry wakes and pastimes keep.
What hath night to do with sleep?
Night hath better sweets to prove,
Venus now wakes, and wakens Love.
Come, let us our rites begin,
'Tis only day-light that makes sin,
Which these dun shades will ne'er report.
Hail Goddess of nocturnal sport,
Dark-veil'd Cotytto,¹ to whom the secret flame
Of midnight torches burns ; mysterious dame,
That ne'er art called, but when the dragon womb
Of Stygian darkness spets her thickest gloom,
And makes one blot of all the air ;
Stay thy cloudy ebon chair,
Wherein thou rid'st with Hecat, and befriend
Us thy vowed priests, till utmost end
Of all thy dues be done, and none left out ;
Ere the babbling eastern scout,
The nice morn, on the Indian steep
From her cabined loophole peep,
And to the tell-tale sun descry
Our concealed solemnity.
Come, knit hands, and beat the ground
In a light fantastic round.

THE MEASURE.

Break off, break off, I feel the different pace
Of some chaste footing near about this ground.
Run to your shrouds, within these brakes and trees ;
Our number may affright : Some virgin sure
(For so I can distinguish by mine art)
Benighted in these woods. Now to my charms,
And to my wily trains ; I shall ere long
Be well-stocked with as fair a herd as grazed
About my mother Circe. Thus I hurl
My dazzling spells into the spongy air,

Comus

Of power to cheat the eye with blear illusion,
And give it false presentments, lest the place
And my quaint habits breed astonishment,
And put the damsel to suspicious flight,
Which must not be, for that's against my course :
I, under fair pretence of friendly ends,
And well-placed words of glozing courtesy
Baited with reasons not unplausible,
Wind me into the easy-hearted man,
And hug him into snares. When once her eye
Hath met the virtue of this magic dust,
I shall appear some harmless villager,
Whom thrift keeps up about his country gear.
But here she comes, I fairly¹ step aside,
And hearken, if I may, her business here.

The Lady enters.

LADY. This way the noise was, if mine ear be true,
My best guide now ; methought it was the sound
Of riot and ill-managed merriment,
Such as the jocund flute, or gamesome pipe
Stirs up among the loose unletter'd hinds,
When for their teeming flocks, and granges full,
In wanton dance, they praise the bounteous Pan,
And thank the gods amiss. I should be loath
To meet the rudeness, and swilled insolence
Of such late wassailers ; yet, O where else
Shall I inform my unacquainted feet
In the blind mazes of this tangled wood ?
My Brothers, when they saw me wearied out
With this long way, resolving here to lodge
Under the spreading favour of these pines,
Stepped, as they said, to the next thicket side
To bring me berries, or such cooling fruit
As the kind hospitable woods provide.
They left me then, when the gray-hooded Even
Like a sad votarist in palmer's weed,
Rose from the hindmost wheels of Phœbus' wain.

¹ Softly.

Comus

But where they are, and why they came not back,
Is now the labour of my thoughts. 'Tis likeliest
They had engaged their wandering steps too far ;
And envious darkness, ere they could return,
Had stole them from me : else, O thievish Night,
Why shouldst thou, but for some felonious end,
In thy dark lantern thus close up the stars,
That nature hung in heaven, and filled their lamps
With everlasting oil, to give due light
To the misled and lonely traveller ?
This is the place, as well as I may guess,
Whence even now the tumult of loud mirth
Was rife, and perfect in my listening ear,
Yet nought but single darkness do I find.
What might this be ? A thousand fantasies
Begin to throng into my memory,
Of calling shapes, and beck'ning shadows dire,
And airy tongues, that syllable men's names
On sands, and shores, and desert wildernesses.
These thoughts may startle well, but not astound
The virtuous mind, that ever walks attended
By a strong-siding champion, Conscience.—
O welcome pure-eyed Faith, white-handed Hope,
Thou hov'ring Angel, girt with golden wings,
And thou, unblemished form of Chastity !
I see ye visibly, and now believe
That He, the Supreme Good, to whom all things ill
Are but as slavish officers of vengeance,
Would send a glist'ring guardian, if need were,
To keep my life and honour unassailed.
Was I deceived, or did a sable cloud
Turn forth her silver lining on the night ?
I did not err, there does a sable cloud
Turn forth her silver lining on the night,
And casts a gleam over this tufted grove :
I cannot halloo to my Brothers, but Such noise as I can make to be heard farthest
I'll venture, for my new enlivened spirits
Prompt me ; and they perhaps are not far off.

Comus

SONG.

SWEET Echo, sweetest nymph, that livest unseen
 Within thy airy shell,
By slow Meander's margent green,
And in the violet-embroidered vale,
 Where the love-lorn nightingale
Nightly to thee her sad song mourneth well ;
Canst thou not tell me of a gentle pair
 That liketh thy Narcissus are ?
 O, if thou have
Hid them in some flowery cave,
 Tell me but where,
Sweet queen of parley, daughter of the sphere !
So mayst thou be translated to the skies,
And give resounding grace to all heav'n's harmonies.

Enter Comus.

COM. Can any mortal mixture of earth's mould
Breathe such divine enchanting ravishment ?
Sure something holy lodges in that breast,
And with these raptures moves the vocal air
To testify his hidden residence :
How sweetly did they float upon the wings
Of silence, through the empty-vaulted night,
At every fall smoothing the raven down
Of darkness till it smiled ! I have oft heard
My mother Circe with the Sirens three,
Amidst the flowery-kirtled Naiades,
Culling their potent herbs, and baleful drugs,
Who, as they sung, would take the prisoned soul,
And lap it in Elysium ; Scylla wept,
And chid her barking waves into attention,
And fell Charybdis murmured soft applause :
Yet they in pleasing slumber lulled the sense,
And in sweet madness robbed it of itself ;
But such a sacred, and home-felt delight,
Such sober certainty of waking bliss
I never heard till now. I'll speak to her,

Comus

And she shall be my queen. Hail, foreign wonder !
Whom certain these rough shades did never breed,
Unless the goddess that in rural shrine
Dwell'st here with Pan, or Silvan, by blest song
Forbidding every bleak unkindly fog
To touch the prosperous growth of this tall wood.

LAD. Nay, gentle Shepherd, ill is lost that praise
That is addressed to unattending ears ;
Not any boast of skill, but extreme shift
How to regain my severed company,
Compelled me to awake the courteous Echo
To give me answer from her mossy couch.

COM. What chance, good Lady, hath bereft you thus ?

LAD. Dim darkness, and this leafy labyrinth.

COM. Could that divide you from near-ushering guides ?

LAD. They left me weary on a grassy turf.

COM. By falsehood, or discourtesy, or why ?

LAD. To seek i' th' valley some cool friendly spring.

COM. And left your fair side all unguarded, Lady ?

LAD. They were but twain, and purposed quick return.

COM. Perhaps forestalling night prevented them.

LAD. How easy my misfortune is to hit !

COM. Imports their loss, beside the present need ?

LAD. No less than if I should my Brothers lose.

COM. Were they of manly prime, or youthful bloom ?

LAD. As smooth as Hebe's their unrazored lips.

COM. Two such I saw, what time the laboured ox
In his loose traces from the furrow came,
And the swinked¹ hedger at his supper sat ;
I saw them under a green mantling vine
That crawls along the side of yon small hill,
Plucking ripe clusters from the tender shoots ;
Their port was more than human, as they stood :
I took it for a faery vision
Of some gay creatures of the element,
That in the colours of the rainbow live,

Comus

And play i' th' plighted clouds. I was awe-struck,
And as I passed, I worshipp'd ; if those you seek,
It were a journey like the path to heav'n,
To help you find them.

LAD. Gentle Villager,
What readiest way would bring me to that place ?

COM. Due west it rises from this shrubby point.

LAD. To find that out, good Shepherd, I suppose,
In such a scant allowance of star-light,
Would overtax the best land-pilot's art,
Without the sure guess of well-practised feet.

COM. I know each lane, and every alley green,
Dingle or bushy dell of this wild wood,
And every bosky bourn from side to side,
My daily walks and ancient neighbourhood ;
And if your stray-attendants be yet lodged
Or shroud within these limits, I shall know
Ere morrow wake, or the low-roosted lark
From her thatched pallet rouse ; if otherwise,
I can conduct you, Lady, to a low
But loyal cottage, where you may be safe
Till further quest.

LAD. Shepherd, I take thy word,
And trust thy honest offered courtesy,
Which oft is sooner found in lowly sheds
With smoky rafters, than in tapestry halls
And courts of princes, where it first was named,
And yet is most pretended : in a place
Less warranted than this, or less secure,
I cannot be, that I should fear to change it.
Eye me, blest Providence, and square my trial
To my proportioned strength. Shepherd, lead on.

Enter the two Brothers.

I BR. Unmuffle, ye faint stars, and thou, fair moon,
That wont'st to love the traveller's benizon,
Stoop thy pale visage through an amber cloud,
And disinherit Chaos, that reigns here
In double night of darkness and of shades ;
Or if your influence be quite dammed up

Comus

With black usurping mists, some gentle taper;
Though a rush candle, from the wicker-hole
Of some clay habitation, visit us
With thy long-levelled rule of streaming light ;
And thou shalt be our star of Arcady,
Or Tyrian Cynosure.¹

2 BR. Or if our eyes
Be barred that happiness, might we but hear
The folded flocks penned in their wattled cotes,
Or sound of past'ral reed with oaten stops,
Or whistle from the lodge, or village cock
Count the night watches to his feathery dames,
'Twould be some solace yet, some little cheering
In this close dungeon of innumerable boughs.
But O that hapless virgin, our lost Sister,
Where may she wander now, whither betake her
From the chill dew, amongst rude burs and thistles?
Perhaps some cold bank is her bolster now,
Or 'gainst the rugged bark of some broad elm
Leans her unpillow'd head, fraught with sad fears.
What, if in wild amazement, and affright,
Or, while we speak, within the direful grasp
Of savage hunger, or of savage heat?

1 BR. Peace, Brother, be not over-exquisite
To cast the fashion of uncertain evils ;
For grant they be so, while they rest unknown,
What need a man forestall his date of grief,
And run to meet what he would most avoid ?
Or if they be but false alarms of fear,
How bitter is such self-delusion !
I do not think my Sister so to seek,
Or so unprincipled in virtue's book,
And the sweet peace that goodness bosoms ever,
As that the single want of light and noise
(Not being in danger, as I trust she is not)
Could stir the constant mood of her calm thoughts,

¹ Our Greater or Lesser Bear Star. Calisto, the daughter of Lycaon, king of Arcadia, was changed into the Greater Bear, called also Helice, and her son Arcas into the Lesser, called also Cynosura (see p. 56), by observing of which the Tyrians and Sidonians steered their course, as the Grecian mariners did by the other.—NEWTON.

Comus

And put them into misbecoming plight.
Virtue could see to do what virtue would
By her own radiant light, though sun and moon
Were in the flat sea sunk. And Wisdom's self
Oft seeks to sweet retirèd solitude,
Where with her best nurse Contemplation
She plumes her feathers, and lets grow her wings,
That in the various bustle of resort
Were all-to ruffled, and sometimes impaired.
He that has light within his own clear breast,
May sit i' th' centre, and enjoy bright day :
But he that hides a dark soul, and foul thoughts,
Benighted walks under the mid-day sun ;
Himself is his own dungeon.

2 BR. 'Tis most true,
That musing meditation most affects
The pensive secrecy of desert cell,
Far from the cheerful haunts of men and herds,
And sits as safe as in a senate house ;
For who would rob a hermit of his weeds,
His few books, or his beads, or maple dish,
Or do his gray hairs any violence ?
But beauty, like the fair Hesperian tree
Laden with blooming gold, had need the guard
Of dragon watch with unenchanted eye,
To save her blossoms, and defend her fruit
From the rash hand of bold incontinence.
You may as well spread out the unsunned heaps
Of miser's treasure by an outlaw's den,
And tell me it is safe, as bid me hope
Danger will wink on Opportunity,
And let a single helpless maiden pass
Uninjured in this wild surrounding waste.
Of night, or loneliness, it recks me not ;
I fear the dread events that dog them both,
Lest some ill-greeting touch attempt the person
Of our unownèd Sister.

1 BR. I do not, Brother,
Infer, as if I thought my Sister's state
Secure without all doubt or controversy ;

Comus

Yet where an equal poise of hope and fear
Does arbitrate th' event, my nature is
That I incline to hope, rather than fear,
And gladly banish squint suspicion.
My Sister is not so defenceless left,
As you imagine ; she has a hidden strength
Which you remember not.

2 Br. What hidden strength,
Unless the strength of Heav'n, if you mean that ?

1 BR. I mean that too, but yet a hidden strength,
Which, if Heav'n gave it, may be termed her own ;
'Tis Chastity, my Brother, chastity :
She that has that, is clad in complete steel,
And like a quivered Nymph with arrows keen
May trace huge forests, and unharboured heaths,
Infamous hills, and sandy perilous wilds,
Where, through the sacred rays of chastity,
No savage fierce, bandit, or mountaineer
Will dare to soil her virgin purity :
Yea, there where very desolation dwells,
By grots, and caverns shagged with horrid shades,
She may pass on with unblenched majesty,
Be it not done in pride, or in presumption.
Some say no evil thing that walks by night,
In fog, or fire, by lake, or moorish fen,
Blue meagre hag, or stubborn unlaid ghost,
That breaks his magic chains at curfew time,
No goblin, or swart faery of the mine,
Hath hurtful power o'er true virginity.
Do ye believe me yet, or shall I call
Antiquity from the old schools of Greece
To testify the arms of chastity ?
Hence had the huntress Dian her dread bow,
Fair silver-shafted queen, for ever chaste,
Wherewith she tamed the brindled lioness
And spotted mountain pard, but set at nought
The frivolous bolt of Cupid ; gods and men Feared her stern frown, and she was queen o' th' wood.

What was that snaky-headed Gorgon shield,

Comus

That wise Minerva wore, unconquered virgin,
Wherewith she freezed her foes to congealed stone,
But rigid looks of chaste austerity,
And noble grace that dashed brute violence
With sudden adoration and blank awe?
So dear to heav'n is saintly chastity,
That when a soul is found sincerely so,
A thousand liveried angels lacky her,
Driving far off each thing of sin and guilt,
And in clear dream, and solemn vision,
Tell her of things that no gross ear can hear,
Till oft converse with heav'nly habitants
Begin to cast a beam on th' outward shape,
The unpolluted temple of the mind,
And turns it by degrees to the soul's essence,
Till all be made immortal : but when lust,
By unchaste looks, loose gestures, and foul talk,
But most by lewd and lavish act of sin,
Lets in defilement to the inward parts,
The soul grows clotted by contagion,
Imbodies, and imbrutes, till she quite lose
The divine property of her first being.
Such are those thick and gloomy shadows damp
Oft seen in charnel vaults, and sepulchres,
Ling'ring and sitting by a new-made grave,
As loath to leave the body that it loved,
And linked itself by carnal sensuality
To a degenerate and degraded state.

2 BR. How charming is divine philosophy !
Not harsh, and crabbed, as dull fools suppose,
But musical, as is Apollo's lute,
And a perpetual feast of nectared sweets,
Where no crude surfeit reigns.

1 BR. List, list, I hear
Some far-off halloo break the silent air.

2 BR. Methought so too : what should it be ?

1 BR. For certain
Either some one like us night-foundered here,
Or else some neighbour woodman, or, at worst,
Some roving robber calling to his fellows.

Comus

2 BR. Heav'n keep my Sister! Again, again, and near;

Best draw, and stand upon our guard.

1 BR. I'll halloo;
If he be friendly, he comes well; if not,
Defence is a good cause, and Heav'n be for us.

Enter the attendant Spirit, habited like a shepherd.

That halloo I should know. What are you? speak;
Come not too near, you fall on iron stakes else.

SPIR. What voice is that? my young Lord? speak again.

2 BR. O brother, 'tis my father's shepherd, sure.

1 BR. Thyrsis? Whose artful strains have oft delayed
The huddling brook to hear his madrigal,¹
And sweetened every muskrose of the dale.

How camest thou here, good swain? hath any ram
Slit from the fold, or young kid lost his dam,
Or straggling wether the pent flock forsook?
How could'st thou find this dark sequestered nook?

SPIR. O my loved master's heir, and his next joy,

I came not here on such a trivial toy
As a strayed ewe, or to pursue the stealth
Of pilfering wolf; not all the fleecy wealth
That doth enrich these downs is worth a thought
To this my errand, and the care it brought.
But, O my virgin lady, where is she?
How chance she is not in your company?

1 BR. To tell thee sadly, Shepherd, without blame,
Or our neglect, we lost her as we came.

SPIR. Aye me unhappy! then my fears are true.

1 BR. What fears, good Thyrsis? Prithee briefly shew.

SPIR. I'll tell ye; 'tis not vain or fabulous,
Though so esteemed by shallow ignorance,
What the sage poets, taught by the heav'nly Muse,
Storied of old, in high immortal verse,
Of dire chimeras, and enchanted isles,

Comus

And rifted rocks whose entrance leads to Hell ;
For such there be, but unbelief is blind.

Within the navel of this hideous wood,
Immuned in cypress shades a sorcerer dwells,
Of Bacchus and of Circe born, great Comus,
Deep skilled in all his mother's witcheries,
And here to every thirsty wanderer
By sly enticement gives his baneful cup,
With many murmurs mixed, whose pleasing poison
The visage quite transforms of him that drinks,
And the inglorious likeness of a beast
Fixes instead, unmoulding reason's mintage
Charactered in the face : this I have learnt
Tending my flocks hard by i' th' hilly crofts,
That brow this bottom-glade, whence, night by night,
He and his monstrous rout are heard to howl,
Like stabled wolves, or tigers at their prey,
Doing abhorred rites to Hecate
In their obscured haunts of inmost bowers.
Yet have they many baits, and guileful spells,
To inveigle and invite th' unwary sense
Of them that pass unweeting by the way.
This evening late, by then the chewing-flocks
Had ta'en their supper on the savoury herb
Of knot-grass dew-besprent, and were in fold,
I sat me down to watch upon a bank
With ivy canopied, and interwove
With flaunting honey-suckle, and began,
Wrapt in a pleasing fit of melancholy,
To meditate my rural minstrelsy,
Till fancy had her fill, but ere a close,
The wonted roar was up amidst the woods,
And filled the air with barbarous dissonance ;
At which I ceased, and listened them a while,
Till an unusual stop of sudden silence
Gave respite to the drowsy frightened steeds,
That draw the litter of close-curtained Sleep.
At last a soft and solemn-breathing sound
Rose like a steam of rich distilled perfumes,
And stole upon the air, that even Silence

Comus

Was took ere she was ware, and wished she might Deny her nature, and be never more,
Still to be so displaced. I was all ear,
And took in strains that might create a soul
Under the ribs of death : but O ere long
Too well I did perceive it was the voice
Of my most honoured Lady, your dear Sister.
Amazed I stood, harrowed with grief and fear,
And O poor hapless nightingale thought I,
How sweet thou sing'st, how near the deadly snare.
Then down the lawns I ran with headlong haste,
Through paths and turnings often trod by day,
Till guided by mine ear I found the place,
Where that damned wizzard, hid in sly disguise,
(For so by certain signs I knew) had met
Already, ere my best speed could prevent,
The aidless innocent Lady his wished prey ;
Who gently asked if he had seen such two,
Supposing him some neighbour villager.
Longer I durst not stay, but soon I guessed
Ye were the two she meant ; with that I sprung
Into swift flight, till I had found you here,
But further know I not.

2 BR. O night and shades,
How are ye joined with Hell in triple knot,
Against the unarmed weakness of one virgin,
Alone and helpless ! Is this the confidence
You gave me, Brother ?

1 BR. Yes, and keep it still ;
Lean on it safely ; not a period
Shall be unsaid for me : against the threats
Of malice or of sorcery, or that power
Which erring men call Chance, this I hold firm
Virtue may be assailed, but never hurt,
Surprised by unjust force, but not enthralled ;
Yea even that which mischief meant most harm
Shall in the happy trial prove most glory :
But evil on itself shall back recoil,
And mix no more with goodness, when at last
Gathered like scum, and settled to itself,

Comus

It shall be in eternal restless change
Self-fed, and self-consumèd. If this fail,
The pillared firmament is rottenness,
And earth's base built on stubble. But come, let's on !
Against the opposing will and arm of heaven
May never this just sword be lifted up ;
But for that damned magician, let him be girt
With all the grisly legions that troop
Under the sooty flag of Acheron,
Harpies and Hydras, or all the monstrous forms
'Twixt Africa and Ind, I'll find him out,
And force him to return his purchase back,
Or drag him by the curls to a foul death,
Cursed as his life.

SPIR. Alas ! good venturous youth,
I love thy courage yet, and bold emprise ;
But here thy sword can do thee little stead ;
Far other arms and other weapons must
Be those that quell the might of hellish charms :
He with his bare wand can unthread thy joints,
And crumble all thy sinews.

1 BR. Why prithee, Shepherd,
How dost thou then thyself approach so near,
As to make this relation ?

SPIR. Care and utmost shifts
How to secure the Lady from surprisal,
Brought to my mind a certain shepherd lad,
Of small regard to see to, yet well skilled
In every virtuous plant and healing herb,
That spreads her verdant leaf to th' morning ray :
He loved me well, and oft would beg me sing,
Which when I did, he on the tender grass
Would sit, and hearken e'en to ecstasy,
And in requital ope his leathern scrip,
And show me simples of a thousand names,
Telling their strange and vigorous faculties :
Amongst the rest a small unsightly root,
But of divine effect, he culled me out ;
The leaf was darkish, and had prickles on it,
But in another country, as he said,

Comus

Bore a bright golden flow'r, but not in this soil :
Unknown, and like esteemed, and the dull swain
Treads on it daily with his clouted¹ shoon,
And yet more medicinal is it than that moly
That Hermes once to wise Ulysses gave ;
He called it hæmony, and gave it me,
And bade me keep it as of sovereign use
'Gainst all enchantments, mildew, blast, or damp,
Or ghastly furies' apparition.
I pursed it up, but little reck'ning made,
Till now that this extremity compelled.
But now I find it true ; for by this means
I knew the foul enchanter though disguised,
Entered the very lime-twigs of his spells,
And yet came off : if you have this about you,
(As I will give you when we go) you may Boldly assault the necromancer's hall ;
Where if he be, with dauntless hardihood,
And brandished blade rush on him, break his glass,
And shed the luscious liquor on the ground.
But seize his wand ; though he and his cursed crew
Fierce sign of battle make, and menace high,
Or like the sons of Vulcan vomit smoke,
Yet will they soon retire, if he but shrink.
I BR. Thyrsis, lead on apace, I'll follow thee,
And some good Angel bear a shield before us.

The Scene changes to a stately palace, set out with all manner of deliciousness ; soft music, tables spread with all dainties. Comus appears with his rabble, and the Lady set in an enchanted chair, to whom he offers his glass, which she puts by, and goes about to rise.

COM. Nay, Lady, sit ; if I but wave this wand,
Your nerves are all chained up in alabaster,
And you a statue, or, as Daphne was,
Root-bound, that fled Apollo.

LAD. Fool, do not boast,
Thou canst not touch the freedom of my mind
With all thy charms, although this corporal rind
Thou hast immanacled, while Heav'n sees good.

¹ Clouts were thin and narrow plates of iron, affixed with hobnails to the shoes of rustics.

Comus

COM. Why are you vext, Lady? why do you frown?
Here dwell no frowns, nor anger; from these gates
Sorrow flies far. See, here be all the pleasures
That fancy can beget on youthful thoughts,
When the fresh blood grows lively, and returns
Brisk as the April buds in primrose-season.
And first behold this cordial julep here,
That flames, and dances in his crystal bounds,
With spirits of balm, and fragrant syrups mixed.
Not that Nepenthes,¹ which the wife of Thone
In Egypt gave to Jove-born Helena,
Is of such power to stir up joy as this,
To life so friendly, or so cool to thirst.
Why should you be so cruel to yourself,
And to those dainty limbs which Nature lent
For gentle usage, and soft delicacy?
But you invert the covenants of her trust,
And harshly deal, like an ill borrower,
With that which you received on other terms;
Scorning the unexempt condition
By which all mortal frailty must subsist,
Refreshment after toil, ease after pain,
That have been tired all day without repast,
And timely rest have wanted; but, fair Virgin,
This will restore all soon.

LAD. 'Twill not, false traitor,
'Twill not restore the truth and honesty
That thou hast banish'd from thy tongue with lies.
Was this the Cottage, and the safe abode
Thou toldst me of? What grim aspects are these,
These ugly-headed monsters? Mercy guard me!
Hence with thy brewed enchantments, foul deceiver!
Hast thou betrayed my credulous innocence
With visored falsehood and base forgery?
And would'st thou seek again to trap me here
With liquorish baits fit to ensnare a brute?
Were it a draught for Juno when she banquets,
I would not taste thy treasonous offer; none
But such as are good men can give good things,

Comus

And that which is not good, is not delicious
To a well-governed and wise appetite.

COM. O foolishness of men ! that lend their ears
To those budge¹ doctors of the Stoic fur,
And fetch their precepts from the Cynic tub,
Praising the lean and sallow Abstinence.
Wherefore did Nature pour her bounties forth,
With such a full and unwithdrawing hand,
Covering the earth with odours, fruits, and flocks,
Thronging the seas with spawn innumerable,
But all to please, and sate the curious taste ?
And set to work millions of spinning worms,
That in their green shops weave the smooth-haired silk
To deck her sons ; and that no corner might
Be vacant of her plenty, in her own loins
She hatched² the all-worshipped ore, and precious gems,
To store her children with : if all the world
Should in a pet of temp'rance feed on pulse,
Drink the clear stream, and nothing wear but frieze,
Th' All-giver would be unthanked, would be unpraised,
Not half his riches known, and yet despised ;
And we should serve him as a grudging master,
As a penurious niggard of his wealth ;
And live like Nature's bastards, not her sons,
Who would be quite surcharged with her own weight,
And strangled with her waste fertility ;
Th' earth cumbered, and the winged air darked with plumes,
The herds would over-multitude their lords,
The sea o'erfraught would swell, and th' unsought diamonds
Would so emblaze the forehead of the deep,
And so bestud with stars, that they below
Would grow inured to light, and come at last
To gaze upon the sun with shameless brows.
List, Lady, be not coy, and be not cozened
With that same vaunted name Virginity.
Beauty is Nature's coin, must not be hoarded,

² Hoarded.

Comus

But must be current, and the good thereof
Consists in mutual and partaken bliss,
Unsavoury in th' enjoyment of itself ;
If you let slip time, like a neglected rose
It withers on the stalk with languished head.
Beauty is Nature's brag, and must be shown
In courts, at feasts, and high solemnities,
Where most may wonder at the workmanship ;
It is for homely features to keep home,
They had their name thence ; coarse complexions,
And cheeks of sorry grain, will serve to ply
The sampler, and to tease the huswife's wool.
What need a vermeil-tinctured lip for that,
Love-darting eyes, or tresses like the morn ?
There was another meaning in these gifts,
Think what, and be advised, you are but young yet.

LAD. I had not thought to have unlocked my lips
In this unhallowed air, but that this juggler
Would think to charm my judgment, as mine eyes,
Obtruding false rules pranked in reason's garb.
I hate when vice can bolt her arguments,
And virtue has no tongue to check her pride.
Impostor, do not charge most innocent Nature,
As if she would her children should be riotous
With her abundance ; she, good cateress,
Means her provision only to the good,
That live according to her sober laws,
And holy dictate of spare temperance.
If every just man, that now pines with want,
Had but a moderate and beseeming share
Of that which lewdly-pampered luxury
Now heaps upon some few with vast excess,
Nature's full blessings would be well dispensed
In unsuperfluous even proportion,
And she no whit incumbered with her store ;
And then the giver would be better thanked,
His praise due paid ; for swinish gluttony
Ne'er looks to heav'n amidst his gorgeous feast,
But with besotted base ingratitude
Crams, and blasphemous his feeder. Shall I go on ?

Comus

Or have I said enough? To him that dares
Arm his profane tongue with contemptuous words
Against the sun-clad power of Chastity,
Fain would I something say,—yet to what end?
Thou hast nor ear, nor soul to apprehend
The sublime notion, and high mystery,
That must be uttered to unfold the sage
And serious doctrine of Virginitv;
And thou art worthy that thou shouldst not know
More happiness than this thy present lot.
Enjoy your dear wit, and gay rhetoric,
That hath so well been taught her dazzling fence,
Thou art not fit to hear thyself convinced;
Yet should I try, the uncontrollèd worth
Of this pure cause would kindle my rapt spirits
To such a flame of sacred vehemence,
That dumb things would be moved to sympathize,
And the brute earth would lend her nerves, and shake,
Till all thy magic structures reared so high,
Were shattered into heaps o'er thy false head.

COM. She fables not, I feel that I do fear
Her words set off by some superior power:
And though not mortal, yet a cold shudd'ring dew
Dips me all o'er, as when the wrath of Jove
Speaks thunder, and the chains of Erebus,
To some of Saturn's crew. I must dissemble,
And try her yet more strongly. Come, no more,
This is mere moral babble, and direct
Against the canon-laws of our foundation;
I must not suffer this, yet 'tis but the lees
And settlings of a melancholy blood:
But this will cure all straight; one sip of this Will bathe the drooping spirits in delight,
Beyond the bliss of dreams. Be wise, and taste.—

The Brothers rush in with swords drawn, wrest his glass out of his hand, and break it against the ground; his rout make sign of resistance, but are all driven in. The attendant Spirit comes in.

SPIR. What, have you let the false enchanter 'scape?
O ye mistook, ye should have snatched his wand,

Comus

And bound him fast ; without his rod reversed,
And backward mutters of dissevering power,
We cannot free the Lady that sits here
In stony fetters fixed, and motionless.
Yet stay, be not disturbed : now I bethink me,
Some other means I have which may be used,
Which once of Melibœus old I learnt,
The soothest shepherd that e'er piped on plains.

There is a gentle nymph not far from hence,
That with moist curb sways the smooth Severn stream,

Sabrina is her name, a virgin pure ;
Whilom she was the daughter of Locrine,
That had the sceptre from his father Brute.
She, guiltless damsel, flying the mad pursuit
Of her enraged stepdame Guendolen,
Commended her fair innocence to the flood,
That stayed her flight with his cross-flowing course.
The water nymphs that in the bottom played,
Held up their pearlèd wrists, and took her in,
Bearing her straight to aged Nereus' hall,
Who piteous of her woes, reared her lank head,
And gave her to his daughters to imbathe
In nectared lavers strowed with asphodel,
And through the porch and inlet of each sense
Dropped in ambrosial oils, till she revived,
And underwent a quick immortal change,
Made Goddess of the river. Still she retains
Her maiden gentleness, and oft at eve
Visits the herds along the twilight meadows,
Helping all urchin blasts, and ill-luck signs
That the shrewd meddling elf delights to make,
Which she with precious vialèd liquors heals.
For which the shepherds at their festivals
Carol her goodness loud in rustic lays,
And throw sweet garland wreaths into her stream
Of pansies, pinks, and gaudy daffodils.
And, as the old swain said, she can unlock
The clasping charm, and thaw the numbing spell
If she be right invoked in warbled song ;

Comus

For maidenhood she loves, and will be swift
To aid a virgin, such as was herself,
In hard-besetting need ; this will I try,
And add the power of some adjuring verse.

SONG.

Sabrina fair,
Listen where thou art sitting
Under the glassy, cool, translucent wave,
In twisted braids of lilies knitting
The loose train of thy amber-dropping hair ;
Listen for dear honour's sake,
Goddess of the silver lake,
Listen and save.
Listen and appear to us
In name of great Oceanus.
By th' earth-shaking Neptune's mace,
And Tethys'¹ grave majestic pace,
By hoary Nereus' wrinkled look,
And the Carpathian wizard's hook,²
By scaly Triton's³ winding shell,
And old soothsaying Glaucus'⁴ spell,
By Leucothea's⁵ lovely hands,
And her son that rules the strands,⁶
By Thetis'⁷ tinsel-slippered feet,
And the songs of Sirens sweet,
By dead Parthenope's dear tomb,
And fair Ligea's golden comb,⁸
Wherewith she sits on diamond rocks,
Sleeking her soft alluring locks ;

² Proteus, who had a cave in Carpathus, an island of the Mediterranean. He was a wizard, a prophet, and Neptune's shepherd, and therefore held a crook.

³ Neptune's trumpeter.

⁴ Glaucus, an excellent diver, was made a sea-god. He was a prophet, and is said to have taught Apollo to prophesy.

⁵ Leucothea, i.e. the white goddess. She was Ino, who, flying from her mad husband, Athamas, cast herself and her child into the sea. Neptune, at the entreaty of Venus, changed both into sea-deities, and gave her the new name of Leucothea.

⁶ Palæmon, the infant in her arms when she sprang into the sea.

⁷ A sea-goddess, called by Homer silver-footed.

⁸ Parthenope and Ligea were two of the Syrens.

Comus

By all the nymphs that nightly dance
Upon thy streams with wily glance,
Rise, rise, and heave thy rosy head
From thy coral-paven bed,
And bridle in thy headlong wave,
Till thou our summons answered have.
Listen and save.

Sabrina rises, attended by water-nymphs, and sings.

By the rushy-fringed bank,
Where grows the willow and the osier dank,
My sliding chariot stays,
Thick set with agate, and the azure sheen
Of turkis blue, and emerald green,
That in the channel strays ;
Whilst from off the waters fleet,
Thus I set my printless feet
O'er the cowslip's velvet head,
That bends not as I tread ;
Gentle Swain, at thy request
I am here.

SPIR. Goddess dear,
We implore thy pow'rful hand
To undo the charmèd band
Of true virgin here distrest,
Through the force, and through the wile
Of unblest enchanter vile.

SABR. Shepherd, 'tis my office best
To help insnared chastity :
Brightest Lady, look on me ;
Thus I sprinkle on thy breast
Drops that from my fountain pure
I have kept of precious cure,
Thrice upon thy finger's tip,
Thrice upon thy rubied lip ;
Next this marble venomèd seat,
Smeared with gums of glutinous heat,
I touch with chaste palms moist and cold :
Now the spell hath lost his hold ;

Comus

And I must haste ere morning hour
To wait in Amphitrite's bower.

Sabrina descends, and the Lady rises out of her seat.

SPIR. Virgin, daughter of Lochrine,
Sprung of old Anchises' line,¹
May thy brimmèd waves for this
Their full tribute never miss
From a thousand petty rills,
That tumble down the snowy hills ;
Summer drouth, or singèd air
Never scorch thy tresses fair,
Nor wet October's torrent flood
Thy molten crystal fill with mud ;
May thy billows roll ashore
The beryl, and the golden ore ;
May thy lofty head be crowned
With many a tow'r and terrace round,
And here and there thy banks upon
With groves of myrrh and cinnamon.

Come, Lady, while Heav'n lends us grace,
Let us fly this cursèd place,
Lest the sorcerer us entice
With some other new device.
Not a waste, or needless sound,
Till we come to holier ground ;
I shall be your faithful guide
Through this gloomy covert wide,
And not many furlongs thence
Is your Father's residence,
Where this night are met in state
Many a friend to gratulate
His wished presence, and beside
All the swains that there abide,
With jigs, and rural dance resort ;
We shall catch them at their sport,
And our sudden coming there
Will double all their mirth and cheer ;
Come, let us haste, the stars grow high,
But night sits monarch yet in the mid sky.

¹ Lochrine was the fabled son of Brutus, the great-grandson of Eneas.

Comus

The Scene changes, presenting Ludlow town and the President's castle ; then come in country dancers, after them the attendant Spirit, with the two Brothers, and the Lady.

SONG.

SPIR. Back, Shepherds, back, enough your play
Till next sunshine holiday ;
Here be, without duck or nod,
Other trippings to be trod
Of lighter toes, and such court guise
As Mercury did first devise,
With the mincing Dryades,
On the lawns, and on the leas.

This second Song presents them to their Father and Mother.

Noble Lord, and Lady bright,
I have brought ye new delight,
Here behold so goodly grown
Three fair branches of your own ;
Heav'n hath timely tried their youth,
Their faith, their patience, and their truth,
And sent them here through hard assays
With a crown of deathless praise,
To triumph in victorious dance
O'er sensual folly, and intemperance,

The dances ended, the Spirit epiloguises.

SPIR. To the océan now I fly,
And those happy climes that lie
Where day never shuts his eye,
Up in the broad fields of the sky :
There I suck the liquid air
All amidst the gardens fair
Of Hesperus, and his daughters three
That sing about the golden tree :¹
Along the crispèd shades and bowers
Revels the spruce and jocund Spring,

¹ The daughters of Hesperus, the brother of Atlas, had gardens, or orchards, which produced apples of gold.

Comus

The Graces, and the rosy-bosom'd Hours,
Thither all their bounties bring ;
There eternal Summer dwells,
And west-winds, with musky wing,
About the cedarn alleys fling
Nard and cassia's balmy smells.
Iris there with humid bow
Waters the odorous banks, that blow
Flowers of more mingled hue
Than her purpled scarf can shew,
And drenches with Elysian dew
(List mortals, if your ears be true)
Beds of hyacinth and roses,
Where young Adonis oft reposes,
Waxing well of his deep wound
In slumber soft, and on the ground
Sadly sits th' Assyrian queen ;¹
But far above in spangled sheen
Celestial Cupid her famed son advanced,
Holds his dear Psyche sweet intranced,
After her wand'ring labours long,
Till free consent the gods among
Make her his eternal bride,
And from her fair unspotted side
Two blissful twins are to be born,
Youth and Joy ; so Jove hath sworn.
But now my task is smoothly done,
I can fly, or I can run
Quickly to the green earth's end,
Where the bowed welkin slow doth bend,
And from thence can soar as soon
To the corners of the moon.

Mortals, that would follow me,
Love Virtue, she alone is free,
She can teach ye how to climb
Higher than the sphery chime :
Or, if Virtue feeble were,
Heav'n itself would stoop to her.

LYCIDAS.

1637.

In this Monody the author bewails a learned friend,¹ unfortunately drowned in his passage from Chester on the Irish seas, 1637; and by occasion foretells the ruin of our corrupted clergy, then in their height.

YET once more, O ye laurels, and once more
 Ye myrtles brown, with ivy never sere,
 I come to pluck your berries harsh and crude,
 And with forced fingers rude,
 Shatter your leaves before the mellowing year.
 Bitter constraint, and sad occasion dear,
 Compels me to disturb your season due:
 For Lycidas is dead, dead ere his prime,
 Young Lycidas, and hath not left his peer.
 Who would not sing for Lycidas? He knew
 Himself to sing, and build the lofty rhyme.
 He must not float upon his watery bier
 Unwept, and welter to the parching wind,
 Without the meed of some melodious tear.
 Begin then, Sisters of the sacred well,
 That from beneath the seat of Jove doth spring,
 Begin, and somewhat loudly sweep the string.
 Hence with denial vain, and coy excuse,
 So may some gentle Muse
 With lucky words favour my destined urn,
 And as he passes turn,
 And bid fair peace be to my sable shroud.
 For we were nursed upon the self-same hill,²
 Fed the same flock by fountain, shade, and rill.

Together both, ere the high lawns appeared
 Under the opening eyelids of the morn,³

¹ Edward King, the friend of Milton, whose early death is bewailed in this poem, was the son of Sir John King, Secretary for Ireland under Elizabeth, James I., and Charles I. On his voyage to Ireland, to visit his family, his ship struck on a rock on the English coast, and he perished in the sea. He was distinguished for his piety and talents, and was a fellow of Christ Church, Cambridge.

² King was at Cambridge with Milton.

Lycidas

We drove afield, and both together heard
What time the gray-fly winds her sultry horn,¹ Batt'ning our flocks with the fresh dews of night,
Oft till the star that rose, at evening, bright,
Toward heav'n's descent had sloped his west'ring wheel.
Meanwhile the rural ditties were not mute,
Tempered to the oaten flute,

Rough Satyrs danced, and Fauns with cloven heel
From the glad sound would not be absent long,
And old Damoetas² loved to hear our song.

But, O the heavy change, now thou art gone,
Now thou art gone, and never must return!
Thee, Shepherd, thee the woods, and desert caves
With wild thyme and the gadding vine o'ergrown,
And all their echoes mourn.

The willows, and the hazel copses green,
Shall now no more be seen,
Fanning their joyous leaves to thy soft lays.

As killing as the canker to the rose,
Or taint-worm to the weanling herds that graze,
Or frost to flow'rs, that their gay wardrobe wear,
When first the white-thorn blows;
Such, Lycidas, thy loss to shepherd's ear.

Where were ye, Nymphs, when the remorseless deep
Closed o'er the head of your loved Lycidas?
For neither were ye playing on the steep,
Where your old Bards, the famous Druids, lie,³
Nor on the shaggy top of Mona high,⁴
Nor yet where Deva⁵ spreads her wizard stream:
Ay me! I fondly dream!
Had ye been there, for what could that have done?
What could the Muse herself that Orpheus bore,⁶
The Muse herself for her enchanting son,
Whom universal nature did lament,

Lycidas

When by the rout that made the hideous roar,¹
His gory visage down the stream was sent,
Down the swift Hebrus to the Lesbian shore?

Alas! what boots it with incessant care
To tend the homely slighted shepherd's trade,
And strictly meditate the thankless Muse?
Were it not better done as others use,
To sport with Amaryllis in the shade,
Or with the tangles of Neæra's hair?
Fame is the spur that the clear spirit doth raise (That last infirmity of noble mind)
To scorn delights, and live laborious days;
But the fair guerdon when we hope to find,
And think to burst out into sudden blaze,
Comes the blind Fury with the abhorrèd shears,
And slits the thin-spun life. "But not the praise," Phœbus replied, and touched my trembling ears;
"Fame is no plant that grows on mortal soil,
Nor in the glist'ning foil
Set off to the world, nor in broad rumour lies;
But lives and spreads aloft by those pure eyes,
And perfect witness of all-judging Jove;
As he pronounces lastly on each deed,
Of so much fame in heav'n expect thy meed."
O fountain Arethuse, and thou honoured flood,
Smooth-sliding Mincius,² crowned with vocal reeds,
That strain I heard was of a higher mood:
But now my oat proceeds,
And listens to the herald of the sea
That came in Neptune's plea;
He asked the waves, and asked the felon winds,
What hard mishap hath doomed this gentle swain?
And questioned every gust of rugged wings
That blows from off each beakèd promontory:
They knew not of his story,
And sage Hippotades their answer brings,³
That not a blast was from his dungeon strayed,
The air was calm, and on the level brine

Sleek Panope with all her sisters played.

It was that fatal and perfidious bark,

Built in th' eclipse, and rigged with curses dark,

That sunk so low that sacred head of thine.

Next Camus,¹ reverend sire, went footing slow,

His mantle hairy, and his bonnet sedge,

Inwrought with figures dim, and on the edge

Like to that sanguine flow'r inscribed with woe.²

"Ah! Who hath reft" (quoth he) "my dearest pledge?"

Last came, and last did go,

The pilot of the Galilean lake.³

Two massy keys he bore of metals twain,

(The golden opes, the iron shuts amain)

He shook his mitred locks, and stern bespake,

"How well could I have spared for thee, young swain,⁴

Enow of such as for their bellies' sake

Creep, and intrude, and climb into the fold!

Of other care they little reckoning make,

'Than how to scramble at the shearers' feast,

And shove away the worthy bidden guest;

Blind mouths! that scarce themselves know how to hold

A sheep-hook, or have learned aught else the least

That to the faithful herdsman's art belongs!

What recks it them? What need they? They are sped;

And when they list, their lean and flashy songs

Grate on their scrannel⁵ pipes of wretched straw;

The hungry sheep look up, and are not fed,

But swoln with wind, and the rank mist they draw,

Rot inwardly, and foul contagion spread;

Besides what the grim wolf with privy paw

Daily devours apace, and nothing said;

But that two-handed engine at the door

Stands ready to smite once, and smite no more."

Lycidas

Return, Alpheus, the dread voice is past,
That shrunk thy streams ; return, Sicilian Muse,
And call the vales, and bid them hither cast
Their bells, and flow'rets of a thousand hues.
Ye valleys low, where the mild whispers use
Of shades, and wanton winds, and gushing brooks
On whose fresh lap the swart-star sparsely looks :
Throw hither all your quaint enamelled eyes,
That on the green turf suck the honied showers,
And purple all the ground with vernal flowers.
Bring the rathe primrose that forsaken dies,
The tufted crow-toe, and pale jessamine,
The white pink, and the pansy freaked with jet,
The glowing violet,
The musk-rose, and the well-attired woodbine,
With cowslips wan that hang the pensive head,
And every flower that sad embroidery wears.
Bid amaranthus all his beauty shed,
And daffodillies fill their cups with tears,
To strow the laureate hearse where Lycid lies.
For so to interpose a little ease,
Let our frail thoughts dally with false surmise.
Ay me ! Whilst thee the shores, and sounding seas
Wash far away, where'er thy bones are hurled,
Whether beyond the stormy Hebrides,
Where thou perhaps under the whelming tide,
Visit'st the bottom of the monstrous world ;
Or whether thou to our moist vows denied,
Sleep'st by the fable of Bellerus old,¹
Where the great vision of the guarded mount²
Looks toward Namancos³ and Bayona's hold.³
Look homeward, Angel, now, and melt with ruth.
And, O ye dolphins, waft the hapless youth.

Weep no more, woful Shepherds, weep no more,
For Lycidas your sorrow is not dead,
Sunk though he be beneath the watery floor.

² Mount St. Michael, near the Land's End, Cornwall, supposed to be guarded by St. Michael, the archangel.

³ In an atlas of 1623, and in a map of Galicia, near Cape Finisterre, is marked a place called Namancos. In this map, also, is marked the castle of Bayona.

Lycidas

So sinks the day-star in the ocean bed,
And yet anon repairs his drooping head,
And tricks his beams, and with new spangled ore
Flames in the forehead of the morning sky ;
So Lycidas sunk low, but mounted high,
Thro' the dear might of Him that walked the waves.
Where other groves, and other streams along,
With nectar pure his oozy locks he laves,
And hears the unexpressive nuptial song,
In the blest kingdoms meek of joy and love.
There entertain him all the saints above,
In solemn troops, and sweet societies,
That sing, and singing in their glory move,
And wipe the tears for ever from his eyes.
Now, Lycidas, the shepherds weep no more ;
Henceforth thou art the genius of the shore,
In thy large recompense, and shalt be good
To all that wander in that peri'ous flood.

Thus sang the uncouth swain to the oaks and rills,
While the still morn went out with sandals gray,
He touched the tender stops of various quills,
With eager thought warbling his Doric lay :
And now the sun had stretched out all the hills,
And now was dropped into the western bay ;
At last he rose, and twitched his mantle blue :
To-morrow to fresh woods and pastures new.

Paradise Lost

THE VERSE OF "PARADISE LOST."

The measure is English Heroic Verse without Rime, as that of Homer in Greek, and of Virgil in Latin; Rime being no necessary Adjunct or true Ornament of Poem or good Verse, in longer Works especially; but the Invention of a barbarous Age, to set off wretched matter and lame Meeter, gract indeed since by the use of some famous modern Poets, carried away by Custom, but much to their own vexation, hindrance, and constraint, to express many things otherwise, and for the most part worse, then else they would have exprest them. Not without cause, therefore, some both Italian and Spanish Poets of prime note have rejected Rime both in longer and shorter Works, as have also, long since, our best English Tragedies, as a thing of itself, to all judicious eares, triveal and of no true musical delight; which consists only in apt Numbers, fit quantity of Syllables, and the sense variously drawn out from one verse into another, not in the jingling sound of like endings, a fault avoyded by the learned Ancients both in Poetry and all good Oratory. This neglect then of Rime, so little is to be taken for a defect, though it may seem so perhaps to vulgar readers, that it rather is to be esteem'd an example set, the first in English, of ancient liberty recover'd to Heroic Poem from the troublesom and modern bondage of Riming.

From Milton's own Edition, 1669.

BOOK I.

THE ARGUMENT.

This First Book proposes, first in brief, the whole subject, Man's disobedience, and the loss thereupon of Paradise, wherein he was placed. Then touches the prime cause of his fall, the serpent, or rather Satan in the serpent; who, revolting from God, and drawing to his side many legions of Angels, was by the command of God driven out of heaven with all his crew into the great deep. Which action passed over, the Poem hastes into the midst of things, presenting Satan with his Angels now fallen into hell, described here, not in the centre, for heaven and earth may be supposed as yet not made, certainly not yet accursed, but in a place of utter darkness, fittest called Chaos. Here Satan with his Angels, lying on the burning lake, thunderstruck and astonished, after a certain space recovers, as from confusion, calls up him who next in order and dignity lay by him: they confer of their miserable fall. Satan awakens all his legions, who lay till then in the same manner confounded; they rise; their numbers, array of battle, their chief leaders named, according to the idols known afterwards in Canaan and the countries adjoining. To these Satan directs his speech, comforts them with hope yet of regaining heaven, but tells them lastly of a new world and new kind of creature to be created, according to an ancient prophecy or report in heaven: for that Angels were long before this visible creation, was the opinion of many ancient Fathers. To find out the truth of this prophecy, and what to determine thereon, he refers to a full council. What his associates thence attempt. Pandæmonium, the palace of Satan, rises, suddenly built out of the deep: the infernal Peers therein sit in council.

Paradise Lost

OF Man's first disobedience and the fruit 1
Of that forbidden tree, whose mortal taste
Brought death into the world and all our woe,
With loss of Eden, till one greater Man
Restore us and regain the blissful seat,
Sing heav'nly Muse, that on the secret top
Of Oreb, or of Sinai, didst inspire
That shepherd,¹ who first taught the chosen seed,
In the beginning how the heav'ns and earth
Rose out of Chaos. Or if Sion hill 10
Delight thee more, and Siloa's brook that flowed Fast by the oracle of God, I thence Invoke thy aid to my adventurous song,
That with no middle flight intends to soar
Above th' Aonian mount,² while it pursues
Things unattempted yet in prose or rhyme.

And chiefly thou, O Spirit, that dost prefer
Before all temples the upright heart and pure,
Instruct me, for thou know'st ; thou from the first 20
Wast present, and with mighty wings outspread
Dove-like sat'st brooding on the vast abyss,³
And mad'st it pregnant : what in me is dark
Illumine, what is low raise and support ;
That to the height of this great argument
I may assert eternal Providence,
And justify the ways of God to men.

Say first, for heav'n hides nothing from thy view,
Nor the deep tract of hell ; say first, what cause
Moved our grand Parents in that happy state,
Favoured of heav'n so highly, to fall off 30
From their Creator, and transgress His will,
For one restraint, lords of the world besides ?
Who first seduced them to that foul revolt ?
Th' infernal serpent ! he it was, whose guile,
Stirred up with envy and revenge, deceived
The mother of mankind, what time his pride
Had cast him out from heav'n, with all his host

Paradise Lost

Of rebel Angels, by whose aid aspiring
To set himself in glory above his peers,
He trusted to have equalled the Most High,¹ 40
If he opposed ; and with ambitious aim
Against the throne and monarchy of God
Raised impious war in heav'n, and battle proud,
With vain attempt. Him the almighty Power
Hurled headlong flaming from th' ethereal sky,
With hideous ruin and combustion, down
To bottomless perdition, there to dwell
In adamant chains and penal fire,
Who durst defy th' Omnipotent to arms.
Nine times the space that measures day and night 50
To mortal men, he with his horrid crew
Lay vanquished, rolling in the fiery gulf,
Confounded though immortal : but his doom
Reserved him to more wrath ; for now the thought
Both of lost happiness and lasting pain
Torments him ; round he throws his baleful eyes,
That witnessed huge affliction and dismay,
Mixed with obdurate pride and steadfast hate ;
At once, as far as angels' ken, he views 60
The dismal situation waste and wild ;
A dungeon horrible, on all sides round,
As one great furnace, flamed ; yet from those flames
No light, but rather darkness visible
Served only to discover sights of woe,
Regions of sorrow, doleful shades, where peace
And rest can never dwell, hope never comes,²
That comes to all ; but torture without end
Still urges, and a fiery deluge, fed
With ever-burning sulphur unconsumed.
Such place eternal justice had prepared 70
For those rebellious ; here their prison ordained
In utter darkness, and their portion set
As far removed from God and light of heav'n,
As from the centre thrice to th' utmost pole.

Paradise Lost

O how unlike the place from whence they fell !
There the companions of his fall, o'erwhelmed
With floods and whirlwinds of tempestuous fire,
He soon discerns, and welt'ring by his side
One next himself in power, and next in crime,
Long after known in Palestine, and named 80
Beëlzebub :¹ To whom th' Arch-enemy,
(And thence in heav'n call'd Satan,²) with bold words
Breaking the horrid silence, thus began :

" If thou beest he—But O how fall'n ! how changed
From him, who in the happy realms of light,
Clothed with transcendent brightness, didst outshine
Myriads, though bright ! If he, whom mutual league,
United thoughts and counsels, equal hope
And hazard in the glorious enterprise,
Joined with me once, now misery hath joined 90
In equal ruin : into what pit thou seest
From what height fall'n, so much the stronger proved
He with his thunder ; and till then who knew
The force of those dire arms ? yet not for those,
Nor what the potent Victor in His rage
Can else inflict, do I repent, or change,
Though changed in outward lustre, that fixed mind
And high disdain from sense of injured merit,
That with the Mightiest raised me to contend,
And to the fierce contention brought along 100
Innumerable force of Spirits armed,
That durst dislike His reign ; and, me preferring,
His utmost power with adverse power opposed
In dubious battle on the plains of heav'n,
And shook His throne. What though the field be lost ?

All is not lost ; th' unconquerable will,
And study of revenge, immortal hate
And courage never to submit or yield,

¹ The god of flies, worshipped by the Philistines (2 Kings i. 2). The Jews considered Beelzebub the greatest of the devils. See their accusation of our Lord, St. Matt. xii. 24-27 ; where it appears that with them Beelzebub and "Satan" were anonymous names. Milton makes them two different fallen angels.

² Satan is a Hebrew word, signifying "enemy." The enemy both of God and man.

Paradise Lost

And what is else not to be overcome ;
That glory never shall His wrath or might Extort from me : to bow and sue for grace
With suppliant knee, and deify His power.
Who from the terror of this arm so late
Doubted His empire, that were low indeed,
That were an ignominy and shame beneath
This downfall ; since by fate the strength of gods
And this empyreal substance cannot fail ;
Since through experience of this great event,
(In arms not worse, in foresight much advanced,)
We may with more successful hope resolve
To wage by force or guile eternal war,
Irreconcilable to our grand foe,
Who now triumphs, and in th' excess of joy
Sole reigning holds the tyranny of heav'n."

So spoke th' apostate Angel, though in pain,
Vaunting aloud, but racked with deep despair :
And him thus answered soon his bold compeer :

"O Prince, O chief of many thronèd Powers,
That led th' imbattled Seraphim to war
Under thy conduct, and, in dreadful deeds
Fearless, endangered heav'n's perpetual King,
And put to proof His high supremacy ;
Whether upheld by strength, or chance, or fate,
Too well I see and rue the dire event,
That with sad overthrow and foul defeat
Hath lost us heav'n, and all this mighty host
In horrible destruction laid thus low,
As far as gods and heavenly essences
Can perish : for the mind and spirit remain
Invincible, and vigour soon returns,
Though all our glory extinct, and happy state
Here swallowed up in endless misery.
But what if He, our conqueror, whom I now
Of force believe almighty, since no less
Than such could have o'erpowered such force as ours,
Has left us this our spirit and strength entire,
Strongly to suffer and support our pains,
That we may so suffice His vengeful ire,

Paradise Lost

Or do Him mightier service, as His thralls
By right of war, whate'er His business be Here in the heart of hell to work in fire, 150
Or do His errands in the gloomy deep :
What can it then avail, though yet we feel Strength undiminished, or eternal being
To undergo eternal punishment ? ”

Whereto with speedy words th' Arch-fiend replied :

“ Fall'n Cherub, to be weak is miserable,
Doing or suffering : but of this be sure,
To do ought good never will be our task,
But ever to do ill our sole delight ;

As being the contrary to His high will, 160
Whom we resist. If then His providence
Out of our evil seek to bring forth good,
Our labour must be to pervert that end,
And out of good still to find means of evil ;
Which oft-times may succeed, so as perhaps Shall grieve Him, if I fail not, and disturb
His inmost counsels from their destined aim.

But see ! the angry Victor hath recalled
His ministers of vengeance and pursuit 170
Back to the gates of heav'n : the sulphurous hail
Shot after us in storm, o'erblown hath laid
The fiery surge, that from the precipice
Of heav'n received us falling, and the thunder,
Winged with red lightning and impetuous rage,
Perhaps hath spent his shafts, and ceases now
To bellow through the vast and boundless deep ;
Let us not slip th' occasion, whether scorn
Or satiate fury yield it from our foe.

Seest thou yon dreary plain, forlorn and wild, 180
The seat of desolation, void of light,
Save what the glimmering of these livid flames
Casts pale and dreadful ? Thither let us tend
From off the tossing of these fiery waves ;
There rest, if any rest can harbour there,
And, reassembling our afflicted powers,
Consult how we may henceforth most offend
Our enemy ; our own loss how repair,

Paradise Lost

How overcome this'dire calamity,
What reinforcement we may gain from hope, 190
If not, what resolution from despair."

Thus Satan talking to his nearest mate,
With head up-lift above the wave, and eyes
That sparkling blazed; his other parts besides
Prone on the flood, extended long and large,
Lay floating many a rood, in bulk as huge
As whom the fables name of monstrous size,
Titanian, or Earth-born, that warred on Jove,¹ Briareus, or Typhon, whom the den
By ancient Tarsus held, or that sea-beast 200
Leviathan, which GOD of all His works
Created hugest that swim th' ocean stream:
Him haply slumb'ring on the Norway foam,
The pilot of some small night-foundered skiff
Deeming some island, oft, as seamen tell,
With fixèd anchor in his scaly rind,
Moors by his side under the lee, while night
Invests the sea, and wishèd morn delays:²
So stretched out huge in length the Arch-fiend lay,
Chained on the burning lake, nor ever thence 210
Had risen or heaved his head, but that the will
And high permission of all-ruling heaven
Left him at large to his own dark designs,
That with reiterated crimes he might
Heap on himself damnation, while he sought
Evil to others, and enraged might see
How all his malice served but to bring forth
Infinite goodness, grace, and mercy shown
On man by him seduced; but on himself
Treble confusion, wrath, and vengeance poured. 220
Forthwith upright he rears from off the pool
His mighty stature; on each hand the flames
Driven backward slope their pointing spires, and rolled
In billows leave i' th' midst a horrid vale.

¹ The Titans were monstrous giants, said to have made war against the gods. Briareus had a hundred hands. Typhon was the same as Typhœus, who was imprisoned by Jupiter in a cave near Tarsus, in Cilicia.

Paradise Lost

Then with expanded wings he steers his flight
Aloft, incumbent on the dusky air,
That felt unusual weight, till on dry land
He lights, if it were land that ever burned
With solid, as the lake with liquid, fire ;
And such appeared in hue, as when the force 230
Of subterranean wind transports a hill
Torn from Pelorus,¹ or the shattered side
Of thund'ring Ætna, whose combustible
And fueled entrails thence conceiving fire,
Sublimed with mineral fury, aid the winds,
And leave a singèd bottom, all involved
With stench and smoke : such resting found the sole
O' unblest feet. Him followed his next mate,
Both glorying to have 'scaped the Stygian flood,
As gods, and by their own recovered strength, 240
Not by the sufferance of supernal power.
"Is this the region, this the soil, the clime,"
Said then the lost Arch-angel, "this the seat
That we must change for heav'n ? this mournful gloom
For that celestial light ? be it so, since He,
Who now is Sov'reign, can dispose and bid
What shall be right : farthest from Him is best,
Whom reason hath equalled, force hath made supreme Above His equals. Farewell happy fields,
Where joy for ever dwells ! hail horrors ! hail 250
Infernal world ; and thou profoundest hell
Receive thy new possessor ; one who brings
A mind not to be changed by place or time.
The mind is its own place, and in itself
Can make a heav'n of hell, a hell of heav'n.²
What matter where, if I be still the same,
And what I should be, all but less than He Whom thunder hath made greater ? Here at least
We shall be free ; th' Almighty hath not built
Here for His envy, will not drive us hence : 260
Here we may reign secure, and in my choice

Paradise Lost

To reign is worth ambition, though in hell :
Better to reign in hell, than serve in heav'n.
But wherefore let we then our faithful friends,
Th' associates and copartners of our loss,
Lie thus astonished on the oblivious pool,
And call them not to share with us their part
In this unhappy mansion ; or once more
With rallied arms to try what may be yet
Regained in heav'n, or what more lost in hell ?" 270

So Satan spake, and him Beëlzebub
Thus answered : " Leader of those armies bright,
Which but th' Omnipotent none could have foiled,
If once they hear that voice, their liveliest pledge
Of hope in fears and dangers, heard so oft
In worst extremes, and on the perilous edge
Of battle when it raged, in all assaults
Their surest signal, they will soon resume
New courage and revive, though now they lie
Gro'ling and prostrate on yon lake of fire, 280
As we erewhile, astounded and amazed,
No wonder, fall'n such a pernicious highth." ¹

He scarce had ceased, when the superior fiend
Was moving toward the shore ; his ponderous shield
Ethereal temper, massy, large, and round,
Behind him cast ; the broad circumference
Hung on his shoulders like the moon, whose orb
Through optic glass the Tuscan artist ² views
At evening, from the top of Fesole
Or in Valdarno, to descry new lands, 290
Rivers or mountains in her spotted globe.
His spear—to equal which the tallest pine,
Hewn on Norwegian hills to be the mast
Of some great Ammiral, were but a wand—
He walked with to support uneasy steps
Over the burning marle, not like those steps
On heaven's azure ; and the torrid clime
Smote on him sore besides, vaulted with fire.

¹ Height. High is the old pronunciation, and Milton's mode of spelling.

² Galileo. Milton became acquainted with the great astronomer when travelling in Italy. Optic-glass was the name given then and some time after to the telescope.

Paradise Lost

Nathless he so endured, till on the beach
Of that inflamèd sea, he stood, and called 300
His legions, Angel forms, who lay entranced,
Thick as autumnal leaves that strow the brooks
In Vallombrosa, where th' Etrurian shades
High overarched embower ; or scattered sedge
Afloat, when with fierce winds Orion armed¹
Hath vexed the Red-sea coast, whose waves o'erthrew
Busiris² and his Memphian chivalry,
While with perfidious hatred they pursued
The sojourners of Goshen, who beheld
From the safe shore their floating carcasses 310
And broken chariot wheels : so thick bestrown
Abject and lost lay these, covering the flood,
Under amazement of their hideous change.
He called so loud, that all the hollow deep
Of hell resounded : " Princes, Potentates,
Warriors, the flow'r of heav'n, once yours, now lost,
If such astonishment as this can seize Eternal spirits ; or have ye chosen this place
After the toil of battle to repose
Your wearied virtue, for the ease you find 320
To slumber here, as in the vales of heav'n ?
Or in this abject posture have ye sworn
To adore the Conqueror ? who now beholds
Cherub and Seraph rolling in the flood
With scattered arms and ensigns, till anon
His swift pursuers from heav'n gates discern
Th' advantage, and descending tread us down
Thus drooping, or with linkèd thunderbolts
Transfix us to the bottom of this gulf.
Awake, arise, or be for ever fall'n ! " 330

They heard, and were abashed, and up they sprung
Upon the wing, as when men wont to watch
On duty, sleeping found by whom they dread,
Rouse and bestir themselves ere well awake.
Nor did they not perceive the evil plight

In which they were, or the fierce pains not feel;
 Yet to their General's voice they soon obeyed,
 Innumerable. As when the potent rod
 Of Amram's Son, in Egypt's evil day,
 Waved round the coast up called a pitchy cloud 340
 Of locusts, warping on the eastern wind,
 That o'er the realm of impious Pharaoh hung
 Like night, and darkened all the land of Nile :¹
 So numberless were those bad angels seen
 Hovering on wing under the cope of hell,
 'Twixt upper, nether, and surrounding fires ;
 Till, at a signal given, th' uplifted spear
 Of their great Sultan waving to direct
 Their course, in even balance down they light
 On the firm brimstone, and fill all the plain ; 350
 A multitude like which the populous north
 Poured never from her frozen loins, to pass
 Rhene or the Danaw,² when her barbarous sons³
 Came like a deluge on the south, and spread
 Beneath Gibraltar to the Libyan sands.
 Forthwith from every squadron and each band
 The heads and leaders thither haste, where stood
 Their great Commander ; God-like shapes and forms Excelling human, Princely Dignities,
 And Powers, that erst in heaven sat on thrones ; 360
 Though of their names in heavenly records now
 Be no memorial, blotted out and razed
 By their rebellion from the books of life.⁴
 Nor had they yet among the sons of Eve
 Got them new names ; till wand'ring o'er the earth,
 Through God's high sufferance for the trial of man,

³ "When her barbarous sons," etc. Spenser, describing the same people, has the same simile, Faërie Queer, B. II. cant. 1st. 15—

"And overflowed all countries far away,
 Like Noye's great flood, with their importune sway."

They were the Goths, and Huns, and Vandals, who overran all the southern provinces of Europe.

Paradise Lost

By falsities and lies the greatest part
Of mankind they corrupted to forsake
God their creator, and the invisible
Glory of Him that made them to transform 370
Oft to the image of a brute, adorned
With gay religions full of pomp and gold,
And Devils to adore for Deities :¹
Then were they known to men by various names,
And various idols through the heathen world.
Say, Muse, their names then known, who first, who last,
Roused from the slumber on that fiery couch
At their great Emperor's call, as next in worth,
Came singly where he stood on the bare strand,
While the promiscuous crowd stood yet aloof. 380
The chief were those, who, from the pit of hell
Roaming to seek their prey on earth, durst fix
Their seats long after next the seat of God,
Their altars by His altar, gods adored
Among the nations round, and durst abide
Jehovah thund'ring out of Sion, throned
Between the Cherubim ; yea, often placed
Within His sanctuary itself their shrines,
Abominations ;² and with cursèd things
His holy rites and solemn feasts profaned, 390
And with their darkness durst affront His light.
First Moloch, horrid King,³ besmeared with blood
Of human sacrifice, and parents' tears,
Though for the noise of drums and timbrels loud
Their children's cries unheard, that past through fire
To his grim idol. Him the Ammonite
Worshipped in Rabbah and her wat'ry plain,
In Argob, and in Basan, to the stream
Of utmost Arnon. Nor content with such 400
Audacious neighbourhood, the wisest heart
Of Solomon he led by fraud to build
His temple right against the temple of God,
On that opprobrious hill,⁴ and made his grove

And black Gehenna called,¹ the type of hell.²
 Next Chemos,³ th' obscene dread of Moab's sons,
 From Aroer to Nebo, and the wild
 Of southmost Abarim ; in Hesebon
 And Heronaim, Seon's realm, beyond
 The flow'ry dale of Sibma clad with vines, 410
 And Eleale, to th' Asphaltic pool :
 Peor his other name, when he enticed
 Israel in Sittim, on their march from Nile,
 To do him wanton rites, which cost them woe.
 Yet thence his lustful orgies he enlarged
 Even to that hill of scandal, by the grove
 Of Moloch homicide,—lust hard by hate :—
 Till good Josiah⁴ drove them thence to hell.
 With these came they, who, from the bord'ring flood
 Of old Euphrates to the brook that parts 420
 Egypt from Syrian ground, had general names
 Of Baalim and Ashtaroth,⁵ those male,
 These feminine : for spirits when they please
 Can either sex assume, or both ; so soft
 And uncompounded is their essence pure ;
 Nor tied or manacled with joint or limb,
 Nor founded on the brittle strength of bones,
 Like cumbrous flesh ; but in what shape they choose
 Dilated or condensed, bright or obscure,
 Can execute their aery purposes, 430
 And works of love or enmity fulfil.
 For those the race of Israel oft forsook
 Their living Strength, and unfrequented left
 His righteous altar, bowing lowly down
 To bestial gods ; for which their heads as low
 Bowed down in battle, sunk before the spear
 Of despicable foes. With these in troop
 Came Astoreth, whom the Phœnicians called Astarte, queen of heaven, with crescent horns ;

¹ It was called Tophet from toph, a drum, the noise of drums being employed to drown the cries of the poor babes offered to the idol.

⁵ Frequently named together in Scripture. They were the sun, Baal ; the moon, Astaroth ; and the stars ; im being the plural termination of the name Baal.

Paradise Lost

To whose bright image nightly by the moon 440
Sidonian virgins paid their vows and songs,
In Sion also not unsung, where stood
Her temple on the offensive mountain, built
By that uxorious king, whose heart though large,
Beguiled by fair idolatresses, fell
To idols foul. Thammuz¹ came next behind,
Whose annual wound in Lebanon allured
The Syrian damsels to lament his fate
In amorous ditties all a summer's day,
While smooth Adonis from his native rock 450
Ran purple to the sea, supposed with blood
Of Thammuz yearly wounded: the love-tale
Infected Sion's daughters with like heat,
Whose wanton passions in the sacred porch
Ezekiel saw,² when by the vision led
His eyes surveyed the dark idolatries
Of alienated Judah. Next came one
Who mourned in earnest, when the captive ark
Maimed his brute image, head and hands lopt off
In his own temple, on the grunsel³ edge, 460
Where he fell flat, and shamed his worshippers:
Dagon his name;⁴ sea monster, upward man
And downward fish: yet had his temple high
Reared in Azotus, dreaded through the coast
Of Palestine, in Gath, and Ascalon,
And Accaron, and Gaza's frontier bounds.
Him followed Rimmon,⁵ whose delightful seat
Was fair Damascus, on the fertile banks
Of Abbana and Pharphar, lucid streams.

¹ Adonis. See Maundrell's Travels, p. 34. "We had the fortune to see what may be supposed to be the occasion of that opinion which Lucian relates concerning this river (the Adonis; called by the Turks, Ibrahim Bassa), viz. that this stream, at certain seasons of the year, especially about the feast of Adonis, is of a bloody colour; which the Heathens looked upon as proceeding from a kind of sympathy in the river for the death of Adonis. Something like this we saw, actually came to pass; for the water was stained to a surprising redness, and, as we observed in travelling, had discoloured the sea a great way into a reddish hue, occasioned, doubtless, by a sort of minium, or red earth, washed into the river by the violence of the rain, and not by any stain from Adonis' blood."

⁵ A Syrian god.

Paradise Lost

He also against the house of God was bold : 470
A leper once he lost,¹ and gained a king,
Ahaz his sottish conqueror, whom he drew
God's altar to disparage,² and displace
For one of Syrian mode, whereon to burn
His odious off'rings, and adore the gods
Whom he had vanquished. After these appeared
A crew, who under names of old renown,
Osiris, Isis, Orus,³ and their train,
With monstrous shapes and sorceries abused
Fanatic Egypt and her priests, to seek 480
Their wand'ring Gods disguised in brutish forms,⁴
Rather than human. Nor did Israel 'scape
Th' infection, when their borrowed gold composed
The calf in Oreb ;⁵ and the rebel king
Doubled that sin in Bethel and in Dan,
Lik'ning his Maker to the grazèd ox,⁶ Jehovah, who in one night, when He passed
From Egypt marching, equalled with one stroke
Both her first-born and all her bleating gods.
Belial⁷ came last, than whom a spirit more lewd 490
Fell not from heaven, or more gross to love
Vice for itself : to him no temple stood
Or altar smoked ; yet who more oft than he
In temples and at altars, when the priest
Turns atheist, as did Eli's sons, who filed
With lust and violence the house of God ?
In courts and palaces he also reigns,
And in luxurious cities, where the noise
Of riot ascends above their loftiest towers,
And injury, and outrage : and when night 500
Darkens the streets, then wander forth the sons
Of Belial, flown with insolence and wine.
Witness the streets of Sodom, and that night
In Gibeah, when the hospitable door
Exposed a matron to avoid worse rape.

Down-cast and damp, yet such wherein appeared
Obscure some glimpse of joy, to have found their

Not in despair, to have found themselves not lost
In loss itself ; which on his count'nance cast
Like doubtful hue : but he, his wonted pride
Soon recollecting, with high words, that bore
Semblance of worth not substance, gently raised
Their fainting courage, and dispelled their fears. 530
Then straight commands, that at the warlike sound
Of trumpets loud and clarions be upreared
His mighty standard : that proud honour claimed

Paradise Lost

Shone like a meteor, streaming to the wind,
With gems and golden lustre rich emblazed,
Seraphic arms and trophies ; all the while
Sonorous metal blowing martial sounds : 540
At which the universal host up sent
A shout that tore hell's concave, and beyond
Frighted the reign of Chaos and old Night.
All in a moment through the gloom were seen
Ten thousand banners rise into the air
With orient colours waving : with them rose
A forest huge of spears ; and thronging helms
Appeared, and serried shields in thick array
Of depth immeasurable : anon they move
In perfect phalanx to the Dorian mood ¹ 550
Of flutes and soft recorders ; ² such as raised
To highth of noblest temper heroes old
Arming to battle ; and instead of rage
Deliberate valour breathed, firm, and unmoved
With dread of death to flight or foul retreat ;
Nor wanting power to mitigate and swage
With solemn touches troubled thoughts, and chase
Anguish, and doubt, and fear, and sorrow, and pain,
From mortal or immortal minds. Thus they,
Breathing united force, with fixed thought, 560
Moved on in silence to soft pipes, that charmed
Their painful steps o'er the burnt soil ; and now
Advanced in view they stand, a horrid front
Of dreadful length and dazzling arms, in guise
Of warriors old with ordered spear and shield,
Awaiting what command their mighty chief
Had to impose. He through the armed files
Darts his experienced eye, and soon traverse
The whole battalion views ; their order due,
Their visages and stature as of gods ; 570
Their number last he sums. And now his heart
Distends with pride, and hard'ning in his strength
Glories ; for never, since created man,

In shape and gesture proudly eminent, 590
Stood like a tow'r ; his form had yet not lost
All her original brightness, nor appeared
Less than Arch-angel ruined, and th' excess
Of glory obscured : as when the sun new-risen
Looks through the horizontal misty air,

On half the nations, and with fear of change
Perplexes monarchs :⁷ darkened so, yet shone
Above them all th' Arch-angel : but his face 600
Deep scars of thunder had intrenched, and care
Sat on his faded cheek, but under brows
Of dauntless courage, and considerate pride
Waiting revenge : cruel his eye, but cast

Paradise Lost

The fellows of his crime, the followers rather,
Far other once beheld in bliss, condemned
For ever now to have their lot in pain,
Millions of spirits for his fault amerced¹
Of heav'n, and from eternal splendours flung 610
For his revolt, yet faithful how they stood,
Their glory withered : as when heaven's fire
Hath scathed the forest oaks or mountain pines,
With singèd top their stately growth, though bare,
Stands on the blasted heath. He now prepared
To speak ; whereat their doubled ranks they bend
From wing to wing, and half inclose him round
With all his peers : attention held them mute.
Thrice he assayed, and thrice in spite of scorn,
Tears, such as angels weep, burst forth ; at last 620
Words interwove with sighs found out their way :

“O myriads of immortal spirits ! O Powers
Matchless, but with th' Almighty, and that strife
Was not inglorious, though th' event was dire,
As this place testifies, and this dire change
Hateful to utter : but what power of mind,
Foreseeing or presaging, from the depth
Of knowledge past or present, could have feared,
How such united force of gods, how such
As stood like these, could ever know repulse ? 630
For who can yet believe, though after loss,
That all these puissant legions, whose exile
Hath emptied heav'n,² shall fail to reascend
Self-raised, and repossess their native seat ?
For me, be witness all the host of heav'n,
If counsels different or danger shunned
By me have lost our hopes : but He, who reigns
Monarch in heav'n, till then as one secure
Sat on His throne, upheld by old repute,
Consent, or custom, and His regal state 640
Put forth at full, but still His strength concealed,
Which tempted our attempt, and wrought our fall.

Paradise Lost

So as not either to provoke, or dread
New war, provoked; our better part remains
To work in close design, by fraud or guile,
What force effected not; that He no less
At length from us may find, who overcomes
By force, hath overcome but half his foe.
Space may produce new worlds, whereof so rife
There went a fame in heav'n, that He ere long
Intended to create, and therein plant
A generation, whom His choice regard
Should favour equal to the sons of heaven.
Thither, if but to pry, shall be perhaps
Our first eruption, thither or elsewhere;
For this infernal pit shall never hold
Celestial spirits in bondage, nor th' Abyss
Long under darkness cover. But these thoughts
Full counsel must mature: peace is despaired;
For who can think submission? war then, war
Open or understood, must be resolved."

He spake: and to confirm his words outflow
Millions of flaming swords, drawn from the thighs
Of mighty Cherubim; the sudden blaze
Far round illumined hell: highly they raged
Against the Highest, and fierce with grasped arms
Clashed on their sounding shields the din of war,
Hurling defiance toward the vault of heav'n.

There stood a hill not far, whose grisly top
Belched fire and rolling smoke; the rest entire Shone with a glossy scurf, undoubted sign
That in his womb was hid metallic ore,
The work of sulphur. Thither, winged with speed,
A numerous brigade hastened; as when bands
Of pioneers, with spade and pickaxe-armed,
Forerun the royal camp, to trench a field,
Or cast a rampart. Mammon¹ led them on,
Mammon, the least erected spirit that fell
From heav'n; for ev'n in heav'n his looks and thoughts
Were always downward bent, admiring more

 Than aught divine or holy else enjoyed
 In vision beatific. By him first
 Men also, and by his suggestion taught,
 Ransacked the centre, and with impious hands
 Rifled the bowels of their mother earth
 For treasures better hid. Soon had his crew
 Opened into the hill a spacious wound,
 And digged out ribs of gold. Let none admire¹ 690
 That riches grow in hell; that soil may best Deserve the precious bane. And here let those Who boast in mortal things, and wond'ring tell
 Of Babel and the works of Memphian kings,
 Learn how their greatest monuments of fame
 And strength and art are easily outdone
 By spirits reprobate, and in an hour
 What in an age they with incessant toil
 And hands innumerable scarce perform.
 Nigh on the plain in many cells prepared, 700
 That underneath had veins of liquid fire
 Sluiced from the lake, a second multitude
 With wond'rous art founded the massy ore,
 Severing each kind, and scummed the bullion dross.

Their kings, when Egypt with Assyria strove
In wealth and luxury. Th' ascending pile
Stood fixt her stately highth, and straight the doors,
Op'ning their brazen folds, discover, wide
Within, her ample spaces o'er the smooth
And level pavement: from the archèd roof,
Pendent by subtle magic, many a row
Of starry lamps and blazing cressets, fed
With Naphtha and Asphaltus, yielded light
As from a sky. The hasty multitude 730
Admiring entered, and the work some praise,
And some the architect: his hand was known
In heav'n by many a towered structure high,
Where sceptred angels held their residence,
And sat as princes, whom the supreme King
Exalted to such power, and gave to rule,
Each in his hierarchy, the orders bright.
Nor was his name unheard or unadored
In ancient Greece; and in Ausonian land
Men called him Mulciber;¹ and how he fell 740
From heav'n they fabled, thrown by angry Jove
Sheer o'er the crystal battlements; from morn
To noon he fell, from noon to dewy eve,
A summer's day; and with the setting sun
Dropt from the zenith like a falling star,
On Lemnos th' Ægean isle; thus they relate,
Erring; for he with this rebellious rout
Fell long before; nor aught availed him now

With hundreds and with thousands trooping came 760
Attended : all access was thronged, the gates
And porches wide, but chief the spacious hall,

To mortal combat or career with lance,
Thick swarmed, both on the ground and in the air,
Brushed with the hiss of rustling wings. As bees
In spring time, when the sun with Taurus rides,
Pour forth their populous youth about the hive 770
In clusters ; they among fresh dews and flowers
Fly to and fro, or on the smoothèd plank,
The suburb of their straw-built citadel,
New rubbed with balm, expatiate, and confer
Their state affairs. So thick the aery crowd
Swarmed and were straitened ; till, the signal giv'n, Behold a wonder ! they, but now who seemed
In bigness to surpass earth's giant sons,
Now less than smallest dwarfs, in narrow room
Throng numberless, like that Pygmean race 780
Beyond the Indian mount, or Fairy Elves,
Whose midnight revels, by a forest side,
Or fountain, some belated peasant sees,
Or dreams he sees, while over head the moon
Sits arbitress,¹ and nearer to the earth
Wheels her pale course ; they, on their mirth and dance
Intent, with jocund music charm his ear ;
At once with joy and fear his heart rebounds.
Thus incorporeal spirits to smallest forms
Reduced their shapes immense, and were at large, 790
Though without number still, amidst the hall
Of that infernal court. But far within,
And in their own dimensions like themselves,
The great Seraphic lords and Cherubim
In close recess and secret conclave sat,
A thousand Demi-gods on golden seats,
Frequent and full. After short silence then
And summons read, the great consult began.

Paradise Lost

BOOK II.

THE ARGUMENT.

The consultation begun, Satan debates whether another battle be to be hazarded for the recovery of heaven; some advise it, others dissuade. A third proposal is preferred, mentioned before by Satan, to search the truth of that prophecy or tradition in heaven concerning another world, and another kind of creature, equal, or not much inferior, to themselves, about this time to be created: their doubt who shall be sent on this difficult search: Satan their chief undertakes alone the voyage, is honoured and applauded. The council thus ended, the rest betake them several ways, and to several employments, as their inclinations lead them, to entertain the time till Satan return. He passes on his journey to hell gates, finds them shut, and who sat there to guard them, by whom at length they are opened, and discover to him the great gulf between hell and heaven: with what difficulty he passes through, directed by Chaos, the Power of that place, to the sight of this new world which he sought.

HIGH on a throne of royal state, which far I
Outshone the wealth of Ormus and of Ind,
Or where the gorgeous east with richest hand
Show'rs on her kings Barbaric pearl and gold,¹ Satan exalted sat, by merit raised
To that bad eminence; and, from despair
Thus high uplifted beyond hope, aspires
Beyond thus high, insatiate to pursue
Vain war with heav'n, and by success untaught
His proud imaginations thus displayed: 10
“Powers and Dominions, Deities of heav'n,²
For since no deep within her gulf can hold
Immortal vigour, though oppressed and fall'n,
I give not heav'n for lost: from this descent
Celestial virtues rising will appear
More glorious and more dread, than from no fall,
And trust themselves to fear no second fate.
Me though just right and the fixed laws of heav'n
Did first create your leader, next free choice,
With what besides, in council or in fight, 20
Hath been achieved of merit; yet this loss,
Thus far at least recovered, hath much more

Paradise Lost

Established in a safe unenvied throne,
Yielded with full consent. The happier state
In heav'n, which follows dignity, might draw
Envy from each inferior; but who here
Will envy whom the highest place exposes
Foremost to stand against the Thunderer's aim,
Your bulwark, and condemns to greatest share
Of endless pain? Where there is then no good 30
For which to strive, no strife can grow up there
From faction; for none sure will claim in hell
Precedence, none, whose portion is so small
Of present pain, that with ambitious mind
Will covet more. With this advantage then
To union, and firm faith, and firm accord,
More than can be in heav'n, we now return
To claim our just inheritance of old,
Surer to prosper than prosperity
Could have assured us; and by what best way, 40
Whether of open war or covert guile,
We now debate; who can advise, may speak."

He ceased; and next him Moloch, sceptred king,
Stood up, the strongest and the fiercest spirit
That fought in heav'n, now fiercer by despair:
His trust was with th' Eternal to be deemed Equal in strength, and rather than be less
Cared not to be at all; with that care lost
Went all his fear: of God, or hell, or worse,
He recked not; and these words thereafter spake: 50

"My sentence is for open war: of wiles,
More unexpert, I boast not: them let those Contrive who need, or when they need, not now:
For while they sit contriving, shall the rest,
Millions that stand in arms and longing wait
The signal to ascend, sit ling'ring here
Heav'n's fugitives, and for their dwelling-place
Accept this dark opprobrious den of shame,
The prison of His tyranny who reigns
By our delay? No, let us rather choose, 60
Armed with hell flames and fury, all at once
O'er heav'n's high towers to force resistless way,

Paradise Lost

Turning our tortures into horrid arms
Against the torturer ; when to meet the noise
Of His almighty engine He shall hear
Infernal thunder, and for lightning see
Black fire and horror shot with equal rage
Among His angels ; and His throne itself
Mixt with Tartarean sulphur and strange fire,
His own invented torments. But perhaps 70
The way seems difficult and steep to scale
With upright wing against a higher foe.
Let such bethink them, if the sleepy drench
Of that forgetful lake benumb not still,
That in our proper motion we ascend
Up to our native seat : descent and fall
To us is adverse. Who but felt of late,
When the fierce foe hung on our broken rear
Insulting, and pursued us through the deep,
With what compulsion and laborious flight 80
We sunk thus low ? th' ascent is easy then ;
Th' event is feared ; should we again provoke
Our stronger, some worse way His wrath may find
To our destruction : if there be in hell
Fear to be worse destroyed. What can be worse
Than to dwell here, driv'n out from bliss, condemned
In this abhorrèd deep to utter woe ;
Where pain of unextinguishable fire
Must exercise us without hope of end,
The vassals of His anger, when the scourge 90
Inexorably, and the torturing hour
Calls us to penance ? more destroyed than thus
We should be quite abolished and expire.
What fear we then ? what doubt we to incense
His utmost ire ? which, to the highth enraged,
Will either quite consume us, and reduce
To nothing this essential ; happier far,
Than miserable to have eternal being.
Or if our substance be indeed divine,
And cannot cease to be, we are at worst 100
On this side nothing ; and by proof we feel
Our power sufficient to disturb His heav'n,

Paradise Lost

And with perpetual inroads to alarm,
Though inaccessible, His fatal throne :¹
Which, if not victory, is yet revenge."

He ended frowning, and his look denounced
Desperate revenge and battle dangerous
To less than gods. On the other side up rose
Belial, in act more graceful and humane ;
A fairer person lost not heav'n ; he seemed
For dignity composed and high exploit :
But all was false and hollow ; though his tongue
Dropped manna, and could make the worse appear
The better reason, to perplex and dash
Maturest counsels ; for his thoughts were low ;
To vice industrious, but to nobler deeds
Timorous and slothful : yet he pleased the ear,
And with persuasive accent thus began :

"I should be much for open war, O Peers,
As not behind in hate, if what was urged
Main reason to persuade immediate war,
Did not dissuade me most, and seem to cast
Ominous conjecture on the whole success ;
When he, who most excels in fact of arms,
In what he counsels and in what excels
Mistrustful, grounds his courage on despair
And utter dissolution, as the scope
Of all his aim, after some dire revenge.
First, what revenge ? the towers of heav'n are filled
With armed watch, that render all access
Impregnable ; oft on the bordering deep
Encamp their legions, or with obscure wing
Scout far and wide into the realm of night,
Scorning surprise. Or could we break our way
By force, and at our heels all hell should rise,
With blackest insurrection to confound
Heav'n's purest light, yet our great Enemy
All incorruptible would on His throne
Sit unpolluted ; and th' ethereal mould
Incapable of stain would soon expel
Her mischief, and purge off the baser fire,

Paradise Lost

Victorious. Thus repulsed, our final hope
Is flat despair: we must exasperate
The Almighty Victor to spend all His rage,
And that must end us, that must be our cure,
To be no more: sad cure! for who would lose,
Though full of pain, this intellectual being,
Those thoughts that wander through eternity,
To perish rather, swallowed up and lost
In the wide womb of uncreated night, 150
Devoid of sense and motion? and who knows,
Let this be good, whether our angry Foe
Can give it, or will ever? how He can,
Is doubtful; that He never will, is sure.
Will He, so wise, let loose at once His ire,
Belike through impotence or unaware,
To give His enemies their wish, and end
Them in His anger, whom His anger saves
To punish endless? Wherefore cease we then?
Say they who counsel war;—We are decreed, 160
Reserved, and destined to eternal woe;
Whatever doing, what can we suffer more,
What can we suffer worse?—Is this then worst,
Thus sitting, thus consulting, thus in arms?
What, when we fled amain, pursued and struck
With heav'n's afflicting thunder, and besought
The deep to shelter us? this hell then seemed
A refuge from those wounds. Or when we lay
Chained on the burning lake? that sure was worse.
What if the breath that kindled those grim fires¹ 170
Awaked should blow them into sevenfold rage,
And plunge us in the flames? or from above
Should intermitted vengeance arm again
His red right hand to plague us? What, if all
Her stores were opened, and this firmament
Of hell should spout her cataracts of fire,
Impendent horrors, threatening hideous fall
One day upon our heads; while we, perhaps Designing or exhorting glorious war,
Caught in a fiery tempest shall be hurled 180

Paradise Lost

Each on his rock transfix'd, the sport and prey
Of racking whirlwinds ; or for ever sunk
Under yon boiling ocean, wrapt in chains ;
There to converse with everlasting groans,
Unrespited, unpitied, unreprieved,
Ages of hopeless end ? this would be worse.
War therefore, open or concealed, alike
My voice dissuades ; for what can force or guile
With Him, or who deceive His mind, whose eye
Views all things at one view ? He from heav'n's highth
All these our motions vain sees and derides ; [190
Not more almighty to resist our might,
Than wise to frustrate all our plots and wiles.
Shall we then live thus vile, the race of heav'n,
Thus trampled, thus expelled, to suffer here
Chains and these torments ? Better these than worse
By my advice ; since fate inevitable
Subdues us, and omnipotent decree,
The Vict'or's will. To suffer, as to do,
Our strength is equal, nor the law unjust 200
That so ordains : this was at first resolved,
If we were wise, against so great a foe
Contending, and so doubtful what might fall.
I laugh, when those, who at the spear are bold
And venturous, if that fail them, shrink and fear
What yet they know must follow, to endure
Exile, or ignominy, or bonds, or pain,
The sentence of their conqueror : this is now
Our doom ; which if we can sustain and bear,
Our supreme Foe in time may much remit 210
His anger, and perhaps thus far removed
Not mind us not offending, satisfied
With what is punished : whence these raging fires
Will slacken, if His breath stir not their flames.
Our purer essence then will overcome
Their noxious vapour, or enured not feel ;
Or changed at length, and to the place conformed
In temper and in nature, will receive
Familiar the fierce heat, and void of pain ;
This horror will grow mild, this darkness light : 220

Paradise Lost

Besides what hope the never-ending flight
Of future days may bring, what chance, what change
Worth waiting, since our present lot appears
For happy though but ill, for ill not worst,
If we procure not to ourselves more woe."

Thus Belial with words clothed in reason's garb
Counselled ignoble ease, and peaceful sloth,
Not peace : and after him thus Mammon spake :

"Either to disenthronè the King of heav'n
We war, if war be best, or to regain 230

Our own right lost : Him to unthronè we then
May hope, when everlasting Fate shall yield
To fickle Chance, and Chaos judge the strife :
The former, vain to hope, argues as vain
The latter : for what place can be for us
Within heav'n's bound, unless heav'n's Lord supreme

We overpower? suppose He should relent
And publish grace to all, on promise made
Of new subjection ; with what eyes could we Stand in His presence humble, and receive 240

Strict laws imposed, to celebrate His throne
With warbled hymns, and to His Godhead sing
Forced hallelujahs ; while He lordly sits
Our envied Sovereign, and His altar breathes
Ambrosial odours and ambrosial flowers,
Our servile offerings? This must be our task
In heav'n, this our delight ; how wearisome
Eternity so spent in worship paid

To whom we hate? Let us not then pursue
By force impossible, by leave obtained 250

Unacceptable, though in heav'n, our state
Of splendid vassalage, but rather seek
Our own good from ourselves, and from our own
Live to ourselves, though in this vast recess,
Free, and to none accountable, preferring
Hard liberty before the easy yoke

Of servile pomp. Our greatness will appear
Then most conspicuous, when great things of small,
Useful of hurtful, prosperous of adverse,

We can create ; and in what place so e'er 260

Paradise Lost

Thrive under evil, and work ease out of pain
Through labour and endurance. This deep world
Of darkness do we dread? how oft amidst Thick clouds and dark doth heav'n's all-ruling Sire
Choose to reside, His glory unobscured,
And with the majesty of darkness round
Covers His throne; ¹ from whence deep thunders roar,
Must'ring their rage, and heav'n resembles hell?
As He our darkness, cannot we His light
Imitate when we please? this desert soil 270
Wants not her hidden lustre, gems and gold;
Nor want we skill or art, from whence to raise
Magnificence; and what can heav'n show more?
Our torments also may in length of time
Become our elements, these piercing fires
As soft as now severe, our temper changed
Into their temper; which must needs remove
The sensible of pain. All things invite
To peaceful counsels, and the settled state
Of order, how in safety best we may 280
Compose our present evils, with regard
Of what we are and were, dismissing quite
All thoughts of war. Ye have what I advise."

He scarce had finished, when such murmur filled
Th' assembly, as when hollow rocks retain
The sound of blust'ring winds, which all night long
Had roused the sea, now with hoarse cadence lull
Sea-faring men o'erwatched, whose bark by chance
Or pinnace anchors in a craggy bay
After the tempest: such applause was heard 290
As Mammon ended, and his sentence pleased,
Advising peace: for such another field
They dreaded worse than hell: so much the fear
Of thunder and the sword of Michael
Wrought still within them; and no less desire
To found this nether empire, which might rise,
By policy and long process of time,
In emulation opposite to heav'n.
Which when Beëlzebub perceived, than whom,

¹ Psalm xviii. 11-13, xcvi. 2.

Paradise Lost

Satan except, none higher sat, with grave
Aspect he rose, and in his rising seemed
A pillar of state : deep on his front engraven
Deliberation sat and public care ;
And princely counsel in his face yet shone,
Majestic though in ruin : sage he stood,
With Atlantean¹ shoulders fit to bear
The weight of mightiest monarchies ; his look
Drew audience and attention still as night
Or summer's noon-tide air, while thus he spake :

"Thrones and imperial Powers, offspring of heav'n, 310

Ethereal Virtues ; or these titles now
Must we renounce, and changing style be called Princes of hell ? for so the popular vote
Inclines, here to continue, and build up here
A growing empire. Doubtless ; while we dream,
And know not that the King of heav'n hath doomed
This place our dungeon, not our safe retreat
Beyond His potent arm, to live exempt
From heav'n's high jurisdiction, in new league
Banded against His throne, but to remain
In strictest bondage, though thus far removed,
Under the inevitable curb, reserved

His captive multitude : for He, be sure,
In high or depth, still first and last will reign
Sole King, and of His kingdom lose no part
By our revolt, but over hell extend
His empire, and with iron sceptre rule²
Us here, as with His golden those in heav'n.
What sit we then projecting peace and war?
War hath determined us, and foiled with loss
Irreparable ; terms of peace yet none
Vouchsafed or sought ; for what peace will be giv'n
To us enslaved, but custody severe,
And stripes, and arbitrary punishment
Inflicted ? and what peace can we return,
But to our power hostility and hate,
Untamed reluctance, and revenge, though slow,

1 Atlas was fabled to have held the heavens on his shoulders.

2 Psalm ii. 9.

Paradise Lost

Yet ever plotting how the Conqueror least
May reap His conquest, and may least rejoice
In doing what we most in suffering feel? 340
Nor will occasion want, nor shall we need
With dangerous expedition to invade
Heav'n, whose high walls fear no assault, or siege,
Or ambush from the deep. What if we find
Some easier enterprise? There is a place,
(If ancient and prophetic fame in heav'n Err not,) another world, the happy seat
Of some new race called Man, about this time
To be created like to us, though less
In power and excellence, but favoured more 350
Of Him who rules above; so was His will,
Pronounced among the gods, and by an oath,
That shook heav'n's whole circumference, confirmed.
Thither let us bend all our thoughts, to learn
What creatures there inhabit, of what mould
Or substance, how endued, and what their power,
And where their weakness, how attempted best,
By force or subtilty. Though heav'n be shut,
And heav'n's high Arbitrator sit secure
In His own strength, this place may lie exposed, 360
The utmost border of His kingdom, left
To their defence who hold it: here perhaps
Some advantageous act may be achieved
By sudden onset, either with hell fire
To waste His whole creation, or possess
All as our own, and drive as we were driven
The puny habitants; or if not drive,
Seduce them to our party, that their God
May prove their foe, and with repenting hand
Abolish His own works. This would surpass 370
Common revenge, and interrupt His joy
In our confusion, and our joy upraise
In His disturbance; when His darling sons,
Hurled headlong to partake with us, shall curse
Their frail original, and faded bliss,
Faded so soon. Advise if this be worth
Attempting, or to sit in darkness here

Paradise Lost

Hatching vain empires."—Thus Beëlzebub
Pleaded his devilish counsel, first devised
By Satan, and in part proposed ; for whence, 380
But from the author of all ill, could spring
So deep a malice, to confound the race
Of mankind in one root, and earth with hell
To mingle and involve, done all to spite
The great Creator? but their spite still serves
His glory to augment. The bold design
Pleased highly those infernal states, and joy
Sparkled in all their eyes ; with full assent
They vote : whereat his speech he thus renews :

"Well have ye judged, well ended long debate, 390
Synod of Gods, and, like to what ye are,
Great things resolved ; which from the lowest deep
Will once more lift us up, in spite of fate,
Nearer our ancient seat ; perhaps in view
Of those bright confines, whence with neighbouring arms

And opportune excursion we may chance
Re-enter heav'n : or else in some mild zone
Dwell, not unvisited of heav'n's fair light,
Secure, and at the bright'ning orient beam
Purge off this gloom ; the soft delicious air 400
To heal the scar of these corrosive fires
Shall breathe her balm. But first whom shall we send
In search of this new world? whom shall we find Sufficient? who shall tempt with wand'ring feet
The dark unbottomed infinite abyss,
And through the palpable obscure find out
His uncouth way, or spread his aery flight,
Upborne with indefatigable wings,
Over the vast abrupt, ere he arrive¹
The happy isle? ² What strength, what art can then Suffice, or what evasion bear him safe [410
Through the strict senteries and stations thick
Of angels watching round? Here he had need
All circumspection, and we now no less

Paradise Lost

Choice in our suffrage ; for on whom we send
The weight of all, and our last hope relies."

This said, he sat ; and expectation held
His look suspense, awaiting who appeared
To second, or oppose, or undertake
The perilous attempt : but all sat mute, 420
Pondering the danger with deep thoughts ; and each
In others' count'nance read his own dismay
Astonished ; none among the choice and prime
Of those heav'n-warring champions could be found
So hardy, as to proffer or accept

Alone the dreadful voyage ; till at last
Satan, whom now transcendent glory raised
Above his fellows, with monarchal pride,
Conscious of highest worth, unmoved thus spake :

"O Progeny of heav'n, empyreal Thrones, 430
With reason hath deep silence and demur
Seized us, though undismayed : long is the way
And hard, that out of hell leads up to light ;
Our prison strong ; this huge convex of fire,
Outrageous to devour, immures us round
Ninefold, and gates of burning adamant
Barred over us prohibit all egress.

These passed, if any pass, the void profound
Of unessential¹ night receives him next 440
Wide gaping, and with utter loss of being Threatens him, plunged in that abortive gulf.

If thence he 'scape into whatever world,
Or unknown region, what remains him less
Than unknown dangers and as hard escape ?
But I should ill become this throne, O Peers,
And this imperial sov'reignty, adorned
With splendour, armed with power, if aught proposed
And judged of public moment, in the shape
Of difficulty or danger, could deter
Me from attempting. Wherefore do I assume 450
These royalties, and not refuse to reign,
Refusing to accept as great a share
Of hazard as of honour, due alike

¹ Void of being.

Paradise Lost

To him who reigns, and so much to him due
Of hazard more, as he above the rest
High honoured sits? Go, therefore, mighty Powers, Terror of heav'n though fallen! Intend at home,
While here shall be our home, what best may ease
The present misery, and render hell
More tolerable; if there be cure or charm 460
To respite, or deceive, or slack the pain
Of this ill mansion. Intermit no watch
Against a wakeful foe, while I abroad
Through all the coasts of dark destruction seek Deliverance for us all. This enterprise
None shall partake with me." Thus saying rose
The monarch, and prevented all reply;
Prudent, lest from his resolution raised
Others among the chief might offer now,
Certain to be refused, what erst they feared; 470
And so refused might in opinion stand
His rivals, winning cheap the high repute,
Which he through hazard huge must earn. But they Dreaded not more the adventure, than his voice
Forbidding; and at once with him they rose:
Their rising all at once was as the sound
Of thunder heard remote. Towards him they bend
With awful reverence prone; and as a God
Extol him equal to the Highest in heav'n:
Nor failed they to express how much they praised, 480
That for the general safety he despised
His own; for neither do the spirits damned
Lose all their virtue, lest bad men should boast
Their specious deeds on earth, which glory excites,
Or close ambition varnished o'er with zeal.
Thus they their doubtful consultations dark
Ended, rejoicing in their matchless chief;
As when from mountain tops the dusky clouds
Ascending, while the north wind sleeps, o'erspread
Heav'n's cheerful face, the louring element 490
Scowls o'er the darkened landscape snow, or shower;
If chance the radiant sun with farewell sweet
Extend his ev'ning beam, the fields revive,

Paradise Lost

The birds their notes renew, and bleating herds
Attest their joy, that hill and valley rings.
O shame to men ! devil with devil damned
Firm concord holds, men only disagree
Of creatures rational, though under hope
Of heav'nly grace ; and God proclaiming peace,
Yet live in hatred, enmity, and strife. 500
Among themselves, and levy cruel wars,
Wasting the earth, each other to destroy :
As if, which might induce us to accord,
Man had not hellish foes enow besides,
That day and night for his destruction wait.

The Stygian council thus dissolved ; and forth
In order came the grand infernal peers ;
Midst came their mighty paramount, and seemed Alone th' antagonist of heav'n, nor less
Than hell's dread emperor, with pomp supreme 510
And god-like imitated state : him round
A globe of fiery Seraphim inclosed
With bright emblazonry and horrent¹ arms.
Then of their session ended they did cry
With trumpets regal sound the great result :
Toward the four winds four speedy Cherubim
Put to their mouths the sounding alchymy,²
By herald's voice explained : the hollow abyss
Heard far and wide, and all the host of hell
With deafning shout returned them loud acclaim. 520

Thence more at ease their minds, and somewhat raised

By false presumptuous hope, the rangèd Powers
Disband, and wand'ring each his several way
Pursues, as inclination or sad choice
Leads him perplexed, where he may likeliest find Truce to his restless thoughts, and entertain
The irksome hours, till his great chief return.
Part, on the plain or in the air sublime,
Upon the wing or in swift race contend,
As at the Olympian games, or Pythian fields : 530

¹ Bristling.

² Gold or silver trumpets. Herald's alchymy would be "or and argent."

Paradise Lost

Part curb their fiery steeds, or shun the goal
With rapid wheels, or fronted brigades form.
As when to warn proud cities war appears
Waged in the troubled sky,¹ and armies rush
To battle in the clouds, before each van
Prick forth the aery knights, and couch their spears
Till thickest legions close ; with feats of arms
From either end of heav'n the welkin burns.
Others with vast Typhœan rage more fell
Rend up both rocks and hills, and ride the air 540
In whirlwind : hell scarce holds the wild uproar.
As when Alcides from Cæchalia crowned
With conquest felt th' envenomed robe, and tore
Through pain up by the roots Thessalian pines,
And Lichas from the top of Cæta threw
Into th' Euboic sea. Others more mild,
Retreated in a silent valley, sing
With notes angelical to many a harp
Their own heroic deeds and hapless fall
By doom of battle ; and complain that fate 550
Free virtue should enthral to force or chance.
Their song was partial ; but the harmony,
—What could it less when spirits immortal sing?—
Suspended hell, and took with ravishment
The thronging audience. In discourse more sweet,
For eloquence the soul, song charms the sense,
Others apart sat on a hill retired,
In thoughts more elevate, and reasoned high
Of providence, foreknowledge, will, and fate,
Fixed fate, free will, foreknowledge absolute ; 560
And found no end, in wand'ring mazes lost.
Of good and evil much they argued then,
Of happiness and final misery,
Passion and apathy, and glory and shame,
Vain wisdom all, and false philosophy :
Yet with a pleasing sorcery could charm
Pain for a while or anguish, and excite

¹ These appearances in the clouds have been frequently recorded. On the Mont d'Or, the night before the battle in which Philip von Arteveldt was killed, an armed host was seen contending in the sky.

Paradise Lost

Fallacious hope, or arm th' obdurèd breast
With stubborn patience as with triple steel.
Another part in squadrons and gross bands, 570
On bold adventure to discover wide
That dismal world, if any clime perhaps
Might yield them easier habitation, bend
Four ways their flying march, along the banks
Of four infernal rivers, that disgorge
Into the burning lake their baleful streams ;
Abhorrèd Styx,¹ the flood of deadly hate ;
Sad Acheron of sorrow, black and deep ;
Cocytus, named of lamentation loud
Heard on the rueful stream ; fierce Phlegethon, 580
Whose waves of torrent fire inflame with rage.
Far off from these a slow and silent stream,
Lethe the river of oblivion, rolls
Her wat'ry labyrinth, whereof who drinks,
Forthwith his former state and being forgets,
Forgets both joy and grief, pleasure and pain.
Beyond this flood a frozen continent
Lies, dark and wild, beat with perpetual storms
Of whirlwind and dire hail, which on firm land
Thaws not, but gathers heap, and ruin seems 590
Of ancient pile ; all else deep snow and ice ;
A gulf profound as that Serbonian² bog
Betwixt Damiata and mount Casius old,
Where armies whole have sunk : the parching air
Burns froze,³ and cold performs th' effect of fire.
Thither by harpy-footed Furies haled
At certain revolutions all the damned
Are brought ; and feel by turns the bitter change
Of fierce extremes, extremes by change more fierce,
From beds of raging fire to starve in ice 600
Their soft ethereal warmth, and there to pine
Immovable, infixed, and frozen round,

Paradise Lost

Periods of time ; thence hurried back to fire.
They ferry over this Lethean sound
Both to and fro, their sorrow to augment,
And wish and struggle, as they pass to reach
The tempting stream, with one small drop to lose
In sweet forgetfulness all pain and woe,
All in one moment, and so near the brink :
But fate withstands,¹ and to oppose th' attempt 610
Medusa, with Gorgonian terror guards
The ford, and of itself the water flies
All taste of living wight, as once it fled :
The lip of Tantalus. Thus roving on
In confused march forlorn, th' adventurous bands,
With shudd'ring horror pale, and eyes aghast,
Viewed first their lamentable lot, and found
No rest : through many a dark and dreary vale
They passed, and many a region dolorous,
O'er many a frozen, many a fiery Alp, 620 Rocks, caves, lakes, fens, bogs, dens, and shades of death,

A universe of death, which God by curse
Created evil, for evil only good,
Where all life dies, death lives, and nature breeds,
Perverse, all monstrous, all prodigious things,
Abominable, inutterable, and worse
Than fables yet have feigned, or fear conceived,
Gorgons, and Hydras, and Chimæras dire.

Meanwhile the adversary of God and man,
Satan, with thoughts inflamed of highest design, 630
Puts on swift wings and toward the gates of hell
Explores his solitary flight ; sometimes
He scours the right-hand coast, sometimes the left ;
Now shaves with level wing the deep, then soars
Up to the fiery concave towering high.
As when far off at sea a fleet descried
Hangs in the clouds, by equinoctial winds
Close sailing from Bengala, or the isles
Of Ternate and Tidore,² whence merchants bring

Their spicy drugs : they on the trading flood 640
Through the wide Æthiopian to the Cape
Ply, stemming nightly toward the pole : so seemed Far off the flying fiend. At last appear
Hell bounds, high reaching to the horrid roof ;
And thrice threefold the gates ; three folds were brass,
Three iron, three of adamant rock,
Impenetrable, impaled with circling fire,
Yet unconsumed. Before the gates there sat
On either side a formidable shape ;¹
The one seemed woman to the waist, and fair, 650
But ended foul in many a scaly fold,
Voluminous and vast, a serpent armed
With mortal sting : about her middle round
A cry of hell hounds never ceasing barked
With wide Cerberean² mouths full loud, and rung
A hideous peal : yet, when they list, would creep,
If aught disturbed their noise, into her womb,
And kennel there ; yet there still barked and howled Within unseen. Far less abhorred than these Vexed Scylla bathing in the sea that parts 660
Calabria from the hoarse Trinacrian shore :³
Nor uglier follow the Night-hag, when called
In secret riding through the air she comes,
Lured with the smell of infant blood, to dance
With Lapland witches, while the labouring moon
Eclipses at their charms. The other shape,
—If shape it might be called that shape had none
Distinguishable in member, joint, or limb,
Or substance might be called that shadow seemed,
For each seemed either.—black it stood as night, 670
Fierce as ten furies, terrible as hell,
And shook a dreadful dart ; what seemed his head
The likeness of a kingly crown had on.
Satan was now at hand, and from his seat

¹ Here begins the famous allegory of Milton, which is a sort of paraphrase of St. James i. 15 : "Then when lust hath conceived, it bringeth forth sin ; and sin, when it is finished, bringeth forth death."

² Like those of Cerberus, the dog with three heads, supposed to keep the gate of hell.

³ Trinacria was the ancient name for Sicily. Scylla and Charybdis were the whirlpools between it and Italy.

Paradise Lost

The monster moving onward came as fast,
With horrid strides ; hell trembled as he strode.
The undaunted fiend what this might be admired ;
Admired, not feared ; GOD and His SON except,
Created thing naught valued he, nor shunned ;
And with disdainful look thus first began : 680

“ Whence and what art thou, execrable shape,
That dar’st, though grim and terrible, advance
Thy miscreated front athwart my way
To yonder gates ? through them I mean to pass,
That be assured, without leave asked of thee.
Retire, or taste thy folly, and learn by proof,
Hell-born, not to contend with spirits of heav’n.”

To whom the goblin full of wrath replied : “ Art thou that traitor angel, art thou he
Who first broke peace in heav’n and faith, till then 690
Unbroken, and in proud rebellious arms
Drew after him the third part of heav’n’s sons
Conjured¹ against the Highest ; for which both thou
And they, outcast from GOD, are here condemned
To waste eternal days in woe and pain ?
And reckon’st thou thyself with spirits of heav’n,
Hell-doomed, and breath’st defiance here and scorn,
Where I reign king, and, to enrage thee more,
Thy king and lord ? Back to thy punishment,
False fugitive, and to thy speed add wings, 700
Lest with a whip of scorpions I pursue
Thy lingering, or with one stroke of this dart
Strange horror seize thee, and pangs unfelt before.”

So spake the grisly terror, and in shape,
So speaking and so threat’ning, grew tenfold
More dreadful and deform : on the other side,
Incensed with indignation Satan stood
Unterrified, and like a comet burned,
That fires the length of Ophiucus² huge
In th’ arctic sky, and from his horrid hair 710
Shakes pestilence and war. Each at the head

¹ Conspired.

² Serpentarius, a northern constellation. Its length would be about forty degrees. Comets were supposed to threaten “ pestilence and war.”

Paradise Lost

Levelled his deadly aim ; their fatal hands
No second stroke intend, and such a frown
Each cast at the other, as when two black clouds,
With heav'n's artillery fraught, come rattling on Over the Caspian ;¹ then stand front to front
Hov'ring a space, till winds the signal blow
To join their dark encounter in mid air :
So frowned the mighty combatants, that hell
Grew darker at their frown, so matched they stood ; 720
For never but once more² was either like
To meet so great a foe : and now great deeds
Had been achieved, whereof all hell had rung,
Had not the snaky sorceress that sat
Fast by hell gate, and kept the fatal key,
Ris'n, and with hideous outcry rushed between.

"O father, what intends thy hand," she cried,
"Against thy only son ? What fury, O son,
Possesses thee to bend that mortal dart
Against thy father's head ? and know'st for whom ? 730
For Him who sits above, and laughs the while
At thee ordained His drudge, to execute
Whate'er His wrath, which He calls justice, bids ;
His wrath, which one day will destroy ye both."

She spake, and at her words the hellish pest
Forbore ; then these to her Satan returned :

"So strange thy outcry, and thy words so strange
Thou interposest, that my sudden hand
Prevented, spares to tell thee yet by deeds
What it intends ; till first I know of thee, 740
What thing thou art, thus double-formed, and why,
In this infernal vale first met, thou call'st
Me father, and that phantasm call'st my son :
I know thee not, nor ever saw till now
Sight more detestable than him and thee."

To whom thus the portress of hell gate replied :
"Hast thou forgot me then, and do I seem
Now in thine eye so foul, once deemed so fair

Paradise Lost

In heav'n? when at th' assembly, and in sight
Of all the seraphim with thee combined 750
In bold conspiracy against heav'n's King,
All on a sudden miserable pain
Surprised thee, dim thine eyes, and dizzy swum
In darkness, while thy head flames thick and fast
Threw forth, till on the left side op'ning wide,
Likest to thee in shape and countenance bright,
Then shining heav'nly fair, a goddess armed,
Out of thy head I sprung :¹ amazement seized
All the host of heav'n ; back they recoiled afraid
At first, and called me 'Sin,' and for a sign 760
Portentous held me : but familiar grown,
I pleased, and with attractive graces won
The most averse ; thee chiefly, who full oft
Thyself in me thy perfect image viewing,
Becam'st enamoured ; and such joy thou took'st
With me in secret, that my womb conceived
A growing burthen. Meanwhile war arose,
And fields were fought in heaven ; wherein remained (For what could else?) to our Almighty Foe
Clear victory, to our part loss and rout 770
Through all the empyrean : down they fell,
Driv'n headlong from the pitch of heav'n, down
Into this deep, and in the general fall
I also ; at which time this powerful key
Into my hand was giv'n, with charge to keep These gates for ever shut, which none can pass
Without my opening. Pensive here I sat
Alone, but long I sat not, till my womb,
Pregnant by thee and now excessive grown,
Prodigious motion felt in rueful throes. 780
At last this odious offspring whom thou seest,
Thine own begotten, breaking violent way,
Tore through my entrails, that with fear and pain
Distorted, all my nether shape thus grew
Transformed : but he my inbred enemy

Paradise Lost

Forth issued, brandishing his fatal dart,
Made to destroy :¹ I fled, and cried out 'Death';
Hell trembled at the hideous name, and sighed
From all her caves, and back resounded 'Death.'
I fled; but he pursued, though more, it seems, 790
Inflamed with lust than rage, and, swifter far,
Me overtook his mother all dismayed,
And in embraces forcible and foul

Ingend'ring with me, of that rape begot
These yelling monsters that with ceaseless cry
Surround me, as thou saw'st, hourly conceived
And hourly born, with sorrow infinite
To me; for when they list into the womb
That bred them they return, and howl, and gnaw
My bowels, their repast; then bursting forth 800
Afresh with conscious terrors vex me round,
That rest or intermission none I find.

Before mine eyes in opposition sits
Grim Death, my son and foe, who sets them on,
And me his parent would full soon devour
For want of other prey, but that he knows
His end with mine involved; and knows that I Should prove a bitter morsel, and his bane,
Whenever that shall be; so Fate pronounced.
But thou, O father, I forewarn thee, shun 810
His deadly arrow; neither vainly hope
To be invulnerable in those bright arms,
Though tempered heavenly; for that mortal dint,
Save He who reigns above, none can resist."

She finished, and the subtle fiend his lore
Soon learned, now milder, and thus answered smooth :
"Dear daughter, since thou claim'st me for thy sire,
And my fair son here show'st me, the dear pledge
Of dalliance had with thee in heaven, and joys
Then sweet, now sad to mention, through dire change
Befall'n us, unforeseen, unthought of, know [820
I come no enemy, but to set free
From out this dark and dismal house of pain,
Both him and thee, and all the heav'nly host

Paradise Lost

Of spirits that, in our just pretences armed,
Fell with us from on high : from them I go
This uncouth errand sole, and one for all Myself expose, with lonely steps to tread
Th' unfounded deep, and through the void immense
To search with wandering quest a place foretold 830
Should be, and, by concurring signs, ere now
Created, vast and round, a place of bliss
In the purlieus of heaven, and therein placed
A race of upstart creatures, to supply
Perhaps our vacant room, though more removed,
Lest heav'n surcharged with potent multitude
Might hap to move new broils. Be this, or aught
Than this more secret, now designed, I haste
To know, and, this once known, shall soon return,
And bring ye to the place where thou and Death 840
Shall dwell at ease, and up and down unseen
Wing silently the buxom air, imbalanced
With odours ; there ye shall be fed and filled
Immeasurably, all things shall be your prey."

He ceased, for both seemed highly pleased, and Death

Grinned horrible a ghastly smile, to hear
His famine should be filled, and blest his maw
Destined to that good hour : no less rejoiced
His mother bad, and thus bespake her sire :

"The key of this infernal pit by due, 850
And by command of heav'n's all-powerful King,
I keep, by Him forbidden to unlock
These adamant gates ; against all force
Death ready stands to interpose his dart,
Fearless to be o'ermatched by living might.
But what owe I to His commands above,
Who hates me, and hath hither thrust me down
Into this gloom of Tartarus profound,
To sit in hateful office, here confined,
Inhabitant of heav'n and heav'nly-born, 860
Here, in perpetual agony and pain,
With terrors and with clamours compassed round
Of mine own brood, that on my bowels feed ?

Paradise Lost

Thou art my father, thou my author, thou
My being gav'st me ; whom should I obey
But thee ? whom follow ? thou wilt bring me soon
To that new world of light and bliss, among
The gods who live at ease, where I shall reign
At thy right hand voluptuous, as beseems
Thy daughter and thy darling, without end." 870

Thus saying, from her side the fatal key,
Sad instrument of all our woe, she took ;
And, towards the gate rolling her bestial train,
Forthwith the huge portcullis high up drew,
Which but herself not all the Stygian powers
Could once have moved ; then in the keyhole turns
Th' intricate wards, and every bolt and bar
Of massy iron or solid rock with ease
Unfastens : on a sudden open fly
With impetuous recoil and jarring sound 880
The infernal doors, and on their hinges grate
Harsh thunder, that the lowest bottom shook
Of Erebus. She opened, but to shut
Excelled her power ; the gates wide open stood,
That with extended wings a bannered host,
Under spread ensigns marching, might pass through
With horse and chariots ranked in loose array ;
So wide they stood, and like a furnace mouth
Cast forth redounding smoke and ruddy flame.
Before their eyes in sudden view appear 890
The secrets of the hoary deep, a dark
Illimitable ocean, without bound,
Without dimension, where length, breadth, and highth,
And time and place, are lost ; where eldest Night
And Chaos, ancestors of Nature,¹ hold
Eternal anarchy amidst the noise
Of endless wars, and by confusion stand :
For Hot, Cold, Moist, and Dry, four champions fierce,
Strive here for mast'ry, and to battle bring
Their embryon atoms ; they around the flag 900

Light-armed or heavy, sharp, smooth, swift, or slow,
Swarm populous, unnumbered as the sands
Of Barca or Cyrene's¹ torrid soil,
Levied to side with warring winds, and poise
Their lighter wings. To whom these most adhere,
He rules a moment : Chaos umpire sits,
And by decision more imbroils the fray
By which he reigns ; next him high arbiter
Chance governs all. Into this wild abyss, 910
The womb of Nature and perhaps her grave,
Of neither sea, nor shore, nor air, nor fire,
But all these in their pregnant causes mixed
Confusedly, and which thus must ever fight,
Unless the Almighty Maker them ordain
His dark materials to create more worlds.
Into this wild abyss the wary fiend
Stood on the brink of hell, and looked a while,
Pondering his voyage ; for no narrow frith
He had to cross. Nor was his ear less pealed 920
With noises loud and ruinous, to compare
Great things with small, than when Bellona storms,
With all her battering engines bent to rase
Some capital city ; or less than if this frame
Of heav'n were falling, and these elements
In mutiny had from her axle torn
The steadfast earth. At last his sail-broad vanes
He spreads for flight, and in the surging smoke
Uplifted spurns the ground ; thence many a league
As in a clouded chair ascending rides 930
Audacious ; but, that seat soon failing, meets
A vast vacuity : all unawares
Flutt'ring his pennons vain plumb-down he drops
Ten thousand fathom deep, and to this hour
Down had been falling, had not by ill chance
The strong rebuff of some tumultuous cloud
Instinct with fire and nitre hurried him
As many miles aloft : that fury stayed,
Quenched in a boggy Syrtis, neither sea,
Nor good dry land : nigh foundered on he fares, 940

Treading the crude consistence, half on foot,
Half flying; behoves him now both oar and sail.
As when a gryphon¹ through the wilderness

Had from his wakeful custody purloined
The guarded gold: so eagerly the fiend

rare,

With head, hands, wings, or feet, pursues his way,
And swims, or sinks, or wades, or creeps, or flies. 950
At length a universal hubbub wild
Of stunning sounds and voices all confused,
Borne through the hollow dark, assaults his ear
With loudest vehemence: thither he plies,
Undaunted, to meet there whatever power
Or spirit of the nethermost abyss
Might in that noise reside, of whom to ask

Paradise Lost

Wand'ring this darksome desert, as my way
Lies through your spacious empire up to light,
Alone, and without guide, half lost, I seek
What readiest path leads where your gloomy bounds
Confine with heav'n; or if some other place,
From your dominion won, th' ethereal King
Possesses lately, thither to arrive

I travel this profound; direct my course; 980

Directed, no mean recompense it brings

To your behoof, if I that region lost,

All usurpation thence expelled, reduce

To her original darkness and your sway,

Which is my present journey, and once more

Erect the standard there of ancient Night;

Yours be th' advantage all, mine the revenge."

Thus Satan; and him thus the Anarch old,

With falt'ring speech and visage incomposed,

Answered: "I know thee, stranger, who thou art, 990

That mighty leading angel, who of late

Made head against heav'n's King, though overthrown.

I saw and heard; for such a numerous host

Fled not in silence through the frightened deep,

With ruin upon ruin, rout on rout,

Confusion worse confounded; and heav'n gates

Poured out by millions her victorious bands

Pursuing. I upon my frontiers here

Keep residence; if all I can will serve,

That little which is left so to defend,

1000

Encroached on still through your intestine broils

Weak'ning the sceptre of old Night: first hell,

Your dungeon, stretching far and wide beneath;

Now lately heaven and earth, another world,

Hung o'er my realm, linked in a golden chain

To that side heav'n from whence your legions fell:

If that way be your walk, you have not far;

So much the nearer danger: go, and speed;

Havock, and spoil, and ruin are my gain."

He ceased; and Satan stayed not to reply,

Through Bosphorus betwixt the justling rocks ;
Or when Ulysses on the larboard shunned
Charybdis, and by th' other whirlpool steered. 1020
So he with difficulty and labour hard
Moved on, with difficulty and labour he ;
But he once past, soon after, when man fell,
Strange alteration ! Sin and Death amain
Following his track, such was the will of Heav'n,
Paved after him a broad and beaten way
Over the dark abyss, whose boiling gulf
Tamely endured a bridge of wond'rous length,
From hell continued, reaching th' utmost orb
Of this frail world ; by which the spirits perverse 1030
With easy intercourse pass to and fro
To tempt or punish mortals, except whom
God and good Angels guard by special grace.
But now at last the sacred influence
Of light appears, and from the walls of heav'n
Shoots far into the bosom of dim Night
A glimmering dawn : here Nature first begins
Her farthest verge, and Chaos to retire
As from her outmost works, a broken foe,
With tumult less and with less hostile din, 1040
That Satan with less toil, and now with ease
Wafts on the calmer wave by dubious light,
And like a weather-beaten vessel holds
Gladly the port, though shrouds and tackle torn ;
Or in the emptier waste, resembling air,
Weighs his spread wings, at leisure to behold
Far off th' empyreal heav'n, extended wide
In circuit, undetermined square or round,
With opal towers and battlements adorned

BOOK III.

THE ARGUMENT.

God sitting on His throne sees Satan flying towards this world, then newly created, shows him to the Son, who sat at His right hand; foretells the success of Satan in perverting mankind; clears His own justice and wisdom from all imputation, having created Man free, and able enough to have withstood his tempter; yet declares His purpose of grace towards him, in regard he fell not of his own malice, as did Satan, but by him seduced. The Son of God renders praises to His Father for the manifestation of His gracious purpose towards Man; but God again declares, that grace cannot be extended towards Man without the satisfaction of divine justice; Man hath offended the majesty of God by aspiring to Godhead, and therefore with all his progeny devoted to death must die, unless some one can be found sufficient to answer for his offence, and undergo his punishment. The Son of God freely offers Himself a ransom for Man; the Father accepts Him, ordains His incarnation, pronounces His exaltation above all names in heaven and earth; commands all the Angels to adore Him; they obey, and, hymning to their harps in full choir, celebrate the Father and the Son. Meanwhile Satan alights upon the bare convex of this world's outermost orb; where wandering he first finds a place, since called the Limbo of Vanity; what persons and things fly up thither; thence comes to the gate of heaven, described ascending by stairs, and the waters above the firmament that flow about it: his passage thence to the orb of the sun; he finds there Uriel the regent of that orb; but first changes himself into the shape of a meaner angel; and pretending a zealous desire to behold the new creation, and Man whom God had placed here, inquires of him the place of his habitation, and is directed; alights first on Mount Niphates.

HAIL, holy Light! offspring of heav'n first-born,
Or of the Eternal co-eternal beam,
May I express thee unblamed? since GOD is light,¹
And never but in unapproachèd light
Dwelt from eternity, dwelt then in thee,
Bright effluence of bright essence increate!
Or hear'st thou rather, pure ethereal stream,
Whose fountain who shall tell?² before the sun,
Before the heavens thou wert, and at the voice
Of GOD, as with a mantle, didst invest 10
The rising world of waters dark and deep,
Won from the void and formless infinite.
Thee I revisit now with bolder wing,
Escaped the Stygian pool, though long detained
In that obscure sojourn, while in my flight
Through utter and through middle darkness borne,
With other notes than to th' Orphean lyre,³
I sung of Chaos and eternal Night,

Taught by the heav'nly Muse to venture down
The dark descent, and up to reascend, 20
Though hard and rare : thee I revisit safe,
And feel thy sov'reign vital lamp ; but thou
Revisit'st not these eyes, that roll in vain
To find thy piercing ray, and find no dawn ;
So thick a drop serene ¹ hath quenched their orbs,
Or dim suffusion veiled. Yet not the more
Cease I to wander where the Muses haunt
Clear spring, or shady grove, or sunny hill,
Smit with the love of sacred song ; but chief
Thee Sion, and the flowery brooks beneath, 30
That wash thy hallowed feet, and warbling flow,
Nightly I visit ; nor sometimes forget

So were I equalled with them in renown !

And Tiresias ⁴ and Phineus, ⁵ prophets old.
Then feed on thoughts, that voluntary move
Harmonious numbers ; as the wakeful bird
Sings darkling, and in shadiest covert hid Tunes her nocturnal note. Thus with the year 40
Seasons return, but not to me returns
Day, or the sweet approach of even or morn,
Or sight of vernal bloom or summer's rose,
Or flocks, or herds, or human face divine ;
But cloud instead, and ever-during dark
Surrounds me, from the cheerful ways of men
Cut off, and for the book of knowledge fair
Presented with a universal blank
Of nature's works, to me expunged and rased,
And wisdom at one entrance quite shut out. 50
So much the rather thou, celestial Light,
Shine inward, and the mind through all her powers
Irradiate, there plant eyes, all mist from thence Purge and disperse, that I may see and tell
Of things invisible to mortal sight.

Paradise Lost

Now had the Almighty Father from above,
From the pure empyrean where He sits
High throned above all highth, bent down His eye,
His own works, and their works, at once to view.
About Him all the Sanctities of heaven 60
Stood thick as stars, and from His sight received
Beatitude past utterance ; on His right
The radiant image of His glory sat,
His only Son : on earth He first beheld
Our two first parents, yet the only two
Of mankind, in the happy garden placed,
Reaping immortal fruits of joy and love,
Uninterrupted joy, unrivalled love,
In blissful solitude : He then surveyed
Hell and the gulf between, and Satan there 70
Coasting the wall of heav'n on this side night
In the dun air sublime, and ready now
To stoop with wearied wings, and willing feet,
On the bare outside of this world, that seemed Firm land imbosomed without firmament,
Uncertain which, in ocean or in air.
Him God beholding from His prospect high,
Wherein past, present, future, He beholds,
Thus to His only Son foreseeing spake :
"Only begotten Son, seest thou what rage 80
Transports our adversary, whom no bounds
Prescribed, no bars of hell, nor all the chains
Heaped on him there, nor yet the main abyss
Wide interrupt, can hold ; so bent he seems
On desperate revenge, that shall redound
Upon his own rebellious head. And now,
Through all restraint broke loose, he wings his way
Not far off heav'n, in the precincts of light,
Directly towards the new-created world,
And Man there placed, with purpose to assay 90
If him by force he can destroy, or, worse,
By some false guile pervert ; and shall pervert :
For man will hearken to his glozing lies,
And easily transgress the sole command,
Sole pledge of his obedience : so will fall

Paradise Lost

He and his faithless progeny. Whose fault?
Whose but his own? Ingrate! he had of me
All he could have: I made him just and right,
Sufficient to have stood, though free to fall.
Such I created all th' ethereal Powers 100
And Spirits, both them who stood and them who failed:

Freely they stood who stood, and fell who fell.
Not free, what proof could they have given sincere
Of true allegiance, constant faith, or love,
Where only, what they needs must do, appeared,
Not what they would? what praise could they receive?
What pleasure I from such obedience paid,
When will and reason, reason also is choice,
Useless and vain, of freedom both despoiled,
Made passive both, had served necessity, 110

Not me? They therefore, as to right belonged,
So were created, nor can justly accuse
Their Maker, or their making, or their fate;
As if predestination over-ruled

Their will, disposed by absolute decree
Or high foreknowledge: they themselves decreed
Their own revolt, not I: if I foreknew,
Foreknowledge had no influence on their fault,
Which had no less proved certain unforeknown.
So without least impulse or shadow of fate, 120
Or aught by me immutably foreseen,

They trespass, authors to themselves in all,
Both what they judge and what they choose; for so
I formed them free, and free they must remain,
Till they enthrall themselves; I else must change
Their nature, and revoke the high decree,
Unchangeable, eternal, which ordained
Their freedom; they themselves ordained their fall.

The first sort by their own suggestion fell,
Self-tempted, self-depraved: Man falls deceived 130
By the other first: Man therefore shall find grace,
The other none: in mercy and justice both,
Through heav'n and earth, so shall my glory excel;
But mercy, first and last, shall brightest shine."

Paradise Lost

Thus while GOD spake, ambrosial fragrance filled
All heav'n, and in the blessed spirits elect
Sense of new joy ineffable diffused.
Beyond compare the Son of GOD was seen
Most glorious, in Him all His Father shone
Substantially expressed,¹ and in His face 140
Divine compassion visibly appeared,
Love without end, and without measure grace;
Which uttering, thus He to His Father spake:

“O Father, gracious was that word which closed
Thy sov'reign sentence, that man should find grace;
For which both heav'n and earth shall high extol
Thy praises with th' innumerable sound
Of hymns and sacred songs, wherewith thy throne
Encompassed shall resound thee ever blest.
For should Man finally be lost, should Man, 150
Thy creature late so loved, thy youngest son,
Fall circumvented thus by fraud, though joined
With his own folly? that be from thee far,
That far be from thee, Father, who art judge
Of all things made, and judgest only right.
Or shall the adversary thus obtain
His end, and frustrate thine? shall he fulfil
His malice, and thy goodness bring to naught,
Or proud return, though to his heavier doom,
Yet with revenge accomplished, and to hell 160
Draw after him the whole race of mankind,
By him corrupted? or wilt thou thyself
Abolish thy creation, and unmake,
For him, what for thy glory thou hast made?
So should thy goodness and thy greatness both
Be questioned and blasphemed without defence.”

To whom the great Creator thus replied:
“O Son, in whom my soul hath chief delight,
Son of my bosom, Son who art alone 170
My word, my wisdom, and effectual might,
All hast thou spoken as my thoughts are, all
As my eternal purpose hath decreed:
Man shall not quite be lost, but saved who will,

Paradise Lost

Yet not of will in him, but grace in me
Freely vouchsafed : once more I will renew
His lapsèd powers, though forfeit and enthralled
By sin to foul exorbitant desires :
Upheld by me, yet once more he shall stand
On even ground against his mortal foe,
By me upheld, that he may know how frail 180
His fall'n condition is, and to me owe
All his deliv'rance, and to none but me.
Some I have chosen of peculiar grace
Elect above the rest ; so is my will :
The rest shall hear me call, and oft be warned
Their sinful state, and to appease betimes
Th' incensèd Deity, while offered grace
Invites ; for I will clear their senses dark,
What may suffice, and soften stony hearts¹
To pray, repent, and bring obedience due. 190
To prayer, repentance, and obedience due
Though but endeavoured with sincere intent,
Mine ear shall not be slow, mine eye not shut.
And I will place within them as a guide
My umpire Conscience, whom if they will hear,
Light after light well used they shall attain,
And to the end persisting safe arrive.
This my long sufferance and my day of grace
They who neglect and scorn shall never taste ;
But hard be hardened, blind be blinded more, 200
That they may stumble on, and deeper fall ;
And none but such from mercy I exclude.
But yet all is not done : Man disobeying,
Disloyal breaks his fealty, and sins
Against the high supremacy of heav'n,
Affecting Godhead, and so losing all,
To expiate his treason hath naught left,
But to destruction sacred and devote,
He with his whole posterity must die ;
Die he or justice must ; unless for him 210
Some other able, or as willing, pay
The rigid satisfaction, death for death.

¹ Ezek. xxxvi. 26.

Paradise Lost

Say, heav'nly Powers, where shall we find such love?
Which of you will be mortal to redeem
Man's mortal crime, and just the unjust to save?¹
Dwells in all heaven charity so dear?"

He asked, but all the heav'nly choir stood mute,
And silence was in heav'n : on Man's behalf
Patron or intercessor none appeared,
Much less that durst upon his own head draw 220
The deadly forfeiture, and ransom set.
And now without redemption all mankind
Must have been lost, adjudged to death and hell
By doom severe, had not the Son of GOD,
In whom the fulness dwells of love divine,
His dearest mediation thus renewed :

"Father, thy word is passed ; man shall find grace ;
And shall grace not find means, that finds her way,
The speediest of thy winged messengers,
To visit all thy creatures, and to all 230
Comes unprevented, unimplored, unsought ?
Happy for Man, so coming ; he her aid
Can never seek, once dead in sins and lost ;
Atonement for himself or offering meet,
Indebted and undone, hath none to bring.
Behold me then, me for him, life for life,
I offer ; on me let thine anger fall ;
Account me Man ; I for his sake will leave
Thy bosom, and this glory next to thee
Freely put off, and for him lastly die 240
Well pleased ; on me let Death wreak all his rage ;
Under his gloomy power I shall not long
Lie vanquished ; thou hast given me to possess
Life in myself for ever, by thee I live,² Though now to Death I yield, and am his due
All that of me can die ; yet that debt paid,
Thou wilt not leave me in the loathsome grave
His prey, nor suffer my unspotted soul
For ever with corruption there to dwell :³
But I shall rise victorious, and subdue 250
My vanquisher, spoiled of his vaunted spoil ;

Paradise Lost

Death his death's wound shall then receive, and stoop
Inglorious, of his mortal sting disarmed.
I through the ample air in triumph high
Shall lead hell captive¹ maugre hell, and show
The powers of darkness bound. Thou, at the sight
Pleased, out of heaven shalt look down and smile,
While by thee raised I ruin all my foes,
Death last, and with his carcase glut the grave :²
Then with the multitude of my redeemed 260
Shall enter heaven long absent, and return,
Father, to see thy face, wherein no cloud
Of anger shall remain, but peace assured
And reconciliation : wrath shall be no more
Thenceforth, but in thy presence joy entire."

His words here ended, but his meek aspect
Silent yet spake, and breathed immortal love
To mortal men, above which only shone
Filial obedience : as a sacrifice
Glad to be offered, He attends the will 270
Of His great Father. Admiration seized
All heav'n, what this might mean and whither tend,
Wond'ring ; but soon th' Almighty thus replied :

"O thou in heav'n and earth the only peace
Found out for mankind under wrath, O thou
My sole complacence ! well thou know'st how dear
To me are all my works, nor man the least,
Though last created, that for him I spare
Thee from my bosom and right hand, to save,
By losing thee awhile, the whole race lost. 280
Thou, therefore, whom thou only canst redeem,
Their nature also to thy nature join ;
And be thyself man among men on earth,
Made flesh, when time shall be, of virgin seed
By wondrous birth : be thou in Adam's room
The head of all mankind, thou Adam's son.
As in him perish all men, so in thee,
As from a second root, shall be restored,³
As many as are restored, without thee none.

Paradise Lost

His crime makes guilty all his sons ; thy merit 290
Imputed shall absolve them who renounce
Their own both righteous and unrighteous deeds,
And live in thee transplanted, and from thee
Receive new life. So Man, as is most just,
Shall satisfy for Man, be judged and die ;
And dying rise, and rising with Him raise
His brethren, ransomed with His own dear life,
So heav'nly love shall outdo hellish hate,
Giving to death, and dying to redeem ;
So dearly to redeem what hellish hate 300
So easily destroyed, and still destroys
In those who, when they may, accept not grace.
Nor shalt thou, by descending to assume Man's nature, lessen or degrade thine own.
Because thou hast, though throned in highest bliss
Equal to God, and equally enjoying
God-like fruition, quitted all to save
A world from utter loss, and hast been found
By merit more than birthright Son of God,
Found worthiest to be so by being good, 310
Far more than great or high ; because in thee
Love hath abounded more than glory abounds ;
Therefore thy humiliation shall exalt
With thee thy manhood also to this throne ;
Here shalt thou sit incarnate, here shalt reign
Both God and Man, Son both of God and Man,
Anointed universal King ; all power
I give thee, reign for ever, and assume Thy merits ; under thee, as head supreme,
Thrones, Princedoms, Powers, Dominions, I reduce :
All knees to thee shall bow, of them that bide¹ [320
In heav'n, or earth, or under earth in hell.
When thou, attended gloriously from heav'n,
Shalt in the sky appear, and from thee send
The summoning archangels to proclaim
Thy dread tribunal : forthwith from all winds
The living, and forthwith the cited dead
Of all past ages, to the general doom

¹ Phil. ii. 10.

Paradise Lost

Shall hasten, such a peal shall rouse their sleep.
Then, all thy saints assembled, thou shalt judge 330
Bad men and angels; they arraigned shall sink
Beneath thy sentence; hell, her numbers full,
Thenceforth shall be for ever shut. Meanwhile
The world shall burn, and from her ashes spring
New heav'n and earth,¹ wherein the just shall dwell,
And after all their tribulations long
See golden days, fruitful of golden deeds,
With joy and love triumphing, and fair truth:
Then thou thy regal sceptre shalt lay by,²
For regal sceptre then no more shall need, 340
God shall be all in all.³ But all ye gods
Adore Him, who to compass all this dies,
Adore the Son, and honour Him as me."

No sooner had th' Almighty ceased, but all
The multitude of angels with a shout,
Loud as from numbers without number, sweet
As from blest voices, uttering joy, heav'n rung
With jubilee, and loud hosannas filled
The eternal regions. Lowly reverent
Towards either throne they bow, and to the ground
With solemn adoration down they cast⁴ [350
Their crowns inwove with amarant and gold,
Immortal amarant,⁵ a flow'r which once
In Paradise fast by the Tree of Life
Began to bloom, but soon for man's offence
To heav'n removed, where first it grew, there grows,
And flow'rs aloft shading the fount of life,
And where the river of bliss through midst of heav'n
Rolls o'er Elysian flowers her amber stream;
With these that never fade the spirits elect 360
Bind their resplendent locks inwreathed with beams;
Now in loose garlands thick thrown off; the bright
Pavement, that like a sea of jasper shone,
Impurpled with celestial roses smiled.

Paradise Lost

Then, crowned again, their golden harps they took;
Harps ever tuned, that glittering by their side
Like quivers hung, and with preamble sweet
Of charming symphony they introduce
Their sacred song, and waken raptures high ;
No voice exempt, no voice but well could join 370
Melodious part, such concord is in heav'n.

Thee, Father, first they sung, Omnipotent,
Immutable, Immortal, Infinite,
Eternal King ; thee, Author of all being,
Fountain of light, thyself invisible
Amidst the glorious brightness where Thou sitt'st
Throned inaccessible, but when thou shadest
The full blaze of thy beams, and through a cloud
Drawn round about thee like a radiant shrine,
Dark with excessive bright thy skirts appear ; 380
Yet dazzle heav'n, that brightest Seraphim
Approach not, but with both wings veil their eyes.
Thee next they sang of all creation first,
Begotten Son, Divine Similitude,
In whose conspicuous countenance, without cloud
Made visible, the Almighty Father shines,
Whom else no creature can behold : on thee
Impressed th' effulgence of His glory abides ;
Transfused on thee His ample Spirit rests.
He heav'n of heavens and all the powers therein 390
By thee created, and by thee threw down
Th' aspiring Dominations. Thou that day
Thy Father's dreadful thunder didst not spare,
Nor stop thy flaming chariot wheels, that shook
Heav'n's everlasting frame, while o'er the necks
Thou drov'st of warring angels disarrayed.
Back from pursuit thy powers with loud acclaim
Thee only extolled, Son of thy Father's might,
To execute fierce vengeance on His foes.
Not so on Man ; him, thro' their malice fall'n, 400 Father of mercy and grace, thou didst not doom
So strictly ; but much more to pity incline.
No sooner did thy dear and only Son
Perceive thee purposed not to doom frail man

Paradise Lost

So strictly, but much more to pity inclined,
He to appease thy wrath, and end the strife
Of mercy and justice in thy face discerned,
Regardless of the bliss wherein He sat
Second to thee, offered Himself to die
For man's offence. O unexampled love, 410
Love nowhere to be found less than Divine!
Hail, Son of GOD, Saviour of men, thy name
Shall be the copious matter of my song
Henceforth, and never shall my harp thy praise
Forget, nor from thy Father's praise disjoin.

Thus they in heav'n, above the starry sphere,
Their happy hours in joy and hymning spent.
Meanwhile, upon the firm opacous globe
Of this round world, whose first convex divides
The luminous inferior orbs, inclosed 420
From Chaos and th' inroad of Darkness old,
Satan alighted walks : a globe far off
It seemed, now seems a boundless continent,
Dark, waste, and wild, under the frown of night
Starless exposed, and ever-threat'ning storms
Of Chaos blust'ring round, inclement sky ;
Save on that side which from the wall of heav'n,
Though distant far, some small reflection gains
Of glimmering air, less vexed with tempest loud :
Here walked the fiend at large in spacious field. 430
As when a vulture on Imaüs¹ bred,
Whose snowy ridge the roving Tartar bounds,
Dislodging from a region scarce of prey,
To gorge the flesh of lambs or yeanling kids
On hills where flocks are fed, flies toward the springs
Of Ganges or Hydaspes, Indian streams ;
But in his way lights on the barren plains
Of Sericana,² where Chinese drive
With sails and wind their cany waggons light :
So on this windy sea of land the fiend 440
Walked up and down alone, bent on his prey ;

¹ A mountain in Asia. Its name signifies snowy. It is the eastern boundary of Western Tartary.

Paradise Lost

Alone, for other creature in this place¹
Living or lifeless to be found was none,
None yet, but store hereafter from the earth
Up hither like aërial vapours flew
Of all things transitory and vain, when sin
With vanity had filled the works of men :
Both all things vain, and all who in vain things
Built their fond hopes of glory or lasting fame,
Or happiness in this or th' other life ; 450
All who have their reward on earth, the fruits
Of painful superstition and blind zeal,
Naught seeking but the praise of men, here find
Fit retribution, empty as their deeds :
All the unaccomplished works of nature's hand,
Abortive, monstrous, or unkindly mixed,
Dissolved on earth, fleet hither, and in vain,
Till final dissolution, wander here,
Not in the neighb'ring moon, as some have dreamed ;²
Those argent fields more likely habitants, 460
Translated saints, or middle spirits hold
Betwixt th' angelical and human kind.
Hither of ill-joined sons and daughters born³
First from the ancient world those giants came,
With many a vain exploit, though then renowned .
The builders next of Babel on the plain
Of Sennaar, and still with vain design
New Babels, had they wherewithal, would build.
Others came single : he who to be deemed
A god leaped fondly into Etna flames, 470
Empedocles,⁴ and he who to enjoy
Plato's Elysium leaped into the sea,
Cleombrotus,⁵ and many more too long,
Embryoes and idiots, eremites and friars,
White, black, and grey,⁶ with all their trumpery.

Paradise Lost

Here pilgrims roam, that strayed so far to seek
In Golgotha Him dead, who lives in heav'n ;
And they who, to be sure of paradise,
Dying put on the weeds of Dominic,
Or in Franciscan think to pass disguised ;¹ 480
They pass the planets seven, and pass the fixed,
And that crystalline sphere whose balance weighs
The trepidation talked,² and that first moved :
And now Saint Peter at heav'n's wicket seems
To wait them with his keys, and now at foot
Of heav'n's ascent they lift their feet, when, lo !
A violent cross wind from either coast
Blows them transverse ten thousand leagues awry
Into the devious air : then might ye see 490
Cowls, hoods, and habits with their wearers tost
And fluttered into rags ; then reliques, beads,
Indulgences, dispenses, pardons, bulls,
The sport of winds : all these upwhirled aloft
Fly o'er the back side of the world far off,
Into a Limbo large and broad, since called
The Paradise of Fools, to few unknown
Long after, now unpeopled, and untrod.
All this dark globe the fiend found as he passed,
And long he wandered, till at last a gleam
Of dawning light turned thitherward in haste 500
His travelled steps ; far distant he descries,
Ascending by degrees magnificent
Up to the wall of heav'n, a structure high,
At top whereof, but far more rich, appeared
The work as of a kingly palace gate,
With frontispiece of diamond and gold
Embellished ; thick with sparkling orient gem
The portal shone, inimitable on earth
By model or by shading pencil drawn.
The stairs were such as whereon Jacob saw³ 510
Angels ascending and descending, bands

³ Gen. xxviii. 12, 13.

Paradise Lost

Of guardians bright, when he from Esau fled
To Padan-Aram in the field of Luz,
Dreaming by night under the open sky,
And waking cried, This is the gate of heav'n.
Each stair mysteriously was meant, nor stood
There always, but drawn up to heav'n sometimes
Viewless, and underneath a bright sea flowed
Of jasper, or of liquid pearl, whereon
Who after came from earth sailing arrived, 520
Wafted by angels, or flew o'er the lake,
Wrapt in a chariot drawn by fiery steeds.
The stairs were then let down, whether to dare
The fiend by easy ascent, or aggravate
His sad exclusion from the doors of bliss :
Direct against which opened from beneath,
Just o'er the blissful seat of paradise,
A passage down to the earth, a passage wide,
Wider by far than that of after-times
Over mount Sion, and, though that were large, 530
Over the Promised Land to GOD so dear,
By which, to visit oft those happy tribes,
On high behest His angels to and fro
Passed frequent, and His eye with choice regard,
From Paneas, the fount of Jordan's flood,
To Beërsaba, where the Holy Land
Borders on Egypt and the Arabian shore :
So wide the op'ning seemed, where bounds were set
To darkness, such as bound the ocean wave.
Satan from hence now on the lower stair, 540
That scaled by steps of gold to heaven gate,
Looks down with wonder at the sudden view
Of all this world at once. As when a scout,
Through dark and desert ways with peril gone
All night, at last by break of cheerful dawn
Obtains the brow of some high-climbing hill,
Which to his eye discovers unaware
The goodly prospect of some foreign land
First-seen, or some renowned metropolis,
With glistening spires and pinnacles adorned, 550
Which now the rising sun gilds with his beams ;

Paradise Lost

Such wonder seized, though after heaven seen,
The Spirit malign ; but much more envy seized
At sight of all this world beheld so fair,
Round he surveys, and well might, where he stood
So high above the circling canopy
Of night's extended shade, from eastern point
Of Libra to the fleecy star¹ that bears
Andromeda far off Atlantic seas
Beyond th' horizon : then from pole to pole 560
He views in breadth, and without longer pause
Down right into the world's first regions throws
His flight precipitant, and winds with ease
Through the pure marble air his oblique way
Amongst innumerable stars, that shone
Stars distant, but nigh hand seemed other worlds ;
Or other worlds they seemed, or happy isles,
Like those Hesperian gardens² famed of old,
Fortunate fields, and groves, and flow'ry vales,
Thrice happy isles ; but who dwelt happy there 570
He stayed not to enquire. Above them all
The golden sun, in splendour likest heaven,
Allured his eye : thither his course he bends
Through the calm firmament ; but up or down,
By centre or eccentric, hard to tell,
Or longitude, where the great luminary,
Aloof the vulgar constellations thick,
That from his lordly eye keep distance due,
Dispenses light from far ; they as they move
Their starry dance in numbers that compute 580
Days, months, and years, towards his all-cheering lamp
Turn swift their various motions, or are turned
By his magnetic beam, that gently warms
The universe, and to each inward part
With gentle penetration, though unseen,
Shoots invisible virtue even to the deep ;
So wondrously was set his station bright.

Paradise Lost

There lands the fiend, a spot like which perhaps Astronomer in the sun's lucent orb
Through his glazed optic tube yet never saw. 590
The place he found beyond expression bright,
Compared with aught on earth, metal or stones ;
Not all parts like, but all alike informed
With radiant light, as glowing iron with fire ;
If metal, part seemed gold, part silver clear ;
If stone, carbuncle most or chrysolite,
Ruby or topaz, to the twelve that shone
In Aaron's breast-plate,¹ and a stone² besides
Imagined rather oft than elsewhere seen,
That stone, or like to that which here below 600
Philosophers in vain so long have sought,
In vain, though by their powerful art they bind
Volatile Hermes,³ and call up unbound
In various shapes old Proteus from the sea,
Drained through a limbeck to his native form.
What wonder then if fields and regions here
Breathe forth elixir pure, and rivers run
Potable gold, when with one virtuous touch
Th' arch-chemic sun so far from us remote
Produces, with terrestrial humour mixed, 610
Here in the dark so many precious things
Of colour glorious and effect so rare ?
Here matter new to gaze the devil met
Undazzled, far and wide his eye commands,
For sight no obstacle found here, nor shade,
But all sun-shine ; as when his beams at noon
Culminate from th' Equator, as they now
Shot upward still direct, whence no way round
Shadow from body opaque can fall ; and the air,
Nowhere so clear, sharpened his visual ray 620
To objects distant far, whereby he soon
Saw within ken a glorious angel stand,

Paradise Lost

The same whom John saw also in the sun :¹
His back was turned, but not his brightness hid ;
Of beaming sunny rays, a golden tiar
Circled his head, nor less his locks behind
Illustrious on his shoulders fledged with wings
Lay waving round ; on some great charge employed
He seemed, or fixed in cogitation deep.
Glad was the spirit impure, as now in hope 630
To find who might direct his wand'ring flight
To paradise, the happy seat of man,
His journey's end, and our beginning woe.
But first he casts to change his proper shape,
Which else might work him danger or delay :
And now a stripling Cherub he appears,
Not of the prime, yet such as in his face
Youth smiled celestial, and to every limb
Suitable grace diffused, so well he feigned ;
Under a coronet his flowing hair 640
In curls on either cheek played ; wings he wore
Of many a coloured plume sprinkled with gold ;
His habit fit for speed succinct, and held
Before his decent steps a silver wand.
He drew not nigh unheard ; the angel bright,
E'er he drew nigh, his radiant visage turned,
Admonished by his ear, and straight was known
The archangel Uriel,² one of the sev'n
Who in GOD's presence nearest to His throne
Stand ready at command, and are His eyes 650
That run through all the heav'ns, or down to the earth
Bear His swift errands, over moist and dry,
O'er sea and land : him Satan thus accosts :
" Uriel, for thou of those sev'n spirits that stand
In sight of GOD's high throne, gloriously bright,
The first art wont His great authentic will Interpreter through highest heav'n to bring,
Where all His sons thy embassy attend ;

¹ Rev. xix. 17.

Paradise Lost

And here art likeliest by supreme decree
Like honour to obtain, and as His eye 660
To visit oft this new creation round ;
Unspeakable desire to see, and know
All these His wondrous works, but chiefly Man,
His chief delight and favour, him for whom
All these His works so wondrous He ordained,
Hath brought me from the choirs of Cherubim
Alone thus wand'ring. Brightest Seraph, tell
In which of all these shining orbs hath Man
His fixèd seat, or fixèd seat hath none,
But all these shining orbs his choice to dwell ; 670
That I may find him, and, with secret gaze
Or open admiration, him behold,
On whom the great Creator hath bestowed
Worlds, and on whom hath all these graces poured ;
That both in him and all things, as is meet,
The universal Maker we may praise ;
Who justly hath driven out His rebel foes
To deepest hell, and to repair that loss
Created this new happy race of men
To serve Him better : wise are all His ways." 680
So spake the false dissembler unperceived ;
For neither Man nor Angel can discern
Hypocrisy, the only evil that walks
Invisible, except to GOD alone,
By His permissive will, through heav'n and earth :
And oft, though wisdom wake, suspicion sleeps
At wisdom's gate, and to simplicity
Resigns her charge, while goodness thinks no ill
Where no ill seems ; which now for once beguiled
Uriel, though regent of the sun, and held 690
The sharpest-sighted spirit of all in heav'n :
Who to the fraudulent impostor foul
In his uprightness answer thus returned :
"Fair angel, thy desire which tends to know
The works of GOD, thereby to glorify
The great Work-master, leads to no excess
That reaches blame, but rather merits praise
The more it seems excess, that led thee hither

Paradise Lost

From thy empyreal mansion thus alone,
To witness with thine eyes what some perhaps, 700
Contented with report, hear only in heaven :
For wonderful indeed are all His works,
Pleasant to know, and worthiest to be all
Had in remembrance always with delight :
But what created mind can comprehend
Their number, or the wisdom infinite
That brought them forth, but hid their causes deep ?
I saw, when at His Word the formless mass,
This world's material mould, came to a heap :
Confusion heard His voice, and wild uproar 710
Stood ruled ; stood vast infinitude confined ;
Till at His second bidding darkness fled,
Light shone, and order from disorder sprung.
Swift to their several quarters hasted then
The cumbrous elements, earth, flood, air, fire,
And this ethereal quintessence of heav'n
Flew upward, spirited with various forms,
That rolled orbicular, and turned to stars
Numberless, as thou seest, and how they move ;
Each had his place appointed, each his course, 720
The rest in circuit walls this universe.
Look downward on that globe, whose hither side,
With light from hence, though but reflected, shines ;
That place is Earth, the seat of Man ; that light
His day, which else as the other hemisphere
Night would invade, but there the neighbouring moon,
So call that opposite fair star, her aid
Timely interposes, and her monthly round
Still ending, still renewing, through mid heav'n,
With borrowed light her countenance triform 730
Hence fills and empties to enlighten the earth,
And in her pale dominion checks the night.
That spot to which I point is Paradise,
Adam's abode, those lofty shades his bow'r :
Thy way thou canst not miss, me mine requires."
Thus said, he turned ; and Satan, bowing low,
As to superior spirits is wont in heaven,
Where honour due and reverence none neglects,

Paradise Lost

BOOK IV.

THE ARGUMENT.

Satan, now in prospect of Eden, and nigh the place where he must now attempt the bold enterprise which he undertook alone against God and Man, falls into many doubts with himself, and many passions, fear, envy, and despair; but at length confirms himself in evil, journeys on to Paradise, whose outward prospect and situation is described, overleaps the bounds, sits in the shape of a cormorant on the Tree of Life, as the highest in the garden, to look about him. The garden described; Satan's first sight of Adam and Eve; his wonder at their excellent form and happy state, but with resolution to work their fall; overhears their discourse, thence gathers that the Tree of Knowledge was forbidden them to eat of, under penalty of death; and thereon intends to found his temptation, by seducing them to transgress: then leaves them awhile to know further of their state by some other means. Meanwhile Uriel descending on a sunbeam warns Gabriel, who had in charge the gate of Paradise, that some evil spirit had escaped the deep, and passed at noon by his sphere in the shape of a good angel down to Paradise, discovered afterwards by his furious gestures in the mount. Gabriel promises to find him ere morning. Night coming on, Adam and Eve discourse of going to their rest: their bower described; their evening worship. Gabriel, drawing forth his bands of nightwatch to walk the round of Paradise, appoints two strong angels to Adam's bower, lest the evil spirit should be there doing some harm to Adam or Eve sleeping; there they find him at the ear of Eve, tempting her in a dream, and bring him, though unwilling, to Gabriel; by whom questioned, he scornfully answers, prepares resistance; but, hindered by a sign from heaven, flies out of Paradise.

O FOR that warning voice, which he,¹ who saw I
The Apocalypse, heard cry in heaven aloud,
Then when the Dragon,² put to second rout,
Came furious down to be revenged on men,
“Woe to the inhabitants on earth!” that now,
While time was, our first parents had been warned
The coming of their secret foe, and ’scaped,
Haply so ’scaped his mortal snare; for now
Satan, now first inflamed with rage, came down,
The tempter ere th’ accuser of mankind, IO
To wreak on innocent frail man his loss
Of that first battle, and his flight to hell:
Yet not rejoicing in his speed, though bold,
Far off and fearless, nor with cause to boast,
Begins his dire attempt, which nigh the birth
Now rolling boils in his tumultuous breast,
And like a devilish engine back recoils

² Devil.

Paradise Lost

Upon himself; horror and doubt distract
His troubled thoughts, and from the bottom stir
The hell within him, for within him hell 20
He brings, and round about him, nor from hell
One step, no more than from himself, can fly
By change of place : now conscience wakes despair
That slumbered, wakes the bitter memory
Of what he was, what is, and what must be Worse ; of worse deeds worse sufferings must ensue.
Sometimes towards Eden, which now in his view
Lay pleasant, his grieved look he fixes sad ;
Sometimes towards heav'n and the full-blazing sun,
Which now sat high in his meridian tow'r : 30
Then, much revolving, thus in sighs began :
“ O thou that, with surpassing glory crowned,¹ Look'st from thy sole dominion like the god
Of this new world, at whose sight all the stars
Hide their diminished heads, to thee I call,
But with no friendly voice, and add thy name,
O Sun, to tell thee how I hate thy beams,
That bring to my remembrance from what state
I fell, how glorious once above thy sphere ;
Till pride and worse ambition threw me down, 40
Warring in heav'n against heav'n's matchless King.
Ah, wherefore ! He deserved no such return
From me, whom He created what I was
In that bright eminence, and with His good
Upbraided none ; nor was His service hard.
What could be less than to afford Him praise,
The easiest recompense, and pay Him thanks,
How due ! yet all His good proved ill in me,
And wrought but malice ; lifted up so high,
I sdeined² subjection, and thought one step higher 50
Would set me highest, and in a moment quit
The debt immense of endless gratitude,
So burthensome, still paying, still to owe ;
Forgetful what from Him I still received,

¹ Milton originally designed to write a tragedy on the Fall, and this grand speech was intended to begin it. This is asserted by Porson on the authority of Milton's nephew, Edward Philips.

² Disdained.

Paradise Lost

And understood not that a grateful mind
By owing owes not, but still pays, at once
Indebted and discharged ; what burden then ?
O had His powerful destiny ordained
Me some inferior angel, I had stood
Then happy ; no unbounded hope had raised 60
Ambition ! Yet why not ? some other power
As great might have aspired, and me, though mean,
Drawn to his part ; but other powers as great Fell not, but stand unshaken, from within
Or from without, to all temptations armed.
Hadst thou the same free will and power to stand ?
Thou hadst : whom hast thou then or what to accuse
But heav'n's free love dealt equally to all ?
Be then His love accursed, since love or hate,
To me alike, it deals eternal woe : 70
Nay, cursed be thou ; since against His thy will Chose freely what it now so justly rues.
Me miserable ! which way shall I fly
Infinite wrath, and infinite despair ?
Which way I fly is hell ; myself am hell ;
And in the lowest deep a lower deep
Still threat'ning to devour me opens wide ;
To which the hell I suffer seems a heav'n.
O then at last relent : is there no place 80
Left for repentance, none for pardon left ?
None left but by submission ; and that word
Disdain forbids me, and my dread of shame
Among the spirits beneath, whom I seduced
With other promises and other vaunts
Than to submit, boasting I could subdue
Th' Omnipotent. Ay me ! they little know
How dearly I abide that boast so vain,
Under what torments inwardly I groan ;
While they adore me on the throne of hell,
With diadem and sceptre high advanced, 90
The lower still I fall, only supreme
In misery ; such joy ambition finds.
But say I could repent, and could obtain
By act of grace my former state ; how soon

Paradise Lost

Would highth recall high thoughts, how soon unsay
What feigned submission swore : ease would recant
Vows made in pain, as violent and void.
For never can true reconcilment grow
Where wounds of deadly hate have pierced so deep ;
Which would but lead me to a worse relapse 100
And heavier fall : so should I purchase dear
Short intermission bought with double smart.
This knows my Punisher ; therefore as far
From granting He, as I from begging peace :
All hope excluded thus, behold instead
Of us out-cast, exiled, his new delight,
Mankind created, and for him this world.
So farewell hope, and with hope farewell fear,
Farewell remorse : all good to me is lost ;
Evil, be thou my good ; by thee at least 110
Divided empire with heav'n's King I hold,
By thee, and more than half perhaps will reign ;
As Man ere long and this new world shall know."

Thus while he spake, each passion dimmed his face
Thrice changed with pale ire, envy, and despair,
Which marred his borrowed visage, and betrayed
Him counterfeit, if any eye beheld :
For heav'nly minds from such distempers foul
Are ever clear. Whereof he soon aware,
Each perturbation smoothed with outward calm, 120
Artificer of fraud ; and was the first
That practised falsehood under saintly show,
Deep malice to conceal, couched with revenge :
Yet not enough had practised to deceive
Uriel once warned ; whose eye pursued him down
The way he went, and on th' Assyrian mount
Saw him disfigured, more than could befall
Spirit of happy sort : his gestures fierce
He marked, and mad demeanour, then alone,
As he supposed, all unobserved, unseen. 130

So on he fares, and to the border comes
Of Eden, where delicious Paradise,
Now nearer, crowns with her enclosure green,
As with a rural mound, the champaign head

Paradise Lost

Of a steep wilderness, whose hairy sides
With thicket overgrown, grotesque and wild,
Access denied ; and over head up grew
Insuperable highth of loftiest shade,
Cedar, and pine, and fir, and branching palm,
A sylvan scene, and, as the ranks ascend 140
Shade above shade, a woody theatre
Of stateliest view. Yet higher than their tops
The verdurous wall of Paradise up sprung ;
Which to our general sire gave prospect large
Into his nether empire neighbouring round :
And higher than that wall a circling row
Of goodliest trees loaden with fairest fruit,
Blossoms and fruits at once of golden hue
Appeared, with gay enamelled colours mixed :
On which the sun more glad impressed his beams, 150
Than in fair evening cloud, or humid bow,
When God hath show'ed the earth ; so lovely seemed That landscape : and of pure now purer air
Meets his approach, and to the heart inspires
Vernal delight and joy, able to drive
All sadness but despair : now gentle gales,
Fanning their odoriferous wings, dispense
Native perfumes, and whisper whence they stole
Those balmy spoils. As when to them who sail
Beyond the Cape of Hope, and now are past 160
Mozambic, off at sea north-east winds blow
Sabeian odours from the spicy shore¹
Of Araby the Blest, with such delay

¹ The perfumes from the shores of India and its islands can be perceived far out at sea, when the wind blows off the land—

“The spicy breezes Blow soft from Ceylon's isle,” says Bishop Heber in his fine Missionary Hymn ; and every one who has lived in the East will remember how oppressive on shore the scent-laden air, heavy with perfume, is. How constantly it recalls to one's mind Byron's exquisite lines in the “Bride of Abydos”—

“The light wings of Zephyr, oppressed with perfume, Wax faint o'er the gardens of Gul in her bloom :”

but coming on the briny sea breezes this fragrance is delightful to the mariner. It is in spring, when the wind blows off the shore, that the air thus becomes the harbinger of a near haven.

Milton is said to have taken his description from Diodorus Siculus, B. III. 40.

Paradise Lost

Well pleased they slack their course, and many a league
Cheered with the grateful smell old Ocean smiles :
So entertained those odorous sweets the fiend
Who came their bane, though with them better pleased
Than Asmodeus¹ with the fishy fume,
That drove him, though enamoured, from the spouse
Of Tobit's son, and with a vengeance sent 170
From Media post to Egypt, there fast bound.

Now to th' ascent of that steep savage hill
Satan had journeyed on, pensive and slow ;
But further way found none, so thick entwined,
As one continued brake, the undergrowth
Of shrubs and tangling bushes had perplexed
All path of man or beast that past that way.
One gate there only was, and that looked east
On the other side : which when th' arch-felon saw,
Due entrance he disdained, and in contempt 180
At one slight bound high overleaped all bound
Of hill or highest wall, and sheer within Lights on his feet. As when a prowling wolf,
Whom hunger drives to seek new haunt for prey,
Watching where shepherds pen their flocks at eve
In hurdled cotes amid the field secure,
Leaps o'er the fence with ease into the fold :
Or as a thief bent to unhoard the cash
Of some rich burgher, whose substantial doors,
Cross-barred and bolted fast, fear no assault, 190
In at the window climbs, or o'er the tiles :
So clomb this first grand thief into God's fold ;
So since into His church lewd hirelings climb.
Thence up he flew, and on the Tree of Life,
The middle tree and highest² there that grew,
Sat like a cormorant ; yet not true life
Thereby regained, but sat devising death
To them who lived ; nor on the virtue thought
Of that life-giving plant, but only used

¹ An evil spirit, who, loving Sarah, the daughter of Raguel, would not suffer any of the young men who espoused her to live. He was exorcised by the fumes arising from the heart and liver of a fish, which Tobit, by the instruction of an angel, burnt on the evening of his wedding. See Apocrypha, Tobit, viii.

Paradise Lost

For prospect, what well used had been the pledge 200
Of immortality. So little knows
Any, but GOD alone, to value right
The good before him, but perverts best things
To worst abuse, or to their meanest use.
Beneath him with new wonder now he views,
To all delight of human sense exposed,
In narrow room Nature's whole wealth, yea more,
A heav'n on earth : for blissful Paradise
Of GOD the garden was, by Him in the east
Of Eden planted ; Eden stretched her line 210
From Auran¹ eastwards to the royal tow'rs
Of great Seleucia, built by Grecian kings,
Or where the sons of Eden long before
Dwelt in Telassar.² In this pleasant soil
His far more pleasant garden God ordained ;
Out of the fertile ground He caused to grow
All trees of noblest kind for sight, smell, taste ;
And all amid them stood the Tree of Life,
High eminent, blooming ambrosial fruit
Of vegetable gold ; and next to Life 220
Our death, the Tree of Knowledge, grew fast by,
Knowledge of good bought dear by knowing ill.
Southward through Eden went a river large,
Nor changed his course, but through the shaggy hill
Passed underneath ingulfed ; for God had thrown
That mountain as His garden mould, high raised
Upon the rapid current, which, through veins
Of porous earth with kindly thirst up drawn,
Rose a fresh fountain, and with many a rill
Watered the garden ; thence united fell 230
Down the steep glade, and met the nether flood,
Which from his darksome passage now appears ;
And now divided into four main streams,
Runs diverse, wand'ring many a famous realm
And country, whereof here needs no account ;
But rather to tell how, if art could tell,

Paradise Lost

How from that sapphire fount the crispèd brooks,
Rolling on orient pearl and sands of gold,
With mazy error under pendent shades
Ran nectar, visiting each plant, and fed 240
Flow'rs worthy of Paradise, which not nice art
In beds and curious knots, but nature boon
Poured forth profuse on hill, and dale, and plain,
Both where the morning sun first warmly smote
The open field, and where the unpierced shade
Imbrowned the noontide bow'rs. Thus was this place
A happy rural seat of various view :
Groves whose rich trees wept odorous gums and balm,
Others whose fruit, burnished with golden rind,
Hung amiable, Hesperian fables true, 250
If true, here only, and of delicious taste.
Betwixt them lawns, or level downs, and flocks
Grazing the tender herb, were interposed,
Or palmy hillock, or the flow'ry lap
Of some irriguous valley spread her store,
Flow'rs of all hue, and without thorn the rose :
Another side, umbrageous grotts and caves
Of cool recess, o'er which the mantling vine
Lays forth her purple grape, and gently creeps
Luxuriant : meanwhile murmuring waters fall 260
Down the slope hills, dispersed, or in a lake,
That to the fringed bank with myrtle crowned
Her crystal mirror holds, unite their streams.
The birds their choir apply ; airs, vernal airs,
Breathing the smell of field and grove, attune
The trembling leaves, while universal Pan,¹
Knit with the Graces and the Hours in dance,
Led on th' eternal Spring. Not that fair field
Of Enna, where Proserpine gathering flow'rs,

All the loveliest dreams of mythology, and the places remarkable for natural beauty—the plains of Enna, in Sicily ; the laurel-grove of Daphne, by the river Orontes ; the Castalian Spring, haunted by the Muses ; the Greek Isle, where Bacchus was nursed ; the Happy Valley, where the Princes of Abyssinia were nursed—are here named to exalt the wondrous beauty of the earthly Paradise by comparison.

To seek her through the world ; nor that sweet grove
Of Daphne by Orontes, and the inspired
Castalian spring, might with this paradise
Of Eden strive ; nor that Nyseian isle

Young Bacchus from his stepdame Rhea's eye ;
Nor where Abassin kings their issue guard, 280

By Nilus' head, enclosed with shining rock,
A whole day's journey high, but wide remote
From this Assyrian garden, where the fiend
Saw undelighted all delight, all kind
Of living creatures, new to sight and strange.

Two of far nobler shape, erect and tall,
Godlike erect, with native honour clad
In naked majesty, seemed lords of all, 290
And worthy seemed : for in their looks divine
The image of their glorious Maker shone,
Truth, wisdom, sanctitude severe and pure,
Severe, but in true filial freedom placed,
Whence true authority in men ; though both

For softness she and sweet attractive grace ;
He for God only, she for God in him.²

Dishevelled, but in wanton ringlets waved,
As the vine curls her tendrils, which implied

Paradise Lost

Subjection, but required with gentle sway,
And by her yielded, by him best received,
Yielded with coy submission, modest pride, 310
And sweet, reluctant, amorous delay.

Nor those mysterious parts were then concealed ;
Then was not guilty shame, dishonest shame
Of nature's works, honour dishonourable,
Sin-bred, how have ye troubled all mankind
With shows instead, mere shows of seeming pure,
And banished from man's life his happiest life,
Simplicity and spotless innocence !
So passed they naked on, nor shunned the sight
Of God or Angel, for they thought no ill : 320
So hand in hand they passed, the loveliest pair
That ever since in love's embraces met :
Adam the goodliest man of men since born
His sons, the fairest of her daughters Eve.

Under a tuft of shade, that on a green
Stood whisp'ring soft, by a fresh fountain side
They sat them down ; and after no more toil
Of their sweet gard'ning labour than sufficed
To recommend cool Zephyr, and made ease 330
More easy, wholesome thirst and appetite
More grateful, to their supper fruits they fell,
Nectarine fruits, which the compliant boughs
Yielded them, side-long as they sat recline
On the soft downy bank damasked with flow'rs :
The savoury pulp they chew, and in the rind,
Still as they thirsted, scoop the brimming stream ;
Nor gentle purpose nor endearing smiles
Wanted, nor youthful dalliance, as seems
Fair couple linked in happy nuptial league,
Alone as they. About them frisking played 340
All beasts of the earth, since wild, and of all chase
In wood or wilderness, forest or den ;
Sporting the lion ramped, and in his paw
Dandled the kid ; bears, tigers, ounces, pards,
Gambolled before them ; th' unwieldy elephant
To make them mirth used all his might, and wreathed
His lithe proboscis ; close the serpent sly

Paradise Lost

Insinuating wove with Gordian twine
His braided train, and of his fatal guile
Gave proof unheeded ; others on the grass 350
Couched, and now filled with pasture gazing sat,
Or bedward ruminating : for the sun
Declined was hasting now with prone career
To th' ocean isles, and in th' ascending scale
Of heav'n the stars that usher evening rose :
When Satan still in gaze, as first he stood,
Scarce thus at length failed speech recovered sad :
 " O hell ! what do mine eyes with grief behold ?
Into our room of bliss thus high advanced
Creatures of other mould, earth-born perhaps, 360
Not spirits, yet to heav'nly spirits bright
Little inferior ; whom my thoughts pursue
With wonder, and could love, so lively shines
In them divine resemblance, and such grace
The hand that formed them on their shape hath poured !
Ah, gentle pair, ye little think how nigh
Your change approaches, when all these delights
Will vanish, and deliver ye to woe ;
More woe, the more your taste is now of joy ;
Happy, but for so happy ill secured 370
Long to continue ; and this high seat your heav'n
Ill fenced for heav'n to keep out such a foe
As now is entered : yet no purposed foe
To you, whom I could pity thus forlorn,
Though I unpitied. League with you I seek,
And mutual amity, so straight, so close,
That I with you must dwell, or you with me
Henceforth : my dwelling haply may not please,
Like this fair Paradise, your sense ; yet such Accept, your Maker's work ; He gave it me, 380
Which I as freely give : hell shall unfold ¹
To entertain you two, her widest gates,
And send forth all her kings : there will be room,
Not like these narrow limits, to receive
Your numerous offspring ; if no better place,
Thank Him who puts me loth to this revenge

¹ Isaiah xiv. 9.

Paradise Lost

On you, who wrong me not, for Him who wronged.
And should I at your harmless innocence
Melt, as I do, yet public reason just,
Honour and empire with revenge enlarged, 390
By conquering this new world, compels me now
To do what else, though damned, I should abhor."

So spake the fiend, and with necessity,
The tyrant's plea, excused his devilish deeds.
Then from his lofty stand on that high tree
Down he alights among the sportful herd
Of those fourfooted kinds, himself now one,
Now other, as their shape served best his end
Nearer to view his prey, and unespied
To mark what of their state he more might learn 400
By word or action marked : about them round
A lion now he stalks with fiery glare ;
Then as a tiger, who by chance hath spied
In some purlieu two gentle fawns at play,
Strait couches close, then rising, changes oft
His couchant watch, as one who chose his ground,
Whence rushing he might surest seize them both
Griped in each paw : when Adam, first of men,
To first of women Eve, thus moving speech,
Turned him all ear to hear new utterance flow : 410

"Sole partner and sole part of all these joys,
Dearer thyself than all, needs must the Power
That made us, and for us this ample world,
Be infinitely good, and of His good
As liberal and free as infinite ;
That raised us from the dust, and placed us here
In all this happiness, who at His hand
Have nothing merited, nor can perform
Aught whereof He hath need, He who requires 420
From us no other service than to keep
This one, this easy charge, of all the trees
In Paradise that bear delicious fruit
So various, not to taste that only Tree
Of Knowledge, planted by the Tree of Life ;
So near grows death to life ; whate'er death is,
Some dreadful thing no doubt ; for well thou know'st

Paradise Lost

God hath pronounced it death to taste that tree,
The only sign of our obedience left
Among so many signs of power and rule
Conferred upon us, and dominion given 430
Over all other creatures that possess
Earth, air, and sea. Then let us not think hard
One easy prohibition, who enjoy
Free leave so large to all things else, and choice
Unlimited of manifold delights :

But let us ever praise Him and extol
His bounty, following our delightful task
To prune these growing plants, and tend these flowers ;
Which were it toilsome, yet with thee were sweet."

To whom thus Eve replied : " O thou, for whom 440
And from whom I was formed, flesh of thy flesh,
And without whom am to no end, my guide
And head, what thou hast said is just and right,
For we to Him indeed all praises owe,
And daily thanks ; I chiefly, who enjoy
So far the happier lot, enjoying thee
Pre-eminent by so much odds, while thou
Like consort to thyself canst no where find.
That day I oft remember, when from sleep
I first awaked, and found myself reposed 450
Under a shade on flowers, much wond'ring where
And what I was, whence thither brought, and how.
Not distant far from thence a murmuring sound
Of waters issued from a cave, and spread
Into a liquid plain, then stood unmoved,
Pure as th' expanse of heav'n ; I thither went
With unexperienced thought, and laid me down
On the green bank, to look into the clear
Smooth lake, that to me seemed another sky.

As I bent down to look, just opposite 460
A shape within the wat'ry gleam appeared,
Bending to look on me : I started back,
It started back ; but pleased I soon returned,
Pleased it returned as soon with answering looks
Of sympathy and love : there I had fixed
Mine eyes till now, and pined with vain desire,

Paradise Lost

Had not a voice thus warned me, 'What thou seest,
What there thou seest, fair creature, is thyself;
With thee it came and goes : but follow me,
And I will bring thee where no shadow stays 470
Thy coming, and thy soft embraces ; he
Whose image thou art, him thou shalt enjoy
Inseparably thine, to him shalt bear
Multitudes like thyself, and thence be called Mother of human race.' What could I do,
But follow straight, invisibly thus led ?
Till I espied thee, fair indeed and tall,
Under a plantain ; yet, methought, less fair,
Less winning soft, less amiably mild,
Than that smooth wat'ry image ; back I turned, 480
Thou following criedst aloud, 'Return, fair Eve,
Whom fliest thou ? whom thou fliest, of him thou art,
His flesh, his bone ; to give thee being, I lent
Out of my side to thee, nearest my heart,
Substantial life, to have thee by my side
Henceforth an individual solace dear :
Part of my soul, I seek thee, and thee claim,
My other half.' With that thy gentle hand
Seized mine ; I yielded, and from that time see How beauty is excelled by manly grace, 490
And wisdom, which alone is truly fair."

So spake our general mother, and, with eyes
Of conjugal attraction unproved
And meek surrender, half embracing leaned
On our first father ; half her swelling breast
Naked met his under the flowing gold
Of her loose tresses hid : he, in delight
Both of her beauty and submissive charms,
Smiled with superior love, as Jupiter
On Juno smiles, when he impregns the clouds 500
That shed May flowers, and pressed her matron lip
With kisses pure : aside the devil turned
For envy, yet with jealous leer malign
Eyed them askance, and to himself thus plained :
"Sight hateful, sight tormenting ! thus these two,
Imparadised in one another's arms,

Paradise Lost

The happier Eden, shall enjoy their fill -
Of bliss on bliss, while I to hell am thrust,
Where neither joy nor love, but fierce desire,
Among our other torments not the least, 510
Still unfulfilled, with pain of longing pines.
Yet let me not forget what I have gained
From their own mouths : all is not theirs, it seems ;
One fatal tree there stands, of Knowledge called,
Forbidden them to taste : knowledge forbidden ?
Suspicious, reasonless. Why should their Lord
Envy them that ? can it be sin to know ?
Can it be death ? and do they only stand
By ignorance ? is that their happy state,
The proof of their obedience and their faith ? 520
O fair foundation laid whereon to build
Their ruin ! Hence I will excite their minds
With more desire to know, and to reject
Envious commands, invented with design
To keep them low, whom knowledge might exalt
Equal with Gods ; aspiring to be such,
They taste and die : what likelier can ensue ?
But first with narrow search I must walk round
This garden, and no corner leave unspied ;
A chance but chance may lead where I may meet 530
Some wand'ring spirit of heav'n, by fountain side,
Or in thick shade retired, from him to draw
What further would be learned. Live while ye may,
Yet happy pair ; enjoy, till I return,
Short pleasures, for long woes are to succeed.”
So saying, his proud step he scornful turned,
But with sly circumspection, and began
Through wood, through waste, o'er hill, o'er dale, his roam.
Meanwhile, in utmost longitude, where heav'n
With earth and ocean meets, the setting sun 540
Slowly descended, and with right aspect
Against the eastern gate of Paradise
Levelled his ev'ning rays : it was a rock
Of alabaster, piled up to the clouds,
Conspicuous far, winding with one ascent

Paradise Lost

Accessible from earth, one entrance high ;
The rest was craggy cliff, that overhung
Still as it rose, impossible to climb.
Betwixt these rocky pillars Gabriel¹ sat,
Chief of the angelic guards, awaiting night : 550
About him exercised heroic games
The unarmed youth of heav'n ; but nigh at hand
Celestial armoury, shields, helms, and spears,
Hung high, with diamond flaming and with gold.
Thither came Uriel, gliding through the even
On a sunbeam, swift as a shooting star
In autumn thwarts the night, when vapours fired
Impress the air, and show the mariner
From what point of his compass to beware
Impetuous winds : he thus began in haste : 560

“Gabriel, to thee thy course by lot hath given
Charge and strict watch, that to this happy place
No evil thing approach or enter in.
This day at highth of noon came to my sphere
A spirit, zealous, as he seemed, to know
More of the Almighty's works, and chiefly Man,
God's latest image : I described his way,
Bent all on speed, and marked his aery gait :
But in the mount that lies from Eden north,
Where he first lighted, soon discerned his looks 570
Alien from heav'n, with passions foul obscured :
Mine eye pursued him still, but under shade
Lost sight of him. One of the banished crew,
I fear, hath ventured from the deep to raise
New troubles ; him thy care must be to find.”

To whom the wingèd warrior thus returned :
“Uriel, no wonder if thy perfect sight,
Amid the sun's bright circle where thou sitt'st,
See far and wide : in at this gate none pass
The vigilance here placed, but such as come 580
Well known from heav'n ; and since meridian hour
No creature thence. If spirit of other sort,
So minded, have o'erleaped these earthly bounds

¹ The angel sent to Daniel (Dan. ix. 21), and to the Virgin Mary and to Zacharias (see Luke i. 19 and 26).

Paradise Lost

On purpose, hard thou know'st it to exclude
Spiritual substance with corporeal bar.
But if within the circuit of these walks,
In whatsoever shape he lurk, of whom Thou tell'st, by morrow dawning I shall know."

So promised he, and Uriel to his charge
Returned on that bright beam, whose point now raised
Bore him slope downward to the sun, now fall'n [590
Beneath th' Azores ; whether the prime orb,
Incredible how swift, had thither rolled
Diurnal, or this less volúbil earth,
By shorter flight to th' east, had left him there,
Arraying with reflected purple and gold
The clouds that on his western throne attend.

Now came still evening on, and twilight grey
Had in her sober livery all things clad ;
Silence accompanied ; for beast and bird, 600
They to their grassy couch, these to their nests,
Were slunk, all but the wakeful nightingale ;
She all night long her amorous descant sung ;
Silence was pleased : now glowed the firmament
With living sapphires ; Hesperus that led
The starry host rode brightest, till the moon,
Rising in clouded majesty, at length
Apparent queen unveiled her peerless light,
And o'er the dark her silver mantle threw.

When Adam thus to Eve : " Fair consort, the hour
Of night, and all things now retired to rest [610
Mind us of like repose, since God hath set
Labour and rest, as day and night, to men
Successive, and the timely dew of sleep
Now falling with soft slumbrous weight inclines
Our eyelids : other creatures all day long
Rove idle, unemployed, and less need rest :
Man hath his daily work of body or mind
Appointed, which declares his dignity,
And the regard of heaven on all his ways ; 620
While other animals unactive range,
And of their doings God takes no account.
To-morrow, ere fresh morning streak the east

Paradise Lost

With first approach of light, we must be risen,
And at our pleasant labour, to reform
Yon flowery arbours, yonder alleys green,
Our walk at noon, with branches overgrown,
That mock our scant manuring, and require
More hands than ours to lop their wanton growth.
Those blossoms also and those dropping gums, 630
That lie bestrown unsightly and unsmooth,
Ask riddance, if we mean to tread with ease :
Meanwhile, as nature wills, night bids us rest."

To whom thus Eve, with perfect beauty adorned
"My author and disposer, what thou bidd'st
Unargued I obey, so GOD ordains ;
GOD is thy law, thou mine ; to know no more
Is woman's happiest knowledge and her praise.
With thee conversing I forget all time,
All seasons and their change, all please alike : 640
Sweet is the breath of Morn, her rising sweet,
With charm of earliest birds ; pleasant the sun,
When first on this delightful land he spreads
His orient beams, on herb, tree, fruit, and flower,
Glist'ring with dew ; fragrant the fertile earth
After soft showers ; and sweet the coming on
Of grateful evening mild ; then silent night,
With this her solemn bird, and this fair moon,
And these the gems of heav'n, her starry train :
But neither breath of Morn when she ascends 650
With charm of earliest birds, nor rising sun
On this delightful land, nor herb, fruit, flower,
Glist'ring with dew, nor fragrance after showers,
Nor grateful evening mild, nor silent night,
With this her solemn bird, nor walk by moon,
Or glittering starlight, without thee is sweet.
But wherefore all night long shine these ? for whom
This glorious sight, when sleep hath shut all eyes ?"

To whom our general ancestor replied :
"Daughter of GOD and man, accomplished Eve, 660
These have their course to finish round the earth
By morrow ev'ning, and from land to land
In order, though to nations yet unborn,

Paradise Lost

Minist'ring light prepared, they set and rise ;
Lest total darkness should by night regain
Her old possession, and extinguish life
In nature and all things, which these soft fires
Not only enlighten, but with kindly heat
Of various influence foment and warm,
Temper or nourish, or in part shed down 670
Their stellar virtue on all kinds that grow
On earth, made hereby apter to receive
Perfection from the sun's more potent ray.
These then, though unbeheld in deep of night,
Shine not in vain ; nor think, though men were none,
That heav'n would want spectators, God want praise :
Millions of spiritual creatures walk the earth
Unseen, both when we wake, and when we sleep ;
All these with ceaseless praise His works behold
Both day and night : how often from the steep 680
Of echoing hill or thicket have we heard
Celestial voices to the midnight air,
Sole, or responsive each to other's note,
Singing their great Creator? oft in bands
While they keep watch, or nightly rounding walk,
With heav'nly touch of instrumental sounds
In full harmonic number joined, their songs
Divide the night, and lift our thoughts to heaven."
Thus talking, hand in hand alone they passed
On to their blissful bower ; it was a place 690
Chosen by the sov'reign planter, when He framed
All things to man's delightful use : the roof
Of thickest covert, was inwoven shade,
Laurel and myrtle, and what higher grew
Of firm and fragrant leaf ; on either side
Acanthus and each odorous bushy shrub
Fenced up the verdant wall, each beauteous flower,
Iris all hues, roses, and jessamine,
Reared high their flourished heads between, and wrought
Mosaic ; under foot the violet, 700
Crocus, and hyacinth with rich inlay
Broidered the ground, more coloured than with stone

Paradise Lost

Of costliest emblem : other creature here,
Beast, bird, insect, or worm, durst enter none ;
Such was their awe of man. In shadier bower
More sacred and sequestered, though but feigned,
Pan or Sylvanus never slept ; nor nymph
Nor Faunus haunted. Here, in close recess,
With flowers, garlands, and sweet-smelling herbs,
Espoused Eve decked first her nuptial bed, 710
And heav'nly choirs the Hymenæan sung,
What day the genial angel to our sire
Brought her in naked beauty, more adorned,
More lovely than Pandora,¹ whom the Gods
Endowed with all their gifts, and O, too like
In sad event, when to the unwiser son
Of Japhet brought by Hermes, she ensnared
Mankind with her fair looks, to be avenged
On him who had stole Jove's authentic fire.

Thus, at their shady lodge arrived, both stood, 720
Both turned, and under open sky adored
The God that made both sky, air, earth, and heav'n
Which they beheld, the moon's resplendent globe,
And starry pole. "Thou also mad'st the night,
Maker Omnipotent, and thou the day,
Which we, in our appointed work employed,
Have finished, happy in our mutual help
And mutual love, the crown of all our bliss
Ordained by thee, and this delicious place
For us too large, where thy abundance wants 730
Partakers, and uncropt falls to the ground.
But thou hast promised from us two a race
To fill the earth, who shall with us extol
Thy goodness infinite, both when we wake,
And when we seek, as now, thy gift of sleep."

¹ Pandora was a most beautiful woman, on whom the gods bestowed all their gifts. Jupiter, enraged with Prometheus, the son of Japhet, for having stolen fire from heaven, sent Pandora, with a box of supposed treasures, to him, to punish him ; but he refused to receive her. Hermes (or Mercury) then led her to Prometheus's "unwiser" brother Epimetheus, who received her, and was persuaded by her to open the box she brought as her dowry. It contained all the ills which have since afflicted humanity, but Hope remained at the bottom. It is very probable that this fable originated in the true story of Eve's disobedience, and her enticing Adam to share her sin.

Paradise Lost

This said unanimous, and other rites
Observing none, but adoration pure
Which GOD likes best, into their inmost bower
Handed they went; and, eased the putting off
These troublesome disguises which we wear, 740
Straight side by side were laid; nor turned, I
ween,

Adam from his fair spouse; nor Eve the rites
Mysterious of connubial love refused:
Whatever hypocrites austere talk
Of purity, and place, and innocence,
Defaming as impure what GOD declares
Pure, and commands to some, leaves free to all.
Our Maker bids increase, who bids abstain
But our destroyer, foe to GOD and man?
Hail wedded love! mysterious law, true source 750
Of human offspring, sole propriety
In Paradise of all things common else.
By thee adulterous lust was driv'n from men
Among the bestial herds to range; by thee
Founded in reason, loyal, just, and pure,
Relations dear, and all the charities¹
Of father, son, and brother, first were known.
Far be it, that I should write thee sin or blame,
Or think thee unbefitting holiest place,
Perpetual fountain of domestic sweets, 760
Whose bed is undefiled and chaste pronounced,
Present, or past, as saints and patriarchs used.
Here Love his golden shafts employs, here lights
His constant lamp, and waves his purple wings,
Reigns here and revels; not in the bought smile
Of harlots, loveless, joyless, unendeared,
Casual fruition; nor in court amours,
Mixed dance, or wanton mask, or midnight ball,
Or serenate, which the starved lover sings
To his proud fair, best quitted with disdain. 770
These, lulled by nightingales, embracing slept,
And on their naked limbs the flowery roof Showered roses, which the morn repaired. Sleep on,

¹ Affections.

Paradise Lost

Blest pair, and O! yet happiest if ye seek
No happier state, and know to know no more.

Now had night measured with her shadowy cone
Half way up hill this vast sublunar vault,
And from their ivory port the Cherubim,
Forth issuing at th' accustomed hour, stood armed
To their night watches in warlike parade, 780
When Gabriel to his next in power thus spake :

“Uzziel,¹ half these draw off, and coast the south
With strictest watch ; these other wheel the north ;
Our circuit meets full west.” As flame they part,
Half wheeling to the shield, half to the spear.
From these, two strong and subtle spirits he called
That near him stood, and gave them thus in charge :

“Ithuriel and Zephon,² with winged speed
Search through this garden, leave unsearched no nook ;

But chiefly where those two fair creatures lodge, 790
Now laid perhaps asleep secure of harm.
This evening from the sun's decline arrived,
Who tells of some infernal spirit seen
Hitherward bent, who could have thought ? escaped
The bars of hell, on errand bad no doubt :
Such where ye find, seize fast, and hither bring.”

So saying, on he led his radiant files,
Dazzling the moon ; these to the bower direct
In search of whom they sought : him there they found,
Squat like a toad, close at the ear of Eve ; 800
Assaying by his devilish art to reach
The organs of her fancy, and with them forge
Illusions as he list, phantasms, and dreams ;
Or if, inspiring venom, he might taint
The animal spirits that from pure blood arise
Like gentle breaths from rivers pure, thence raise
At least distempered, discontented thoughts,
Vain hopes, vain aims, inordinate desires
Blown up with high conceits ingend'ring pride.

¹ This angel's name signifies the strength of God.

² The name of Ithuriel signifies the discovery of God ; of Zephon, a secret, or searcher of secrets.—From HUME.

Paradise Lost

Him thus intent Ithuriel with his spear 810
Touched lightly ; for no falsehood can endure
Touch of celestial temper, but returns
Of force to its own likeness : up he starts
Discovered and surprised. As when a spark Lights on a heap of nitrous powder, laid
Fit for the tun, some magazine to store
Against a rumoured war, the smutty grain
With sudden blaze diffused inflames the air ;
So started up in his own shape the fiend.
Back stepped those two fair angels, half amazed 820
So sudden to behold the grisly king ;
Yet thus, unmoved with fear, accost him soon :

“ Which of those rebel spirits adjudged to hell
Comest thou, escaped thy prison ? and transformed,
Why sat'st thou like an enemy in wait,
Here watching at the head of these that sleep ? ”

“ Know ye not then,” said Satan, filled with scorn, “ Know ye not me ? ye knew me once no mate
For you, there sitting where ye durst not soar ;
Not to know me argues yourselves unknown, 830
The lowest of your throng ; or, if ye know,
Why ask ye, and superfluous begin
Your message, like to end as much in vain ? ”

To whom thus Zephon, answering scorn with scorn :
“ Think not, revolted spirit, thy shape the same,
Or undiminished brightness, to be known
As when thou stood'st in heav'n upright and pure ;
That glory then, when thou no more wast good,
Departed from thee, and thou resemblest now
Thy sin and place of doom obscure and foul. 840
But come, for thou, be sure, shalt give account
To him who sent us, whose charge is to keep
This place inviolable, and these from harm.”

So spake the Cherub, and his grave rebuke,
Severe in youthful beauty, added grace
Invincible : abashed the devil stood,
And felt how awful goodness is, and saw
Virtue in her shape how lovely, saw, and pined
His loss ; but chiefly to find here observed

Paradise Lost

His lustre visibly impaired ; yet seemed 850
Undaunted. "If I must contend," said he,
"Best with the best, the sender not the sent,
Or all at once ; more glory will be won,
Or less be lost." "Thy fear," said Zephon bold,
"Will save us trial what the least can do Single against thee wicked, and thence weak."

The fiend replied not, overcome with rage ;
But like a proud steed reined went haughty on,
Champing his iron curb : to strive or fly
He held it vain ; awe from above had quelled 860
His heart, not else dismayed. Now drew they nigh
The western point, where those half-rounding guards
Just met, and closing stood in squadron joined,
Awaiting next command. To whom their chief,
Gabriel, from the front thus called aloud :

"O friends, I hear the tread of nimble feet
Hasting this way, and now by glimpse discern
Ithuriel and Zephon through the shade,
And with them comes a third of regal port,
But faded splendour wan ; who by his gait 870
And fierce demeanour seems the prince of hell,
Nor likely to part hence without contest :
Stand firm, for in his look defiance lours."

He scarce had ended, when those two approached,
And brief related whom they brought, where found,
How busied, in what form and posture couched.
To whom with stern regard thus Gabriel spake :

"Why hast thou, Satan, broke the bounds prescribed
To thy transgressions, and disturbed the charge
Of others, who approve not to transgress 880
By thy example, but have power and right
To question thy bold entrance on this place,
Employed, it seems, to violate sleep, and those Whose dwelling God hath planted here in bliss?"

To whom thus Satan with contemptuous brow :
"Gabriel, thou hadst in heav'n th' esteem of wise,
And such I held thee ; but this question asked
Puts me in doubt. Lives there who loves his pain?
Who would not, finding way, break loose from hell,

Paradise Lost

Though thither doomed? thou wouldst thyself, no doubt, 890

And boldly venture to whatever place
Farthest from pain, where thou might'st hope to change
Torment with ease, and soonest recompense
Dole with delight, which in this place I sought :
To thee no reason, who know'st only good,
But evil hast not tried : and wilt object
His will who bound us? Let Him surer bar
His iron gates, if He intends our stay
In that dark durance : thus much what was asked.
The rest is true, they found me where they say ; 900
But that implies not violence or harm."

Thus he in scorn. The warlike angel moved,
Disdainfully half smiling, thus replied :
"O loss of one in heav'n to judge of wise,
Since Satan fell, whom folly overthrew,
And now returns him from his prison 'scaped,
Gravely in doubt whether to hold them wise
Or not, who ask what boldness brought him hither
Unlicensed from his bounds in hell prescribed :
So wise he judges it to fly from pain 910
However, and to 'scape his punishment.
So judge thou still, presumptuous, till the wrath,
Which thou incurr'st by flying, meet thy flight
Sevenfold, and scourge that wisdom back to hell,
Which taught thee yet no better, that no pain
Can equal anger infinite provoked.
But wherefore thou alone? wherefore with thee
Came not all hell broke loose? is pain to them
Less pain, less to be fled, or thou than they Less hardy to endure? Courageous chief, 920
The first in flight from pain, hadst thou alleged
To thy deserted host this cause of flight,
Thou surely hadst not come sole fugitive."

To which the fiend thus answered, frowning stern :
"Not that I less endure, or shrink from pain,
Insulting Angel ; well thou know'st I stood
Thy fiercest, when in battle to thy aid
The blasting vollied thunder made all speed,

Paradise Lost

And seconded thy else not dreaded spear.
But still thy words at random, as before, 930
Argue thy inexperience what behoves
From hard assays and ill successes past
A faithful leader, not to hazard all
Through ways of danger by himself untried.
I therefore, I alone first undertook
To wing the desolate abyss, and spy
This new created world, whereof in hell
Fame is not silent ; here in hope to find Better abode, and my afflicted Powers
To settle here on earth, or in mid air ; 940
Though for possession put to try once more
What thou and thy gay legions dare against ;
Whose easier business were to serve their Lord
High up in heav'n, with songs to hymn His throne,
And practised distances to cringe, not fight.”
To whom the warrior Angel soon replied :
“To say and straight unsay, pretending first
Wise to fly pain, professing next the spy,
Argues no leader, but a liar traced,
Satan : and couldst thou faithful add ? O name, 950
O sacred name of faithfulness profaned !
Faithful to whom ? to thy rebellious crew ?
Army of fiends, fit body to fit head :
Was this your discipline and faith engaged,
Your military obedience, to dissolve
Allegiance to th' acknowledged Power supreme ?
And thou sly hypocrite, who now would'st seem Patron of liberty, who more than thou
Once fawned, and cringed, and servilely adored
Heav'n's awful Monarch ? wherefore but in hope 960
To dispossess Him, and thyself to reign ?
But mark what I arreed thee now ; Avaunt !
Fly thither whence thou fledst : if from this hour
Within these hallowed limits thou appear,
Back to th' infernal pit I drag thee chained,
And seal thee so,¹ as henceforth not to scorn
The facile gates of hell too slightly barred.”

¹ Rev. xx. 3.

Paradise Lost

So threatened he ; but Satan to no threats
Gave heed, but waxing more in rage replied :
“Then when I am thy captive talk of chains, 970
Proud liminary Cherub ; but ere then Far heavier load thyself expect to feel
From my prevailing arm ; though heaven’s King
Ride on thy wings,¹ and thou with thy compeers,
Used to the yoke, draw’st His triumphant wheels .
In progress through the road of heav’n star-paved.”

While thus he spake, th’ angelic squadron bright
Turned fiery red, sharp’ning in moonèd horns
Their phalanx, and began to hem him round
With ported spears, as thick as when a field 980
Of Ceres, ripe for harvest, waving bends
Her bearded grove of ears, which way the wind
Sways them ; the careful ploughman doubting stands,
Lest on the threshing-floor his hopeful sheaves
Prove chaff. On the other side, Satan, alarmed, Collecting all his might, dilated stood,
Like Teneriff or Atlas, unremoved :
His stature reached the sky, and on his crest
Sat horror plumed ; nor wanted in his grasp
What seemed both spear and shield. Now dreadful deeds 990

Might have ensued, nor only Paradise
In this commotion, but the starry cope
Of heav’n perhaps, or all the elements
At least had gone to wrack, disturbed and torn
With violence of this conflict, had not soon
The Eternal, to prevent such horrid fray,
Hung forth in heav’n His golden scales,² yet seen
Betwixt Astrea and the Scorpion sign,
Wherein all things created first He weighed,

¹ Ezek. i. x. and xi. 22.

² The constellation Libra. This image of the Deity weighing the fates of the combatants is found both in Homer—XXII. “Iliad”—and in Virgil, who represents Jupiter as weighing the fates of Turnus and Æneas. “In Homer and Virgil the combatants are weighed one against another, but here Satan only is weighed ; in one scale the consequence of his retreating, in the other of his fighting. And there is this further improvement, that, as in Homer and Virgil the fates are weighed to satisfy Jupiter himself, it is here done to satisfy only the contending parties—for Satan to read his own destiny !”—NEWTON.

Paradise Lost

The pendulous round earth with balanced air 1000
In counterpoise ; now ponders all events,
Battles, and realms : in these He put two weights,
The sequel each of parting and of fight ;
The latter quick up flew and kicked the beam :
Which Gabriel spying, thus bespake the fiend :

“Satan, I know thy strength, and thou know’st mine ;

Neither our own but given ; what folly then
To boast what arms can do, since thine no more
Than heav’n permits, nor mine, though doubled now
To trample thee as mire ? for proof look up, 1010
And read thy lot in yon celestial sign,
Where thou art weighed,¹ and shown how light,
how weak,

If thou resist.” The fiend looked up, and knew
His mounted scale aloft : nor more ; but fled
Murmuring, and with him fled the shades of night.

Dan. v. 27

Paradise Lost

BOOK V.

THE ARGUMENT.

Morning approached, Eve relates to Adam her troublesome dream ; he likes it not, yet comforts her : they come forth to their day-labours : their morning hymn at the door of their bower. God, to render Man inexcusable, sends Raphael to admonish him of his obedience, of his free estate, of his enemy near at hand, who he is, and why his enemy, and whatever else may avail Adam to know. Raphael comes down to Paradise ; his appearance described, his coming discerned by Adam afar off, sitting at the door of his bower ; he goes out to meet him, brings him to his lodge, entertains him with the choicest fruits of Paradise got together by Eve ; their discourse at table ; Raphael performs his message, minds Adam of his state and of his enemy ; relates, at Adam's request, who that enemy is, and how he came to be so, beginning from his first revolt in heaven, and the occasion thereof ; how he drew his legions after him to the parts of the north, and there incited them to rebel with him ; persuading all but only Abdiel a seraph, who in argument dissuades and opposes him, then forsakes him.

Now Morn, her rosy steps in the eastern clime
Advancing, sowed the earth with orient pearl,
When Adam waked, so custom'd ; for his sleep
Was airy light, from pure digestion bred,
And temperate vapours bland, which the only sound
Of leaves and fuming rills, Aurora's fan,
Lightly dispersed, and the shrill matin song
Of birds on every bough : so much the more
His wonder was to find unwakened Eve
With tresses discomposed, and glowing cheek,
As through unquiet rest : he, on his side
Leaning half-raised, with looks of cordial love
Hung over her enamoured, and beheld
Beauty, which, whether waking or asleep,
Shot forth peculiar graces : then with voice
Mild as when Zephyrus on Flora breathes,
Her hand soft touching, whispered thus : " Awake,
My fairest, my espoused, my latest found,
Heav'n's last best gift, my ever new delight ;
Awake, the morning shines, and the fresh field
Calls us ; we lose the prime, to mark how spring
Our tended plants, how blows the citron grove,
What drops the myrrh, and what the balmy reed,

Paradise Lost

How Nature paints her colours, how the bee
Sits on the bloom extracting liquid sweet."

Such whisp'ring waked her, but with startled eye
On Adam, whom embracing, thus she spake :

"O sole in whom my thoughts find all repose,
My glory, my perfection, glad I see
Thy face, and morn returned ; for I this night, 30
Such night till this I never passed, have dreamed,
(If dreamed,) not as I oft am wont, of thee,
Works of day passed, or morrow's next design,
But of offence and trouble, which my mind
Knew never till this irksome night. Methought
Close at mine ear one called me forth to walk
With gentle voice ; I thought it thine : it said,
Why sleep'st thou, Eve ? now is the pleasant time,
The cool, the silent, save where silence yields
To the night-warbling bird, that now awake 40
Tunes sweetest his love-laboured song ; now reigns
Full orb'd the moon, and with more pleasing light
Shadowy sets off the face of things ; in vain,
If none regard : heav'n wakes with all his eyes,
Whom to behold but thee, nature's desire ?
In whose sight all things joy, with ravishment
Attracted by thy beauty still to gaze.
I rose as at thy call, but found thee not ;
To find thee I directed then my walk ;
And on, methought, alone I passed through ways 50
That brought me on a sudden to the tree
Of interdicted knowledge : fair it seemed,
Much fairer to my fancy than by day :
And as I wond'ring looked, beside it stood
One shaped and winged like one of those from heav'n
By us oft seen ; his dewy locks distilled
Ambrosia ; on that tree he also gazed ;
And 'O fair plant,' said he, 'with fruit surcharged,
Deigns none to ease thy load and taste thy sweet,
Nor GOD, nor man ; is knowledge so despised ? 60
Or envy, or what reserve forbids to taste ?
Forbid who will, none shall from me withhold Longer thy offered good ; why else set here ?'

Paradise Lost

This said, he paused not, but with venturous arm
He plucked, he tasted ; me damp horror chilled
At such bold words vouched with a deed so bold.
But he thus, overjoyed : ‘ O fruit divine,
Sweet of thyself, but much more sweet thus cropped,
Forbidden here, it seems, as only fit
For gods, yet able to make gods of men : 70
And why not gods of men, since good, the more
Communicated, more abundant grows,
The author not impaired, but honoured more ?
Here, happy creature, fair angelic Eve,
Partake thou also : happy though thou art,
Happier thou may’st be, worthier canst not be :
Taste this, and be henceforth among the gods
Thyself a goddess, not to earth confined,
But sometimes in the air, as we, sometimes
Ascend to heav’n, by merit thine, and see 80
What life the gods live there, and such live thou.’
So saying, he drew nigh, and to me held,
Even to my mouth of that same fruit held part
Which he had plucked ; the pleasant savoury smell
So quickened appetite, that I, methought,
Could not but taste. Forthwith up to the clouds
With him I flew, and underneath beheld
The earth outstretched immense, a prospect wide
And various : wond’ring at my flight and change
To this high exaltation, suddenly 90
My guide was gone, and I, methought, sunk down,
And fell asleep ; but O, how glad I waked
To find this but a dream ! ” Thus Eve her night
Related, and thus Adam answered sad :
“ Best image of myself, and dearer half,
The trouble of thy thoughts this night in sleep
Affects me equally ; nor can I like
This uncouth dream, of evil sprung I fear :
Yet evil whence ? in thee can harbour none,
Created pure. But know that in the soul 100
Are many lesser faculties that serve
Reason as chief : among these Fancy next
Her office holds ; of all external things,

Paradise Lost

Which the five watchful senses represent,
She forms imaginations, aery shapes,
Which Reason joining, or disjoining, frames
All what we affirm, or what deny, and call
Our knowledge or opinion ; then retires
Into her private cell when Nature rests.
Oft in her absence mimic Fancy wakes 110
To imitate her ; but, misjoining shapes,
Wild work produces oft, and most in dreams,
Ill matching words and deeds long past or late.
Some such resemblances methinks I find
Of our last evening's talk in this thy dream,
But with addition strange ; yet be not sad :
Evil into the mind of God or man
May come and go, so unapproved, and leave
No spot or blame behind ; which gives me hope
That what in sleep thou didst abhor to dream, 120
Waking thou never wilt consent to do.
Be not disheartened, then, nor cloud those looks
That wont to be more cheerful and serene
Than when fair morning first smiles on the world ;
And let us to our fresh employments rise,
Among the groves, the fountains, and the flow'rs,
That open now their choicest bosomed smells,
Reserved from night, and kept for thee in store."
So cheered he his fair spouse, and she was cheered ;
But silently a gentle tear let fall 130
From either eye, and wiped them with her hair :
Two other precious drops that ready stood,
Each in their crystal sluice, he ere they fell
Kissed as the gracious signs of sweet remorse,
And pious awe that feared to have offended.
So all was cleared, and to the field they haste.
But first, from under shady arborous roof
Soon as they forth were come to open sight
Of dayspring and the sun, who, scarce uprisen,
With wheels yet hov'ring o'er the ocean brim, 140
Shot parallel to the earth his dewy ray,
Discovering in wide landscape all the east
Of Paradise and Eden's happy plains,

Paradise Lost

Lowly they bowed adoring, and began
Their orisons, each morning duly paid
In various style ; for neither various style
Nor holy rapture wanted they to praise
Their Maker, in fit strains pronounced or sung
Unmeditated, such prompt eloquence
Flowed from their lips, in prose or numerous verse, 150
More tuneable than needed lute or harp
To add more sweetness : and they thus began :

“ These are thy glorious works, Parent of good !
Almighty, thine this universal frame,
Thus wondrous fair : thyself how wondrous then !
Unspeakable, who sitt’st above these heavens,
To us invisible, or dimly seen
In these thy lowest works ; yet these declare
Thy goodness beyond thought, and power divine.
Speak ye who best can tell, ye sons of light, 160
Angels, for ye behold Him, and with songs
And choral symphonies, day without night,
Circle His throne rejoicing, ye in heaven :
On earth, join all ye creatures to extol
Him first, Him last, Him midst, and without end.
Fairest of stars, last in the train of night,
If better thou belong not to the dawn,
Sure pledge of day, that crown’st the smiling morn
With thy bright circlet, praise Him in thy sphere
While day arises, that sweet hour of prime. 170
Thou sun, of this great world both eye and soul,
Acknowledge Him thy greater, sound His praise
In thy eternal course, both when thou climb’st,
And when high noon hast gained, and when thou fall’st.

Moon, that now meet’st the orient sun, now fly’st,
With the fixed stars, fixed in their orb that flies,
And ye five other wand’ring fires that move
In mystic dance not without song,¹ resound
His praise, who out of darkness called up light.
Air, and ye elements, the eldest birth 180
Of nature’s womb, that in quaternion run

Paradise Lost

Perpetual circle, multiform, and mix
And nourish all things, let your ceaseless change
Vary to our great Maker still new praise.
Ye mists and exhalations, that now rise
From hill or steaming lake, dusky or grey,
Till the sun paint your fleecy skirts with gold,
In honour to the world's great Author rise,
Whether to deck with clouds the uncoloured sky,
Or wet the thirsty earth with falling showers, 190
Rising or falling, still advance His praise.
His praise, ye winds that from four quarters blow,
Breathe soft or loud ; and wave your tops, ye pines,
With every plant, in sign of worship wave.
Fountains and ye that warble, as ye flow,
Melodious murmurs, warbling tune His praise.
Join voices, all ye living souls, ye birds,
That singing up to heaven gate ascend,
Bear on your wings and in your notes His praise.
Ye that in waters glide, and ye that walk 200
The earth, and stately tread, or lowly creep ;¹
Witness if I be silent, morn or even,
To hill, or valley, fountain, or fresh shade,
Made vocal by my song, and taught His praise.
Hail, universal Lord, be bounteous still
To give us only good ; and if the night
Have gathered aught of evil, or concealed,
Disperse it, as now light dispells the dark."

So prayed they, innocent, and to their thoughts
Firm peace recovered soon and wonted calm. 210
On to their morning's rural work they haste,
Among sweet dews and flowers ; where any row
Of fruit-trees over-woody reached too far
Their pampered² boughs, and needed hands to check
Fruitless embraces : or they led the vine
To wed her elm ; she, spoused, about him twines
Her marriageable arms, and with her brings
Her dower, th' adopted clusters, to adorn
His barren leaves. Them thus employed beheld
With pity heav'n's high King, and to Him called 220

Paradise Lost

Raphael, the sociable spirit, that deigned
To travel with Tobias, and secured
His marriage with the seven-times-wedded maid.

“Raphael,” said He, “thou hear’st what stir on earth

Satan, from hell ’scaped through the darksome gulf
Hath raised in Paradise, and how disturbed
This night the human pair, how he designs
In them at once to ruin all mankind :
Go therefore, half this day as friend with friend
Converse with Adam, in what bower or shade 230
Thou find’st him from the heat of noon retired,
To respite his day-labour with repast,
Or with repose ; and such discourse bring on,
As may advise him of his happy state,
Happiness in his power left free to will,
Left to his own free will, his will though free
Yet mutable ; whence warn him to beware
He swerve not too secure ; tell him withal
His danger, and from whom ; what enemy,
Late fall’n himself from heaven, is plotting now 240
The fall of others from like state of bliss ;
By violence ? no, for that shall be withstood ;
But by deceit and lies : this let him know,
Lest, wilfully transgressing, he pretend
Surprisa! unadmonished, unforewarned.”

So spake th’ eternal Father, and fulfilled
All justice : nor delayed the wingèd saint
After his charge received ; but from among Thousand celestial ardours, where he stood
Veiled with his gorgeous wings, up springing light, 250
Flew through the midst of heav’n ; the angelic choirs,
On each hand parting, to his speed gave way
Through all th’ empyreal road ; till at the gate
Of heav’n arrived, the gate self-opened wide
On golden hinges turning, as by work
Divine the sov’ran Architect had framed.
From hence no cloud, or, to obstruct his sight,
Star interposed, however small—he sees,
Not unconform to other shining globes,

Paradise Lost

Earth, and the garden of God, with cedars crowned 260
Above all hills : as when by night the glass
Of Galileo, less assured, observes
Imagined lands and regions in the moon ;
Or pilot, from amidst the Cyclades,
Delos or Samos, first appearing, kens
A cloudy spot. Down thither prone in flight
He speeds, and through the vast ethereal sky
Sails between worlds and worlds, with steady wing,
Now to the polar winds, then with quick fan
Winnows the buxom air ; till, within soar 270
Of tow'ring eagles, to all the fowls he seems
A phoenix, gazed by all, as that sole bird,
When, to inshrine his reliques in the sun's
Bright temple, to Egyptian Thebes he flies.¹
At once on th' eastern cliff of Paradise
He lights, and to his proper shape returns,
A seraph winged : six wings he wore, to shade
His lineaments divine ; the pair that clad
Each shoulder broad came mantling o'er his breast
With regal ornament ; the middle pair 280
Girt like a starry zone his waist, and round
Skirted his loins and thighs with downy gold
And colours dipped in heav'n ; the third his feet
Shadowed from either heel with feathered mail,
Sky-tinctured grain. Like Maia's son² he stood,
And shook his plumes, that heav'nly fragrance filled
The circuit wide. Straight knew him all the bands
Of angels under watch ; and to his state,
And to his message high, in honour rise ;
For on some message high they guessed him bound. 290
Their glittering tents he passed, and now is come
Into the blissful field, through groves of myrrh,
And flow'ring odours, cassia, nard, and balm ;

¹ The phoenix was a fabled bird, of which one only was said to exist at a time. It was exquisitely beautiful ; and lived many hundred years. At the end of its life it made a pile of aromatic woods, which it kindled, and, fanning the flames with its wings, perished in the blaze. From its ashes sprang another phoenix. The phoenix made his funeral pyre in the sun's temple at Thebes.

Paradise Lost

A wilderness of sweets ; for Nature here
Wantoned as in her prime, and played at will
Her virgin fancies, pouring forth more sweet,
Wild above rule or art ; enormous bliss.
Him through the spicy forest onward come
Adam discerned, as in the door he sat
Of his cool bower, while now the mounted sun 300
Shot down direct his fervid rays, to warm
Earth's inmost womb, more warmth than Adam needs ;
And Eve within, due at her hour prepared
For dinner savoury fruits, of taste to please
True appetite, and not disrelish thirst
Of nectarous draughts between, from milky stream,
Berry or grape, to whom thus Adam called :

“Haste hither, Eve, and, worth thy sight, behold
Eastward among those trees, what glorious shape
Comes this way moving ; seems another morn 310
Ris'n on mid-noon ; some great behest from heav'n
To us perhaps he brings, and will vouchsafe
This day to be our guest. But go with speed,
And what thy stores contain bring forth, and pour
Abundance, fit to honour and receive
Our heav'nly stranger ; well we may afford
Our givers their own gifts, and large bestow
From large bestow'd, where Nature multiplies
Her fertile growth, and by disburd'ning grows
More fruitful ; which instructs us not to spare.” 320

To whom thus Eve : “Adam, earth's hallowed mould,
Of God inspired, small store will serve, where store
All seasons ripe for use hangs on the stalk ;
Save what by frugal storing firmness gains
To nourish, and superfluous moist consumes.
But I will haste, and from each bough and brake,
Each plant and juiciest gourd, will pluck such choice
To entertain our Angel guest, as he Beholding shall confess, that here on earth
God hath dispensed His bounties as in heav'n.” 330

So saying, with dispatchful looks in haste
She turns, on hospitable thoughts intent

Paradise Lost

What choice to choose for delicacy best,
What order, so contrived as not to mix
Tastes, not well joined, inelegant, but bring
Taste after taste upheld with kindest change ;
Bestirs her then, and from each tender stalk
Whatever earth, all-bearing mother, yields
In India east or west, or middle shore
In Pontus, or the Punic coast, or where 340
Alcinous reigned,¹ fruit of all kinds, in coat,
Rough or smooth rind, or bearded husk, or shell,
She gathers, tribute large, and on the board
Heaps with unsparing hand : for drink the grape
She crushes, inoffensive must,² and meaths³
From many a berry, and from sweet kernels pressed
She tempers dulcet creams, nor these to hold
Wants her fit vessels pure ; then strews the ground
With rose and odours from the shrub unfumed.
Meanwhile our primitive great sire, to meet 350
His god-like guest, walks forth, without more train
Accompanied than with his own complete
Perfections ; in himself was all his state,
More solemn than the tedious pomp that waits
On princes, when their rich retinue long
Of horses led and grooms besmeared with gold
Dazzles the crowd, and sets them all agape.
Nearer his presence Adam, though not awed,
Yet with submissive approach and reverence meek,
As to a superior nature, bowing low, 360
Thus said : "Native of heav'n, for other place
None can than heav'n such glorious shape contain,
Since by descending from the thrones above,
Those happy places thou hast deigned a while
To want, and honour these, vouchsafe with us
Two only, who yet by sov'ran gift possess
This spacious ground, in yonder shady bower
To rest, and what the garden choicest bears
To sit and taste, till this meridian heat
Be over, and the sun more cool decline." 370

Paradise Lost

Whom thus the angelic Virtue answered mild :
" Adam, I therefore came; nor art thou such Created, or such place hast here to dwell,
As may not oft invite, though spirits of heav'n,
To visit thee : lead on then where thy bower
O'ershades ; for these mid-hours, till ev'ning rise,
I have at will." So to the sylvan lodge
'They came, that like Pomona's arbour smiled
With flow'rets decked and fragrant smells : but Eve
Undecked, save with her self, more lovely fair 380
Than wood-nymph, or the fairest goddess feigned
Of three that in Mount Ida naked strove,¹
Stood to entertain her guest from heav'n ; no veil
She needed, virtue-proof ; no thought infirm
Altered her cheek. On whom the angel " Hail "
Bestowed, the holy salutation used
Long after to blest Mary, second Eve.

" Hail, mother of mankind, whose fruitful womb
Shall fill the world more numerous with thy sons,
Than with these various fruits the trees of God 390
Have heaped this table." Raised of grassy turf
Their table was, and mossy seats had round,
And on her ample square from side to side
All autumn piled, though spring and autumn here
Danced hand in hand. A while discourse they hold,
(No fear lest dinner cool,) when thus began
Our author : " Heav'nly stranger, please to taste
These bounties which our Nourisher, from whom
All perfect good unmeasured out descends,
To us for food and for delight hath caused 400
The earth to yield ; unsavoury food, perhaps,
To spiritual natures : only this I know,
That one celestial Father gives to all."

To whom the angel : " Therefore what He gives,
Whose praise be ever sung, to man in part
Spiritual, may of purest spirits be found
No ingrateful food : and food alike those pure
Intelligential substances require,

¹ Alluding to the judgment of Paris, when Juno, Minerva and Venus contended for the apple inscribed " To the fairest."

Paradise Lost

As doth your rational ; and both contain
Within them every lower faculty 410
Of sense, whereby they hear, see, smell, touch, taste,
Tasting concoct, digest, assimilate,
And corporeal to incorporeal turn.
For know, whatever was created needs
To be sustained and fed ; of elements
The grosser feeds the purer ; earth the sea ;
Earth and the sea feed air ; the air those fires
Ethereal ; and as lowest first the moon ;
Whence in her visage round those spots, unpurged
Vapours not yet into her substance turned. 420
Nor doth the moon no nourishment exhale
From her moist continent to higher orbs.
The sun, that light imparts to all, receives
From all his alimential recompense
In humid exhalations, and at even Supps with the ocean. Though in heav'n the trees ¹
Of life ambrosial fruitage bear, and vines
Yield nectar ; tho' from off the boughs each morn
We brush mellifluous dews, and find the ground
Covered with pearly grain ; ² yet GOD hath here 430
Varied His bounty so with new delights,
As may compare with heaven ; and to taste
Think not I shall be nice." So down they sat,
And to their viands fell ; nor seemingly
The Angel, nor in mist, the common gloss
Of theologians, but with keen dispatch
Of real hunger, and concoctive heat
To transubstantiate : what redounds, transpires
Through spirits with ease ; nor wonder ; if by fire
Of sooty coal the empiric alchymist 440
Can turn, or holds it possible to turn,
Metals of drossiest ore to perfect gold
As from the mine. Meanwhile at table Eve
Ministered naked, and their flowing cups
With pleasant liquors crowned. O innocence
Deserving Paradise ! if ever, then,

Paradise Lost

Then had the sons of GOD excuse to have been Enamoured at that sight ; but in those hearts
Love unlibidinous reigned, nor jealousy
Was understood, the injured lover's hell. 450

Thus when with meats and drinks they had sufficed,
Not burdened nature, sudden mind arose
In Adam, not to let th' occasion pass,
Given him by this great conference, to know
Of things above his world, and of their being
Who dwell in heav'n, whose excellence he saw
Transcend his own so far ; whose radiant forms,
Divine effulgence, whose high power so far
Exceeded human ; and his wary speech
Thus to th' empyreal minister he framed : 460

“ Inhabitant with GOD, now know I well
Thy favour, in this honour done to Man,
Under whose lowly roof thou hast vouchsafed
To enter, and these earthly fruits to taste,
Food not of Angels, yet accepted so,
As that more willingly thou could'st not seem
At heav'n's high feasts to have fed : yet what compare ? ”

To whom the wingèd Hierarch replied :
“ O Adam, one Almighty is, from whom
All things proceed, and up to Him return, 470
If not depraved from good, created all
Such to perfection, one first matter all,
Indued with various forms, various degrees
Of substance, and, in things that live, of life:
But more refined, more spirituous, and pure,
As nearer to Him placed, or nearer tending,
Each in their several active spheres assigned,
Till body up to spirit work, in bounds
Proportioned to each kind. So from the root
Springs lighter the green stalk, from thence the leaves
More aery, last the bright consummate flow'r [480
Spirits odorous breathes ; flowers and their fruit,

To vital spirits aspire, to animal,
To intellectual, give both life and sense,

Paradise Lost

Fancy and understanding ; whence the soul
Reason receives, and reason is her being,
Discursive or intuitive ; discourse
Is ofttest yours, the latter most is ours,
Differing but in degree, of kind the same. 490
Wonder not then, what God for you saw good
If I refuse not, but convert, as you,
To proper substance : time may come, when men
With Angels may participate, and find
No inconvenient diet, nor too light fare :
And from these corporal nutriments perhaps
Your bodies may at last turn all to spirit,
Improved by tract of time, and winged ascend
Ethereal, as we, or may at choice
Here or in heav'nly Paradises dwell ; 500
If ye be found obedient, and retain Unalterably firm His love entire,
Whose progeny you are. Meanwhile enjoy
Your fill what happiness this happy state
Can comprehend, incapable of more."

To whom the patriarch of mankind replied :
"O favourable spirit, propitious guest,
Well hast thou taught the way that might direct
Our knowledge, and the scale of nature set
From centre to circumference, whereon 510
In contemplation of created things
By steps we may ascend to God. But say,
What meant that caution joined, If ye be found Obedient? Can we want obedience then
To Him, or possibly His love desert,
Who formed us from the dust and placed us here
Full to the utmost measure of what bliss
Human desires can seek or apprehend? "

To whom the angel : "Son of heav'n and earth,
Attend : that thou art happy, owe to God ; 520
That thou continu'st such, owe to thyself,
That is, to thy obedience ; therein stand.
This was that caution given thee ; be advised.
God made thee perfect, not immutable ;
And good He made thee, but to persevere

Paradise Lost

He left it in thy power ; ordained thy will
By nature free, not over-ruled by fate
Inextricable, or strict necessity :
Our voluntary service He requires,
Not our necessitated, such with Him 530
Finds no acceptance, nor can find ; for how Can hearts, not free, be tried whether they serve Willing or no, who will but what they must
By destiny, and can no other choose ?
Myself and all th' angelic host, that stand
In sight of GOD enthroned, our happy state
Hold, as you yours, while our obedience holds ;
On other surety none : freely we serve,
Because we freely love, as in our will
To love or not ; in this we stand or fall. 540
And some are fall'n, to disobedience fall'n,
And so from heaven to deepest hell : O fall
From what high state of bliss into what woe ! ”

To whom our great progenitor : “ Thy words
Attentive, and with more delighted ear,
Divine instructor, I have heard, than when Cherubic songs by night from neighbouring hills
Aerial music send : nor knew I not
To be both will and deed created free ;
Yet that we never shall forget to love 550
Our Maker, and obey Him whose command
Single is yet so just, my constant thoughts
Assured me, and still assure : though what thou tell'st
Hath past in heav'n, some doubt within me move,
But more desire to hear, if thou consent,
The full relation, which must needs be strange,
Worthy of sacred silence to be heard ;
And we have yet large day, for scarce the sun
Hath finished half his journey, and scarce begins
His other half in the great zone of heav'n.” 560

Thus Adam made request, and Raphael,
After short pause assenting, thus began :

“ High matter thou enjoin'st me, O prime of men,
Sad task and hard ; for how shall I relate
To human sense th' invisible exploits

Paradise Lost

Of warring spirits ? how without remorse
The ruin of so many, glorious once
And perfect while they stood ? how last unfold
The secrets of another world, perhaps
Not lawful to reveal ? yet for thy good 570
This is dispensed ; and what surmounts the reach
Of human sense I shall delineate so,
By lik'ning spiritual to corporal forms,
As may express them best ; though what if earth
Be but the shadow of heav'n ; and things therein
Each to other like, more than on earth is thought ?

“ As yet this world was not, and Chaos wild Reigned where these heav'ns now roll, where earth
now rests

Upon her centre poised, when on a day,
For time, though in eternity, applied 580
To motion, measures all things durable
By present, past, and future ; on such day
As heav'n's great year¹ brings forth, th' empyreal host²
Of angels, by imperial summons called,
Innumerable before th' Almighty's throne
Forthwith from all the ends of heav'n appeared :
Under their hierarchs in orders bright
Ten thousand thousand ensigns high advanced,
Standards and gonfalons 'twixt van and rear
Stream in the air, and for distinction serve 590
Of hierarchies, of orders, and degrees :
Or in their glittering tissues bear imblazed
Holy memorials, acts of zeal and love
Recorded eminent. Thus when in orbs
Of circuit inexpressible they stood,
Orb within orb, the Father infinite,
By whom in bliss imbosomed sat the Son,
Amidst as from a flaming mount, whose top
Brightness had made invisible, thus spake :

“ Hear, all ye Angels, progeny of light, 600
Thrones, Dominations, Princedoms, Virtues, Powers,

Paradise Lost

Hear my decree,¹ which unrevoked shall stand.
This day I have begot whom I declare
My only Son, and on this holy hill
Him have anointed, whom ye now behold
At my right hand ; your head I him appoint ;
And by my Self have sworn to him shall bow
All knees in heav'n, and shall confess him Lord.

For ever happy : him who disobeys
Me disobeys, breaks union, and, that day
Cast out from GOD and blessed vision, falls
Into utter darkness, deep ingulfed, his place
Ordained without redemption, without end.'

"So spake th' Omnipotent, and with His words
All seemed well pleased ; all seemed, but were not all.
That day, as other solemn days, they spent
In song and dance about the sacred hill,
Mystical dance, which yonder starry sphere
Of planets and of fixed in all her wheels
Resembles nearest, mazes intricate,
Eccentric, intervolved, yet regular
Then most, when most irregular they seem ;
And in their motions harmony divine
So smooths her charming tones, that GOD's own ear
Listens delighted. Ev'ning now approached,
For we have also our ev'ning and our morn,
We ours for change delectable, not need ;
Forthwith from dance to sweet repast they turn
Desirous ; all in circles as they stood,
Tables are set, and on a sudden piled
With angels' food, and rubied nectar flows,
In pearl, in diamond, and massy gold ;
Fruit of delicious vines, the growth of heav'n.
On flow'rs reposed and with fresh flowerets crowned,
They eat, they drink, and in communion sweet
Quaff immortality and joy, secure
Of surfeit where full measure only bounds
Excess, before th' all-bounteous King, who show'ed

Paradise Lost

With copious hand, rejoicing in their joy.
Now when ambrosial night with clouds exhaled
From that high mount of GOD, whence light and shade

Spring both, the face of brightest heav'n had changed
To grateful twilight, (for night comes not there
In darker veil,) and roseate dews disposed
All but the unsleeping eyes of GOD to rest;¹
Wide over all the plain, and wider far
Than all this globous earth in plain outspread,
Such are the courts of GOD, th' angelic throng 650
Dispersed in bands and files, their camp extend
By living streams among the trees of life,² Pavilions numberless and sudden rear'd,
Celestial tabernacles, where they slept
Fanned with cool winds, save those who in their

Melodious hymns about the sov'reign throne

Satan—so call him now, his former name
Is heard no more in heav'n—he of the first
If not the first Archangel, great in power, 660
In favour and pre-eminence, yet fraught
With envy against the Son of GOD, that day
Honoured by his great Father, and proclaimed
Messiah King anointed, could not bear
Thro' pride that sight, and thought himself impaired.
Deep malice thence conceiving and disdain,
Soon as midnight brought on the dusky hour
Friendliest to sleep and silence, he resolved
With all his legions to dislodge, and leave
Unworshipped, unobeyed, the throne supreme, 670
Contemptuous; and his next subordinate
Awak'ning, thus to him in secret spake:

“Sleep'st thou, companion dear? what sleep can close

Of yesterday so late hath past the lips
Of heav'n's Almighty? Thou to me thy thoughts

Paradise Lost

Wast wont, I mine to thee was wont to impart :
Both waking we were one ; how then can now
Thy sleep dissent ? new laws thou see'st imposed ;
New laws from Him who reigns new minds may raise
In us who serve, new counsels, to debate [680
What doubtful may ensue ; more in this place
To utter is not safe. Assemble thou
Of all those myriads which we lead the chief :
Tell them, that by command, ere yet dim Night

And all who under me their banners wave,
Homeward with flying march, where we possess
The quarters of the north,¹ there to prepare
Fit entertainment to receive our King 690
The great Messiah, and his new commands ;
Who speedily through all the hierarchies
Intends to pass triumphant, and give laws.'

"So spake the false Archangel, and infused
Bad influence into th' unwary breast
Of his associate ; he together calls,
Or several one by one, the regent Powers,
Under him regent, tells, as he was taught,
That, the Most High commanding, now ere night,
Now ere dim night had disincumbered heav'n, 700

In Shakespeare, First Part of Henry VI. Act V. Scene 3, Joan of Arc, addressing the fiends, calls them,— i.e. the devil. This was probably in accordance with popular superstition, which actually gave an ill name to the north side of even a churchyard.

Paradise Lost

The starry flock, allured them, and with lies
Drew after him the third part of heav'n's host.¹ 710

“Meanwhile th’ eternal Eye, whose sight discerns Abstrusest thoughts, from forth His holy mount,
And from within the golden lamps² that burn
Nightly before Him, saw without their light
Rebellion rising, saw in whom, how spread
Among the sons of morn,³ what multitudes
Were banded to oppose His high decree ;
And, smiling, to His only Son, thus said :

“‘Son, thou in whom my glory I behold
In full resplendence, heir of all my might, 720
Nearly it now concerns us to be sure
Of our omnipotence, and with what arms
We mean to hold what anciently we claim
Of deity or empire ; such a foe
Is rising, who intends to erect his throne
Equal to ours, throughout the spacious north ;
Nor so content, hath in his thought to try
In battle what our power is, or our right.
Let us advise, and to this hazard draw
With speed what force is left, and all employ 730
In our defence, lest unawares we lose
This our high place, our sanctuary, our hill.’

“To whom the Son, with calm aspect and clear,
Light’ning divine, ineffable, serene,
Made answer : ‘Mighty Father, thou thy foes
Justly hast in derision, and secure
Laugh’st at their vain designs and tumult vain,⁴
Matter to me of glory, whom their hate
Illustrates, when they see all regal power
Giv’n me to quell their pride, and in event 740
Know whether I be dextrous to subdue
Thy rebels, or be found the worst in heav’n.’

“So spake the Son : but Satan with his powers
Far was advanced on wingèd speed, an host
Innumerable as the stars of night,

Impearls on every leaf and every flower.
Regions they passed, the mighty regencies
Of Seraphim, and Potentates, and Thrones,
In their triple degrees ; regions to which 750
All thy dominion, Adam, is no more
Than what this garden is to all the earth,
And all the sea, from one entire globose
Stretched into longitude ; which having passed,
At length into the limits of the north
They came, and Satan to his royal seat
High on a hill, far blazing, as a mount
Raised on a mount, with pyramids and tow'rs
From diamond quarries hewn, and rocks of gold,
The palace of great Lucifer ; so call 760
That structure in the dialect of men
Interpreted, which not long after, he,
Affecting all equality with God,
In imitation of that mount¹ whereon
Messiah was declared in sight of heav'n,
The mountain of the congregation called ;
For thither he assembled all his train,
Pretending so commanded to consult
About the great reception of their King,
Thither to come, and with calumnious art 770
Of counterfeited truth thus held their ears :
 "Thrones, Dominations, Princedoms, Virtues, Powers!
If these magnific titles yet remain
Not merely titular, since by decree
Another now hath to himself ingrossed
All power, and us eclipsed under the name
Of King Anointed, for whom all this haste
Of midnight march and hurried meeting here,
This only to consult how we may best
With what may be devised of honours new 780
Receive him, coming to receive from us
Knee-tribute yet unpaid, prostration vile,
Too much to one, but double how endured,
To one and to His image now proclaimed ?
But what if better counsels might erect

Paradise Lost

Our minds, and teach us to cast off this yoke?
Will ye submit your necks, and choose to bend
The supple knee? ye will not, if I trust
To know ye right, or if ye know yourselves
Natives and sons of heav'n, possess before 790
By none, and if not equal all, yet free,
Equally free; for orders and degrees
Jar not with liberty, but well consist.
Who can in reason then or right assume Monarchy over such as live by right
His equals, if in power and splendour less,
In freedom equal? or can introduce
Law and edict on us, who without law
Err not? much less for this to be our Lord,
And look for adoration, to th' abuse 800
Of those imperial titles, which assert
Our being ordained to govern, not to serve?'

"Thus far his bold discourse without control
Had audience, when among the Seraphim
Abdiel, than whom none with more zeal adored
The Deity, and divine commands obeyed,
Stood up, and in a flame of zeal severe
The current of his fury thus opposed:

"'O argument blasphemous, false, and proud,
Words which no ear ever to hear in heav'n 810
Expected, least of all from thee, ingrate,
In place thyself so high above thy peers.
Canst thou with impious obloquy condemn
The just decree of God, pronounced and sworn,
That to His only Son, by right endued
With regal sceptre, every soul in heav'n
Shall bend the knee,¹ and in that honour due
Confess him rightful King? Unjust thou say'st,
Flatly unjust, to bind with laws the free,
And equal over equals to let reign, 820
One over all with unsucceeded power.
Shalt thou give law to God? ² shalt thou dispute
With Him the points of liberty, who made
Thee what thou art, and formed the pow'rs of heav'n

Paradise Lost

Such as He pleased, and circumscribed their being ?
Yet by experience taught we know how good,
And of our good, and of our dignity
How provident He is, how far from thought
To make us less, bent rather to exalt
Our happy state under one head more near 830
United. But to grant it thee unjust,
That equal over equals monarch reign :
Thyself, though great and glorious, dost thou count,
(Or all angelic nature joined in one,)
Equal to him begotten Son, by whom
As by His word the mighty Father made
All things, ev'n thee ; and all the spirits of heav'n
By Him created in their bright degrees,¹
Crowned them with glory, and to their glory named
Thrones, Dominations, Princedoms, Virtues, Powers,
Essential Powers ; nor by his reign obscured, [840
But more illustrious made ; since he the head
One of our number thus reduced becomes ;
His laws our laws, all honour to him done,
Returns our own ? Cease then this impious rage,
And tempt not these ; but hasten to appease
Th' incensèd Father, and th' incensèd Son,² While pardon may be found in time besought.'
"So spake the fervent angel ; but his zeal
None seconded, as out of season judged, 850
Or singular and rash ; whereat rejoiced
Th' Apostate, and more haughty thus replied
" "That we were formed then, say'st thou ? and the

Of secondary hands, by task transferred From Father to His Son ? Strange point and new !
Doctrine which we would know whence learned : who saw
When this creation was ? remember'st thou

Paradise Lost

Had circled his full orb, the birth mature
Of this our native heav'n, ethereal sons.
Our puissance is our own; our own right hand
Shall teach us highest deeds, by proof to try
Who is our equal: then thou shalt behold
Whether by supplication we intend
Address, and to begird th' Almighty throne
Beseeching or besieging. This report,
These tidings carry to the Anointed King; 870
And fly, ere evil intercept thy flight.'

"He said, and as the sound of waters deep,
Hoarse murmur echoed to his words applause
Through the infinite host; nor less for that
The flaming Seraph fearless, though alone,
Encompassed round with foes, thus answered bold:

"O alienate from GOD, O spirit accurst,
Forsaken of all good, I see thy fall
Determined, and thy hapless crew involved 880
In this perfidious fraud, contagion spread
Both of thy crime and punishment. Henceforth
No more be troubled how to quit the yoke
Of GOD'S MESSIAH; those indulgent laws
Will not be now vouchsafed, other decrees
Against thee are gone forth without recall:
That golden sceptre which thou didst reject
Is now an iron rod, to bruise and break
Thy disobedience. Well thou didst advise;
Yet not for thy advice or threats I fly 890
These wicked tents devoted, lest the wrath
Impendent raging into sudden flame
Distinguish not; for soon expect to feel
His thunder on thy head, devouring fire.
Then who created thee lamenting learn,
When who can uncreate thee thou shalt know.'

"So spake the Seraph Abdiel, faithful found
Among the faithless, faithful only he:
Among innumerable false, unmoved,
Unshaken, unseduced, unterrified,
His loyalty he kept, his love, his zeal; 900
Nor number nor example with him wrought

Paradise Lost

To swerve from truth, or change his constant mind,
Though single. From amidst them forth he passed,
Long way through hostile scorn, which he sustained
Superior, nor of violence feared aught ;
And with retorted scorn his back he turned
On those proud tow'rs to swift destruction doomed."

BOOK VI.

THE ARGUMENT.

Raphael continues to relate how Michael and Gabriel were sent forth to battle against Satan and his angels. The first fight described : Satan and his powers retire under night : he calls a council, invents devilish engines, which in the second day's fight put Michael and his angels to some disorder ; but they at length, pulling up mountains, overwhelmed both the force and machines of Satan ; yet the tumult not so ending, God on the third day sends Messiah His Son, for whom He had reserved the glory of that victory. He in the power of His Father coming to the place, and causing all His legions to stand still on either side, with His chariot and thunder driving into the midst of His enemies, pursues them unable to resist towards the wall of heaven ; which opening, they leap down with horror and confusion into the place of punishment prepared for them in the deep. Messiah returns with triumph to His Father.

“ALL night the dreadless angel unpursued 1
Through heav'n's wide campaign held his way, till Morn,
Waked by the circling hours, with rosy hand
Unbarred the gates of light. There is a cave
Within the mount of GOD, fast by His throne,
Where light and darkness in perpetual round
Lodge and dislodge by turns, which makes through heav'n

Grateful vicissitude, like day and night :
Light issues forth, and at the other door
Obsequious darkness enters, till her hour 10
To veil the heav'n, though darkness there might well
Seem twilight here ; and now went forth the Morn,
Such as in highest heav'n, arrayed in gold
Empyrean, from before her vanished Night,
Shot through with orient beams : when all the plain
Covered with thick embattled squadrons bright,
Chariots, and flaming arms, and fiery steeds,
Reflecting blaze on blaze, first met his view.
War he perceived, war in procinct, and found
Already known what he for news had thought 20
To have reported : gladly then he mixed
Among those friendly Powers, who him received
With joy and acclamations loud, that one,
That of so many myriads fall'n yet one

Paradise Lost

Returned not lost. On to the sacred hill
They led him high applauded, and present
Before the seat supreme ; from whence a voice
From midst a golden cloud thus mild was heard :
“ ‘ Servant of GOD, well done ! Well hast thou fought
The better fight, who single hast maintained 30
Against revolted multitudes the cause
Of truth, in word mightier than they in arms ;
And for the testimony of truth hast borne
Universal reproach, far worse to bear
Than violence : for this was all thy care,
To stand approved in sight of GOD, though worlds
Judged thee perverse. The easier conquest now
Remains thee, aided by this host of friends,
Back on thy foes more glorious to return
Than scorned thou didst depart, and to subdue 40
By force, who reason for their law refuse,
Right reason for their law, and for their King
Messiah, who by right of merit reigns.
Go, Michael, of celestial armies prince,
And thou, in military prowess next,
Gabriel, lead forth to battle these my sons
Invincible ! lead forth my armèd Saints
By thousands and by millions ranged for fight ;
Equal in number to that godless crew
Rebellious ; them with fire and hostile arms 50
Fearless assault, and to the brow of heav’n
Pursuing drive them out from GOD and bliss,
Into their place of punishment, the gulf
Of Tartarus, which ready opens wide
His fiery chaos to receive their fall.’

“ So spake the Sov’reign Voice, and clouds began
To darken all the hill, and smoke to roll
In dusky wreaths, reluctant flames, the sign
Of wrath awaked : nor with less dread the loud
Ethereal trumpet from on high ’gan blow : 60
At which command the Powers militant
That stood for heav’n, in mighty quadrate joined
Of union irresistible, moved on
In silence their bright legions, to the sound

Paradise Lost

Of instrumental harmony, that breathed
Heroic ardour to adventurous deeds,
Under their godlike leaders, in the cause
Of GOD and His Messiah. On they move
Indissolubly firm ; nor obvious hill,
Nor strait'ning vale, nor wood, nor stream, divides 70
Their perfect ranks ; for high above the ground
Their march was, and the passive air upbore
Their nimble tread ; as when the total kind
Of birds in orderly array on wing
Came summoned over Eden to receive
Their names of thee : so over many a tract
Of heav'n they marched, and many a province wide
Tenfold the length of this terrene. At last,
Far in the horizon to the north appeared
From skirt to skirt a fiery region, stretched 80
In battailous aspect, and nearer view
Bristled with upright beams innumerable
Of rigid spears, and helmets thronged, and shields
Various, with boastful argument portrayed,¹
The banded powers of Satan hasting on
With furious expedition ; for they weened
That self-same day, by fight or by surprise,
To win the mount of GOD, and on His throne
To set the envier of His state, the proud
Aspirer ; but their thoughts proved fond and vain 90
In the mid way. Though strange to us it seemed
At first, that angel should with angel war,
And in fierce hosting² meet, who wont to meet
So oft in festivals of joy and love
Unanimous, as sons of one great Sire,
Hymning th' eternal Father ; but the shout
Of battle now began,³ and rushing sound
Of onset ended soon each milder thought.
High in the midst, exalted as a god,
The apostate in his sun-bright chariot sat, 100

Paradise Lost

Idol¹ of Majesty divine, enclosed
With flaming Cherubim and golden shields :
Then lighted from his gorgeous throne, for now
'Twixt host and host but narrow space was left,
A dreadful interval, and front to front
Presented stood in terrible array
Of hideous length : before the cloudy van,
On the rough edge of battle ere it joined,
Satan, with vast and haughty strides advanced,
Came tow'ring, armed in adamant and gold : 110
Abdiel that sight endured not, where he stood
Among the mightiest, bent on highest deeds,
And thus his own undaunted heart explores :

“ ‘O heav'n ! that such resemblance of the Highest Should yet remain, where faith and realtà²
Remain not ; wherefore should not strength and might There fail where virtue fails, or weakest prove
Where boldest, though to sight unconquerable ?
His puissance, trusting in Almighty's aid,
I mean to try, whose reason I have tried 120
Unsound and false ; nor is it aught but just
That he, who in debate of truth hath won,
Should win in arms, in both disputes alike
Victor : though brutish that contést and foul,
When reason hath to deal with force, yet so
Most reason is that reason overcome.’

“So pondering, and, from his armèd peers
Forth stepping opposite, half way he met
His daring foe, at this prevention more
Incensed, and thus securely him defied : 130

“ ‘Proud, art thou met ? thy hope was to have reached
The highth of thy aspiring unopposed,
The throne of God unguarded, and His side
Abandoned at the terror of thy power
Or potent tongue : Fool ! not to think how vain
Against th' Omnipotent to rise in arms ;
Who out of smallest things could without end
Have raised incessant armies to defeat
Thy folly ; or, with solitary hand

Paradise Lost

Reaching beyond all limit, at one blow 140
Unaided could have finished thee, and whelmed
Thy legions under darkness : but thou seest
All are not of thy train ; there be, who faith
Prefer and piety to GOD ; though then
To thee not visible, when I alone
Seemed in thy world erroneous to dissent
From all : my sect thou seest ; now learn too late
How few sometimes may know, when thousands err.’
“ Whom the grand foe, with scornful eye askance,
Thus answered : ‘ Ill for thee, but in wished hour 150
Of my revenge, first sought for, thou return’st
From flight, seditious angel, to receive
Thy merited reward, the first assay
Of this right hand provoked, since first that tongue
Inspired with contradiction durst oppose
A third part of the gods, in synod met
Their deities to assert, who while they feel Vigour divine within them, can allow Omnipotence to none. But well thou com’st
Before thy fellows, ambitious to win 160
From me some plume, that thy success may show
Destruction to the rest : this pause between,
Unanswered lest thou boast, to let thee know,
At first I thought that liberty and heav’n
To heav’nly souls had been all one ; but now
I see that most through sloth had rather serve,
Minist’ring spirits, trained up in feast and song ;
Such hast thou armed, the minstrelsy of heav’n,
Servility with freedom to contend,
As both their deeds compared this day shall prove.’ 170
“ To whom in brief thus Abdiel stern replied :
‘ Apostate, still thou err’st, nor end wilt find
Of erring, from the path of truth remote :
Unjustly thou deprav’st it with the name
Of servitude to serve whom GOD ordains,
Or Nature ; GOD and Nature bid the same,
When he who rules is worthiest, and excels
Them whom he governs. This is servitude,
To serve th’ unwise, or him who hath rebelled

Paradise Lost

Against his worthier, as thine now serve thee, 180
Thyself not free, but to thyself enthralled ;
Yet lewdly dar'st our minist'ring upbraid.
Reign thou in hell, thy kingdom ; let me serve
In heav'n God ever blessed, and His divine
Behests obey, worthiest to be obeyed ;
Yet chains in hell, not realms expect : meanwhile
From me returned, as erst thou saidst, from flight,
'This greeting on thy impious crest receive.'

"So saying, a noble stroke he lifted high,
Which hung not, but so swift with tempest fell 190
On the proud crest of Satan, that no sight,
Nor motion of swift thought, less could his shield
Such ruin intercept : ten paces huge
He back recoiled ; the tenth on bended knee
His massy spear upstayed ; as if on earth
Winds under ground or waters, forcing way,
Sidelong had pushed a mountain from his seat,
Half sunk with all his pines. Amazement seized
The rebel thrones, but greater rage to see
Thusfoiled their mightiest ; ours joy filled, and shout, 200
Presage of victory, and fierce desire
Of battle : whereat Michaël bid sound
The Archangel trumpet ; through the vast of heav'n
It sounded, and the faithful armies rung
Hosanna to the Highest : nor stood at gaze
The adverse legions, nor less hideous joined
The horrid shock. Now storming fury rose,
And clamour, such as heard in heav'n till now
Was never ; arms on armour clashing brayed
Horrible discord, and the madding wheels 210
Of brazen chariots raged ; dire was the noise
Of conflict ; over head the dismal hiss
Of fiery darts in flaming volleys flew,
And flying vaulted either host with fire.
So under fiery cope together rushed
Both battles main, with ruinous assault
And inextinguishable rage ; all heav'n
Resounded, and had earth been then, all earth
Had to her centre shook. What wonder ? when

Paradise Lost

Millions of fierce encount'ring angels fought 220
On either side, the least of whom could wield
These elements, and arm him with the force
Of all their regions : how much more of power
Army against army numberless to raise
Dreadful combustion warring, and disturb,
Though not destroy, their happy native seat ;
Had not the eternal King omnipotent
From His strong hold of heav'n high overruled
And limited their might ; though numbered such,
As each divided legion might have seemed 230
A numerous host ; in strength each armèd hand
A legion ; led in fight, yet leader seemed
Each warrior single as in chief, expert
When to advance, or stand, or turn the sway
Of battle, open when, and when to close
The ridges of grim war ; no thought of flight,
None of retreat, no unbecoming deed
That argued fear ; each on himself relied,
As only in his arm the moment lay
Of victory : deeds of eternal fame 240
Were done, but infinite ; for wide was spread
That war, and various : sometimes on firm ground
A standing fight ; then, soaring on main wing,
Tormented all the air ; all air seemed then Conflicting fire. Long time in even scale
The battle hung ; till Satan, who that day
Prodigious power had shown, and met in arms
No equal, ranging through the dire attack
Of fighting Seraphim confused, at length
Saw where the sword of Michael smote, and felled 250
Squadrons at once ; with huge two-handed sway
Brandished aloft, the horrid edge came down
Wide wasting : such destruction to withstand
He hasted, and opposed the rocky orb
Of tenfold adamant, his ample shield,
A vast circumference. At his approach
The great Archangel from his warlike toil
Surceased ; and glad, as hoping here to end
Intestine war in heav'n, th' arch-foe subdued

Paradise Lost

Or captive dragged in chains, with hostile frown 260
And visage all inflamed, first thus began :

“ ‘Author of evil, unknown till thy revolt,
Unnamed in heav’n ; now plenteous, as thou seest,
These acts of hateful strife, hateful to all,
Though heaviest by just measure on thyself
And thy adherents : how hast thou disturbed
Heav’n’s blessed peace, and into nature brought Misery, uncreated till the crime
Of thy rebellion ! how hast thou instilled
Thy malice into thousands, once upright 270
And faithful, now proved false ! But think not here
To trouble holy rest ; heav’n casts thee out
From all her confines : heav’n, the seat of bliss,
Brooks not the works of violence and war.
Hence then, and evil go with thee along,
Thy offspring, to the place of evil, hell ;
Thou and thy wicked crew : there mingle broils,
Ere this avenging sword begin thy doom,
Or some more sudden vengeance winged from God
Precipitate thee with augmented pain.’ 280

“ So spake the prince of angels ; to whom thus
The adversary : ‘ Nor think thou with wind
Of airy threats to awe whom yet with deeds
Thou canst not. Hast thou turned the least of these
To flight, or if to fall, but that they rise
Unvanquished ? easier to transact with me
That thou shouldst hope, imperious, and with threats
To chase me hence ? err not that so shall end
The strife which thou call’st evil, but we style
The strife of glory : which we mean to win, 290
Or turn this heav’n itself into the hell
Thou fablest ; here, however, to dwell free,
If not to reign : meanwhile thy utmost force,
And join Him named Almighty to thy aid,
I fly not, but have sought thee far and nigh.’

“ They ended parle, and both addressed for fight
Unspeakable ; for who, though with the tongue
Of angels, can relate, or to what things
Likened on earth conspicuous, that may lift

Paradise Lost

Human imagination to such highth 300
Of godlike power? for likest gods they seemed,
Stood they or moved, in stature, motion, arms,
Fit to decide the empire of great heav'n.
Now waved their fiery swords, and in the air
Made horrid circles; two broad suns their shields
Blazed opposite, while expectation stood
In horror; from each hand with speed retired,
Where erst was thickest fight, th' angelic throng,
And left large field, unsafe within the wind
Of such commotion, such as, to set forth 310
Great things by small, if, nature's concord broke,
Among the constellations war were sprung,
Two planets, rushing from aspect malign
Of fiercest opposition, in mid sky
Should combat, and their jarring spheres confound.
Together both, with next to Almighty arm,
Uplifted imminent, one stroke they aimed
That might determine, and not need repeat,
As not of power, at once; nor odds appeared
In might or swift prevention; but the sword 320
Of Michael from the armoury of God
Was giv'n him tempered so, that neither keen
Nor solid might resist that edge: it met
The sword of Satan with steep force to smite
Descending, and in half cut sheer; nor stayed,
But with swift wheel reverse, deep ent'ring, shared
All his right side; then Satan first knew pain,
And writhed him to and fro convolved; so sore
The griding sword with discontinuous wound
Passed thro' him, but th' ethereal substance closed, 330
Not long divisible, and from the gash
A stream of nectarous humour issuing flowed
Sanguine, such as celestial spirits may bleed,¹
And all his armour stained, erewhile so bright.
Forthwith on all sides to his aid was run
By angels many and strong, who interposed
Defence, while others bore him on their shields

¹ Homer calls the blood of the gods ichor, and describes it as differing from human blood, as Milton does that of Satan the Archangel.

Paradise Lost

Back to his chariot ; where it stood retired
From off the files of war : there they him laid,
Gnashing for anguish, and despite, and shame, 340
To find himself not matchless, and his pride
Humbled by such rebuke, so far beneath
His confidence to equal God in power.
Yet soon he healed ; for spirits that live throughout
Vital in every part, not as frail man
In entrails, heart or head, liver or reins,
Cannot but by annihilating die ;
Nor in their liquid texture mortal wound
Receive, no more than can the fluid air :
All heart they live, all head, all eye, all ear, 350
All intellect, all sense, and as they please
They limb themselves, and colour, shape, or size
Assume, as likes them best, condense or rare.
“ Meanwhile in other parts like deeds deserved
Memorial, where the might of Gabriel fought,
And with fierce ensigns pierced the deep array
Of Moloch, furious king, who him defied,
And at his chariot wheels to drag him bound
Threatened, nor from the Holy One of heav’n
Refrained his tongue blasphemous ; but anon, 360
Down cloven to the waist, with shattered arms
And uncouth pain fled bellowing. On each wing
Uriel and Raphael, his vaunting foe,
Though huge, and in a rock of diamond armed,
Vanquished, Adrameleck¹ and Asmadai,²
Two potent thrones, that to be less than gods
Disdained, but meaner thoughts learned in their flight,
Mangled with ghastly wounds thro’ plate and mail.
Nor stood unmindful Abdiel to annoy
The atheist crew, but with redoubled blow 370
Ariel, and Arioc, and the violence
Of Ramiel scorched and blasted, overthrew.
I might relate of thousands, and their names
Eternise here on earth ; but those elect
Angels, contented with their fame in heav’n,

² The same as Asmodeus, the persecutor of Sara in Tobit.

Paradise Lost

Seek not the praise of men : the other sort,
In might though wondrous and in acts of war,
Nor of renown less eager, yet by doom
Cancelled from heav'n and sacred memory,
Nameless in dark oblivion let them dwell. 380
For strength from truth divided and from just,
Illaudable, naught merits but dispraise
And ignominy ; yet to glory aspires
Vainglorious, and through infamy seeks fame :
Therefore eternal silence be their doom.

“ And now, their mightiest quelled, the battle swerved,
With many an inroad gored ; deformed rout
Entered, and foul disorder : all the ground
With shivered armour strown, and on a heap
Chariot and charioteer lay overturned, 390
And fiery foaming steeds ; what stood, recoiled
O'erwearied, through the faint Satanic host
Defensive scarce, or with pale fear surprised,
Then first with fear surprised, and sense of pain,
Fled ignominious, to such evil brought
By sin of disobedience, till that hour
Not liable to fear, or flight, or pain.
Far otherwise th' inviolable saints,
In cubic phalanx, firm advanced entire,
Invulnerable, impenetrably armed : 400
Such high advantages their innocence
Gave them above their foes, not to have sinned,
Not to have disobeyed ; in fight they stood
Unwearied, unobnoxious to be pained
By wound, tho' from their place by violence moved.

“ Now Night her course began, and, over heav'n
Inducing darkness, grateful truce imposed,
And silence on the odious din of war :
Under her cloudy covert both retired,
Victor and vanquished. On the foughten field 410
Michael and his Angels prevalent
Encamping, placed in guard their watches round
Cherubic waving fires : on the other part,
Satan with his rebellious disappeared,
Far in the dark dislodged ; and, void of rest,

Paradise Lost

His potentates to council called by night ;
And in the midst thus undismayed began :
“ ‘ O now in danger tried, now known in arms
Not to be overpowered, companions dear,
Found worthy not of liberty alone, 420
Too mean pretence, but what we more affect,
Honour, dominion, glory, and renown ;
Who have sustained one day in doubtful fight,
—And if one day, why not eternal days?—
What heaven’s Lord had powerfullest to send Against us from about His throne, and judged
Sufficient to subdue us to His will,
But proves not so : then fallible, it seems,
Of future we may deem Him, though till now
Omniscient thought. True is, less firmly armed, 430
Some disadvantage we endured and pain,
Till now not known, but known, as soon contemned ;
Since now we find this our empyreal form
Incapable of mortal injury,
Imperishable, and though pierced with wound
Soon closing, and by native vigour healed.
Of evil then so small, as easy think
The remedy ; perhaps more valid arms,
Weapons more violent, when next we meet,
May serve to better us, and worse our foes, 440
Or equal what between us made the odds,
In nature none : if other hidden cause
Left them superior, while we can preserve
Unhurt our minds and understanding sound,
Due search and consultation will disclose.’
“ He sat ; and in th’ assembly next upstood
Nisroch,¹ of principalities the prime ;
As one he stood escaped from cruel fight,
Sore toiled, his riven arms to havock hewn ;
And cloudy in aspect thus answering spake : 450
“ ‘ Deliverer from new lords, leader to free
Enjoyment of our right as gods ; yet hard
For gods, and too unequal work we find

¹ Nisroch was worshipped by the Assyrians. It was in his temple that Sennacherib was slain by his two sons. See 2 Kings xix. 37.

Paradise Lost

Against unequal arms to fight in pain,
Against unpained, impassive ; from which evil
Ruin must needs ensue, for what avails
Valour or strength, though matchless, quelled with pain,
Which all subdues, and makes remiss the hand
Of mightiest ? sense of pleasure we may well
Spare out of life perhaps, and not repine, 460
But live content, which is the calmest life :
But pain is perfect misery, the worst
Of evils, and excessive overturns
All patience. He who therefore can invent
With what more forcible we may offend
Our yet unwounded enemies, or arm
Ourselves with like defence, to me deserves
No less than for deliverance what we owe.'

"Whereto with look composed Satan replied :
'Not uninvented that, which thou aright 470
Believ'st so main to our success, I bring :
Which of us who beholds the bright surface
Of this ethereous mould whereon we stand,
This continent of spacious heav'n, adorned
With plant, fruit, flow'r ambrosial, gems, and gold ;
Whose eye so superficially surveys
These things, as not to mind from whence they grow
Deep under ground, materials dark and crude,
Of spirituous and fiery spume, till touched
With heaven's ray, and tempered they shoot forth 480
So beauteous, op'ning to the ambient light ?
These in their dark nativity the deep
Shall yield us, pregnant with infernal flame ;
Which into hollow engines long and round,
Thick-rammed, at the other bore with touch of fire
Dilated and infuriate, shall send forth
From far, with thund'ring noise, among our foes
Such implements of mischief, as shall dash
To pieces and o'erwhelm whatever stands
Adverse, that they shall fear we have disarmed 490
The Thunderer of His only dreaded bolt.
Nor long shall be our labour ; yet ere dawn,
Effect shall end our wish. Meanwhile revive :

Paradise Lost

Abandon fear ; to strength and counsel joined Think nothing hard, much less to be despaired.'

"He ended, and his words their drooping cheer
Enlightened, and their languished hope revived.
The invention all admired, and each, how he
To be th' inventor missed, so easy it seemed Once found, which yet unfound most would have thought 500

Impossible : yet haply of thy race
In future days, if malice should abound,
Some one intent on mischief, or inspired
With dev'lish machination, might devise
Like instrument, to plague the sons of men
For sin, on war and mutual slaughter bent.
Forthwith from council to the work they flew,
None arguing stood ; innumerable hands
Were ready ; in a moment up they turned 510
Wide the celestial soil, and saw beneath
The originals of nature in their crude
Conception : sulphurous and nitrous foam
They found, they mingled, and with subtle art
Concocted and adusted, they reduced
To blackest grain, and into store conveyed.
Part hidden veins digged up, nor hath this earth
Entrails unlike, of mineral and stone,
Whereof to found their engines and their balls
Of missive ruin ; part incentive reed
Provide, pernicious with one touch to fire. 520
So all ere day-spring, under conscious night,
Secret they finished and in order set,
With silent circumspection unespied.

"Now when fair morn orient in heav'n appeared,
Up rose the victor Angels, and to arms
The matin trumpet sung : in arms they stood
Of golden panoply, refulgent host,
Soon banded : others from the dawning hills
Looked round, and scouts each coast light-armèd scour
Each quarter, to descry the distant foe, 530
Where lodged, or whither fled, or if for fight,
In motion or in halt : him soon they met,

Paradise Lost

Under spread ensigns moving nigh, in slow
But firm battalion : back with speediest sail
Zophiel, of Cherubim the swiftest wing,
Came flying, and in mid air aloud thus cried :

“ ‘ Arm, warriors, arm for fight ! the foe at hand,
Whom fled we thought, will save us long pursuit
This day ; fear not his flight ; so thick a cloud
He comes, and settled in his face I see 540
Sad resolution and secure : let each
His adamantine coat gird well, and each
Fit well his helm, gripe fast his orbèd shield,
Borne ev’n or high ; for this day will pour down,
If I conjecture aught, no drizzling show’r,
But rattling storm of arrows barbed with fire.’

“ So warned he them, aware themselves, and soon
In order, quit of all impediment ;
Instant without disturb they took alarm,
And onward moved embattled ; when, behold ! 550
Not distant far, with heavy pace the foe
Approaching gross and huge ; in hollow cube
Training his devilish engin’ry, impaled
On every side with shadowing squadrons deep,
To hide the fraud. At interview both stood
Awhile ; but suddenly at head appeared
Satan ; and thus was heard commanding loud :

“ ‘ Vanguard, to right and left the front unfold ;
That all may see, who hate us, how we seek 560
Peace and composure, and with open breast
Stand ready to receive them, if they like
Our overture, and turn not back perverse ;
But that I doubt ; however, witness heaven,
Heav’n witness thou anon, while we discharge
Freely our part : ye who appointed stand
Do as you have in charge, and briefly touch
What we propound, and loud that all may hear.’

“ So scoffing in ambiguous words, he scarce
Had ended, when to right and left the front 570
Divided, and to either flank retired :
Which to our eyes discovered, new and strange,
A triple mounted row of pillars, laid

Paradise Lost

On wheels, for like to pillars most they seemed
Or hollowed bodies made of oak or fir,
With branches lopped, in wood or mountain felled ;
Brass, iron, stony mould, had not their mouths
With hideous orifice gaped on us wide,
Portending hollow truce ; at each, behind,
A seraph stood, and in his hand a reed
Stood waving tipped with fire ; while we suspense 580
Collected stood within our thoughts amused ;
Not long, for sudden all at once their reeds
Put forth, and to a narrow vent applied
With nicest touch. Immediate in a flame,
But soon obscured with smoke, all heaven appeared,
From those deep-throated engines belched, whose roar
Embowelled with outrageous noise the air,
And all her entrails tore, disgorging foul
Their devilish glut, chained thunderbolts and hail
Of iron globes, which on the victor host 590
Levelled with such impetuous fury smote,
That whom they hit, none on their feet might stand,
Though standing else as rocks ; but down they fell
By thousands, angel on archangel rolled,
The sooner for their arms ; unarmed they might Have easily as spirits evaded swift
By quick contraction or remove : but now
Foul dissipation followed and forced rout ;
Nor served it to relax their serried files.
What should they do ? if on they rushed, repulse 600
Repeated, and indecent overthrow
Doubled, would render them yet more despised,
And to their foes a laughter : for in view
Stood ranked of seraphim another row,
In posture to displode their second tire
Of thunder : back defeated to return
They worse abhorred. Satan beheld their plight,
And to his mates thus in derision called :
“ O friends, why come not on these victors proud ?
Erewhile they fierce were coming, and when we, 610
To entertain them fair with open front
And breast (what could we more ?) propounded terms

Paradise Lost

Of composition, straight they changed their minds,
Flew off, and into strange vagaries fell,
As they would dance : yet for a dance they seemed Somewhat extravagant and wild, perhaps
For joy of offered peace : but I suppose
If our proposals once again were heard,
We should compel them to a quick result.

“To whom thus Belial in like gamesome mood : 620
‘Leader, the terms we sent were terms of weight,
Of hard contents, and full of force urged home ;
Such as we might perceive amused them all,
And stumbled many ; who receives them right,
Had need from head to foot well understand ;
Not understood, this gift they have besides,
They shew us when our foes walk not upright.’

“So they among themselves in pleasant vein
Stood scoffing, heightened in their thoughts beyond
All doubt of victory ; Eternal Might 630
To match with their inventions they presumed
So easy, and of His thunder made a scorn,
And all His host derided, while they stood
Awhile in trouble ; but they stood not long ;
Rage prompted them at length, and found them arms
Against such hellish mischief fit to oppose.
Forthwith—behold the excellence, the power
Which God hath in His mighty angels placed !—
Their arms away they threw, and to the hills,
For earth hath this variety from heav’n 640
Of pleasure situate in hill and dale,
Light as the lightning glimpse they ran, they flew,
From their foundations loos’ning to and fro
They plucked the seated hills with all their load,
Rocks, waters, woods, and by the shaggy tops
Uplifting bore them in their hands. Amaze,
Be sure, and terror seized the rebel host,
When coming towards them so dread they saw
The bottom of the mountains upward turned ;
Till on those cursèd engines’ triple-row 650
They saw them whelmed, and all their confidence
Under the weight of mountains buried deep,

Paradise Lost

Themselves invaded next, and on their heads
Main promontories flung, which in the air
Came shadowing, and oppressed whole legions armed ;
Their armour helped their harm, crushed in and bruised
Into their substance pent, which wrought them pain
Implacable, and many a dolorous groan,
Long struggling underneath, ere they could wind
Out of such prison, though spirits of purest light, 660
Purest at first, now gross by sinning grown.

The rest in imitation to like arms
Betook them, and the neighbouring hills uptore ;
So hills amid the air encountered hills,
Hurled to and fro with jaculation dire,
That under ground they fought in dismal shade ;
Infernal noise ; war seemed a civil game
To this uproar ; horrid confusion heaped
Upon confusion rose : and now all heav'n
Had gone to wrack, with ruin overspread, 670
Had not the Almighty Father, where He sits
Shrined in His sanctuary of heav'n secure,
Consulting on the sum of things, foreseen
This tumult, and permitted all, advised :
That His great purpose He might so fulfil,
To honour His anointed Son avenged
Upon His enemies, and to declare
All power on Him transferred : whence to His Son
The assessor of His throne He thus began :

“ ‘ Effulgence of my glory, Son beloved, 680
Son in whose face, invisible is beheld
Visibly, what by Deity I am,
And in whose hand what by decree I do,
Second Omnipotence ! two days are past,
Two days, as we compute the days of heav'n,
Since Michael and his powers went forth to tame
These disobedient ; sore hath been their fight,
As likeliest was, when two such foes met armed ;
For to themselves I left them, and thou know'st,
Equal in their creation they were formed, 690
Save what sin hath impaired, which yet hath wrought
Insensibly, for I suspend their doom ;

Paradise Lost

Whence in perpetual fight they needs must last
Endless, and no solution will be found.
War wearied hath performed what war can do,
And to disordered rage let loose the reins,
With mountains as with weapons armed, which make Wild work in heav'n and dangerous to the main.
Two days are therefore past, the third is thine ;
For thee I have ordained it, and thus far 700
Have suffered, that the glory may be thine
Of ending this great war, since none but thou
Can end it. Into thee such virtue and grace
Immense I have transfused, that all may know
In heav'n and hell thy power above compare,
And this perverse commotion governed thus,
To manifest thee worthiest to be heir
Of all things, to be heir and to be king
By sacred unction,¹ thy deserved right.
Go then, thou Mightiest, in thy Father's might, 710
Ascend my chariot, guide the rapid wheels
That shake heav'n's basis, bring forth all my war,
My bow and thunder, my almighty arms
Gird on, and sword upon thy puissant thigh ;²
Pursue these sons of darkness, drive them out
From all heav'n's bounds into the utter deep :
There let them learn, as likes them, to despise
God and Messiah His Anointed King.'

"He said, and on His Son with rays direct
Shone full, He all His Father full exprest 720
Ineffably into His face received,
And thus the filial Godhead answering spake :
"O Father, O Supreme of heav'nly thrones,
First, Highest, Holiest, Best, thou always seek'st
To glorify thy Son,³ I always thee,
As is most just ; this I my glory account,
My exaltation, and my whole delight,
That thou in me well pleased declar'st thy will Fulfilled, which to fulfil is all my bliss.
Sceptre, and power, thy giving, I assume, 730
And gladlier shall resign, when in the end

Thou shalt be all in all,¹ and I in thee
For ever, and in me all whom thou lov'st :²
But whom thou hat'st, I hate, and can put on Thy terrors, as I put thy mildness on,
Image of thee in all things ; and shall soon,
Armed with thy might, rid heav'n of these rebelled,
To their prepared ill mansion driven down
To chains of darkness³ and th' undying worm ;⁴
That from thy just obedience could revolt, 740
Whom to obey is happiness entire.
Then shall thy saints unmixed, and from th' impure
Far separate, circling thy holy mount
Unfeignèd hallelujahs to thee sing,
Hymns of high praise, and I among them chief.'
"So said, He, o'er His sceptre bowing, rose
From the right hand of glory where He sat,
And the third sacred morn began to shine,
Dawning through heav'n : forth rushed with whirlwind sound
The chariot of paternal Deity, 750
Flashing thick flames, wheel within wheel undrawn,
Itself instinct with spirit, but convoyed
By four cherubic shapes ; four faces each
Had wondrous ; as with stars their bodies all
And wings were set with eyes ; with eyes the wheels
Of beryl,⁵ and careering fires between ;⁶
Over their heads a crystal firmament,
Whereon a sapphire throne, inlaid with pure
Amber, and colours of the show'ry arch.
He, in celestial panoply all armed 760
Of radiant Urim,⁷ work divinely wrought,
Ascended ; at His right hand Victory
Sate eagle-winged, beside Him hung His bow
And quiver with three-bolted thunder stored,
And from about Him fierce effusion rolled
Of smoke,⁸ and bickering flame, and sparkles dire.

Paradise Lost

Attended with ten thousand thousand saints¹
He onward came, far off His coming shone,
And twenty thousand,² I their number heard,
Chariots of GOD, half on each hand were seen. 770
He on the wings of Cherub rode sublime³
On the crystalline sky, in sapphire throned.
Illustrious far and wide, but by his own
First seen ; them unexpected joy surprised,
When the great ensign of Messiah blazed,
Aloft by angels borne, his sign in heav'n :⁴
Under whose conduct Michael soon reduced
His army, circumfused on either wing,
Under their Head⁵ embodied all in one.
Before Him power divine His way prepared ; 780
At His command the uprooted hills retired
Each to his place, they heard His voice and went Obsequious : Heav'n his wonted face renewed,
And with fresh flow'rets hill and valley smiled.
"This saw his hapless foes, but stood obdured,
And to rebellious fight rallied their powers
Insensate, hope conceiving from despair :
In heav'nly spirits could such perverseness dwell ?
But to convince the proud what signs avail,
Or wonders move the obdurate to relent ? 790
They hardened more by what might most reclaim,
Grieving to see His glory, at the sight
Took envy, and, aspiring to His highth,
Stood reimbattled fierce, by force or fraud
Weening to prosper, and at length prevail
Against God and Messiah, or to fall
In universal ruin last ; and now
To final battle drew, disdaining flight,
Or faint retreat ; when the great Son of GOD
To all His host on either hand thus spake : 800
"Stand still in bright array, ye saints, here stand,
Ye angels armed, this day from battle rest ;
Faithful hath been your warfare, and of GOD
Accepted, fearless in His righteous cause,

And as ye have received, so have ye done
Invincibly : but of this cursèd crew
The punishment to other hand belongs ;
Vengeance is His,¹ or whose He sole appoints :
Number to this day's work is not ordained,
Nor multitude ; stand only and behold 810
God's indignation on these godless poured
By me ; not you, but me they have despised,
Yet envied : against me is all their rage,
Because the Father, t' whom, in heav'n supreme,
Kingdom, and power, and glory appertains,
Hath honoured me according to His will.
Therefore to me their doom He hath assigned ;
That they may have their wish, to try with me
In battle which the stronger proves, they all,
Or I alone against them ; since by strength 820
They measure all, of other excellence
Not emulous, nor care who them excels ;
Nor other strife with them do I vouchsafe.'

"So spake the Son, and into terror changed
His count'nance, too severe to be beheld,
And full of wrath bent on His enemies.
At once the Four² spread out their starry wings
With dreadful shade contiguous, and the orbs
Of His fierce chariot rolled, as with the sound
Of torrent floods, or of a numerous host. 830
He on His impious foes right onward drove,
Gloomy as night ; under His burning wheels
The steadfast empyrean shook throughout,
All but the throne itself of God. Full soon
Among them He arrived, in His right hand
Grasping ten thousand thunders, which He sent Before Him, such as in their souls infixed
Plagues : they, astonished, all resistance lost,
All courage ; down their idle weapons dropped ;
O'er shields, and helms, and helmèd heads He rode
Of Thrones and mighty Seraphim prostrate, [840
That wished the mountains now might be again³

Thrown on them as a shelter from His ire.
Nor less on either side tempestuous fell
His arrows, from the fourfold visaged Four,
Distinct with eyes, and from the living wheels
Distinct alike with multitude of eyes ;
One spirit in them ruled, and every eye
Glared light'ning, and shot forth pernicious fire
Among the accursed, that withered all their strength,
And of their wonted vigour left them drained, [850
Exhausted, spiritless, afflicted, fall'n.
Yet half His strength He put not forth, but checked
His thunder in mid volley, for He meant
Not to destroy, but root them out of heav'n.
The overthrown He raised, and as a herd
Of goats or timorous flock together thronged,
Drove them before Him thunder-struck, pursued
With terrors and with furies to the bounds
And crystal wall of heav'n, which op'ning wide 860
Rolled inward, and a spacious gap disclosed
Into the wasteful deep ; the monstrous sight
Struck them with horror backward ; but far worse
Urged them behind ; headlong themselves they threw Down from the verge of heav'n, eternal wrath
Burned after them to the bottomless pit.
Hell heard th' unsufferable noise, hell saw
Heav'n ruining from heav'n, and would have fled
Affrighted ; but strict Fate had cast too deep
Her dark foundations, and too fast had bound. 870
Nine days they fell ; confounded Chaos roared,
And felt tenfold confusion in their fall
Through his wild anarchy ; so huge a rout
Incumbered him with ruin : hell at last
Yawning received them whole, and on them closed ;
Hell their fit habitation, fraught with fire
Unquenchable, the house of woe and pain.
Disburdened heav'n rejoiced, and soon repaired
Her mural breach, returning whence it rolled.
"Sole victor, from th' expulsion of His foes, 880
Messiah His triumphal chariot turned :
To meet Him all His saints, who silent stood

Eye-witnesses of His almighty acts,
With jubilee advanced ; and, as they went,
Shaded with branching palm, each order bright
Sung triumph, and Him sung victorious King,
Son, Heir, and Lord, to Him dominion giv'n,
Worthiest to reign : He celebrated rode Triumphant through mid heav'n, into the courts
And temple of His mighty Father throned 890
On high ; who into glory Him received,¹
Where now He sits at the right hand of bliss.

“ Thus measuring things in heav'n by things on earth,
At thy request, and that thou may'st beware
By what is past, to thee I have revealed
What might have else to human race been hid :
The discord which befell, and war in heav'n
Among th' angelic powers, and the deep fall
Of those too high aspiring, who rebelled
With Satan ; he who envies now thy state, 900
Who now is plotting how he may seduce
Thee also from obedience, that with him
Bereaved of happiness thou may'st partake
His punishment, eternal misery ;
Which would be all his solace and revenge,
As a despite done against the Most High,
Thee once to gain companion of his woe.
But listen not to his temptations ; warn
Thy weaker ; let it profit thee to have heard
By terrible example the reward 910
Of disobedience ; firm they might have stood,
Yet fell : remember, and fear to transgress.”

Paradise Lost

BOOK VII.

THE ARGUMENT.

Raphael, at the request of Adam, relates how, and wherefore, this world was first created; that God, after the expelling of Satan and his angels out of heaven, declared His pleasure to create another world, and other creatures to dwell therein; sends His Son with glory and attendance of angels to perform the work of creation in six days; the angels celebrate with hymns the performance thereof, and His reascension into heaven.

DESCEND from heav'n, Urania,¹ by that name
If rightly thou art called, whose voice divine
Following, above th' Olympian hill I soar,
Above the flight of Pegasean wing.²
The meaning, not the name, I call: for thou
Nor of the Muses nine,³ nor on the top
Of old Olympus dwell'st, but heav'nly born,
Before the hills appeared, or fountain flowed,
Thou with eternal Wisdom didst converse.
Wisdom thy sister, and with her didst play
In presence of th' almighty Father, pleased
With thy celestial song. Up led by thee
Into the heav'n of heav'ns I have presumed,
An earthly guest, and drawn empyreal air
Thy temp'ring; with like safety guided down
Return me to my native element:
Least from this flying steed unreined, as once
Bellerophon,⁴ though from a lower clime,
Dismounted, on the Aleian field I fall
Erroneous, there to wander and forlorn.

² The winged horse, Pegasus, said to belong to the Muses, was emblematical of flights of imagination.

³ Urania, amongst the Muses, was the patroness of Astronomy.

⁴ Bellerophon, the son of Glaucus, was a beautiful youth, who was falsely accused by Sthenoboea, Queen of Argos, to her husband. Proetus, King of Argos, sent him, in consequence, into Lycia with letters, commanding that he should be exposed to destruction. He escaped from many perilous enterprises forced on him; but when he attempted to mount to heaven on a winged horse, Pegasus (incited to the trial by vain-glory), he was thrown off, and wandered on the Aleian plains for the remainder of his life. The Aleian plains were in Cilicia.

Paradise Lost

Half yet remains unsung, but narrower bound,
Within the visible diurnal sphere ;
Standing on earth, not rapt above the pole,
More safe I sing with mortal voice, unchanged
To hoarse or mute, though fall'n on evil days,
On evil days though fall'n and evil tongues ;
In darkness, and with dangers compast round,
And solitude ; yet not alone, while thou
Visit'st my slumbers nightly, or when morn
Purples the east. Still govern thou my song, 30
Urania, and fit audience find, though few.
But drive far off the barbarous dissonance
Of Bacchus and his revellers, the race
Of that wild rout that tore the Thracian bard
In Rhodope, where woods and rocks had ears
To rapture, till the savage clamour drowned
Both harp and voice ; nor could the Muse defend
Her son.¹ So fail not thou, who thee implores :
For thou art heav'nly, she an empty dream.
Say, Goddess, what ensued when Raphael, 40
The affable Archangel, had forewarned
Adam by dire example to beware
Apostasy, by what befell in heav'n
To those apostates, lest the like befall
In Paradise to Adam or his race,
Charged not to touch the interdicted tree,
If they transgress, and slight that sole command,
So easily obeyed, amid the choice
Of all tastes else to please their appetite,
Though wand'ring. He with his consorted Eve 50
The story heard attentive, and was filled
With admiration and deep muse, to hear
Of things so high and strange, things to their thoughts
So unimaginable as hate in heav'n,
And war so near the peace of GOD in bliss
With such confusion : but the evil soon
Driven back redounded as a flood on those

¹ Orpheus was torn to pieces by the Bacchanalian women of Rhodope, a mountain of Thrace ; nor could his mother, the Muse Calliope, save him. Newton thinks that Milton here alludes to the dissolute Court of Charles II.

Paradise Lost

From whom it sprung, impossible to mix
With blessedness. Whence Adam soon repealed
The doubts that in his heart arose : and now 60
Led on, yet sinless, with desire to know
What nearer might concern him, how this world
Of heav'n and earth conspicuous first began,
When, and whereof, created, for what cause,
What within Eden, or without, was done
Before his memory, as one whose drouth
Yet scarce allayed, still eyes the current stream,
Whose liquid murmur heard new thirst excites,
Proceeded thus to ask his heav'nly guest :
"Great things, and full of wonder in our ears, 70
Far differing from this world, thou hast revealed,
Divine Interpreter, by favour sent Down from the empyrean to forewarn
Us timely of what might else have been our loss,
Unknown, which human knowledge could not reach :
For which to the infinitely Good we owe Immortal thanks, and His admonishment
Receive with solemn purpose to observe
Immutably His sovereign will, the end
Of what we are. But since thou hast vouchsafed 80
Gently for our instruction to impart
Things above earthly thought, which yet concerned
Our knowing, as to highest Wisdom seemed,
Deign to descend now lower, and relate
What may no less perhaps avail us known ;
How first began this heav'n which we behold
Distant so high, with moving fires adorned
Innumerable, and this which yields or fills
All space, the ambient air wide interfused
Embracing round this florid earth ; what cause 90
Moved the Creator in His holy rest
Through all eternity so late to build
In Chaos ; and the work begun, how soon
Absolved ; if unforbid thou may'st unfold
What we, not to explore the secrets, ask
Of His eternal empire, but the more
To magnify His works, the more we know.

Paradise Lost

And the great light of day yet wants to run
Much of his race, though steep ; suspense in heav'n
Held by thy voice, thy potent voice, he hears, 100
And longer will delay to hear thee tell
His generation, and the rising birth
Of nature from the unapparent deep :
Or if the star of ev'ning and the moon
Haste to thy audience, Night with her will bring Silence, and Sleep list'ning to thee will watch ;
Or we can bid his absence, till thy song
End, and dismiss thee ere the morning shine."

Thus Adam his illustrious guest besought ;
And thus the Godlike Angel answer'd mild : 110

" This also thy request with caution asked
Obtain : though to recount almighty works
What words or tongue of seraph can suffice,
Or heart of man suffice to comprehend ?
Yet what thou canst attain, which best may serve
To glorify the Maker, and infer
Thee also happier, shall not be withheld
Thy hearing, such commission from above
I have received, to answer thy desire 120
Of knowledge within bounds ; beyond abstain
To ask, nor let thine own inventions hope
Things not revealed, which th' invisible King,¹
Only omniscient, hath suppress in night,
To none communicable in earth or heav'n :
Enough is left besides to search and know.
But knowledge is as food, and needs no less
Her temperance over appetite, to know
In measure what the mind may well contain,
Oppresses else with surfeit, and soon turns
Wisdom to folly, as nourishment to wind. 130

" Know then, that after Lucifer from heav'n,
—So call him, brighter once amidst the host
Of angels, than that star the stars among,— Fell with his flaming legions through the deep
Into his place, and the great Son returned
Victorious with His saints, th' Omnipotent

Paradise Lost

Eternal Father from His throne beheld
Their multitude, and to His Son thus spake :

“ ‘ At least our envious foe hath failed, who thought
All like himself rebellious, by whose aid 140
This inaccessible high strength, the seat
Of Deity supreme, us dispossessed
He trusted to have seized, and into fraud
Drew many, whom their place knows here no more :
Yet far the greater part have kept, I see,
Their station, heav’n yet populous retains Number sufficient to possess her realms
Though wide, and this high temple to frequent
With ministeries due and solemn rites.
But lest his heart exalt him in the harm 150
Already done, to have dispeopled heav’n,
My damage fondly deemed, I can repair
That detriment, if such it be to lose
Self-lost, and in a moment will create
Another world, out of one man a race
Of men innumerable, there to dwell,
Not here, till by degrees of merit raised,
They open to themselves at length the way
Up hither, under long obedience tried ;
And earth be changed to heav’n, and heav’n to earth,
One kingdom, joy and union without end. [160
Meanwhile inhabit lax,¹ ye powers of heav’n,
And thou my Word, begotten Son, by thee
This I perform ; speak thou, and be it done.
My overshadowing Spirit and might with thee
I send along ; ride forth, and bid the deep
Within appointed bounds be heav’n and earth ;
Boundless the deep, because I AM who fill
Infinitude ; nor vacuous the space ;
Though I uncircumscribed myself retire, 170
And put not forth my goodness, which is free
To act, or not, necessity and chance
Approach not me, and what I will is fate.’ ”

“ So spake th’ Almighty, and to what He spake

¹ The meaning seems to be, “ Occupy freely the space left by the fall of the angels.”

Paradise Lost

His Word, the Filial Godhead, gave effect.
Immediate are the acts of GOD, more swift
Than time or motion, but to human ears
Cannot without process of speech be told,
So told as earthly notion can receive.
Great triumph and rejoicing was in heav'n, 180
When such was heard declared the Almighty's will ;
Glory they sung to the Most High, good will
To future men, and in their dwellings peace.
Glory to Him, whose just avenging ire
Had driven out th' ungodly from His sight
And the habitations of the just ; to Him
Glory and praise, whose wisdom had ordained
Good out of evil to create, instead
Of spirits malign a better race to bring
Into their vacant room, and thence diffuse 190
His good to worlds and ages infinite.

“So sang the Hierarchies. Meanwhile the Son
On His great expedition now appeared,
Girt with omnipotence, with radiance crowned
Of Majesty divine, sapience and love
Immense, and all His Father in Him shone.
About His chariot numberless were poured
Cherub and Seraph, Potentates and Thrones,
And Virtues, winged Spirits, and Chariots winged
From the armoury of GOD, where stand of old 200
Myriads, between two brazen mountains lodged
Against a solemn day, harnessed at hand,
Celestial equipage ; and now came forth
Spontaneous, for within them spirit lived,
Attendant on their Lord : heav'n opened wide
Her ever-during gates, harmonious sound
On golden hinges moving, to let forth
The King of glory, in His powerful Word
And Spirit coming to create new worlds.
On heav'nly ground they stood, and from the 210 shore
They viewed the vast immeasurable abyss,
Outrageous as a sea, dark, wasteful, wild,
Up from the bottom turned by furious winds

Paradise Lost

And surging waves, as mountains, to assault
Heav'n's highth, and with the centre mix the pole.

“ ‘Silence, ye troubled waves, and, thou Deep, peace,’
Said then th’ omnific Word ; ‘ your discord end.’ ”

“ Nor stayed ; but, on the wings of Cherubim Uplifted, in Paternal Glory rode Far into Chaos and the world unborn ; 220
For Chaos heard His voice. Him all His train
Followed in bright procession to behold
Creation, and the wonders of His might.
Then stayed the fervid wheels, and in His hand
He took the golden compasses,¹ prepared
In GOD’s eternal store, to circumscribe
This universe, and all created things.
One foot he centred, and the other turned Round through the vast profundity obscure,
And said, ‘ Thus far extend, thus far thy bounds, 230
This be thy just circumference, O world.’ ”

“ Thus GOD the heav’n created, thus the earth,
Matter unformed and void. Darkness profound
Covered th’ Abyss ; but on the watery calm
His brooding wings the Spirit of GOD outspread,²
And vital virtue infused and vital warmth
Throughout the fluid mass, but downward purged
The black, tartareous, cold, infernal dregs,
Adverse to life : then founded, then conglobed
Like things to like ; the rest to several place 240
Disparted, and between spun out the air,
And earth self-balanced on her centre hung.

“ ‘ Let there be light,’ said GOD, and forthwith light
Ethereal, first of things, quintessence pure,
Sprung from the deep, and from her native east
To journey through the aery gloom began,
Sphered in a radiant cloud, for yet the sun
Was not ; she in a cloudy tabernacle
Sojourned the while. GOD saw the light was good ;
And light from darkness by the hemisphere 250
Divided : light the Day, and darkness Night,
He named. Thus was the first day ev’n and morn :

Paradise Lost

Nor past uncelebrated, nor unsung
By the celestial quires, when orient light
Exhaling first from darkness they beheld,
Birth-day of heav'n and earth ; with joy and shout ¹
The hollow universal orb they filled,
And touched their golden harps, and hymning praised
GOD and His works, Creator Him they sung,
Both when first evening was, and when first morn. 260

“Again GOD said, ‘Let there be firmament ²
Amid the waters, and let it divide
The waters from the waters.’ And GOD made
The firmament, expanse of liquid, pure,
Transparent, elemental air, diffused
In circuit to the uttermost convex
Of this great round ; partition firm and sure,
The waters underneath from those above
Dividing : for as earth, so He the world
Built on circumfluous waters calm, in wide 270
Crystalline ocean, and the loud misrule
Of Chaos far removed, lest fierce extremes
Contiguous might distemper the whole frame :
And heav'n He named the firmament : so ev'n
And morning chorus sung the second day.

“The earth was formed, but, in the womb as yet
Of waters embryo immature involved,
Appeared not : over all the face of earth
Main ocean flowed, not idle, but with warm
Prolific humour soft'ning all her globe 280
Fermented the great mother to conceive,
Sate with genial moisture ; when GOD said,
‘Be gathered now, ye waters under heav'n,
Into one place, and let dry land appear.’
Immediately the mountains huge appear
Emergent, and their broad bare backs upheave
Into the clouds, their tops ascend the sky.
So high as heaved the tumid hills, so low
Down sank a hollow bottom broad and deep,
Capacious bed of waters : thither they 290
Hasted with glad precipitance, uprolled

Paradise Lost

As drops on dust conglobing from the dry :
Part rise in crystal wall, or ridge direct,
For haste ; such flight the great command impressed
On the swift floods : as armies at the call
Of trumpet, for of armies thou hast heard,
Troop to their standard, so the watery throng,
Wave rolling after wave, where way they found ;
If steep, with torrent rapture, if through plain,
Soft-ebbing : nor withstood them rock or hill, 300
But they, or under ground, or circuit wide
With serpent error wandering, found their way,
And on the washy ooze deep channels wore,
Easy, ere GOD had bid the ground be dry,
All but within those banks, where rivers now
Stream, and perpetual draw their humid train.
The dry land, Earth ; and the great receptacle
Of congregated waters He called Seas ;
And saw that it was good, and said, ' Let the earth
Put forth the verdant grass, herb yielding seed, 310
And fruit-tree yielding fruit after her kind ;
Whose seed is in herself upon the earth.'
He scarce had said, when the bare earth, till then
Desert and bare, unsightly, unadorned,
Brought forth the tender grass, whose verdure clad
Her universal face with pleasant green ;
Then herbs of every leaf, that sudden flowered,
Opening their various colours, and made gay
Her bosom smelling sweet : and these scarce blown,
Forth flourished thick the clustering vine, forth crept 320
The swelling gourd, up stood the corny reed
Embattled in her field ; and the humble shrub,
And bush with frizzled hair implicit : last
Rose, as in dance, the stately trees, and spread
Their branches hung with copious fruit, or gemmed
Their blossoms : with high woods the hills were crown'd,
With tufts the valleys and each fountain side :
With borders long the rivers : that earth now
Seemed like to heav'n, a seat where gods might dwell,
Or wander with delight, and love to haunt 330
Her sacred shades : though GOD had not yet rained

Paradise Lost

Upon the earth, and man to till the ground
None was ; but from the earth a dewy mist
Went up and watered all the ground, and each
Plant of the field ; which, ere it was in the earth,
God made, and every herb, before it grew
On the green stem : God saw that it was good :
So ev'n and morn recorded the third day.

“Again th’ Almighty spake : ‘ Let there be lights
High in th’ expanse of heaven, to divide 340
The day from night ; and let them be for signs,
For seasons, and for days, and circling years ;
And let them be for lights, as I ordain
Their office in the firmament of heav’n
To give light on the earth.’ And it was so.
And God made two great lights, great for their use
To man, the greater to have rule by day,
The less by night, altern : and made the stars,
And set them in the firmament of heav’n,
To illuminate the earth, and rule the day 350
In their vicissitude, and rule the night,
And light from darkness to divide. God saw,
Surveying His great work, that it was good :
For of celestial bodies first the sun,
A mighty sphere, He framed, unlightsome first,
Though of ethereal mould : then formed the moon
Globose, and every magnitude of stars,
And sowed with stars the heav’n thick as a field.
Of light by far the greater part He took,
Transplanted from her cloudy shrine, and placed 360
In the sun’s orb, made porous to receive
And drink the liquid light, firm to retain
Her gathered beams, great palace now of light.
Hither, as to their fountain, other stars
Repairing, in their golden urns draw light,
And hence the morning planet gilds her horns :
By tincture or reflection they augment
Their small peculiar, though from human sight
So far remote, with diminution seen.
First in his east the glorious lamp was seen, 370
Regent of day, and all the horizon round

Paradise Lost

Invested with bright rays, jocund to run
His longitude through heav'n's high road : the gray
Dawn and the Pleiades before him danced,
Shedding sweet influence.¹ Less bright the moon,
But opposite in levelled west was set
His mirror, with full face borrowing her light
From him, for other light she needed none
In that aspect ; and still that distance keeps Till night ; then in the east her turn she shines, 380
Revolved on heav'n's great axle, and her reign
With thousand lesser lights dividual holds,
With thousand thousand stars, that then appeared
Spangling the hemisphere : then first adorned
With their bright luminaries, that set and rose,
Glad ev'ning and glad morn crowned the fourth day.

"And GOD said, 'Let the waters generate²
Reptile with spawn abundant, living soul :
And let fowl fly above the earth, with wings
Displayed on the open firmament of heav'n.' 390
And GOD created the great whales, and each
Soul living, each that crept, which plenteously
The waters generated by their kinds,
And every bird of wing after his kind ;
And saw that it was good, and blessed them, saying,
'Be fruitful, multiply, and in the seas,
And lakes, and running streams, the waters fill ;
And let the fowl be multiplied on the earth.'
Forthwith the sounds and seas, each creek and bay,
With fry innumerable swarm, and shoals 400
Of fish, that with their fins and shining scales
Glide under the green wave, in sculls³ that oft
Bank the mid sea : part single, or with mate,

¹ The Pleiades are seven stars in the neck of the constellation Taurus, which, rising about the time of the vernal equinox, are called by the Latins "Vergiliæ." Milton, therefore, in saying that the Pleiades danced before the sun at his creation, implies that creation began with the spring.—From NEWTON. It has been a recent idea of astronomers, that the Pleiades, or seven suns—for fixed stars are suns—are the centre of the universe round which the heavens revolve ; but this is not yet clearly ascertained. Job speaks of "the sweet influences of the Pleiades."

Paradise Lost

Graze the seaweed their pasture, and through groves
Of coral stray, or sporting with quick glance
Show to the sun their waved coats dropt with gold ;
Or in their pearly shells at ease attend
Moist nutriment, or under rocks their food
In jointed armour watch : on smooth the seal
And bended dolphins play ; part huge of bulk, 410
Wallowing unwieldy, enormous in their gait,
Tempest the ocean : there Leviathan,
Hugest of living creatures, on the deep
Stretched like a promontory sleeps, or swims
And seems a moving land, and at his gills
Draws in, and at his trunk spouts out a sea.
Meanwhile the tepid caves, and fens, and shores,
Their brood as numerous hatch from the egg, that soon
Bursting with kindly rupture forth disclosed
Their callow young ; but feathered soon and fledge, 420
They summed their pens,¹ and soaring the air sublime
With clang despised the ground, under a cloud
In prospect ; there the eagle and the stork
On cliffs and cedar tops their eyries build : ²
Part loosely wing the region, part more wise
In common ranged in figure,³ wedge their way,
Intelligent of seasons,⁴ and set forth
Their aery caravan, high over seas
Flying, and over lands, with mutual wing
Easing their flight ; so steers the prudent crane 430
Her annual voyage, borne on winds ; the air
Floats, as they pass, fanned with unnumbered plumes.
From branch to branch the smaller birds with song
Solaced the woods, and spread their painted wings
Till even ; nor then the solemn nightingale
Ceased warbling, but all night tuned her soft lays.
Others on silver lakes and rivers bathed
Their downy breast ; the swan, with archèd neck
Between her white wings mantling proudly, rows

Her state with oary feet : yet oft they quit 440
The dank, and rising on stiff pennons tower
The mid ærial sky. Others on ground
Walked firm ; the crested cock, whose clarion sounds
The silent hours ; and the other, whose gay train
Adorns him, coloured with the florid hue
Of rainbows and starry eyes. The waters thus
With fish replenished, and the air with fowl,
Ev'ning and morn solemnised the fifth day.

“ The sixth, and of creation last, arose
With ev'ning harps and matin ; when GOD said, 450
‘ Let the earth bring forth soul living in her kind,
Cattle and creeping things, and beast of the earth,
Each in their kind.’ The earth obeyed, and straight
Opening her fertile womb teemed at a birth
Innumerable living creatures, perfect forms,
Limbed and full grown. Out of the ground up rose
As from his lair the wild beast, where he wonns¹
In forest wild, in thicket, brake, or den ;
Among the trees in pairs they rose, they walked ;
The cattle in the fields and meadows green : 460
Those rare and solitary, these in flocks
Pasturing at once, and in broad herds upsprung.
The grassy clods now calved ; now half appeared
The tawny lion, pawing to get free
His hinder parts, then springs as broke from bonds,
And rampant shakes his brinded mane ; the ounce,
The libbard,² and the tiger, as the mole
Rising, the crumbled earth above them threw
In hillocks ; the swift stag from under ground
Bore up his branching head ; scarce from his mould 470
Behemoth, biggest born of earth, upheaved
His vastness : fleeced the flocks and bleating rose,
As plants : ambiguous between sea and land
The river horse and scaly crocodile.
At once came forth whatever creeps the ground,
Insect or worm ; those waved their limber fans

For wings, and smallest lineaments exact
In all the liveries decked of summer's pride,
With spots of gold and purple, azure and green :
These as a line their long dimension drew, 480
Streaking the ground with sinuous trace ; not all
Minims¹ of nature ; some of serpent kind,
Wondrous in length and corpulence, involved
Their snaky folds and added wings. First crept
The parsimonious emmet, provident
Of future, in small room large heart inclosed,
Pattern of just equality perhaps
Hereafter, joined in her popular tribes
Of commonalty : swarming next appeared
The female bee, that feeds her husband drone 490
Deliciously, and builds her waxen cells
With honey stored : the rest are numberless,
And thou their natures know'st, and gav'st them names,
Needless to thee repeated ; nor unknown
The serpent, subtlest beast of all the field,
Of huge extent sometimes, with brazen eyes
And hairy mane terrific, though to thee
Not noxious, but obedient at thy call.

"Now heav'n in all her glory shone, and rolled
Her motions, as the great First Mover's hand 500
First wheeled their course ; earth in her rich attire
Consummate lovely smiled ; air, water, earth,
By fowl, fish, beast, was flown, was swum, was walked Frequent ; and of the sixth day yet remained ;
There wanted yet the master work, the end
Of all yet done ; a creature, who not prone
And brute as other creatures, but indued
With sanctity of reason, might erect
His stature, and upright with front serene
Govern the rest, self-knowing ; and from thence 510
Magnanimous to correspond with heav'n ;
But grateful to acknowledge whence his good
Descends, thither with heart, and voice, and eyes
Directed in devotion, to adore
And worship GOD Supreme, who made him chief

Paradise Lost

Of all His works : therefore the Omnipotent
Eternal Father,—for where is not He Present?—thus to His Son audibly spake :

“ ‘ Let us make now Man in our image, man ¹
In our similitude, and let them rule 520
Over the fish and fowl of sea and air,
Beast of the field and over all the earth,
And every creeping thing that creeps the ground.’
This said, He formed thee, Adam, thee, O man,
Dust of the ground, and in thy nostrils breathed
The breath of life : in His own image He Created thee, in the image of God
Express, and thou becam’st a living soul.
Male He created thee, but thy consort
Female for race ; then blessed mankind, and said, 530
‘ Be fruitful, multiply, and fill the earth ;
Subdue it, and throughout dominion hold
Over fish of the sea, and fowl of the air,
And every living thing that moves on the earth.’
Wherever thus created, for no place
Is yet distinct by name, thence, as thou know’st,
He brought thee into this delicious grove,
This garden, planted with the trees of God,
Delectable both to behold and taste ;
And freely all their pleasant fruit for food 540
Gave thee : all sorts are here that all th’ earth yields,
Variety without end ; but of the tree,
Which tasted works knowledge of good and evil,
Thou may’st not : in the day thou eat’st thou diest ;
Death is the penalty imposed ; beware,
And govern well thy appetite ; lest Sin
Surprise thee, and her black attendant Death.

“ Here finished He, and all that He had made
Viewed, and behold all was entirely good ;
So ev’n and morn accomplished the sixth day : 550
Yet not, till the Creator from His work
Desisting, though unwearied, up returned,
Up to the heav’n of heav’ns, His high abode,
Thence to behold His new-created world,

Paradise Lost

Th' addition of His empire, how it showed
In prospect from His throne, how good, how fair, Answering His great idea. Up He rode,
Followed with acclamation and the sound
Symphonious of ten thousand harps, that tuned
Angelic harmonies : the earth, the air 560
Resounded, thou remember'st, for thou heard'st ;
The heav'ns and all the constellations rung,
The planets in their station list'ning stood,
While the bright pomp ascended jubilant.
' Open, ye everlasting gates,' they sung,¹
' Open, ye heavens, your living doors ; let in
The great Creator, from His work returned
Magnificent, His six days' work, a world.
Open, and henceforth oft ; for GOD will deign
To visit oft the dwellings of just men 570
Delighted, and with frequent intercourse
Thither will send His wingèd messengers
On errands of supernal grace.' So sung
The glorious train ascending : He through heav'n,
That opened wide her blazing portals, led
To GOD's eternal house direct the way ;
A broad and ample road, whose dust is gold,
And pavement stars, as stars to thee appear
Seen in the galaxy, that milky way
Which nightly as a circling zone thou seest 580
Powdered with stars. And now on earth the seventh
Ev'ning arose in Eden, for the sun
Was set, and twilight from the east came on,
Forerunning night ; when at the holy mount
Of heaven's high seated top, th' imperial throne
Of Godhead, fixed for ever firm and sure,
The Filial Power arrived, and sat Him down
With His great Father ; for He also went Invisible, yet stayed, such privilege
Hath Omnipresence, and the work ordained, 590

Now resting, blessed and hallowed the seventh day,
As resting on that day from all His work,
But not in silence holy kept ; the harp
Had work, and rested not ; the solemn pipe
And dulcimer, all organs of sweet stop,
All sounds on fret by string or golden wire,
Tempered soft tunings, intermixed with voice
Choral or unison : of incense, clouds
Fuming from golden censers hid the Mount. 600
Creation and the six days' acts they sung :
'Great are thy works, Jehovah, infinite
Thy power ; what thought can measure thee, or tongue

Relate thee ? greater now in thy return
Than from the giant angels. Thee that day
Thy thunders magnified ; but to create
Is greater than created to destroy.
Who can impair thee, mighty King, or bound
Thy empire ? easily the proud attempt
Of spirits apostate and their counsels vain 610
Thou hast repelled, while impiously they thought
Thee to diminish, and from thee withdraw
The number of thy worshippers. Who seeks
To lessen thee, against his purpose serves
To manifest the more thy might : his evil
Thou usest, and from thence creat'st more good.
Witness this new-made world, another heav'n
From heaven gate not far, founded in view
On the clear hyaline, the glassy sea ;
Of amplitude almost immense, with stars 620
Numerous, and every star perhaps a world
Of destined habitation ; but thou know'st
Their seasons : among these the seat of men,
Earth, with her nether ocean circumfused,
Their pleasant dwelling-place. Thrice happy men,
And sons of men, whom God hath thus advanced,
Created in His image, there to dwell
And worship Him ; and in reward to rule
Over His works, on earth, in sea, or air,
And multiply a race of worshippers 630

Paradise Lost

Holy and just : thrice happy, if they know
Their happiness, and persevere upright.'

“So sung they, and the empyrean rung
With hallelujahs : thus was Sabbath kept.
And thy request think now fulfilled, that asked
How first this world and face of things began,
And what before thy memory was done
From the beginning, that posterity
Informed by thee might know. If else thou seek'st Aught, not surpassing human measure, say.” 640

Paradise Lost

BOOK VIII.

THE ARGUMENT.

Adam inquires concerning celestial motions, is doubtfully answered, and exhorted to search rather things more worthy of knowledge. Adam assents; and still desirous to detain Raphael, relates to him what he remembered since his own creation; his placing in Paradise; his talk with God concerning solitude and fit society; his first meeting and nuptials with Eve; his discourse with the angel thereupon; who, after admonitions repeated, departs.

THE angel ended, and in Adam's ear . . . I
So charming left his voice, that he awhile
Thought him still speaking, still stood fixed to hear;
Then, as new waked, thus gratefully replied:
 " What thanks sufficient, or what recompence
Equal, have I to render thee, divine
Historian? who thus largely hast allayed
The thirst I had of knowledge, and vouchsafed
This friendly condescension to relate
Things else by me unsearchable, now heard 10
With wonder, but delight, and, as is due,
With glory attributed to the high
Creator: something yet of doubt remains
Which only thy solution can resolve.
When I behold this goodly frame, this world,
Of heav'n and earth consisting, and compute
Their magnitudes, this earth a spot, a grain,
An atom, with the firmament compared
And all her numbered stars, that seem to roll 20
Spaces incomprehensible, for such
Their distance argues, and their swift return
Diurnal, merely to officiate light
Round this opacous earth, this punctual¹ spot,
One day and night, in all their vast survey
Useless besides; reasoning, I oft admire
How nature, wise and frugal, could commit
Such disproportions, with superfluous hand
So many nobler bodies to create,

¹ Small as a point in punctuation.

Paradise Lost

Greater so manifold, to this one use,
For aught appears, and on their orbs impose 30
Such restless revolution day by day
Repeated, while the sedentary earth,
That better might with far less compass move,
Served by more noble than herself, attains
Her end without least motion, and receives,
As tribute, such a sumless journey brought
Of incorporeal speed, her warmth and light ;
Speed, to describe whose swiftness number fails.”¹

So spake our sire, and by his count’nance seemed Entering on studious thoughts abstruse ; which Eve
Perceiving where she sat retired in sight, [40
With lowliness majestic from her seat,
And grace that won who saw to wish her stay,
Rose, and went forth among her fruits and flow’rs.
To visit how they prospered, bud and bloom,
Her nursery ; they at her coming sprung,
And touched by her fair tendance gladlier grew.
Yet went she not, as not with such discourse
Delighted, or not capable her ear
Of what was high : such pleasure she reserved, 50
Adam relating, she sole auditress ;
Her husband the relater she preferred
Before the angel, and of him to ask
Chose rather ; he, she knew, would intermix
Grateful digressions, and solve high dispute
With conjugal caresses ; from his lip
Not words alone pleased her. O when meet now
Such pairs, in love and mutual honour joined ?
With goddess-like demeanour forth she went ;
Not unattended, for on her as queen 60
A pomp of winning graces waited still,
And from about her shot darts of desire
Into all eyes to wish her still in sight.
And Raphael now to Adam’s doubt proposed
Benevolent and facile thus replied :

“To ask or search I blame thee not, for heav’n

¹ One is here reminded of the fact that Milton had held communion with Galileo, whose “Eppure si muove” is historical.

Paradise Lost

Is as the book of GOD before thee set,
Wherein to read His wondrous works, and learn
His seasons, hours, or days, or months, or years.
This to attain, whether heav'n move or earth, 70
Imports not, if thou reckon right ;¹ the rest
From man or angel the great Architect
Did wisely to conceal, and not divulge
His secrets to be scanned by them who ought Rather admire ; or if they list to try
Conjecture, He His fabric of the heav'n's
Hath left to their disputes, perhaps to move
His laughter at their quaint opinions wide
Hereafter, when they come to model heav'n
And calculate the stars ; how they will wield 80
The mighty frame, how build, unbuild, contrive,
To save appearances ; how gird the sphere
With centric and eccentric scribbled o'er,
Cycle and epicycle,² orb in orb.
Already by thy reasoning this I guess,
Who art to lead thy offspring, and supposest,
That bodies bright and greater should not serve
The less not bright, nor heav'n such journeys run,
Earth sitting still, when she alone receives
The benefit. Consider first, that great 90
Or bright infers not excellence : the earth
Though, in comparison of heav'n, so small,
Nor glistering, may of solid good contain
More plenty than the sun, that barren shines,
Whose virtue on itself works no effect,
But in the fruitful earth : there first received
His beams, unactive else, their vigour find.
Yet not to earth are those bright luminaries
Officious, but to thee, earth's habitant.
And for the heav'n's wide circuit, let it speak 100

¹ The subject was then matter of discussion, and, in the Roman Church, of persecution. The Ptolemaic system made the earth the centre of the system, and the sun and stars move round it ; the Copernican made the sun the centre, and the earth move, as Galileo asserted.

² These terms were used by Ptolemaic astronomers to explain their system. Centric means a sphere whose centre is the same as that of the earth ; eccentric, a sphere whose centre is quite different to that of the earth. Cycle is a circle : epicycle, a circle on another circle.

Paradise Lost

The Maker's high magnificence, who built
So spacious, and His line stretched out so far ;
That man may know he dwells not in his own ;
An edifice too large for him to fill,
Lodged in a small partition, and the rest
Ordained for uses to his Lord best known.
The swiftness of those circles attribute,
Though numberless, to His omnipotence,
That to corporeal substances could add
Speed almost spiritual : me thou think'st not slow, 110
Who since the morning hour set out from heav'n
Where God resides, and ere midday arrived
In Eden, distance inexpressible
By numbers that have name. But this I urge,
Admitting motion in the heav'ns, to show
Invalid that which thee to doubt it moved ;
Not that I so affirm, though so it seem
To thee who hast thy dwelling here on earth.
God, to remove His ways from human sense,
Placed heav'n from earth so far, that earthly sight, 120
If it presume, might err in things too high,
And no advantage gain. What if the sun
Be centre to the world, and other stars,
By his attractive virtue and their own
Incited, dance about him various rounds ?
Their wand'ring course now high, now low, then hid,
Progressive, retrograde, or standing still,
In six thou seest ;¹ and what if sev'nth to these
The planet earth, so steadfast though she seem,
Insensibly three different motions² move ? 130
Which else to several spheres thou must ascribe.
Moved contrary with thwart obliquities,
Or save the sun his labour, and that swift
Nocturnal and diurnal rhomb supposed,
Invisible else above all stars, the wheel
Of day and night ; which needs not thy belief,

¹ The moon and the five planets visible to Adam.

² Three motions were attributed by the Copernicans to the earth. The diurnal, round her own axis, causing day and night ; the annual, round the sun ; and the motion of libration, as it is called, "whereby the earth so proceeds in her orbit, as that her axis is constantly parallel to the axis of the world."—NEWTON.

Paradise Lost

If earth industrious of herself fetch day
Travelling east, and with her part averse
From the sun's beam meet night, her other part
Still luminous by his ray. What if that light, 140
Sent from her through the wide transpicious air,
To the terrestrial moon be as a star
Enlight'ning her by day, as she by night
This earth? reciprocal, if land be there,
Fields and inhabitants : her spots thou seest
As clouds, and clouds may rain, and rain produce
Fruits in her softened soil, for some to eat
Allotted there ; and other suns perhaps
With their attendant moons thou wilt descry,
Communicating male and female light, 150
Which two great sexes animate the world,
Stored in each orb perhaps with some that live.
For such vast room in nature unpossessed
By living soul, desert and desolate,
Only to shine, yet scarce to contribute
Each orb a glimpse of light, conveyed so far
Down to this habitable, which returns
Light back to them, is obvious to dispute.
But whether thus these things, or whether not,
Whether the sun predominant in heav'n 160
Rise on the earth, or earth rise on the sun,
He from the east his flaming road begin,
Or she from west her silent course advance
With inoffensive pace, that spinning sleeps
On her soft axle, while she paces ev'n,
And bears thee soft with the smooth air along,
Solicit not thy thoughts with matters hid,
Leave them to GOD above, Him serve and fear ;
Of other creatures, as Him pleases best,
Wherever placed, let Him dispose : joy thou 170
In what He gives to thee, this paradise
And thy fair Eve : heav'n is for thee too high
To know what passes there ; be lowly wise :
Think only what concerns thee and thy being ;
Dream not of other worlds, what creatures there
Live, in what state, condition, or degree,

Paradise Lost

Contented that thus far hath been revealed
Not of earth only, but of highest heav'n."

To whom thus Adam, cleared of doubt, replied:
"How fully hast thou satisfied me, pure 180
Intelligence of heav'n, angel serene,
And freed from intricacies, taught to live
The easiest way, nor with perplexing thoughts
To interrupt the sweet of life, from which God hath bid dwell far off all anxious cares,
And not molest us, unless we ourselves
Seek them with wand'ring thoughts, and notions vain.
But apt the mind or fancy is to rove
Unchecked, and of her roving is no end;
Till warned, or by experience taught, she learn, 190
That not to know at large of things remote
From use, obscure and subtle, but to know
That which before us lies in daily life,
Is the prime wisdom; what is more, is fume,
Or emptiness, or fond impertinence,
And renders us in things that most concern
Unpractised, unprepared, and still to seek.
Therefore from this high pitch let us descend
A lower flight, and speak of things at hand
Useful, whence haply mention may arise 200
Of something not unseasonable to ask
By sufferance, and thy wonted favour deigned.
Thee I have heard relating what was done
Ere my remembrance: now hear me relate
My story, which perhaps thou hast not heard.
And day is not yet spent; till then thou seest
How subtly to detain thee I devise,
Inviting thee to hear while I relate,
Fond, were it not in hope of thy reply.
For while I sit with thee, I seem in heav'n, 210
And sweeter thy discourse is to my ear
Than fruits of palm-tree pleasantest to thirst
And hunger both, from labour, at the hour
Of sweet repast: they satiate, and soon fill,
Though pleasant; but thy words, with grace divine
Imbued, bring to their sweetness no satiety."

Paradise Lost

To whom thus Raphael answered heav'nly meek :
"Nor are thy lips ungraceful, Sire of Men,
Nor tongue ineloquent ; for GOD on thee
Abundantly His gifts hath also poured, 220
Inward and outward both, His image fair :
Speaking or mute, all comeliness and grace
Attends thee, and each word, each motion forms.
Nor less think we in heav'n of thee on earth,
Than of our fellow-servant, and inquire
Gladly into the ways of GOD with man :
For GOD we see hath honoured thee, and set
On man His equal love. Say therefore on ;
For I that day was absent, as befell,
Bound on a voyage uncouth and obscure, 230
Far on excursion toward the gates of hell,
Squared in full legion, such command we had,
To see that none thence issued forth a spy,
Or enemy, while GOD was in His work,
Lest He, incensed at such eruption bold,
Destruction with creation might have mixed.
Not that they durst without His leave attempt,
But us He sends upon His high behests
For state, as Sov'reign King, and to enure
Our prompt obedience. Fast we found, fast shut 240
The dismal gates, and barricadoed strong ;
But long ere our approaching, heard within Noise, other than the sound of dance or song,
Torment, and loud lament, and furious rage.
Glad we returned up to the coasts of light
Ere sabbath ev'ning : so we had in charge.
But thy relation now ; for I attend,
Pleased with thy words, no less than thou with mine."
So spake the godlike Power, and thus our sire :
"For man to tell how human life began 250
Is hard ; for who himself beginning knew ?
Desire with thee still longer to converse
Induced me. As new waked from soundest sleep,
Soft on the flow'ry herb I found me laid,
In balmy sweat, which with his beams the sun
Soon dried, and on the reeking moisture fed.

Paradise Lost

Straight toward heav'n my wond'ring eyes I turn'd,
And gazed a while the ample sky, till raised
By quick instinctive motion up I sprung,
As thitherward endeavouring, and upright 260
Stood on my feet. About me round I saw
Hill, dale, and shady woods, and sunny plains,
And liquid lapse of murmuring streams ; by these,
Creatures that lived, and moved, and walk'd, or flew ;
Birds on the branches warbling ; all things smiled ;
With fragrance and with joy my heart o'erflowed.
Myself I then perused, and limb by limb
Surveyed, and sometimes went, and sometimes ran
With supple joints, as lively vigour led :
But who I was, or where, or from what cause, 270
Knew not. To speak I tried, and forthwith spake :
My tongue obeyed, and readily could name
Whate'er I saw. 'Thou sun,' said I, 'fair light,
And thou enlightened earth, so fresh and gay,
Ye hills and dales, ye rivers, woods, and plains
And ye that live and move, fair creatures, tell,
Tell, if ye saw, how came I thus, how here ?
Not of myself, by some great Maker then,
In goodness and in power pre-eminent :
Tell me, how may I know Him, how adore, 280
From whom I have that thus I move and live,
And feel that I am happier than I know.'
While thus I called, and strayed I knew not whither,
From where I first drew air, and first beheld
This happy light, when answer none returned,
On a green shady bank profuse of flow'rs
Pensive I sat me down ; there gentle sleep
First found me, and with soft oppression seized
My drowsèd sense, untroubled, though I thought
I then was passing to my former state 290
Insensible, and forthwith to dissolve :
When suddenly stood at my head a dream,
Whose inward apparition gently moved
My fancy to believe I yet had being,
And lived : one came, methought, of shape divine,
And said, 'Thy mansion wants thee, Adam ; rise,

Paradise Lost

First man, of men innumerable ordained
First father ! called by thee, I come thy guide
To the garden of bliss, thy seat prepared.
So saying, by the hand He took me, raised, 300
And over fields and waters, as in air
Smooth sliding without step, last led me up
A woody mountain ; whose high top was plain,
A circuit wide, enclosed, with goodliest trees
Planted, with walks, and bowers, that what I saw
Of earth before scarce pleasant seemed. Each tree
Loaden with fairest fruit, that hung to the eye
Tempting, stirred in me sudden appetite
To pluck and eat : whereat I waked, and found
Before mine eyes all real, as the dream 310
Had lively shadowed : here had new begun
My wand'ring, had not He, who was my guide
Up hither, from among the trees appeared,
Presence Divine. Rejoicing, but with awe,
In adoration at His feet I fell
Submiss : He reared me, and, 'Whom thou sought'st I am,'
Said mildly, 'Author of all this thou seest
Above, or round about thee, or beneath.
This paradise I give thee, count it thine
To till and keep, and of the fruit to eat : 320
Of every tree that in the garden grows
Eat freely with glad heart ; fear here no dearth :
But of the Tree whose operation brings
Knowledge of good and ill, which I have set
The pledge of thy obedience and thy faith
Amid the garden by the Tree of Life,
Remember what I warn thee, shun to taste,
And shun the bitter consequence : for know,
The day thou eat'st thereof, my sole command
Transgressed, inevitably thou shalt die ; 330
From that day mortal, and this happy state
Shalt lose, expelled from hence into a world
Of woe and sorrow.' Sternly He pronounced
The rigid interdiction, which resounds
Yet dreadful in mine ear, though in my choice

Paradise Lost

Not to incur ; but soon His clear aspect
Returned and gracious purpose thus renewed :
'Not only these fair bounds, but all the earth
To thee and to thy race I give ; as lords
Possess it, and all things that therein live, 340
Or live in sea, or air, beast, fish, and fowl.
In sign whereof each bird and beast behold
After their kinds ; I bring them to receive
From thee their names, and pay thee fealty
With low subjection ; understand the same
Of fish within their wat'ry residence,
Not hither summoned since they cannot change
Their element to draw the thinner air.'

As thus He spake, each bird and beast behold
Approaching two and two ; these cowering low 350
With blandishment, each bird stooped on his wing.
I named them, as they passed, and understood
Their nature, with such knowledge God indued
My sudden apprehension : but in these
I found not what methought I wanted still ;
And to the heav'nly Vision thus presumed :

“ ‘O by what name, for thou above all these,
Above mankind, or aught than mankind higher,
Surpassest far my naming, how may I
Adore thee, Author of this universe, 360
And all this good to man, for whose well being
So amply, and with hands so liberal,
Thou hast provided all things ? but with me
I see not who partakes. In solitude
What happiness ? who can enjoy alone,
Or all enjoying what contentment find ?’
Thus I presumptuous ; and the Vision bright,
As with a smile more brightened, thus replied :

“ ‘What call'st thou solitude ? Is not the earth
With various living creatures and the air 370
Replenished, and all these at thy command
To come and play before thee ? Know'st thou not Their language and their ways ? They also know,
And reason not contemptibly ; with these
Find pastime, and bear rule ; thy realm is large.’

Paradise Lost

“So spake the Universal Lord, and seemed
So ordering. I, with leave of speech implored,
And humble deprecation, thus replied :

“ ‘Let not my words offend thee, heav’nly Power,
My Maker, be propitious while I speak. 380
Hast thou not made me here thy substitute,
And these inferior far beneath me set?

Among unequals what society
Can sort, what harmony, or true delight?
Which must be mutual, in proportion due,
Giv’n and received ; but in disparity,
The one intense, the other still remiss,
Cannot well suit with either, but soon prove Tedious alike : of fellowship I speak
Such as I seek, fit to participate 390
All rational delight, wherein the brute
Cannot be human consort : they rejoice
Each with their kind, lion with lioness ;
So fitly them in pairs thou hast combined ;
Much less can bird with beast, or fish with fowl,
So well converse, nor with the ox the ape ;
Worse then can man with beast, and least of all.’

“Whereto th’ Almighty answered, not displeased :
‘A nice and subtile happiness I see
Thou to thyself proposest, in the choice 400
Of thy associates, Adam, and wilt taste
No pleasure, though in pleasure, solitary.
What think’st thou then of Me, and this My state?
Seem I to thee sufficiently possessed
Of happiness, or not? who am alone
From all eternity ; for none I know
Second to Me or like, equal much less.
How have I then with whom to hold converse,
Save with the creatures which I made, and those
To Me inferior, infinite descents 410
Beneath what other creatures are to thee?’

“He ceased, I lowly answered : ‘To attain
The highth and depth of thy eternal ways
All human thoughts come short, Supreme of things,
Thou in thyself art perfect, and in thee

Paradise Lost

Is no deficiencie found : not so is man,
But in degree, the cause of his desire
By conversation with his like to help,
Or solace his defects. No need that thou
Should'st propagate, already infinite, 420
And through all numbers absolute, though One ;
But man by number is to manifest
His single imperfection, and beget
Like of his like, his image-multiplied,
In unity defective, which requires
Collateral love, and dearest amity.
Thou in thy secrecy although alone,
Best with thyself accompanied, seek'st not Social communication ; yet so pleased
Canst raise thy creature to what highth thou wilt 430
Of union or communion, deified ;
I, by conversing, cannot these erect

From prone, nor in their ways complacence find.'
Thus I emboldened spake, and freedom used
Permissive, and acceptance found ; which gained
This answer from the gracious Voice Divine :

“ Thus far to try thee, Adam, I was pleased,
And find thee knowing not of beasts alone,
Which thou hast rightly named, but of thyself,
Expressing well the spirit within thee free, 440
My image, not imparted to the brute ;
Whose fellowship therefore unmeet for thee
Good reason was thou freely should'st dislike,
And be so minded still : I, ere thou spak'st,
Knew it not good for man to be alone,
And no such company as then thou saw'st
Intended thee, for trial only brought,
To see how thou could'st judge of fit and meet.
What next I bring shall please thee, be assured,
Thy likeness, thy fit help, thy other self, 450
Thy wish exactly to thy heart's desire.'

“ He ended, or I heard no more : for now
My earthly by His heav'nly overpowered,
Which it had long stood under, strained to the highth
In that celestial colloquy sublime,

Paradise Lost

As with an object that excels the sense,
Dazzled, and spent, sunk down, and sought repair
Of sleep, which instantly fell on me, called
By nature as in aid, and closed mine eyes.¹
Mine eyes He closed, but open left the cell 46c
Of fancy, my internal sight, by which Abstract as in a trance methought I saw,
Though sleeping, where I lay, and saw the Shape
Still glorious before whom awake I stood ;
Who stooping opened my left side, and took
From thence a rib, with cordial spirits warm,
And life-blood streaming fresh ; wide was the wound,
But suddenly with flesh filled up and healed.
The rib He formed and fashioned with His hands ;
Under His forming hands a creature grew 47o
Manlike, but different sex, so lovely fair,
That what seemed fair in all the world, seemed now
Mean, or in her summed up, in her contained,
And in her looks, which from that time infused
Sweetness into my heart, unfelt before,
And into all things from her air inspired
The spirit of love and amorous delight.
She disappeared, and left me dark ; I waked
To find her, or for ever to deplore
Her loss, and other pleasures all abjure. 48o
When out of hope, behold her, not far off,
Such as I saw her in my dream, adorned
With what all earth or heaven could bestow
To make her amiable : on she came,
Led by her heav'nly Maker, though unseen,
And guided by His voice, nor uninformed
Of nuptial sanctity and marriage rites.
Grace was in all her steps, heav'n in her eye,
In every gesture dignity and love.
I overjoyed could not forbear aloud : 49o
“ ‘ This turn hath made amends. Thou hast fulfilled
Thy words, Creator bounteous and benign.
Giver of all things fair, but fairest this
Of all Thy gifts, nor enviest. I now see

Bone of my bone, flesh of my flesh, myself
Before me ; Woman is her name, of Man
Extracted ; for this cause he shall forego
Father and mother, and to his wife adhere ;
And they shall be one flesh, one heart, one soul.'

" She heard me thus, and though divinely brought,
Yet innocence and virgin modesty, [500
Her virtue and the conscience of her worth,
That would be wooed, and not unsought be won,
Not obvious, not obtrusive, but retired,
The more desirable, or, to say all,
Nature herself, though pure of sinful thought,
Wrought in her so, that seeing me she turned ;
I followed her, she what was honour knew.
And with obsequious majesty approved
My pleaded reason. To the nuptial bow'r 510
I led her blushing like the morn : all heav'n,
And happy constellations on that hour
Shed their selectest influence ; the earth
Gave sign of gratulation, and each hill ;
Joyous the birds ; fresh gales and gentle airs
Whispered it to the woods, and from their wings
Flung rose, flung odours from the spicy shrub,
Disporting, till the amorous bird of night
Sung spousal, and bid haste the ev'ning star
On his hill top to light the bridal lamp. 520

" Thus I have told thee all my state, and brought My story to the sum of earthly bliss,
Which I enjoy, and must confess to find
In all things else delight indeed, but such
As, used or not, works in the mind no change,
Nor vehement desire ; these delicacies
I mean of taste, sight, smell, herbs, fruits, and flow'rs,
Walks, and the melody of birds : but here
Far otherwise, transported I behold,
Transported touch ; here passion first I felt, 530
Commotion strange, in all enjoyments else
Superior and unmoved, here only weak
Against the charm of beauty's powerful glance,

Paradise Lost

Or nature failed in me, and left some part
Not proof enough such object to sustain,
Or from my side subducting took perhaps
More than enough ; at least on her bestowed
Too much of ornament, in outward show
Elaborate, of inward less exact.
For well I understand in the prime end 540
Of nature her th' inferior, in the mind
And inward faculties, which most excel ;
In outward also her resembling less
His image who made both, and less expressing
The character of that dominion giv'n
O'er other creatures : yet when I approach
Her loveliness, so absolute she seems
And in herself complete, so well to know
Her own, that what she wills to do or say
Seems wisest, virtuousest, discreetest, best : 550
All higher knowledge in her presence falls
Degraded, wisdom in discourse with her
Loses discountenanced, and like folly shows :
Authority and reason on her wait,
As one intended first, not after made
Occasionally ; and, to consummate all,
Greatness of mind and nobleness their seat
Build in her loveliest, and create an awe
About her, as a guard angelic placed."
To whom the angel with contracted brow : 560
" Accuse not Nature, she hath done her part ;
Do thou but thine, and be not diffident
Of Wisdom ; she deserts thee not, if thou
Dismiss not her, when most thou need'st her nigh,
By attribúting overmuch to things
Less excellent, as thou thyself perceivest.
For what admir'st thou, what transports thee so ?
An outside ? fair no doubt, and worthy well
Thy cherishing, thy honouring, and thy love,
Not thy subjection : weigh with her thyself ; 570
Then value : oft times nothing profits more
Than self-esteem, grounded on just and right,

Paradise Lost

Well managed : of that skill the more thou know'st,
The more she will acknowledge thee her head,
And to realities yield all her shows ;
Made so adorn for thy delight the more,
So awful, that with honour thou may'st love
Thy mate, who sees when thou art seen least wise.

But if the sense of touch whereby mankind
Is propagated seem such dear delight 580
Beyond all other, think the same vouchsafed
To cattle and each beast ; which would not be
To them made common and divulged, if aught
Therein enjoyed were worthy to subdue
The soul of man, or passion in him move.
What higher in her society thou find'st
Attractive, human, rational, love still :
In loving thou dost well, in passion not,
Wherein true love consists not : love refines
The thoughts, and heart enlarges : hath his seat 590
In reason, and is judicious ; is the scale
By which to heav'nly love thou may'st ascend,
Not sunk in carnal pleasure ; for which cause
Among the beasts no mate for thee was found."

To whom thus half abashed Adam replied :
"Neither her outside formed so fair, nor aught
In procreation, common to all kinds,
(Though higher of the genial bed by far
And with mysterious reverence I deem,) 600
So much delights me, as those graceful acts,
Those thousand decencies that daily flow
From all her words and actions, mixed with love
And sweet compliance, which declare unfeigned
Union of mind, or in us both one soul ;
Harmony to behold in wedded pair,
More grateful than harmonious sound to the ear.
Yet these subject not ; I to thee disclose
What inward thence I feel, not therefore foiled,
Who meet with various objects, from the sense
Variously representing ; yet still free 610
Approve the best, and follow what I approve.

Paradise Lost

To love thou blam'st me not, for love thou say'st
Leads up to heav'n, is both the way and guide ;
Bear with me then, if lawful what I ask :
I love not the heav'nly spirits, and how their love
Express they? by looks only, or do they mix
Irradiance, virtual or immediate touch?"

To whom the angel, with a smile that glowed
Celestial rosy red, love's proper hue,
Answered : " Let it suffice thee that thou know'st 620
Us happy, and without love no happiness.
Whatever pure thou in the body enjoy'st,
(And pure thou wert created,) we enjoy
In eminence, and obstacle find none
Of membrane, joint, or limb, exclusive bars :
Easier than air with air, if spirits embrace,
Total they mix, union of pure with pure
Desiring ; nor restrained conveyance need
As flesh to mix with flesh, or soul with soul.
But I can now no more ; the parting sun 630
Beyond the earth's green Cape and Verdant
Isles,¹

Hesperian² sets, my signal to depart.
Be strong, live happy, and love, but first of all Him whom to love is to obey,³ and keep
His great command ; take heed lest passion sway
Thy judgment to do aught, which else free will
Would not admit ; thine and of all thy sons
The weal or woe in thee is placed ; beware.
I in thy persevering shall rejoice,
And all the blest : stand fast ; to stand or fall 640
Free in thine own arbitrement it lies ;
Perfect within, no outward aid require,
And all temptation to transgress repel."

So saying, he arose ; whom Adam thus Followed with benediction : " Since to part,
Go, heavenly guest, ethereal messenger,
Sent from whose sov'reign goodness I adore.

Paradise Lost

BOOK IX.

THE ARGUMENT.

Satan having compassed the earth, with meditated guile returns as a mist by night into Paradise, and enters into the serpent sleeping. Adam and Eve in the morning go forth to their labours, which Eve proposes to divide in several places, each labouring apart : Adam consents not, alleging the danger, lest that enemy, of whom they were forewarned, should attempt her found alone : Eve, loth to be thought not circumspect or firm enough, urges her going apart, the rather desirous to make trial of her strength ; Adam at last yields : the serpent finds her alone ; his subtle approach, first gazing, then speaking, with much flattery extolling Eve above all other creatures. Eve, wondering to hear the serpent speak, asks how he attained to human speech and such understanding not till now ; the serpent answers, that by tasting of a certain tree in the garden he attained both to speech and reason, till then void of both : Eve requires him to bring her to that tree, and finds it to be the Tree of Knowledge forbidden ; the serpent, now grown bolder, with many wiles and arguments induces her at length to eat : she, pleased with the taste, deliberates a while whether to impart thereof to Adam, or not ; at last brings him of the fruit, relates what persuaded her to eat thereof : Adam at first amazed, but perceiving her lost, resolves, through vehemence of love, to perish with her, and extenuating the trespass eats also of the fruit : the effects thereof in them both : they seek to cover their nakedness : then fall to variance and accusation of one another.

No more of talk where God or angel guest
With man, as with his friend, familiar used
To sit indulgent, and with him partake
Rural repast, permitting him the while
Venial discourse unblamed ; I now must change
These notes to tragic ; foul distrust, and breach
Disloyal on the part of man, revolt,
And disobedience : on the part of heav'n
Now alienated, distance and distaste,
Anger, and just rebuke, and judgment giv'n, 10

Sin and her shadow Death, and Misery,
Death's harbinger : sad task, yet argument

Doubt might beget of diabolic pow'r
Active within beyond the sense of brute.
Thus he resolved, but first from inward grief
His bursting passion into plaints thus poured :
 " O earth, how like to heav'n, if not preferred
More justly ; seat worthier of gods, as built 110
With second thoughts, reforming what was old !
For what god after better worse would build ?
Terrestrial heav'n, danced round by other heav'ns
That shine, yet bear their bright officious lamps,
Light above light, for thee alone, as seems,
In thee concentrating all their precious beams
Of sacred influence. As GOD in heav'n
Is centre, yet extends to all, so thou
Centring receiv'st from all those orbs : in thee,
Not in themselves, all their known virtue appears 110
Productive in herb, plant, and nobler birth
Of creatures animate with gradual life
Of growth, sense, reason, all summed up in man.
With what delight could I have walked thee round,
If I could joy in aught, sweet interchange
Of hill and valley, rivers, woods, and plains,
Now land, now sea, and shores with forest crowned,
Rocks, dens, and caves ! but I in none of these Find place or refuge ; and the more I see
Pleasures about me, so much more I feel 120
Torment within me, as from the hateful siege
Of contraries ; all good to me becomes
Bane, and in heav'n much worse would be my state.
But neither here seek I, no nor in heav'n
To dwell, unless by mast'ring heav'n's Supreme ;
Nor hope to be myself less miserable
By what I seek, but others to make such
As I, though thereby worse to me redound :
For only in destroying I find ease
To my relentless thoughts ; and him destroyed, 130
Or won to what may work his utter loss,
For whom all this was made, all this will soon
Follow, as to him linked in weal or woe :
In woe then ; that destruction wide may range.

Paradise Lost

To me shall be the glory sole among
The infernal powers, in one day to have marred
What He, Almighty styled, six nights and days
Continued making, and who knows how long
Before had been contriving? though perhaps
Not longer than since I in one night freed 140
From servitude inglorious well nigh half
Th' angelic name, and thinner left the throng
Of His adorers. He, to be avenged,
And to repair His numbers thus impaired,
Whether such virtue spent of old now failed
More angels to create, if they at least
Are His created, or to spite us more,
Determined to advance into our room
A creature formed of earth, and him endow,
Exalted from so base original, 150
With heav'nly spoils, our spoils: what He decreed,
He effected; man He made, and for him built
Magnificent this world, and earth his seat,
Him lord pronounced, and, O indignity!
Subjected to his service angel wings,¹
And flaming ministers, to watch and tend
Their earthy charge. Of these the vigilance
I dread, and to elude, thus wrapped in mist
Of midnight vapour, glide obscure, and pry
In every bush and brake, where hap may find 160
The serpent sleeping, in whose mazy folds
To hide me, and the dark intent I bring.
O foul descent! that I, who erst contended
With Gods to sit the highest, am now constrained
Into a beast, and mixed with bestial slime,
This essence to incarnate and imbrute,
That to the highth of deity aspired!
But what will not ambition and revenge
Descend to? who aspires must down as low
As high he soared, obnoxious first or last 170
To basest things. Revenge, at first though sweet,
Bitter ere long, back on itself recoils:
Let it; I reckon not, so it light well aimed,

¹ Psalm civ. 4.

Paradise Lost

Since higher I fall short, on him who next
Provokes my envy, this new favourite
Of heav'n, this man of clay, son of despite,
Whom, us the more to spite, his Maker raised
From dust : spite then with spite is best repaid."

So saying, through each thicket dank or dry,
Like a black mist low creeping, he held on 180
His midnight search, where soonest he might find
The serpent : him fast sleeping soon he found,
In labyrinth of many a round self-rolled,
His head the midst, well stored with subtle wiles :
Not yet in horrid shade or dismal den,
Nor nocent yet, but on the grassy herb,
Fearless, unfeared he slept. In at his mouth
The devil entered, and his brutal sense,
In heart or head, possessing soon inspired
With act intelligential ; but his sleep 190
Disturbed not, waiting close th' approach of morn.

Now, when as sacred light began to dawn
In Eden on the humid flow'rs, that breathed
Their morning incense, when all things that breathe
From the earth's great altar send up silent praise
To the Creator, and His nostrils fill
With grateful smell, forth came the human pair,
And joined their vocal worship to the choir
Of creatures wanting voice ; that done, partake
The season, prime for sweetest scents and airs : 200
Then commune, how that day they best may ply
Their growing work ; for much their work outgrew
The hands' dispatch of two, gard'ning so wide.
And Eve first to her husband thus began :

"Adam, well may we labour still to dress
This garden, still to tend plant, herb, and flow'r,
Our pleasant task enjoined ; but till more hands
Aid us, the work under our labour grows,
Luxurious by restraint ; what we by day
Lop overgrown, or prune, or prop, or bind, 210
One night or two with wanton growth derides,
Tending to wild. Thou therefore now advise,
Or hear what to my mind first thoughts present :

Paradise Lost

Let us divide our labours ; thou where choice
Leads thee, or where most needs, whether to wind
The woodbine round this arbour, or direct
The clasping ivy where to climb ; while I
In yonder spring¹ of roses intermixed
With myrtle find what to redress till noon :
For while so near each other thus all day... 220
Our task we choose, what wonder if so near Looks intervene and smiles, or object new Casual discourse draw on ; which intermits
Our day's work, brought to little, though begun
Early, and the hour of supper comes unearned ? ”

To whom mild answer Adam thus returned :
“ Sole Eve, associate sole, to me beyond
Compare above all living creatures dear,
Well hast thou motioned, well thy thoughts employed,
How we might best fulfil the work which here 230
God hath assigned us, nor of me shalt pass
Unpraised ; for nothing lovelier can be found
In woman, than to study household good,
And good works in her husband to promote.
Yet not so strictly hath our Lord imposed
Labour, as to debar us when we need
Refreshment, whether food, or talk between,
Food of the mind, or this sweet intercourse
Of looks and smiles ; for smiles from reason flow,
To brute denied, and are of love the food— 240
Love, not the lowest end of human life.
For not to irksome toil, but to delight,
He made us, and delight to reason joined.
These paths and bowers doubt not but our joint hands
Will keep from wilderness with ease, as wide
As we need walk, till younger hands ere long
Assist us : but if much converse perhaps
Thee satiate, to short absence I could yield ;
For solitude sometimes is best society,
And short retirement urges sweet return. 250
But other doubt possesses me, lest harm
Befall thee severed from me ; for thou know'st.

¹ A spring is a small coppice or thicket.

Paradise Lost

What hath been warned us, what malicious foe,
Envyng our happiness, and of his own
Despairing, seeks to work us woe and shame
By sly assault ; and somewhere nigh at hand
Watches, no doubt, with greedy hope to find
His wish and best advantage, us asunder,
Hopeless to circumvent us joined, where each
To other speedy aid might lend at need ;¹ 260
Whether his first design be to withdraw
Our fealty from God, or to disturb
Conjugal love, than which perhaps no bliss
Enjoyed by us excites his envy more ;
Or this, or worse, leave not the faithful side
That gave thee being, still shades thee and protects.
The wife, where danger or dishonour lurks,
Safest and seemliest by her husband stays,
Who guards her, or with her the worst endures."

To whom the virgin majesty of Eve, 270
As one who loves, and some unkindness meets,
With sweet austere composure thus replied :

"Offspring of heav'n and earth, and all earth's lord !
That such an enemy we have, who seeks
Our ruin, both by thee informed I learn,
And from the parting angel overheard,
As in a shady nook I stood behind,
Just then returned at shut of evening flow'rs.

But that thou shouldst my firmness therefore doubt
To God or thee, because we have a foe 280
May tempt it, I expected not to hear.

His violence thou fear'st not, being such,
As we, not capable of death or pain,
Can either not receive, or can repel.
His fraud is then thy fear, which plain infers
Thy equal fear, that my firm faith and love
Can by his fraud be shaken or seduced :
Thoughts, which how found they harbour in thy breast,

Adam, misthought of her to thee so dear?"

To whom with healing words Adam replied : 290

¹ Eccles. iv. 9, 10.

Paradise Lost

“Daughter of God and man, immortal Eve !
For such thou art, from sin and blame entire :
Not diffident of thee do I dissuade
Thy absence from my sight, but to avoid
Th’ attempt itself, intended by our foe :
For he who tempts, though in vain, at least asperses
The tempted with dishonour foul, supposed
Not incorruptible of faith, not proof
Against temptation. Thou thyself with scorn
And anger wouldst resent the offered wrong, 300
Though ineffectual found : misdeem not then,
If such affront I labour to avert
From thee alone, which on us both at once
The enemy, though bold, will hardly dare,
Or daring, first on me th’ assault shall light.
Nor thou his malice and false guile contemn ;
Subtle he needs must be, who could seduce
Angels ; nor think superfluous others’ aid.
I from the influence of thy looks receive
Access in every virtue, in thy sight 310
More wise, more watchful, stronger, if need were
Of outward strength ; while shame, thou looking on,
Shame to be overcome or over-reached,
Would utmost vigour raise, and raised unite.
Why shouldst not thou like sense within thee feel
When I am present, and thy trial choose
With me, best witness of thy virtue tried ?”
So spake domestic Adam in his care
And matrimonial love ; but Eve, who thought
Less attributed to her faith sincere, 320
Thus her reply with accent sweet renewed :
“ If this be our condition, thus to dwell
In narrow circuit straitened by a foe,
Subtle or violent, we not endued
Single with like defence, wherever met,
How are we happy, still in fear of harm ?
But harm precedes not sin : only our foe
Tempting affronts us with his foul esteem
Of our integrity : his foul esteem
Sticks no dishonour on our front, but turns 330

Paradise Lost

Foul on himself ; then wherefore shunned or feared
By us ? who rather double honour gain
From his surmise proved false, find peace within,
Favour from Heav'n, our witness, from th' event.
And what is faith, love, virtue, unassayed
Alone, without exterior help sustained ?
Let us not then suspect our happy state
Left so imperfect by the Maker wise,
As not secure to single or combined.
Frail is our happiness, if this be so, 340
And Eden were no Eden thus exposed."

To whom thus Adam fervently replied :
"O woman, best are all things as the will
Of God ordained them ; His creating hand
Nothing imperfect or deficient left
Of all that He created, much less man,
Or aught that might his happy state secure,
Secure from outward force ; within himself
The danger lies, yet lies within his power :
Against his will he can receive no harm. 350
But God left free the will, for what obeys
Reason is free ; and reason He made right ;
But bid her well beware, and still erect,
Lest by some fair-appearing good surprised
She dictate false, and misinform the will
To do what God expressly hath forbid.
Not then mistrust, but tender love enjoins,
That I should mind thee oft, and mind thou me.
Firm we subsist, yet possible to swerve,
Since reason not impossibly may meet 360
Some specious object by the foe suborned,
And fall into deception unaware,
Not keeping strictest watch, as she was warned.
Seek not temptation then, which to avoid
Were better, and most likely, if from me
Thou sever not : trial will come unsought.
Wouldst thou approve thy constancy, approve
First thy obedience ; the other, who can know ?
Not seeing thee attempted, who attest ?
But if thou think trial unsought may find 370

Paradise Lost

Us both securer than thus warned thou seem'st,
Go; for thy stay, not free, absents thee more;
Go in thy native innocence, rely
On what thou hast of virtue, summon all,
For GOD towards thee hath done His part, do thine."

So spake the patriarch of mankind, but Eve
Persisted, yet submiss, though last, replied :

"With thy permission, then, and thus forewarned,
Chiefly by what thy own last reasoning words
Touched only, that our trial, when least sought, 380
May find us both perhaps far less prepared,
The willinger I go, nor much expect
A foe so proud will first the weaker seek ;
So bent, the more shall shame him his repulse."

Thus saying, from her husband's hand her hand
Soft she withdrew ; and, like a wood-nymph light,
Oread or Dryad, or of Delia's ¹ train,
Betook her to the groves, but Delia's self
In gait surpassed and goddess-like deport,
Though not as she with bow and quiver armed, 390
But with such gard'ning tools as art, yet rude, Guiltless of fire had formed, or angels brought.
To Pales, or Pomona, thus adorned,
Likest she seemed ; Pomona when she fled
Vertumnus, or to Ceres in her prime,
Yet virgin of Proserpina from Jove.
Her long with ardent look his eye pursued
Delighted, but desiring more her stay :
Oft he to her his charge of quick return
Repeated, she to him as oft engaged 400
To be returned by noon amid the bow'r,
And all things in best order to invite
Noontide repast, or afternoon's repose.
O much deceived, much failing, hapless Eve,
Of thy presumed return ! event perverse !
Thou never from that hour in Paradise
Found'st either sweet repast, or sound repose ;
Such ambush hid among sweet flow'rs and shades
Waited with hellish rancour imminent

Paradise Lost

To intercept thy way, or send thee back 410
Despoiled of innocence, of faith, of bliss.
For now, and since first break of dawn the fiend,
Mere serpent in appearance, forth was come,
And on his quest, where likeliest he might find
The only two of mankind, but in them
The whole included race, his purposed prey.
In bow'r and field he sought, where any tuft
Of grove or garden-plot more pleasant lay,
Their tendance or plantation for delight ;
By fountain or by shady rivulet 420
He sought them both, but wished his hap might find
Eve separate ; he wished, but not with hope
Of what so seldom chanced, when to his wish,
Beyond his hope, Eve separate he spies,
Veiled in a cloud of fragrance, where she stood,
Half spied, so thick the roses bushing round
About her glowed, oft stooping to support
Each flow'r of tender stalk, whose head, though gay
Carnation, purple, azure, or specked with gold,
Hung drooping unsustained ; them she upstays 430
Gently with myrtle band, mindless the while Herself, though fairest unsupported flow'r,
From her best prop so far, and storm so nigh.
Nearer he drew, and many a walk traversed
Of stateliest covert, cedar, pine, or palm,
Then voluble and bold, now hid, now seen
Among thick-woven arborets and flow'rs
Imbordered on each bank, the hand of Eve :
Spot more delicious than those gardens feigned
Or of revived Adonis,¹ or renowned 440
Alcinous, host of old Laertes' son,²
Or that, not mystic, where the sapient king
Held dalliance with his fair Egyptian spouse.³
Much he the place admired, the person more.
As one who long in populous city pent,
Where houses thick and sewers annoy the air,

¹ At the request of Venus, he was restored to life.

² Ulysses. For description of the gardens of Alcinous, see the "Odyssey."

Paradise Lost

Forth issuing on a summer's morn to breathe
Among the pleasant villages and farms
Adjoined, from each thing met conceives delight,
The smell of grain, or tedded grass,¹ or kine, 450
Or dairy, each rural sight, each rural sound ;
If chance with nymph-like step fair virgin pass,
What pleasing seemed, for her now pleases more,
She most, and in her look sums all delight:
Such pleasure took the serpent to behold
This flow'ry plat, the sweet recess of Eve
Thus early, thus alone : her heav'nly form
Angelic, but more soft and feminine,
Her graceful innocence, her every air
Of gesture or least action, over-awed 460
His malice, and with rapine sweet bereaved
His fierceness of the fierce intent it brought.
That space the Evil One abstracted stood
From his own evil, and for the time remained
Stupidly good, of enmity disarmed,
Of guile, of hate, of envy, of revenge.
But the hot hell that always in him burns,
Though in mid heav'n, soon ended his delight,
And tortures him now more, the more he sees
Of pleasure not for him ordained : then soon 470
Fierce hate he recollects, and all his thoughts
Of mischief, gratulating, thus excites :

“ Thoughts, whither have ye led me? with what sweet
Compulsion thus transported to forget
What hither brought us? hate, not love, nor hope
Of Paradise for hell, hope here to taste
Of pleasure, but all pleasure to destroy,
Save what is in destroying : other joy
To me is lost. Then let me not let pass
Occasion which now smiles ; behold alone 480
The woman opportune to all attempts,
Her husband, for I view far round, not nigh,
Whose higher intellectual more I shun,
And strength, of courage haughty, and of limb
Heroic built, though of terrestrial mould ;

¹ Hay spread out.

Paradise Lost

Foe not formidable, exempt from wound,
I not : so much hath hell debased, and pain
Infeebled me, to what I was in heaven.
She fair, divinely fair, fit love for gods,
Not terrible, though terror be in love,
And beauty, not approached by stronger hate,
Hate stronger under show of love well feigned ;
The way which to her ruin now I tend."

490

So spake the enemy of mankind, enclosed
In serpent, inmate bad, and toward Eve
Addressed his way ; not with indented wave,
Prone on the ground, as since, but on his rear,
Circular base of rising folds, that towered
Fold above fold a surging maze, his head
Crested aloft, and carbuncle his eyes ;
With burnished neck of verdant gold, erect
Amidst his circling spires, that on the grass
Floated redundant : pleasing was his shape,
And lovely, never since of serpent-kind
Lovelier, not those that in Illyria changed
Hermione and Cadmus,¹ or the God²
In Epidaurus ; nor to which transformed
Ammonian³ Jove or Capitoline⁴ was seen,
He with Olympias, this with her who bore
Scipio the highth of Rome. With tract oblique
At first, as one who sought access, but feared
To interrupt, side-long he works his way.
As when a ship by skilful steersman wrought
Nigh river's mouth or foreland, where the wind
Veers oft, as oft so steers, and shifts her sail ;
So varied he, and of his tortuous train
Curled many a wanton wreath in sight of Eve,
To lure her eye ; she, busied, heard the sound
Of rustling leaves, but minded not, as used

Paradise Lost

To such disport before her through the field, 520
From every beast, more duteous at her call,
Than at Circean call the herd disguised.
He, bolder now, uncalled before her stood ;
But as in gaze admiring : oft he bowed
His turret crest, and sleek enamelled neck,
Fawning, and licked the ground whereon she trod.
His gentle dumb expression turned at length
The eye of Eve to mark his play ; he glad
Of her attention gained, with serpent tongue
Organic, or impulse of vocal air, 530
His fraudulent temptation thus began :

“Wonder not, sov'reign mistress, if perhaps
Thou canst, who art sole wonder, much less arm
Thy looks, the heav'n of mildness, with disdain,
Displeased that I approach thee thus, and gaze
Insatiate, I thus single, nor have feared
Thy awful brow, more awful thus retired.
Fairest resemblance of thy Maker fair,
Thee all things living gaze on, all things thine
By gift, and thy celestial beauty adore 540
With ravishment beheld, there best beheld
Where universally admired : but here,
In this enclosure wild, these beasts among,
Beholders rude, and shallow to discern
Half what in thee is fair, one man except,
Who sees thee ? and what is one ? who shouldst be seen
A Goddess among Gods, adored and served
By angels numberless, thy daily train.”

So glozed the tempter, and his proem tuned.
Into the heart of Eve his words made way, 550
Though at the voice much marvelling : at length,
Not unamazed, she thus in answer spake :

“What may this mean ? Language of man pronounced
By tongue of brute, and human sense expressed ?
The first at least of these I thought denied
To beasts, whom GOD on their creation-day
Created mute to all articulate sound ;
The latter I demur, for in their looks
Much reason, and in their actions, oft appears.

Paradise Lost

Thee, serpent, subtlest beast of all the field 560
I knew, but not with human voice endued :
Redouble then this miracle, and say,
How cam'st thou speakable of mute, and how
To me so friendly grown above the rest
Of brutal kind, that daily are in sight ?
Say, for such wonder claims attention due."

To whom the guileful tempter thus replied :
"Empress of this fair world, resplendent Eve,
Easy to me it is to tell thee all What thou command'st, and right thou shouldst be obeyed. 570

I was at first as other beasts that graze
The trodden herb, of abject thoughts and low,
As was my food, nor aught but food discerned
Or sex, and apprehended nothing high :
Till on a day roving the field, I chanced
A goodly tree far distant to behold,
Loaden with fruit of fairest colours mixt,
Ruddy and gold : I nearer drew to gaze ;
When from the boughs a savoury odour blown,
Grateful to appetite, more pleased my sense 580
Than smell of sweetest fennel, or the teats
Of ewe or goat dropping with milk at even,
Unsucked of lamb or kid, that tend their play.
To satisfy the sharp desire I had
Of tasting those fair apples, I resolved
Not to defer ; hunger and thirst at once,
Powerful persuaders, quickened at the scent
Of that alluring fruit, urged me so keen.
About the mossy trunk I wound me soon,
For high from ground the branches would require 590
Thy utmost reach or Adam's : round the tree
All other beasts that saw with like desire,
Longing and envying, stood, but could not reach.
Amid the tree now got, where plenty hung
Tempting so nigh, to pluck and eat my fill
I spared not, for such pleasure, till that hour
At feed or fountain never had I found.
Sated at length, ere long I might perceive

Paradise Lost

Strange alteration in me, to degree
Of reason in my inward powers, and speech 600
Wanted not long, though to this shape retained.
Thenceforth to speculations high or deep
I turned my thoughts, and with capacious mind
Considered all things visible in heav'n,
Or earth, or middle, all things fair and good ;
But all that fair and good in thy divine
Semblance and in thy beauty's heav'nly ray
United I beheld ; no fair to thine
Equivalent or second, which compelled
Me thus, though importune perhaps, to come 610
And gaze, and worship thee of right declared
Sov'reign of creatures, universal dame."

So talked the spirited sly snake ; and Eve
Yet more amazed unwary thus replied :
"Serpent, thy overpraising leaves in doubt
The virtue of that fruit, in thee first proved :
But say, where grows the tree? from hence how far ?

For many are the trees of God that grow
In Paradise, and various, yet unknown
To us, in such abundance lies our choice, 620
As leaves a greater store of fruit untouched,
Still hanging incorruptible, till men
Grow up to their provision, and more hands
Help to disburden nature of her birth."

To whom the wily adder, blithe and glad :
"Empress, the way is ready, and not long ;
Beyond a row of myrtles, on a flat,
Fast by a fountain, one small thicket past
Of blowing myrrh and balm : if thou accept
My conduct, I can bring thee hither soon." 630

"Lead then," said Eve. He leading swiftly rolled
In tangles, and made intricate seem straight,
To mischief swift : hope elevates, and joy
Brightens his crest : as when a wand'ring fire
Compact of unctuous vapour, which the night
Condenses, and the cold environs round,
Kindled through agitation to a flame,

Paradise Lost

—Which oft, they say, some evil spirit attends,— Hovering and blazing with delusive light,
Misleads th' amazed night-wanderer from his way 640
To bogs and mires, and oft through pond or pool,
There swallowed up and lost, from succour far :
So glistered the dire snake, and into fraud
Led Eve, our credulous mother, to the tree
Of prohibition, root of all our woe :

Which when she saw, thus to her guide she spake :

“Serpent, we might have spared our coming hither,
Fruitless to me, though fruit be here to excess,
The credit of whose virtue rest with thee ;
Wondrous indeed, if cause of such effects. 650
But of this tree we may not taste nor touch ;
God so commanded, and left that command
Sole daughter of His voice ; the rest, we live
Law to ourselves, our reason is our law.”

To whom the tempter guilefully replied :

“Indeed ! hath God then said that of the fruit
Of all these garden trees ye shall not eat,
Yet lords declared of all in earth or air ?”

To whom thus Eve, yet sinless : “Of the fruit
Of each tree in the garden we may eat, 660
But of the fruit of this fair tree amidst
The garden, God hath said, ye shall not eat
Thereof, nor shall ye touch it, lest ye die.”

She scarce had said, though brief, when now more bold

The tempter, but with show of zeal and love
To man, and indignation at his wrong,
New part puts on, and, as to passion moved,
Fluctuates disturbed, yet comely, and in act
Raised, as of some great matter to begin.

As when of old some orator renowned 670
In Athens or free Rome, where eloquence
Flourished, since mute, to some great cause addressed,
Stood in himself collected, while each part,
Motion, each act won audience ere the tongue ;
Sometimes in highth began, as no delay
Of preface brooking through his zeal of right :

Paradise Lost

So standing, moving, or to highth upgrown,
The tempter all impassioned thus began :

“O sacred, wise, and wisdom-giving plant,
Mother of science, now I feel thy power 680

Within me clear, not only to discern
Things in their causes, but to trace the ways
Of highest agents, deemed however wise.

Queen of this universe ! do not believe
Those rigid threats of death ; ye shall not die :¹
How should ye ? by the fruit ? it gives you life
To knowledge : by the Threatener ? look on me,
Me who have touched and tasted, yet both live,
And life more perfect have attained than fate
Meant me, by vent'ring higher than my lot. 690

Shall that be shut to man, which to the beast
Is open ? or will GOD incense His ire
For such a petty trespass, and not praise
Rather your dauntless virtue, whom the pain
Of death denounced, whatever thing death be,
Deterred not from achieving what might lead
To happier life, knowledge of good and evil ?
Of good, how just ? of evil, if what is evil
Be real, why not known, since easier shunned ?
God therefore cannot hurt ye, and be just ; 700

Not just, not God ; not feared then, nor obeyed :
Your fear itself of death removes the fear.

Why then was this forbid ? Why but to awe,
Why but to keep ye low and ignorant,
His worshippers ? He knows that in the day
Ye eat thereof, your eyes—that seem so clear,
Yet are but dim—shall perfectly be then
Opened and cleared, and ye shall be as Gods,
Knowing both good and evil as they know.

That ye should be as Gods, since I as man, 710
Internal man, is but proportion meet,
I of brute, human, ye of human, Gods.
So shall ye die perhaps, by putting off
Human, to put on Gods : death to be wished,
Though threatened, which no worse than this can bring.

¹ Gen. iii. 4.

Paradise Lost

And what are Gods that man may not become
As they, participating godlike food?
The Gods are first, and that advantage use
On our belief, that all from them proceeds;
I question it, for this fair earth I see, 720
Warmed by the sun, producing every kind,
Them nothing: if they all things, who enclosed
Knowledge of good and evil in this tree,
That whoso eats thereof forthwith attains
Wisdom without their leave? and wherein lies
The offence, that man should thus attain to know?
What can your knowledge hurt Him, or this tree
Impart against His will if all be His?
Or is it envy; and can envy dwell
In heav'nly breasts? These, these and many more 730
Causes import your need of this fair fruit.
Goddess humane, reach then, and freely taste."

He ended, and his words replete with guile
Into her heart too easy entrance won:
Fixed on the fruit she gazed, which to behold
Might tempt alone, and in her ears the sound
Yet rung of his persuasive words, impregn'd
With reason, to her seeming, and with truth:
Meanwhile the hour of noon drew on, and waked
An eager appetite, raised by the smell 740
So savoury of that fruit, which with desire,
Inclinable now grown to touch or taste,
Solicited her longing eye; yet first,
Pausing a while, thus to herself she mused:

"Great are thy virtues, doubtless, best of fruits,
Though kept from man, and worthy to be admired,
Whose taste, too long forborne, at first assay
Gave elocution to the mute, and taught
The tongue not made for speech to speak thy praise:
Thy praise He also who forbids thy use 750
Conceals not from us, naming thee the Tree
Of Knowledge, knowledge both of good and evil;
Forbids us then to taste, but His forbidding
Commends thee more, while it infers the good
By thee communicated, and our want:

Paradise Lost

For good unknown sure is not had, or had
And yet unknown is as not had at all.
In plain then, what forbids He but to know,
Forbids us good, forbids us to be wise?
Such prohibitions bind not. But if death 760
Bind us with after-bands, what profits then
Our inward freedom? In the day we eat
Of this fair fruit, our doom is, we shall die.
How dies the serpent? he hath eaten and lives,
And knows, and speaks, and reasons, and discerns,
Irrational till then. For us alone
Was death invented? or to us denied
This intellectual food, for beasts reserved?
For beasts it seems: yet that one beast which first 770
Hath tasted envies not, but brings with joy
The good befall'n him, author unsuspect,
Friendly to man, far from deceit or guile.
What fear I then? rather, what know to fear
Under this ignorance of good and evil,
Of God or death, of law or penalty?
Here grows the cure of all, this fruit divine,
Fair to the eye, inviting to the taste,
Of virtue to make wise: what hinders then
To reach, and feed at once both body and mind?"

So saying, her rash hand in evil hour 780
Forth reaching to the fruit, she plucked, she eat:
Earth felt the wound, and Nature from her seat
Sighing through all her works gave signs of woe,
That all was lost. Back to the thicket slunk
The guilty serpent, and well might, for Eve
Intent now wholly on her taste, naught else
Regarded, such delight till then, as seemed,
In fruit she never tasted, whether true
Or fancied so, through expectation high
Of knowledge; nor was Godhead from her thought. 790
Greedily she ingorged without restraint,
And knew not eating death: satiate at length,
And hightened as with wine, jocund and boon,
Thus to herself she pleasingly began:

"O sov'reign, virtuous, precious of all trees

Paradise Lost

In Paradise, of operation blest
To sapience, hitherto obscured, infamed,
And thy fair fruit let hang, as to no end
Created : but henceforth my early care,
Not without song, each morning, and due praise 800
Shall tend thee, and the fertile burden ease
Of thy full branches offered free to all ;
Till dieted by thee I grow mature
In knowledge, as the Gods who all things know ;
Though other; envy what they cannot give ;
For had the gift been theirs it had not here
Thus grown. Experience, next to thee I owe,
Best guide ;¹ not following thee I had remained
In ignorance ; thou open'st wisdom's way,
And giv'st access, though secret she retire. 810
And I perhaps am secret : heav'n is high,
High and remote to see from thence distinct
Each thing on earth ; and other care perhaps
May have diverted from continual watch
Our great Forbidder, safe with all his spies
About him. But to Adam in what sort
Shall I appear ? shall I to him make known
As yet my change, and give him to partake
Full happiness with me, or rather not,
But keep the odds of knowledge in my power 820
Without copartner ? so to add what wants
In female sex, the more to draw his love,
And render me more equal, and perhaps,
A thing not undesirable, sometime
Superior ; for, inferior, who is free ?
This may be well : but what if God have seen,
And death ensue ? then I shall be no more,
And Adam wedded to another Eve
Shall live with her enjoying, I extinct :
A death to think. Confirmed then I resolve, 830
Adam shall share with me in bliss or woe :
So dear I love him, that with him all deaths
I could endure : without him live no life."
So saying, from the tree her step she turned.

¹ The serpent.

Paradise Lost

But first low reverence done, as to the power
That dwelt within, whose presence had infused
Into the plant sciential sap, derived
From nectar, drink of Gods. Adam the while Waiting desirous her return, had wove
Of choicest flow'rs a garland to adorn 840
Her tresses, and her rural labours crown,
As reapers oft are wont their harvest queen.
Great joy he promised to his thoughts, and new Solace in her return, so long delayed ;
Yet oft his heart, divine of something ill,
Mistake him ; he the falt'ring measure felt ;
And forth to meet her went, the way she took
That morn when first they parted. By the Tree
Of Knowledge he must pass, there he her met,
Scarce from the tree returning ; in her hand 850
A bough of fairest fruit that downy smiled,
New gathered, and ambrosial smell diffused.
To him she hasted ; in her face excuse
Came prologue, and apology too prompt,
Which with bland words at will she thus addressed :
 "Hast thou not wondered, Adam, at my stay ?
Thee I have missed, and thought it long, deprived
Thy presence, agony of love till now
Not felt, nor shall be twice, for never more
Mean I to try, what rash untried I sought, 860
The pain of absence from thy sight. But strange
Hath been the cause, and wonderful to hear :
This tree is not, as we are told, a tree
Of danger tasted, nor to evil unknown
Op'ning the way, but of divine effect
To open eyes, and make them Gods who taste :
And hath been tasted such. The serpent wise,
Or not restrained as we, or not obeying,
Hath eaten of the fruit, and is become
Not dead, as we are threatened, but thenceforth 870
Endued with human voice and human sense,
Reasoning to admiration, and with me
Persuasively hath so prevailed, that I
Have also tasted, and have also found

Paradise Lost

Th' effects to correspond ; opener mine eyes,
Dim erst, dilated spirits, ampler heart,
And growing up to Godhead ; which for thee
Chiefly I sought, without thee can despise.
For bliss, as thou hast part, to me is bliss,
Tedious, unshared with thee, and odious soon. 880
Thou therefore also taste, that equal lot
May join us, equal joy, as equal love ;
Lest, thou not tasting, different degree
Disjoin us, and I then too late renounce
Deity for thee, when fate will not permit."

Thus Eve, with countenance blithe, her story told,
But in her cheek distemper flushing glowed.
On th' other side, Adam, soon as he heard
The fatal trespass done by Eve, amazed,
Astonied stood and blank, while horror chill 890
Ran through his veins, and all his joints relaxed ;
From his slack hand the garland wreathed for Eve
Down dropped, and all the faded roses shed :
Speechless he stood and pale, till thus at length
First to himself he inward silence broke :

"O fairest of creation, last and best
Of all GOD's works, creature in whom excelled
Whatever can to sight or thought be formed,
Holy, divine, good, amiable or sweet !
How art thou lost, how on a sudden lost, 900
Defaced, deflowered, and now to death devote !
Rather how hast thou yielded to transgress
The strict forbiddance, how to violate
The sacred fruit forbidden ! some cursed fraud
Of enemy hath beguiled thee, yet unknown.
And me with thee hath ruined, for with thee
Certain my resolution is to die :
How can I live without thee ? how forego
Thy sweet converse and love so dearly joined,
To live again in these wild woods forlorn ? 910
Should GOD create another Eve, and I
Another rib afford, yet loss of thee
Would never from my heart ; no, no ! I feel
The link of nature draw me ; flesh of flesh,

Paradise Lost

Bone of my bone thou art, and from thy state
Mine never shall be parted, bliss or woe."

So having said, as one from sad dismay
Recomforted, and after thoughts disturbed
Submitting to what seemed remediless,
Thus in calm mood his words to Eve he turned : 920

"Bold deed thou hast presumed, adventurous Eve,
And peril great provoked, who thus hast dared,
Had it been only coveting to eye
That sacred fruit, sacred to abstinence,
Much more to taste it under ban to touch.
But past who can recall, or done undo?
Not GOD omnipotent, nor Fate! Yet so
Perhaps thou shalt not die; perhaps the fact
Is not so heinous now, foretasted fruit,
Profaned first by the serpent, by him first 930
Made common and unhallowed ere our taste;

Nor yet on him found deadly, he yet lives,
Lives, as thou said'st, and gains to live as man
Higher degree of life, inducement strong
To us, as likely tasting to attain
Proportional ascent, which cannot be
But to be Gods, or angels, demigods.
Nor can I think that GOD, Creator wise,
Though threat'ning, will in earnest so destroy
Us His prime creatures, dignified so high, 940
Set over all His works, which in our fall,

For us created, needs with us must fail,
Dependent made; so GOD shall uncreate,
Be frustrate, do, undo, and labour lose—
Not well conceived of GOD; who, though His power
Creation could repeat, yet would be loth
Us to abolish, lest the adversary
Triumph and say: 'Fickle their state whom GOD
Most favours, who can please Him long? Me first
He ruined, now mankind; whom will he next?' 950
Matter of scorn, not to be given the foe.
However, I with thee have fixed my lot,
Certain to undergo like doom; if death
Consort with thee, death is to me as life;

Paradise Lost

So forcible within my heart I feel
The bond of nature draw me to my own,
My own in thee, for what thou art is mine ;
Our state cannot be severed, we are one,
One flesh ; to lose thee were to lose myself."

So Adam ; and thus Eve to him replied : 960
"O glorious trial of exceeding love,
Illustrious evidence, example high,
Engaging me to emulate, but, short
Of thy perfection, how shall I attain,
Adam ? from whose dear side I boast me sprung,
And gladly of our union hear thee speak,
One heart, one soul in both ; whereof good proof
This day affords, declaring thee resolved,
Rather than death or aught than death more dread
Shall separate us linked in love so dear, 970
To undergo with me one guilt, one crime,
If any be, of tasting this fair fruit ;
Whose virtue, for of good still good proceeds,
Direct, or by occasion, hath presented
This happy trial of thy love, which else
So eminently never had been known.
Were it I thought death menaced would ensue
This my attempt, I would sustain alone
The worst, and not persuade thee—rather die
Deserted, than oblige thee with a fact 980
Pernicious to thy peace, chiefly assured
Remarkably so late of thy so true,
So faithful love unequalled ; but I feel
Far otherwise the event, not death but life
Augmented, opened eyes, new hopes, new joys,
Taste so divine, that what of sweet before
Hath touched my sense, flat seems to this and harsh.
On my experience, Adam, freely taste,
And fear of death deliver to the winds."

So saying, she embraced him, and for joy 990
Tenderly wept, much won that he his love
Had so ennobled, as of choice to incur
Divine displeasure for her sake, or death.
In recompense, for such compliance bad

Paradise Lost

Such recompense best merits, from the bough
She gave him of that fair, enticing fruit
With liberal hand ; he scrupled not to eat
Against his better knowledge, not deceived,¹
But fondly overcome with female charm.
Earth trembled from her entrails, as again 1000
In pangs, and Nature gave a second groan,
Sky loured, and, mutt'ring thunder, some sad drops
Wept at completing of the mortal sin
Original ; while Adam took no thought,
Eating his fill, nor Eve to iterate
Her former trespass feared, the more to soothe
Him with her loved society, that now,
As with new wine intoxicated both,
They swim in mirth, and fancy that they feel
Divinity within them breeding wings 1010
Wherewith to scorn the earth ; but that false fruit
Far other operation first displayed,
Carnal desire inflaming ; he on Eve
Began to cast lascivious eyes, she him
As wantonly repaid ; in lust they burn ;
Till Adam thus 'gan Eve to dalliance move :
 " Eve, now I see thou art exact of taste,
And elegant, of sapience no small part,
Since to each meaning savour we apply,
And palate call judicious ; I the praise 1020
Yield thee, so well this day thou hast purveyed.
Much pleasure we have lost, while we abstained
From this delightful fruit, nor known till now
True relish, tasting ; if such pleasure be
In things to us forbidden, it might be wished,
For this one tree had been forbidden ten,
But come, so well refreshed, now let us play
As meet is, after such delicious fare ;
For never did thy beauty, since the day
I saw thee first and wedded thee, adorned 1030
With all perfections, so inflame my sense
With ardour to enjoy thee, fairer now
Than ever, bounty of this virtuous tree."

¹ 1 Tim. ii. 14.

Paradise Lost

So said he, and forbore not glance or toy
Of amorous intent, well understood
Of Eve, whose eye darted contagious fire.
Her hand he seized, and to a shady bank,
Thick overhead with verdant roof imbowered,
He led her nothing loth ; flowers were the couch,
Pansies, and violets, and asphodel, 1040
And hyacinth, earth's freshest, softest lap.
There they their fil of love and love's disport
Took largely, of their mutual guilt the seal,
The solace of their sin, till dewy sleep
Oppressed them, wearied with their amorous play.
Soon as the force of that fallacious fruit,
That with exhilarating vapour bland
About their spirits had played, and inmost powers
Made err, was now exhaled, and grosser sleep
Bred of unkindly fumes, with conscious dreams 1050
Encumbered, now had left them, up they rose
As from unrest, and, each the other viewing,
Soon found their eyes how opened, and their minds
How darkened : innocence, that as a veil
Had shadowed them from knowing ill, was gone ;
Just confidence, and native righteousness,
And honour from about them : naked left
To guilty shame, he covered, but his robe
Uncovered more. So rose the Danite strong
Hercúlean Samson from the harlot-lap 1060
Of Philistean Dalilah, and waked
Shorn of his strength ; they destitute and bare
Of all their virtue : silent, and in face
Confounded, long they sate, as stricken mute,
Till Adam, though not less than Eve abashed,
At length gave utterance to these words constrained :
“O Eve, in evil hour thou didst give ear
To that false worm, of whomsoever taught
To counterfeit man's voice, true in our fall,
False in our promised rising ; since our eyes 1070
Opened we find indeed, and find we know
Both good and evil, good lost, and evil got :
Bad fruit of knowledge, if this be to know,

Paradise Lost

Which leaves us naked thus, of honour void,
Of innocence, of faith, of purity,
Our wonted ornaments now soiled and stained,
And in our faces evident the signs
Of foul concupiscence ; whence evil store,
Ev'n shame, the last of evils ; of the first
Be sure then. How shall I behold the face 1080
Henceforth of GOD or angel, erst with joy
And rapture so oft beheld ? those heav'nly shapes
Will dazzle now this earthly, with their blaze
Insufferably bright. O might I here
In solitude live savage, in some glade
Obscured, where highest woods, impenetrable
To star or sun-light, spread their umbrage broad,
And brown as evening. Cover me, ye pines !
Ye cedars, with innumerable boughs
Hide me, where I may never see them more ! 1090
But let us now, as in bad plight, devise
What best may for the present serve to hide
The parts of each from other, that seem most
To shame obnoxious, and unseemliest seen ;
Some tree, whose broad smooth leaves together sewed,
And girded on our loins, may cover round
Those middle parts, that this new comer, shame,
There sit not, and reproach us as unclean."
So counselled he, and both together went Into the thickest wood ; there soon they chose 1100
The fig-tree, not that kind for fruit renowned,
But such as at this day to Indians known
In Malabar or Deccan spreads her arms,
Branching so broad and long, that in the ground
The bended twigs take root, and daughters grow
About the mother tree, a pillared shade¹
High overarched, and echoing walks between ;
There oft the Indian herdsman shunning heat
Shelters in cool, and tends his pasturing herds [1110
At loopholes cut thro' thickest shade. Those leaves

¹ The Indian fig, called Ficus Indica by botanists, or Banyan. The largest known nearly covers an island on the Nerbudda. It is 2000 feet round, and has 1300 trunks.

Paradise Lost

They gathered, broad as Amazonian targe,
And with what skill they had together sewed,
To gird their waist. Vain covering, if to hide
Their guilt and dreaded shame; O how unlike
To that first naked glory! Such of late
Columbus found th' American so girt
With feathered cincture, naked else and wild
Among the trees on isles and woody shores.
Thus fenced, and as they thought, their shame in part
Covered, but not at rest or ease of mind, 1120
They sat them down to weep; nor only tears
Rained at their eyes, but high winds worse within Began to rise, high passions, anger, hate,
Mistrust, suspicion, discord, and shook sore
Their inward state of mind, calm region once
And full of peace, now tost and turbulent:
For understanding ruled not, and the will Heard not her lore, both in subjection now
To sensual appetite, who from beneath
Usurping over sov'reign reason claimed 1130
Superior sway: from thus distempered breast
Adam, estranged in look and altered style,
Speech intermitted thus to Eve renewed:

“Would thou hadst hearkened to my words, and stayed
With me, as I besought thee, when that strange
Desire of wandering this unhappy morn
I know not whence possessed thee; we had then
Remained still happy, not, as now, despoiled
Of all our good, shamed, naked, miserable.
Let none henceforth seek needless cause to approve
The faith they owe; when earnestly they seek [1140
Such proof, conclude they then begin to fail.”

To whom, soon moved with touch of blame, thus Eve:
What words have passed thy lips, Adam severe?
Imput'st thou that to my default, or will
Of wand'ring, as thou call'st it, which who knows
But might as ill have happened thou being by,
Or to thyself perhaps? hadst thou been there,
Or here th' attempt, thou couldst not have discerned

Paradise Lost

Fraud in the serpent, speaking as he spake ; 1150
No ground of enmity between us known,
Why he should mean me ill, or seek to harm.
Was I to have never parted from thy side ?
As good have grown there still a lifeless rib.
Being as I am, why didst not thou, the head,
Command me absolutely not to go,
Going into such danger, as thou said'st ?
Too facile, then thou didst not much gainsay,
Nay, didst permit, approve, and fair dismiss.
Hadst thou been firm and fixed in thy dissent, 1160
Neither had I transgressed, nor thou with me."

To whom then first incensed Adam replied :
"Is this the love, is this the recompense
Of mine to thee, ungrateful Eve, expressed
Immutable when thou wert lost, not I,
Who might have lived and joyed immortal bliss,
Yet willingly chose rather death with thee ?
And am I now upbraided, as the cause
Of thy transgressing ? not enough severe,
It seems, in thy restraint : what could I more ? 1170
I warned thee, I admonished thee, foretold
The danger, and the lurking enemy
That lay in wait ; beyond this had been force,
And force upon free will hath here no place.
But confidence then bore thee on, secure
Either to meet no danger, or to find
Matter of glorious trial ; and perhaps
I also erred in overmuch admiring
What seemed in thee so perfect, that I thought
No evil durst attempt thee ; but I rue 1180
The error now, which is become my crime,
And thou the accuser. Thus it shall befall
Him who to worth in woman overtrusting
Lets her will rule ; restraint she will not brook,
And left to herself, if evil thence ensue,
She first his weak indulgence will accuse."

Thus they in mutual accusation spent
The fruitless hours, but neither self-condemning,
And of their vain contést appeared no end.

Paradise Lost

BOOK X.

THE ARGUMENT.

Man's transgression known, the guardian angels forsake Paradise, and return up to heaven to approve their vigilance, and are approved, God declaring that the entrance of Satan could not be by them prevented. He sends His Son to judge the transgressors; who descends, and gives sentence accordingly; then in pity clothes them both, and reascends. Sin and Death, sitting till then at the gates of hell, by wondrous sympathy feeling the success of Satan in this new world, and the sin by man there committed, resolve to sit no longer confined in hell, but to follow Satan their sire up to the place of man: to make the way easier from hell to this world to and fro, they pave a broad highway, or bridge, over Chaos, according to the track that Satan first made; then, preparing for earth, they meet him, proud of his success, returning to hell: their mutual gratulation. Satan arrives at Pandæmonium, in full assembly relates with boasting his success against man; instead of applause, is entertained with a general hiss by all his audience, transformed, with himself also, suddenly into serpents, according to his doom given in Paradise; then, deluded with a show of the forbidden tree springing up before them, they greedily reaching to take of the fruit, chew dust and bitter ashes. The proceedings of Sin and Death; God foretells the final victory of His Son over them, and the renewing of all things; but for the present commands His angels to make several alterations in the heavens and elements. Adam, more and more perceiving his fallen condition, heavily bewails, rejects the condolence of Eve; she persists, and at length appeases him: then, to evade the curse likely to fall on their offspring, proposes to Adam violent ways, which he approves not; but conceiving better hope, puts her in mind of the late promise made them, that her seed should be revenged on the serpent, and exhorts her with him to seek peace of the offended Deity, by repentance and supplication.

MEANWHILE the heinous and despicable act
Of Satan done in Paradise, and how
He in the serpent had perverted Eve,
Her husband she, to taste the fatal fruit,
Was known in heav'n; for what can scape the eye
Of God all-seeing, or deceive His heart
Omniscient, who, in all things wise and just,
Hindered not Satan to attempt the mind
Of man, with strength entire, and free will armed,
Complete to have discovered and repulsed
Whatever wiles of foe or seeming friend?
For still they knew, and ought to have still remembered,
The high injunction not to taste that fruit,
Whoever tempted; which they not obeying
Incurred, what could they less? the penalty,
And, manifold in sin, deserved to fall.

Up into heaven from Paradise in haste
Th' angelic guards ascended, mute and sad

Paradise Lost

For man ; for of his state by this they knew,
Much wondering how the subtle fiend had stol'n 20
Entrance unseen. Soon as th' unwelcome news
From earth arrived at heaven gate, displeased
All were who heard ; dim sadness did not spare
That time celestial visages, yet mixed
With pity, violated not their bliss.

About the new-arrived in multitudes
Th' ethereal people ran, to hear and know
How all befell : they towards the throne supreme Accountable made haste to make appear
With righteous plea their utmost vigilance, 30
And easily approved ; when the most high
Eternal Father from His secret cloud
Amidst, in thunder, uttered thus His voice :

“ Assembled angels, and ye powers returned
From unsuccessful charge, be not dismayed,
Nor troubled at these tidings from the earth,
Which your sincerest care could not prevent,
Foretold so lately what would come to pass,
When first this tempter crossed the gulf from hell.
I told ye then he should prevail and speed 40
On his bad errand, man should be seduced
And flattered out of all, believing lies
Against his Maker ; no decree of mine
Concurring to necessitate his fall,
Or touch with lightest moment of impulse
His free will, to her own inclining left
In even scale. But fall'n he is, and now
What rests, but that the mortal sentence pass
On his transgression—death denounced that day—
Which he presumes already vain and void, 50
Because not yet inflicted, as he feared,
By some immediate stroke ; but soon shall find
Forbearance no acquittance ere day end.
Justice shall not return as bounty scorned.
But whom send I to judge them ? whom but thee,
Vicegerent Son ; to thee I have transferred ¹
All judgment, whether in heav'n, or earth, or hell.

¹ John v. 22.

Paradise Lost

Easy it may be seen that I intend
Mercy colleague with justice,¹ sending thee
Man's friend, his Mediator, his designed Both Ransom and Redeemer voluntary,
And destined Man himself to judge man fall'n." 60

So spake the Father, and, unfolding bright
Toward the right hand His glory, on the Son
Blazed forth unclouded Deity; He full
Resplendent all His Father manifest Expressed, and thus divinely answered mild:
"Father Eternal, thine is to decree,
Mine both in heav'n and earth to do thy will Supreme, that thou in me thy Son beloved 70
May'st ever rest well pleased. I go to judge
On earth these thy transgressors, but thou know'st
Whoever judged, the worst on me must light,
When time shall be; for so I undertook
Before thee, and not repenting this obtain
Of right, that I may mitigate their doom
On me derived; yet I shall temper so
Justice with mercy, as may illustrate most
Them fully satisfied, and thee appease.
Attendance none shall need, nor train, where none 80
Are to behold the judgment, but the judged,
Those two; the third best absent is condemned,
Convict by flight, and rebel to all law;
Conviction to the serpent none belongs."

Thus saying, from His radiant seat He rose
Of high collateral glory: Him Thrones and Powers,
Princedoms and Dominations ministrant
Accompanied to heaven gate, from whence
Eden and all the coast in prospect lay.
Down He descended straight; the speed of gods 90
Time counts not, tho' with swiftest minutes winged.
Now was the sun in western cadence low²
From noon, and gentle airs due at their hour
To fan the earth now waked, and usher in
The ev'ning cool, when He from wrath more cool
Came, the mild Judge and Intercessor both,

² Gen. iii. 8.

Paradise Lost

To sentence man : the voice of GOD they heard
Now walking in the garden, by soft winds
Brought to their ears, while day declined, they heard,
And from His presence hid themselves among 100
The thickest trees, both man and wife, till GOD
Approaching thus to Adam called aloud :

“Where art thou, Adam,¹ wont with joy to meet
My coming seen far off? I miss thee here ;
Not pleased, thus entertained with solitude,
Where obvious duty erewhile appeared unsought :
Or come I less conspicuous, or what change
Absents thee, or what chance detains? Come forth.”

He came, and with him Eve, more loth, though first

To offend, discountenanced both, and discomposed. 110

Love was not in their looks, either to GOD

Or to each other, but apparent guilt,

And shame, and perturbation, and despair,

Anger, and obstinacy, and hate, and guile.

Whence Adam, falt'ring long, thus answered brief :

“I heard thee in the garden, and of thy voice Afraid, being naked, hid myself.” To whom

The gracious Judge without revile replied :

“My voice thou oft hast heard, and hast not feared,
But still rejoiced ; how is it now become 120

So dreadful to thee ? that thou art naked, who

Hath told thee ? hast thou eaten of the tree

Whereof I gave thee charge thou shouldst not eat ?”

To whom thus Adam sore beset replied :

“O heav'n ! in evil strait this day I stand

Before my Judge, either to undergo

Myself the total crime, or to accuse

My other self, the partner of my life ;

Whose failing, while her faith to me remains,

I should conceal, and not expose to blame 130

By my complaint ; but strict necessity

Subdues me, and calamitous constraint,

Lest on my head both sin and punishment,

However insupportable, be all

¹ Gen. iii. 9 and following verses.

Paradise Lost

Devolved : though should I hold my peace, yet thou
Wouldst easily detect what I conceal.

This woman, whom thou madest to be my help
And gav'st me as thy perfect gift, so good,
So fit, so acceptable, so divine,
That from her hand I could suspect no ill, 140
And what she did, whatever in itself,
Her doing seemed to justify the deed ;
She gave me of the tree, and I did eat."

To whom the sov'reign Presence thus replied :
"Was she thy GOD, that her thou didst obey
Before His voice ? or was she made thy guide,
Superior, or but equal, that to her
Thou didst resign thy manhood, and the place
Wherein GOD set thee above her, made of thee
And for thee, whose perfection far excelled 150
Hers in all real dignity ? adorned
She was indeed, and lovely to attract
Thy love, not thy subjection ; and her gifts
Were such as under government well seemed,
Unseemly to bear rule, which was thy part
And person, hadst thou known thyself aright."

So having said, He thus to Eve in few :
"Say, woman, what is this which thou hast done ?"
To whom sad Eve with shame nigh overwhelmed,
Confessing soon, yet not before her Judge 160
Bold or loquacious, thus abashed replied :
"The serpent me beguiled, and I did eat."

Which when the Lord GOD heard, without delay
To judgment He proceeded on th' accused
Serpent though brute, unable to transfer
The guilt on him who made him instrument
Of mischief, and polluted from the end
Of his creation ; justly then accursed,
As vitiated in nature : more to know
Concerned not man, since he no further knew, 170
Nor altered his offence : yet GOD at last
To Satan, first in sin, his doom applied,
Though in mysterious terms, judged as then best :
And on the serpent thus His curse let fall :

Paradise Lost

“Because thou hast done this, thou art accursed
Above all cattle, each beast of the field ;
Upon thy belly grovelling thou shalt go,
And dust shalt eat all the days of thy life.
Between thee and the woman I will put Enmity, and between thine and her seed ; 180
Her seed shall bruise thy head, thou bruise his heel.”

So spake this oracle, then verified
When Jesus, son of Mary, second Eve,
Saw Satan fall like lightning down from heav’n,¹ Prince of the air ;² then rising from His grave
Spoiled principalities and powers, triumphed
In open show, and with ascension bright
Captivity led captive through the air,
The realm itself of Satan long usurped,
Whom He shall tread at last under our feet ; 190
Ev’n He who now foretold his fatal bruise ;
And to the woman thus His sentence turned :

“Thy sorrow I will greatly multiply
By thy conception ; children thou shalt bring
In sorrow forth, and to thy husband’s will Thine shall submit ; he over thee shall rule.”

On Adam last thus judgment He pronounced :
“Because thou hast hearkened to the voice of thy wife,
And eaten of the tree concerning which
I charged thee, saying : Thou shalt not eat thereof, 200
Cursed is the ground for thy sake, thou in sorrow
Shalt eat thereof all the days of thy life ;
Thorns also and thistles it shall bring thee forth
Unbid, and thou shalt eat the herb of the field ;
In the sweat of thy face shalt thou eat bread,
Till thou return unto the ground, for thou
Out of the ground wast taken ; know thy birth,
For dust thou art, and shalt to dust return.”

So judged he man, both Judge and Saviour sent ;
And th’ instant stroke of death denounced that day 210
Removed far off ; then pitying how they stood
Before Him naked to the air, that now
Must suffer change, disdained not to begin

Thenceforth the form of servant¹ to assume,
As when He washed His servants' feet,² so now
As father of His family He clad
Their nakedness with skins of beasts, or slain,
Or as the snake with youthful coat repaid ;
And thought not much to clothe His enemies.
Nor He their outward only with the skins
Of beasts, but inward nakedness, much more
Opprobrious, with His robe of righteousness,
Arraying, covered from His Father's sight.
To Him with swift ascent He up returned,
Into His blissful bosom reassumed
In glory as of old ; to Him appeased
All, though all-knowing, what had passed with man
Recounted, mixing intercession sweet.

Meanwhile, ere thus was sinned and judged on earth,

Within the gates of hell sat Sin and Death,
In counterview within the gates, that now
Stood open wide, belching outrageous flame
Far into Chaos, since the fiend passed through,
Sin opening, who thus now to Death began :

230

“ O son, why sit we here, each other viewing
Idly, while Satan, our great author, thrives
In other worlds, and happier seat provides
For us his offspring dear ? It cannot be
But that success attends him ; if mishap,
Ere this he had returned, with fury driven
By his avengers, since no place like this
Can fit his punishment, or their revenge.

240

Methinks I feel new strength within me rise,
Wings growing, and dominion giv'n me large
Beyond this deep ; whatever draws me on,
Or sympathy, or some connatural force,
Powerful at greatest distance to unite
With secret amity things of like kind
By secretest conveyance. Thou my shade
Inseparable must with me along ;
For Death from Sin no power can separate.

Paradise Lost

But lest the difficulty of passing back
Stay his return perhaps over this gulf
Impassable, impervious, let us try Adventurous work, yet to thy power and mine
Not unagreeable, to found a path
Over this main from hell to that new world
Where Satan now prevails, a monument
Of merit high to all th' infernal host,
Easing their passage hence, for intercourse, 260
Or transmigration, as their lot shall lead.
Nor can I miss the way so strongly drawn
By this new felt attraction and instinct."

Whom thus the meagre Shadow answered soon :
"Go whither fate and inclination strong
Leads thee; I shall not lag behind, nor err,
The way thou leading, such a scent I draw
Of carnage, prey innumerable, and taste
The savour of death from all things there that live :
Nor shall I to the work thou enterprisest 270
Be wanting, but afford thee equal aid."

So saying, with delight he snuffed the smell
Of mortal change on earth. As when a flock
Of ravenous fowl, though many a league remote,
Against the day of battle, to a field,
Where armies lie encamped, come flying, lured
With scent of living carcasses designed
For death, the following day, in bloody fight :
So scented the grim feature, and upturned
His nostril wide into the murky air; 280
Sagacious of his quarry from so far.
Then both from out hell gates into the waste
Wide anarchy of Chaos damp and dark
Flew diverse, and with power, their power was great,
Hovering upon the waters; what they met
Solid or slimy, as in raging sea
Tost up and down, together crowded drove
From each side shoaling towards the mouth of hell.
As when the two polar winds, blowing adverse
Upon the Cronian sea,¹ together drive 290

Paradise Lost

Mountains of ice, that stop th' imagined way¹
Beyond Petsora eastward, to the rich
Cathaian coast. The aggregated soil
Death with his mace petrific, cold and dry,
As with a trident smote, and fixed as firm
As Delos floating once ; the rest his look
Bound with Gorgonian rigour² not to move,
And with asphaltic slime, broad as the gate,
Deep to the roots of hell the gathered beach
They fastened, and the mole immense wrought on 300
Over the foaming deep high arched, a bridge
Of length prodigious joining to the wall
Immovable of this now fenceless world
Forfeit to death ; from hence a passage broad,
Smooth, easy, inoffensive, down to hell.
So, if great things to small may be compared,
Xerxes, the liberty of Greece to yoke,
From Susa his Memnonian palace high
Came to the Sea, and over Hellespont
Bridging his way, Europe with Asia joined, 310
And scourged with many a stroke th' indignant waves.
Now had they brought the work by wondrous art
Pontifical,³ a ridge of pendent rock
Over the vexed abyss, following the track
Of Satan, to the self-same place where he
First lighted from his wing, and landed safe
From out of Chaos, to the outside bare
Of this round world : with pins of adamant
And chains they made all fast—too fast they made
And durable—and now in little space 320
The confines met of empyréan heav'n
And of this world, and on the left hand hell
With long reach interposed ; three sev'ral ways
In sight to each of these three places led.
And now their way to earth they had descried,
To Paradise first tending, when behold

Paradise Lost

Satan in likeness of an angel bright
Betwixt the Centaur and the Scorpion steering
His zenith, while the sun in Aries rose :¹
Disguised he came, but those his children dear 330
Their parent soon discerned, though in disguise.
He, after Eve seduced, unminded slunk
Into the wood fast by, and, changing shape
To observe the sequel, saw his guileful act
By Eve, though all unweeting, seconded
Upon her husband, saw their shame that sought
Vain covertures : but when he saw descend
The Son of God to judge them, terrified
He fled ; not hoping to escape, but shun
The present, fearing, guilty, what His wrath 340
Might suddenly inflict : that past, returned
By night, and listening where the hapless pair
Sat in their sad discourse and various plaint,
Thence gathered his own doom, which understood
Not instant, but of future time, with joy
And tidings fraught, to hell he now returned,
And at the brink of Chaos, near the foot
Of this new wondrous pontifice,² unhopèd
Met who to meet him came, his offspring dear.
Great joy was at their meeting, and at sight 350
Of that stupendous bridge his joy increased.
Long he admiring stood, till Sin, his fair
Enchanting daughter, thus the silence broke :
“ O parent, these are thy magnific deeds,
Thy trophies, which thou view'st as not thine own :
Thou art their author and prime architect :
For I no sooner in my heart divined,
—My heart which by a secret harmony
Still moves with thine, joined in connexion sweet,—
That thou on earth hadst prospered, which thy looks
Now also evidence, but straight I felt, [360
Though distant from thee worlds between, yet felt
That I must after thee with this thy son,

Paradise Lost

Such fatal consequence unites us three.
Hell could no longer hold us in her bounds,
Nor this unvoyageable gulf obscure
Detain from following thy illustrious track.
Thou hast achieved our liberty, confined
Within hell gates till now ; thou us empowered
To fortify thus far, and overlay 370
With this portentous bridge the dark abyss.
Thine now is all this world, thy virtue hath won
What thy hands builded not, thy wisdom gained
With odds what war hath lost, and fully avenged
Our foil in heav'n ; here thou shalt monarch reign,
There didst not ; there let Him still victor sway,
As battle hath adjudged, from this new world
Retiring, by His own doom alienated,
And henceforth monarchy with thee divide
Of all things, parted by th' empyreal bounds, 380
His quadrature, from thy orbicular world,
Or try thee now more dang'rous to His throne."

Whom thus the prince of darkness answered glad :
" Fair daughter, and thou son and grandchild both,
High proof ye now have giv'n to be the race
Of Satan, (for I glory in the name, Antagonist of heav'n's Almighty King,)
Amplly have merited of me, of all
Th' infernal empire, that so near heav'n's door
Triumphal with triumphal act have met, 390
Mine with this glorious work, and made one realm
Hell and this world, one realm, one continent
Of easy thoroughfare. Therefore, while I
Descend through darkness on your road with ease
To my associate powers, them to acquaint
With these successes, and with them rejoice,
You two this way, among these numerous orbs
All yours, right down to Paradise descend ;
There dwell and reign in bliss, thence on the earth
Dominion exercise and in the air, 400
Chiefly on man, sole lord of all declared ;
Him first make sure your thrall, and lastly kill.
My substitutes I send ye, and create

Plenipotent on earth, of matchless might
Issuing from me : on your joint vigour now
My hold of this new kingdom all depends,
Through Sin to Death exposed by my exploit.
If your joint power prevail, th' affairs of hell
No detriment need fear ; go and be strong."

So saying he dismissed them ; they with speed 410
Their course through thickest constellations held,
Spreading their bane ; the blasted stars looked wan,
And planets, planet-struck, real eclipse
Then suffered. The other way Satan went down
The causey to hell gate : on either side
Disparted Chaos over built exclaimed,
And with rebounding surge the bars assailed,
That scorned his indignation. Through the gate,
Wide open and unguarded, Satan passed,
And all about found desolate ; for those 420
Appointed to sit there had left their charge,
Flown to the upper world ; the rest were all
Far to the inland retired, about the walls
Of Pandæmonium, city and proud seat
Of Lucifer, so by allusion called,

Paradise Lost

Heav'n-banished host, left desert utmost hell
Many a dark league, reduced in careful watch
Round their metropolis, and now expecting
Each hour their great adventurer from the search 440
Of foreign world : he through the midst unmarked,
In show plebeian angel militant
Of lowest order, passed ; and from the door
Of that Plutonian hall invisible
Ascended his high throne, which, under state
Of richest texture spread, at the upper end
Was placed in regal lustre. Down awhile
He sat, and round about him saw unseen :
At last as from a cloud his fulgent head
And shape star-bright appeared, or brighter, clad 450
With what permissive glory since his fall
Was left him, or false glitter. All amazed
At that so sudden blaze the Stygian throng
Bent their aspect, and whom they wished beheld,
Their mighty chief returned ; loud was th' acclaim.
Forth rushed in haste the great consulting peers,
Raised from their dark divan, and with like joy,
Congratulant approached him, who with hand
Silence, and with these words, attention won :
 "Thrones, Dominations, Princedoms, Virtues, Powers,
For in possession such, not only of right, [460
I call ye and declare ye now, returned
Successful beyond hope, to lead ye forth
Triumphant out of this infernal pit
Abominable, accursed, the house of woe,
And dungeon of our tyrant : now possess,
As lords, a spacious world, to our native heaven
Little inferior, by my adventure hard
With peril great achieved. Long were to tell
What I have done, what suffered, with what pain 470
Voyaged the unreal, vast, unbounded deep
Of horrible confusion, over which
By Sin and Death a broad way now is paved
To expedite your glorious march : but I
Toiled out my uncouth passage, forced to ride
The untractable abyss, plunged in the womb

Paradise Lost

Of unoriginal Night and Chaos wild,
That jealous of their secrets fiercely opposed
My journey strange, with clamorous uproar
Protesting fate supreme ; thence how I found 480
The new created world, which fame in heav'n
Long had foretold, a fabric wonderful,
Of absolute perfection, therein man
Placed in a paradise, by our exile
Made happy : him by fraud I have seduced
From his Creator, and, the more to increase
Your wonder, with an apple. He thereat
Offended, worth your laughter ! hath giv'n up
Both His belovèd man and all His world
To Sin and Death a prey, and so to us, 490
Without our hazard, labour, or alarm,
To range in, and to dwell, and over man
To rule, as over all he should have ruled.
True is, me also He hath judg'd, or rather Me not, but the brute serpent, in whose shape
Man I deceived : that which to me belongs
Is enmity, which He will put between
Me and mankind : I am to bruise his heel ;
His seed, when is not set,¹ shall bruise my head.
A world who would not purchase with a bruise, 500
Or much more grievous pain ? Ye have th' account
Of my performance : what remains, ye gods,
But up and enter now into full bliss ? ”

So having said, awhile he stood, expecting
Their universal shout and high applause
To fill his ear, when contrary he hears
On all sides, from innumerable tongues,
A dismal universal hiss, the sound
Of public scorn ; he wondered, but not long
Had leisure, wond'ring at himself now more : 510
His visage drawn he felt to sharp and spare,
His arms clung to his ribs, his legs entwining
Each other, till supplanted down he fell
A monstrous serpent on his belly prone,
Reluctant, but in vain, a greater power

Now ruled him, punished in the shape he sinned,
According to his doom. He would have spoke,
But hiss for hiss returned with forkèd tongue
To forkèd tongue, for now were all transformed
Alike, to serpents all as accessories 520
To his bold riot: dreadful was the din
Of hissing through the hall, thick swarming now
With complicated monsters head and tail,
Scorpion, and asp, and amphisbæna¹ dire,
Cerastes² horned, hydrus,³ and ellops⁴ drear,
And dipsas;⁵ not so thick swarmed once the soil
Bedropped with blood of Gorgon⁶ or the isle
Ophiusa;⁷ but still greatest he the midst,
Now dragon grown, larger than whom the sun
Ingendered in the Pythian vale on slime, 530
Huge Python,⁸ and his power no less he seemed Above the rest still to retain. They all
Him followed issuing forth to th' open field,
Where all yet left of that revolted rout
Heav'n-fall'n in station stood or just array,
Sublime with expectation when to see
In triumph issuing forth their glorious chief.
They saw, but other sight instead, a crowd
Of ugly serpents; horror on them fell,
And horrid sympathy; for what they saw, 540
They felt themselves now changing; down their arms,
Down fell both spear and shield, down they as fast,
And the dire hiss renewed, and the dire form
Caught by contagion, like in punishment,
As in their crime. Thus was th' applause they meant
Turned to exploding hiss, triumph to shame,
Cast on themselves from their own mouths. There stood
A grove hard by, sprung up with this their change,

Which grew in Paradise, the bait of Eve
Used by the tempter : on that prospect strange
Their earnest eyes they fixed, imagining
For one forbidden tree a multitude
Now ris'n, to work them further woe or shame :
Yet parched with scalding thirst and hunger fierce,
Though to delude them sent, could not abstain,
But on they rolled in heaps, and up the trees
Climbing sat thicker than the snaky locks
That curled Megæra : ¹ greedily they plucked 560
The fruitage fair to sight, like that which grew
Near that bituminous lake ² where Sodom flamed ;
This more delusive, not the touch, but taste
Deceived ; they, fondly thinking to allay
Their appetite with gust, instead of fruit
Chewed bitter ashes, which th' offended taste
With spattering noise rejected : oft they assayed,
Hunger and thirst constraining, drugged as oft,
With hatefullest disrelish writhed their jaws
With soot and cinders filled ; so oft they fell 570
Into the same illusion, not as man Whom they triumphed once lapsed. Thus were they plagued
And worn with famine long and ceaseless hiss,
Till their lost shape, permitted, they resumed ;

To dash their pride and joy for man seduced.
However, some tradition they dispersed

Paradise Lost

Too soon arrived, Sin there in power before,
Once actual, now in body, and to dwell
Habitual habitant ; behind her Death
Close following pace for pace, not mounted yet
On his pale horse ; to whom Sin thus began : 590

“Second of Satan sprung, all-conquering Death,
What think'st thou of our empire now, though earned
With travail difficult, not better far
Than still at hell's dark threshold to have sate watch,
Unnamed, undreaded, and thyself half starved ?”

Whom thus the sin-born monster answered soon :
“To me, who with eternal famine pine,
Alike is hell, or paradise, or heaven,
There best, where most with ravin I may meet ;
Which here, though plenteous, all too little seems¹ 600
To stuff this maw, this vast unhide-bound corps.”

To whom th' incestuous mother thus replied :
“Thou therefore on these herbs, and fruits, and flowers
Feed first ; on each beast next, and fish, and fowl ;
No homely morsels ; and whatever thing
The scythe of Time mows down, devour unspared,
Till I in man residing through the race,
His thoughts, his looks, words, actions, all infect ;
And season him thy last and sweetest prey.”

This said, they both betook them several ways, 610
Both to destroy, or unimmortal make
All kinds, and for destruction to mature
Sooner or later ; which the Almighty seeing,
From His transcendent seat the saints among,
To those bright orders uttered thus His voice :

“See with what heat these dogs of hell advance
To waste and havoc yonder world, which I
So fair and good created, and had still Kept in that state, had not the folly of man
Let in these wasteful furies, who impute 620
Folly to me,—so doth the prince of hell
And his adherents,—that with so much ease
I suffer them to enter and possess

To gratify my scornful enemies,
That laugh, as if, transported with some fit
Of passion, I to them had quitted all,
At random yielded up to their misrule ;
And know not that I called and drew them thither,
My hell-hounds, to lick up the draff and filth, 630
Which man's polluting sin with taint hath shed
On what was pure ! till crammed and gorged, nigh burst

Through Chaos hurled, obstruct the mouth of hell
For ever, and seal up his ravenous jaws.¹
Then heav'n and earth renewed shall be made pure

He ended, and the heav'nly audience loud
Sung Hallelujah, as the sound of seas,
Through multitude that sung : " Just are thy ways,² Righteous are thy decrees on all thy works ;
Who can extenuate thee ? Next, to the Son, Destined restorer of mankind, by whom signs. Opposite was considered a position of noxious efficacy. The period in which Milton lived explains the fact of his countenancing these superstitions, as they were universally believed. After the great Fire of London, the House of Commons called the astrologer Lilly before them, to examine him as to his foreknowledge of that calamity, and gravely received his explanation of how he obtained his foresight from the art he practised. He had foretold the fire in a hieroglyphic resembling those formerly published in Old Moore's Almanack, which might be interpreted in any manner the reader pleased. "Did you foresee the year?" asked one of the committee. "I did not," replied Lilly, "nor was desirous of that ; I made no scrutiny." The astrologer then told them, very wisely, that the fire was not of man, but of God. It was believed to have been caused by incendiaries.

The sun, as from Thyéstean banquet,¹ turned His course intended ; else how had the world
Inhabited, though sinless, more than now 690
Avoided pinching cold and scorching heat ?
These changes in the heav'ns, though slow, produced
Like change on sea and land, sidereal blast,
Vapour, and mist, and exhalation hot,
Corrupt and pestilent. Now from the north
Of Norumbega² and the Samoed shore,
Bursting their brazen dungeon, armed with ice,

To sorrow abandoned, but worse felt within,
And, in a troubled sea of passion tost,
Thus to disburden sought with sad complaint :

Paradise Lost

“O miserable of happy ! is this the end
Of this new glorious world, and me so late
The glory of that glory, who now become
Accursed of blessed, hide me from the face
Of God, whom to behold was then my highth
Of happiness : yet well, if here would end
The misery. I deserved it, and would bear
My own deservings ; but this will not serve ;
All that I eat, or drink, or shall beget,
Is propagated curse. O voice once heard
Delightfully, ‘ Encrease and multiply,’
Now death to hear ! for what can I encrease
Or multiply, but curses on my head ?
Who of all ages to succeed, but feeling
The evil on him brought by me, will curse
My head ? Ill fare our ancestor impure,
For this we may thank Adam ; but his thanks
Shall be the execration ; so besides
Mine own that bide upon me, all from me
Shall with a fierce reflux on me redound ;
On me, as on their natural centre light,
Heavy, though in their place. O fleeting joys
Of Paradise, dear bought with lasting woes !
Did I request thee, Maker, from my clay,
To mould me man ? Did I solicit thee
From darkness to promote me, or here place
In this delicious garden ? As my will Concurred not to my being, it were but right
And equal to reduce me to my dust,
Desirous to resign, and render back
All I received, unable to perform
Thy terms too hard, by which I was to hold
The good I sought not. To the loss of that,
Sufficient penalty, why hast thou added
The sense of endless woes ? Inexplicable
Thy justice seems ; yet, to say truth, too late
I thus contest : then should have been refused
These terms, whatever, when they were proposed.
Thou didst accept them ; wilt thou enjoy the good,

Paradise Lost

Then cavil the conditions?¹ and though GOD
Made thee without thy leave, what if thy son 760
Prove disobedient, and reprov'd retort,
Wherefore didst thou beget me? I sought it not :
Wouldst thou admit for his contempt of thee
That proud excuse? yet him not thy election,
But natural necessity begot.

GOD made thee of choice His own, and of His own
To serve Him, thy reward was of His grace,
Thy punishment then justly is at His will.
Be it so, for I submit, His doom is fair,
That dust I am, and shall to dust return : 770

O welcome hour whenever! why delays
His hand to execute what His decree
Fixed on this day? why do I overlive?
Why am I mocked with death, and lengthened out
To deathless pain? how gladly would I meet
Mortality my sentence, and be earth
Insensible! how glad would lay me down
As in my mother's lap! there I should rest
And sleep secure; His dreadful voice no more
Would thunder in my ears; no fear of worse 780
To me and to my offspring would torment me
With cruel expectation. Yet one doubt
Pursues me still, lest all I cannot die;

Lest that pure breath of life, the spirit of man²
Which God inspired, cannot together perish
With this corporeal clod; then in the grave,
Or in some other dismal place, who knows
But I shall die a living death? O thought
Horrid, if true! yet why? it was but breath
Of life that sinned; what dies but what had life 790
And sin? the body properly hath neither.

All of me then shall die; let this appease
The doubt, since human reach no further knows.
For though the Lord of all be infinite,
Is His wrath also? be it, man is not so,
But mortal doomed. How can He exercise
Wrath without end on man whom death must end?

¹ Job ii. 10.

² Gen. ii. 7.

Paradise Lost

Can He make deathless death? that were to make Strange contradiction, which to God Himself
Impossible is held, as argument 800
Of weakness, not of power. Will He draw out,
For anger's sake, finite to infinite
In punished man, to satisfy His rigour
Satisfied never? that were to extend
His sentence beyond dust and nature's law,
By which all causes else, according still
To the reception of their matter, act,
Not to th' extent of their own sphere. But say,
That death be not one stroke, as I supposed,
Bereaving sense, but endless misery 810
From this day onward, which I feel begun
Both in me, and without me, and so last
To perpetuity. Ay me! that fear
Comes thund'ring back with dreadful revolution
On my defenceless head; both death and I
Are found eternal, and incorporate both;
Nor I on my part single, in me all
Posterity stands cursed. Fair patrimony
That I must leave ye, sons! O were I able
To waste it all myself, and leave ye none! 820
So disinherited; how would ye bless
Me, now your curse! Ah! why should all mankind
For one man's fault thus guiltless be condemned
If guiltless? But from me what can proceed,
But all corrupt, both mind and will depraved,
Not to do only, but to will the same
With me? how can they then acquitted stand
In sight of God? Him, after all disputes,
Forced I absolve: all my evasions vain,
And reasonings, though through mazes, lead me still
But to my own conviction: first and last [830
On me, me only, as the source and spring
Of all corruption, all the blame lights due;
So might the wrath! Fond wish! couldst thou support
That burden heavier than the earth to bear,
Than all the world much heavier, though divided
With that bad woman? Thus what thou desir'st,

Paradise Lost

And what thou fear'st, alike destroys all hope
Of refuge, and concludes thee miserable
Beyond all past example and future, 840
To Satan only like both crime and doom.
O Conscience, into what abyss of fears
And horrors hast thou driv'n me, out of which I find no way from deep to deeper plunged!"

Thus Adam to himself lamented loud
Through the still night ; not now, as ere man fell,
Wholesome, and cool, and mild, but with black air
Accompanied, with damps and dreadful gloom,
Which to his evil conscience represented
All things with double terror. On the ground 850
Outstretch'd he lay, on the cold ground, and oft
Cursed his creation, death as oft accused
Of tardy execution, since denounced
The day of his offence. "Why comes not death,"
Said he, "with one thrice acceptable stroke
To end me? Shall truth fail to keep her word,
Justice divine not hasten to be just?
But death comes not at call ; justice divine
Mends not her slowest pace for prayers or cries.
O woods, O fountains, hillocks, dales, and bow'rs, 860
With other echo late I taught your shades
To answer, and resound far other song."
Whom thus afflicted when sad Eve beheld,
Desolate where she sat, approaching nigh,
Soft words to his fierce passion she assayed :
But her with stern regard he thus repelled :

"Out of my sight, thou serpent ! that name best
Befits thee with him leagued, thyself as false
And hateful ; nothing wants, but that thy shape,
Like his, and colour serpentine may show 870
Thy inward fraud, to warn all creatures from thee
Henceforth ; lest that too heav'nly form, pretended
To hellish falsehood, snare them. But for thee
I had persisted happy, had not thy pride
And wand'ring vanity, when least was safe,
Rejected my forewarning, and disdained
Not to be trusted, longing to be seen

Paradise Lost

Though by the devil himself, him overweening
To over-reach ; but with the serpent meeting,
Fooled and beguiled ; by him thou, I by thee. 880
To trust thee from my side, imagined wise,
Constant, mature, proof against all assaults
And understood not all was but a show
Rather than solid virtue, all but a rib
Crooked by nature, bent, as now appears,
More to the part sinister, from me drawn,
Well if thrown out, as supernumerary
To my just number found. Oh ! why did God,
Creator wise, that peopled highest heav'n
With spirits masculine, create at last 890
This novelty on earth, this fair defect
Of nature, and not fill the world at once
With men as angels without feminine,
Or find some other way to generate
Mankind ? This mischief had not then befall'n,
And more that shall befall ; innumerable
Disturbances on earth through female snares,
And straight conjunction with this sex : for either
He never shall find out fit mate, but such
As some misfortune brings him, or mistake, 900
Or whom he wishes most shall seldom gain
Through her perverseness ; but shall see her gained
By a far worse ; or if she love, withheld
By parents ; or his happiest choice too late
Shall meet, already linked and wedlock-bound
To a fell adversary, his hate or shame ;
Which infinite calamity shall cause
To human life, and household peace confound."

He added not, and from her turned ; but Eve,
Not so repulsed, with tears that ceased not flowing, 910
And tresses all disordered, at his feet
Fell humble, and, embracing them, besought
His peace, and thus proceeded in her plaint :
" Forsake me not thus, Adam ! witness Heav'n
What love sincere and reverence in my heart
I bear thee, and unweeting have offended,
Unhappily deceived. Thy suppliant

Paradise Lost

I beg, and clasp thy knees ; bereave me not
Whereon I live, thy gentle looks, thy aid,
Thy counsel in this uttermost distress, 920
My only strength and stay : forlorn of thee,
Whither shall I betake me, where subsist ?
While yet we live, scarce one short hour perhaps,
Between us two let there be peace, both joining,
As joined in injuries, one enmity
Against a foe by doom express assigned us,
That cruel serpent. On me exercise not
Thy hatred for this misery befall'n,
On me already lost, me than thyself
More miserable ; both have sinned, but thou 930
Against God only, I against God and thee,
And to the place of judgment will return,
There with my cries importune Heaven, that all
The sentence, from thy head removed, may light
On me, sole cause to thee of all this woe,
Me, me only, just object of His ire."

She ended weeping, and her lowly plight,
Immoveable till peace obtained from fault
Acknowledged and deplored, in Adam wrought
Commiseration ; soon his heart relented 940
Towards her, his life so late and sole delight,
Now at his feet submissive in distress ;
Creature so fair his reconcilment seeking,
His counsel, whom she had displeased, his aid ;
As one disarmed, his anger all he lost,
And thus with peaceful words upraised her soon :

"Unwary and too desirous as before,
So now of what thou know'st not, who desir'st
The punishment all on thyself ; alas !
Bear thine own first, ill able to sustain 950
His full wrath, whose thou feel'st as yet least part
And my displeasure bear'st so ill. If prayers
Could alter high decrees, I to that place
Would speed before thee, and be louder heard
That on my head all might be visited,
Thy frailty and infirmer sex forgiv'n,
To me committed, and by me exposed.

Paradise Lost

But rise, let us no more contend, nor blame
Each other, blamed enough elsewhere, but strive
In offices of love how we may lighten 960
Each other's burden in our share of woe ;
Since this day's death denounced, if aught I see,
Will prove no sudden, but a slow-paced evil,
A long day's dying to augment our pain,
And to our seed, O hapless seed ! derived."

To whom thus Eve, recovering heart, replied :
" Adam, by sad experiment I know
How little weight my words with thee can find,
Found so erroneous, thence by just event
Found so unfortunate ; nevertheless, 970
Restored by thee, vile as I am, to place
Of new acceptance, hopeful to regain
Thy love, the sole contentment of my heart
Living or dying, from thee I will not hide
What thoughts in my unquiet breast are ris'n,
Tending to some relief of our extremes,
Or end, though sharp and sad, yet tolerable,
As in our evils, and of easier choice.

If care of our descent perplex us most,
Which must be born to certain woe, devoured 980
By Death at last, (and miserable it is To be to others cause of misery,)

Our own begotten, and of our loins to bring Into this cursed world a woful race,
That after wretched life must be at last
Food for so foul a monster, in thy power
It lies, yet ere conception to prevent
The race unblest, to being yet unbegot.
Childless thou art, childless remain : so Death
Shall be deceived his glut, and with us two 990
Be forced to satisfy his rav'nous maw.

But if thou judge it hard and difficult,
Conversing, looking, loving, to abstain
From love's due rites, nuptial embraces sweet,
And with desire to languish without hope,
Before the present object languishing
With like desire, which would be misery,

Paradise Lost

And torment less than none of what we dread,
Then both ourselves and seed at once to free
From what we fear for both, let us make short ; 1000
Let us seek Death, or, he not found, supply
With our own hands his office on ourselves ;
Why stand we longer shivering under fears,
That show no end but death, and have the power
Of many ways to die, the shortest choosing,
Destruction with destruction to destroy ? ”

She ended here, or vehement despair
Broke off the rest ; so much of death her thoughts
Had entertained, as dyed her cheeks with pale.
But Adam, with such counsel nothing swayed, 1010
To better hopes his more attentive mind
Labouring had raised, and thus to Eve replied :

“ Eve, thy contempt of life and pleasure seems
To argue in thee something more sublime
And excellent than what thy mind contemns ;
But self-destruction therefore sought refutes
That excellence thought in thee, and implies,
Not thy contempt, but anguish and regret
For loss of life and pleasure overloved.
Or if thou covet death, as utmost end 1020
Of misery, so thinking to evade
The penalty pronounced, doubt not but God
Hath wiselier armed His vengeful ire than so
To be forestalled : much more I fear lest death
So snatched will not exempt us from the pain
We are by doom to pay : rather such acts
Of contumacy will provoke the Highest
To make death in us live ; then let us seek
Some safer resolution, which methinks
I have in view, calling to mind with heed 1030
Part of our sentence, that thy seed shall bruise
The serpent's head : piteous amends, unless
Be meant, whom I conjecture, our grand foe
Satan, who in the serpent hath contrived
Against us this deceit. To crush his head
Would be revenge indeed ; which will be lost
By death brought on ourselves, or childless days

Paradise Lost

Resolved, as thou proposest ; so our foe
Shall scape his punishment ordained, and we Instead shall double ours upon our heads. 1040
No more be mentioned then of violence
Against ourselves, and wilful barrenness,
That cuts us off from hope, and savours only
Rancour and pride, impatience and despite,
Reluctance against God and His just yoke
Laid on our necks. Remember with what mild
And gracious temper He both heard and judged
Without wrath or reviling ; we expected
Immediate dissolution, which we thought
Was meant by death that day, when, lo ! to thee 1050
Pains only in child-bearing were foretold,
And bringing forth ; soon recompensed with joy,
Fruit of thy womb : on me the curse aslope
Glanced on the ground, with labour I must earn
My bread ; what harm ? idleness had been worse ;
My labour will sustain me ; and lest cold
Or heat should injure us, His timely care
Hath unbesought provided, and His hands
Clothed us unworthy, pitying while He judged.
How much more, if we pray Him, will His ear 1060
Be open, and His heart to pity incline,
And teach us further by what means to shun
Th' inclement seasons, rain, ice, hail, and snow,
Which now the sky with various face begins
To show us in this mountain, while the winds
Blow moist and keen, shattering the graceful locks
Of these fair spreading trees ; which bids us seek
Some better shroud, some better warmth to cherish
Our limbs benumbed, ere this diurnal star
Leave cold the night, how we his gathered beams 1070
Reflected may with matter sere foment,
Or by collision of two bodies grind
The air attrite ¹ to fire, as late the clouds
Justling or pushed with winds rude in their shock
Tine ² the slant lightning, whose thwart flame driv'n

Paradise Lost

Kindles the gummy bark of fir or pine,
And sends a comfortable heat from far,
Which might supply the sun. Such fire to use,
And what may else be remedy or cure
To evils which our own misdeeds have wrought ; 1080
He will instruct us praying, and of grace
Beseeching Him, so as we need not fear
To pass commodiously this life, sustained
By Him with many comforts, till we end
In dust, our final rest and native home.

What better can we do, than, to the place
Repairing where He judged us, prostrate fall
Before Him reverent, and there confess
Humbly our faults, and pardon beg, with tears
Watering the ground, and with our sighs the air 1090
Frequenting, sent from hearts contrite, in sign
Of sorrow unfeigned and humiliation meek ?
Undoubtedly He will relent and turn
From His displeasure, in whose look serene,
When angry most He seemed and most severe,
What else but favour, grace, and mercy shone ?”

So spake our father penitent, nor Eve
Felt less remorse ; they forthwith to the place
Repairing where He judged them prostrate fell
Before Him reverent, and both confessed 1100
Humbly their faults, and pardon begged, with tears
Watering the ground, and with their sighs the air
Frequenting,¹ sent from hearts contrite, in sign
Of sorrow unfeigned and humiliation meek.

Paradise Lost

BOOK XI.

THE ARGUMENT.

The Son of God presents to His Father the prayers of our first parents now repenting, and intercedes for them : God accepts them, but declares that they must no longer abide in Paradise ; sends Michael with a band of cherubim to dispossess them ; but first to reveal to Adam future things : Michael's coming down. Adam shows to Eve certain ominous signs ; he discerns Michael's approach ; goes out to meet him : the angel denounces their approaching departure. Eve's lamentation. Adam pleads, but submits : the angel leads him up to a high hill ; sets before him in vision what shall happen till the Flood.

THUS they in lowliest plight repentant stood, 1
Praying, for from the mercy-seat above
Prevenient grace descending had removed
The stony from their hearts, and made new flesh
Regenerate grow instead, that sighs now breathed
Unutterable,¹ which the spirit of prayer
Inspired, and winged for heav'n with speedier flight
Than loudest oratory : yet their port
Not of mean suitors, nor important less
Seemed their petition, than when the ancient pair 10
In fables old, less ancient yet than these,
Deucalion and chaste Pyrrha to restore
The race of mankind drowned, before the shrine
Of Themis stood devout.² To heav'n their prayers
Flew up, nor missed the way, by envious winds
Blown vagabond or frustrate : in they passed
Dimensionless through heav'nly doors ; then clad
With incense,³ where the golden altar fumed,
By their great Intercessor, came in sight
Before the Father's throne ; them the glad Son 20
Presenting, thus to intercede began :
" See, Father, what first fruits on earth are sprung
From thy implanted grace in man, these sighs
And prayers, which in this golden censer mixed

Paradise Lost

With incense, I thy Priest before thee bring,
Fruits of more pleasing savour from thy seed
Sown with contrition in his heart, than those Which his own hand manuring all the trees
Of Paradise could have produced, ere fall'n
From innocence. Now therefore bend Thine ear 30
To supplication, hear his sighs though mute;
Unskilful with what words to pray; let me
Interpret for him, me his advocate¹
And propitiation; all his works on me
Good or not good ingraft, my merit those Shall perfect, and for these my death shall pay.
Accept me, and in me from these receive
The smell of peace toward mankind; let him live
Before thee reconciled, at least his days
Numbered, though sad, till death his doom, (which I
To mitigate thus plead, not to reverse,) [40
To better life shall yield him, where with me
All my redeemed may dwell in joy and bliss;
Made one with me as I with thee am one.”²

To whom the Father, without cloud, serene :
“All thy request for man, accepted Son,
Obtain; all thy request was my decree :
But longer in that Paradise to dwell
The law I gave to nature him forbids :
Those pure immortal elements, that know 50
No gross, no unharmonious mixture foul,
Eject him tainted now, and purge him off
As a distemper gross, to air as gross,
And mortal food, as may dispose him best
For dissolution wrought by sin, that first
Distempered all things, and of incorrupt
Corrupted. I, at first, with two fair gifts
Created him endowed, with happiness
And immortality : that fondly lost,
This other served but to eternise woe, 60
Till I provided death ; so death becomes
His final remedy, and after life
Tried in sharp tribulation, and refined

Paradise Lost

By faith and faithful works, to second life,
Waked in the renovation of the just,
Resigns him up with heav'n and earth renewed.
But let us call to synod all the blest
Through heav'n's wide bounds ; from them I will not hide

My judgments ; how with mankind I proceed,
As how with peccant angels late they saw ; 70
And in their state, though firm, stood more confirmed."

He ended, and the Son gave signal high
To the bright minister that watched ; he blew
His trumpet, heard in Oreb since perhaps
When God descended, and perhaps once more
To sound at general doom. The angelic blast
Filled all the regions : from their blissful bow'rs
Of amaranthine shade, fountain or spring,
By the waters of life, where'er they sat 80
In fellowships of joy, the sons of light
Hasted, resorting to the summons high,
And took their seats ; till from His throne supreme Th' Almighty thus pronounced His sov'reign will :

"O Sons, like one of us man is become
To know both good and evil, since his taste
Of that defended¹ fruit ; but let him boast
His knowledge of good lost, and evil got ;
Happier, had it sufficed him to have known
Good by itself, and evil not at all.

He sorrows now, repents, and prays contrite, 90
My motions in him, longer than they move,
His heart I know how variable and vain
Self-left. Lest therefore his now bolder hand
Reach also of the Tree of Life, and eat,
And live for ever,—dream at least to live
For ever,—to remove him I decree,
And send him from the garden forth to till
The ground whence he was taken, fitter soil.
Michael, this my behest have thou in charge.
Take to thee from among the Cherubim 100
Thy choice of flaming warriors, lest the fiend,

Paradise Lost

Or in behalf of man, or to invade
Vacant possession, some new trouble raise :
Haste thee, and from the Paradise of God
Without remorse drive out the sinful pair,
From hallowed ground th' unholy, and denounce
To them and to their progeny from thence Perpetual banishment. Yet lest they faint
At the sad sentence rigorously urged,
For I behold them softened and with tears 110
Bewailing their excess, all terror hide.
If patiently thy bidding they obey,
Dismiss them not disconsolate ; reveal
To Adam what shall come in future days,
As I shall thee enlighten ; intermix
My cov'nant in the woman's seed renewed ;
So send them forth, though sorrowing, yet in peace :
And on the east side of the garden place,
Where entrance up from Eden easiest climbs,
Cherubic watch, and of a sword the flame 120
Wide waving, all approach far off to fright,
And guard all passage to the Tree of Life :
Lest Paradise a receptacle prove
To spirits foul, and all my trees their prey,
With whose stol'n fruit man once more to delude."
He ceased ; and the Archangelic pow'r prepared
For swift descent ; with him the cohort bright
Of watchful Cherubim ; four faces each
Had, like a double Janus ;¹ all their shape
Spangled with eyes more numerous than those 130
Of Argus,² and more wakeful than to drowse,
Charmed with Arcadian Pipe, the pastoral reed
Of Hermes, or his opiate rod. Meanwhile,
To resalute the world with sacred light
Leucothea³ waked, and with fresh dews imbalmed
The earth, when Adam and first matron Eve

Paradise Lost

Had ended now their orisons, and found
Strength added from above, new hope to spring
Out of despair, joy, but with fear yet linked ;
Which thus to Eve his welcome words renewed : 140

“ Eve, easily may faith admit, that all
The good which we enjoy from heav’n descends ;
But that from us aught should ascend to heav’n
So prevalent as to concern the mind
Of GOD high-blessed, or to incline His will,
Hard to belief may seem ; yet ‘his will prayer,
Or one short sigh of human breath, upborne
Ev’n to the seat of GOD. For since I sought
By prayer th’ offended Deity to appease,
Kneeled and before Him humbled all my heart, 150
Methought I saw Him placable and mild,
Bending His ear : persuasion in me grew
That I was heard with favour ; peace returned Home to my breast, and to my memory
His promise, that thy seed shall bruise our foe ;
Which, then not minded in dismay, yet now
Assures me that the bitterness of death
Is past, and we shall live. Whence hail to thee,
Eve¹ rightly called, Mother of all mankind,
Mother of all things living, since by thee 160
Man is to live, and all things live for man.”

To whom thus Eve with sad demeanour meek :
“ Ill worthy I such title should belong
To me transgressor, who, for thee ordained
A help, became thy snare : to me reproach
Rather belongs, distrust, and all dispraise :
But infinite in pardon was my Judge,
That I, who first brought death on all, am graced
The source of life ; next favourable thou,
Who highly thus to entitle me vouchsafest, 170
Far other name deserving. But the field
To labour calls us now with sweat imposed,
Though after sleepless night ; for see, the Morn,
All unconcerned with our unrest, begins
Her rosy progress smiling ; let us forth,

¹ Eve signifies Life.

Paradise Lost

I never from thy side henceforth to stray,
Where'er our day's work lies, though now enjoined
Laborious, till day droop ; while here we dwell,
What can be toilsome in these pleasant walks ?
Here let us live, though in fall'n state, content." 180

So spake, so wished much-humbled Eve ; but fate
Subscribed not ; nature first gave signs, impressed
On bird, beast, air ; air suddenly eclipsed
After short blush of morn : nigh in her sight
The bird of Jove, stooped from his aery tow'r,
Two birds of gayest plume before him drove :
Down from a hill the beast that reigns in woods,
First hunter then, pursued a gentle brace,
Goodliest of all the forest, hart and hind ;
Direct to th' eastern gate was bent their flight. 190
Adam observed, and, with his eye the chase
Pursuing, not unmoved to Eve thus spake :

" O Eve, some further change awaits us nigh,
Which heav'n by these mute signs in nature shows
Forerunners of His purpose, or to warn
Us haply too secure of our discharge
From penalty, because from death released
Some days ; how long, and what till then our life,
Who knows, or more than this, that we are dust,
And thither must return and be no more ? 200
Why else this double object in our sight
Of flight pursued in th' air, and o'er the ground,
One way the selfsame hour ? Why in the east
Darkness ere day's mid-course, and morning light
More orient in yon western cloud, that draws
O'er the blue firmament a radiant white,
And slow descends, with something heav'nly fraught ? "

He erred not, for by this the heav'nly bands
Down from a sky of jasper lighted now
In Paradise, and on a hill made halt, 210
A glorious apparition, had not doubt
And carnal fear that day dimmed Adam's eye.
Not that more glorious, when the angels met
Jacob in Mahanaim,¹ where he saw

Paradise Lost

The field pavilioned with his guardians bright ;
Nor that which on the flaming mount appeared
In Dothan, covered with a camp of fire,¹
Against the Syrian king, who to surprise
One man assassin-like had levied war,
War unproclaimed. The princely hierarch 220
In their bright stand there left his powers to seize Possession of the garden ; he alone,
To find where Adam sheltered, took his way,
Not unperceived of Adam, who to Eve,
While the great visitant approached, thus spake :

“Eve, now expect great tidings, which perhaps
Of us will soon determine, or impose
New laws to be observed ; for I descry
From yonder blazing cloud that veils the hill
One of the heav’nly host, and by his gait 230
None of the meanest, some great Potentate,
Or of the Thrones above, such majesty
Invests him coming ; yet not terrible,
That I should fear, nor sociably mild,
As Raphael, that I should much confide,
But solemn and sublime, whom not to offend
With reverence I must meet, and thou retire.”

He ended ; and the Archangel soon drew nigh,
Not in his shape celestial, but as man
Clad to meet man ; over his lucid arms 240
A military vest of purple flowed,
Livelier than Melibœan,² or the grain
Of Sarra, worn by kings and heroes old
In time of truce ; Iris³ had dipped the woof ;
His starry helm unbuckled showed him prime
In manhood where youth ended ; by his side
As in a glistening zodiac hung the sword,
Satan’s dire dread, and in his hand the spear.
Adam bowed low, he kingly from his state
Inclined not, but his coming thus declared : 250

Paradise Lost

“Adam, heav’n’s high behest no preface needs :
Sufficient that thy prayers are heard, and death,
Then due by sentence when thou didst transgress,
Defeated of his seizure many days
Giv’n thee of grace, wherein thou may’st repent,
And one bad act with many deeds well done
May’st cover : well may then thy Lord appeased
Redeem thee quite from death’s rapacious claim ;
But longer in this Paradise to dwell
Permits not : to remove thee I am come, 260
And send thee from the garden forth to till
The ground whence thou was taken, fitter soil.”

He added not, for Adam at the news
Heart-struck with chilling gripe of sorrow stood,
That all his senses bound ; Eve, who unseen
Yet all had heard, with audible lament
Discovered soon the place of her retire :

“O unexpected stroke, worse than of death !
Must I thus leave thee, Paradise ? thus leave
Thee, native soil, these happy walks and shades, 270
Fit haunt of Gods ? where I had hope to spend,
Quiet though sad, the respite of that day
That must be mortal to us both. O flow’rs,
That never will in other climate grow,
My early visitation, and my last
At ev’n, which I bred up with tender hand
From the first op’ning bud, and gave ye names,
Who now shall rear ye to the sun, or rank
Your tribes, and water from th’ ambrosial fount ?
Thee lastly, nuptial bow’r, by me adorned 280
With what to sight or smell was sweet ; from thee
How shall I part, and whither wander down
Into a lower world, to this obscure
And wild ? how shall we breathe in other air
Less pure, accustomed to immortal fruits ?”

Whom thus the angel interrupted mild :
“Lament not, Eve, but patiently resign
What justly thou hast lost ; nor set thy heart,
Thus over-fond, on that which is not thine :
Thy going is not lonely, with thee goes 290

Paradise Lost

Thy husband, him to follow thou art bound ;
Where he abides, think there thy native soil."

Adam, by this from the cold sudden damp
Recovering, and his scattered spirits returned,
To Michael thus his humble words addressed :

"Celestial, whether among the thrones, or named
Of them the highest, for such of shape may seem Prince above princes, gently hast thou told
Thy message, which might else in telling wound,
And in performing end us ; what besides 300
Of sorrow, and dejection, and despair,

Our frailty can sustain, thy tidings bring,
Departure from this happy place, our sweet
Recess, and only consolation left
Familiar to our eyes, all places else
Inhospitable appear and desolate,
Nor knowing us nor known ; and if by prayer
Incessant I could hope to change the will
Of Him who all things can, I would not cease
To weary Him with my assiduous cries. 310

But prayer against His absolute decree
No more avails than breath against the wind,
Blown stifling back on him that breathes it forth :
Therefore to His great bidding I submit.
This most afflicts me, that departing hence
As from His face I shall be hid, deprived
His blessed count'nance ; here I could frequent,
With worship, place by place, where He vouchsafed
Presence divine, and to my sons relate ;
On this mount He appeared, under this tree 320
Stood visible, among these pines His voice
I heard, here with Him at this fountain talked :

So many grateful altars I would rear
Of grassy turf, and pile up every stone
Of lustre from the brook, in memory,
Or monument to ages, and thereon
Offer sweet-smelling gums, and fruits, and flow'rs :
In yonder nether world where shall I seek
His bright appearances, or footstep trace ?
For though I fled Him angry, yet, recalled 330

Paradise Lost

To life prolonged and promised race, I now
Gladly behold though but His utmost skirts
Of glory, and far off His steps adore."

To whom thus Michael with regard benign :
" Adam, thou know'st heav'n His, and all the earth,
Not this rock only ; His omnipresence fills
Land, sea, and air, and every kind that lives,¹ Fomented by His virtual power and warmed :
All the earth He gave thee to possess and rule,
No despicable gift ; surmise not then 340
His presence to these narrow bounds confined
Of Paradise or Eden : this had been Perhaps thy capital seat, from whence had spread
All generations, and had hither come
From all the ends of the earth, to celebrate
And reverence thee, their great progenitor.
But this pre-eminence thou hast lost, brought down
To dwell on even ground now with thy sons :
Yet doubt not but in valley and in plain
God is as here, and will be found alike 350
Present, and of His presence many a sign
Still following thee, still compassing thee round
With goodness and paternal love, His face
Express, and of His steps the track divine.
Which that thou may'st believe and be confirmed
Ere thou from hence depart, know, I am sent
To show thee what shall come in future days
To thee and to thy offspring ; good with bad
Expect to hear, supernal grace contending
With sinfulness of men ; thereby to learn 360
True patience, and to temper joy with fear
And pious sorrow, equally inured
By moderation either state to bear,
Prosperous or adverse : so shalt thou lead
Safest thy life, and best prepared endure
Thy mortal passage when it comes. Ascend
This hill ; let Eve, for I have drenched her eyes,
Here sleep below, while thou to foresight wakest,
As once thou slept'st, while she to life was formed."

To whom thus Adam gratefully replied : 370
 "Ascend, I follow thee, safe guide, the path
 Thou lead'st me, and to the hand of heav'n submit,
 However chast'ning, to the evil turn
 My obvious breast, arming to overcome
 By suffering, and earn rest from labour won,
 If so I may attain." So both ascend
 In the visions of GOD. It was a hill
 Of Paradise the highest, from whose top
 The hemisphere of earth in clearest ken
 Stretched out to the amplest reach of prospect lay. 380

Or thence from Niger flood to Atlas mount
The kingdoms of Almansor,¹ Fez, and Sus,

Or Europe thence, and where Rome was to sway

Rich Mexico the seat of Motezume,
And Cusco in Peru, the richer seat
Of Atabalipa,² and yet unspoiled
Guiana, whose great city Geryon's sons³ 410

Michael from Adam's eyes the film removed,
Which that false fruit that promised clearer sight
Had bred ; then purged with euphrasy⁴ and rue
The visual nerve, for he had much to see ;
And from the well of life three drops instilled.
So deep the power of these ingredients pierced,
Ev'n to the inmost seat of mental sight,
That Adam, now enforced to close his eyes,
Sunk down, and all his spirits became intranced : 420
But him the gentle angel by the hand
Soon raised, and his attention thus recalled :
" Adam, now ope thine eyes, and first behold
Th' effects which thy original crime bath wrought
In some to spring from thee, who never touched
Th' excepted tree, nor with the snake conspired, Nor sinned thy sin ; yet from that sin derive Corruption to bring forth more violent deeds."
His eyes he opened, and beheld a field,
Part arable and tilth, whereon were sheaves 430
New reaped, the other part sheep-walks and folds :
I' th' midst an altar as the land-mark stood,
Rustic, of grassy sord ;⁵ thither anon

Paradise Lost

A sweaty reaper¹ from his tillage brought
First fruits, the green ear, and the yellow sheaf,
Unculled, as came to hand ; a shepherd next
More meek came with the firstlings of his flock
Choicest and best ; then sacrificing laid
The inwards and their fat, with incense strewed,
On the cleft wood, and all due rites performed. 440
His off'ring soon propitious fire from heav'n
Consumed with nimble glance, and grateful steam ;
The other's not, for his was not sincere :
Whereat he inly raged, and, as they talked,
Smote him into the midriff with a stone
That beat out life ; he fell, and deadly pale
Groaned out his soul with gushing blood effused.
Much at that sight was Adam in his heart
Dismayed, and thus in haste to the angel cried :
" O teacher, some great mischief hath befall'n 450
To that meek man, who well had sacrificed ;
Is piety thus and pure devotion paid ? "

To whom Micháel thus, he also moved, replied :
" These two are brethren, Adam, and to come
Out of thy loins ; the unjust the just hath slain,
For envy that his brother's offering found
From heav'n acceptance ; but the bloody fact
Will be avenged, and the other's faith approved
Lose no reward, though here thou see him die,
Rolling in dust and gore." To which our sire : 460

" Alas, both for the deed and for the cause !
But have I now seen Death ? is this the way
I must return to native dust ? O sight
Of terror, foul and ugly to behold,
Horrid to think, how horrible to feel ! "

To whom thus Michael : " Death thou hast seen
In his first shape on man ; but many shapes
Of Death, and many are the ways that lead
To his grim cave, all dismal ; yet to sense
More terrible at the entrance than within. 470
Some, as thou saw'st, by violent stroke shall die,
By fire, flood, famine, by intemperance more

Paradise Lost

In meats and drinks, which on the earth shall bring Diseases dire, of which a monstrous crew
Before thee shall appear ; that thou may'st know
What misery th' inabstinence of Eve
Shall bring on men." Immediately a place
Before his eyes appeared, sad, noisome, dark,
A lazar-house it seemed, wherein were laid
Numbers of all diseased, all maladies 480
Of ghastly spasm, or racking torture, qualms
Of heart-sick agony, all feverous kinds,
Convulsions, epilepsies, fierce catarrhs,
Intestine stone and ulcer, colic pangs,
Dæmoniac frenzy, moping melancholy,
And moon-struck madness ; pining atrophy,
Marasmus, and wide-wasting pestilence,
Dropsies, and asthmas, and joint-racking rheums.
Dire was the tossing, deep the groans ; despair
Tended the sick, busiest from couch to couch ; 490
And over them triumphant Death his dart
Shook, but delayed to strike, though oft invoked
With vows, as their chief good, and final hope.
Sight so deform what heart of rock could long
Dry-eyed behold ? Adam could not, but wept,
Though not of woman born ; compassion quelled
His best of man, and gave him up to tears
A space, till firmer thoughts restrained excess,
And scarce recovering words his plaint renewed :
"O miserable mankind, to what fall 500
Degraded, to what wretched state reserved !
Better end here unborn. Why is life giv'n
To be thus wrested from us ? rather why
Obtruded on us thus ? who, if we knew
What we receive, would either not accept
Life offered, or soon beg to lay it down,
Glad to be so dismissed in peace. Can thus
Th' image of God in man, created once
So goodly and erect, though faulty since,
To such unsightly sufferings be debased 510
Under inhuman pains ? Why should not man,
Retaining still divine similitude

Paradise Lost

In part, from such deformities be free,
And for his Maker's image sake exempt?"

"Their Maker's image," answered Michael, "then Forsook them, when themselves they vilified
To serve ungoverned appetite, and took His image whom they served, a brutish vice,
Inductive mainly to the sin of Eve.

Therefore so abject is their punishment, 520
Disfiguring not God's likeness, but their own,
Or if His likeness, by themselves defaced,
While they pervert pure nature's healthful rules
To loathsome sickness, worthily, since they God's image did not reverence in themselves."

"I yield it just," said Adam, "and submit.
But is there yet no other way, besides
These painful passages, how we may come
To death, and mix with our connatural dust?"

"There is," said Michael, "if thou well observe 530
The rule of not too much, by temperance taught
In what thou eat'st and drink'st, seeking from thence Due nourishment, not gluttonous delight.

Till many years over thy head return,
So may'st thou live, till like ripe fruit thou drop
Into thy mother's lap, or be with ease
Gathered, not harshly plucked, for death mature.
This is old age; but then thou must outlive
Thy youth, thy strength, thy beauty, which will change
To withered, weak, and gray: thy senses then 540

Obtuse all taste of pleasure must forego
To what thou hast, and for the air of youth,
Hopeful and cheerful, in thy blood will reign
A melancholy damp of cold and dry
To weigh thy spirits down, and last consume
The balm of life." To whom our ancestor:

"Henceforth I fly not death, nor would prolong Life much, bent rather how I may be quit
Fairest and easiest of this cumbrous charge,
Which I must keep till my appointed day 550
Of rend'ring up, and patiently attend
My dissolution." Michael replied:

Paradise Lost

“Nor love thy life, nor hate ; but what thou livest
Live well, how long or short permit to Heav’n :
And now prepare thee for another sight.”

He looked, and saw a spacious plain, whereon
Were tents of various hue ; by some were herds
Of cattle grazing :¹ others, whence the sound
Of instruments that made melodious chime
Was heard, of harp and organ ; and who moved 560
Their stops and chords was seen : his volant touch
Instinct through all proportions low and high
Fled and pursued transverse the resonant fugue,²
In other part stood one who, at the forge³
Labouring, two massy clods of iron and brass
Had melted, whether found where casual fire
Had wasted woods on mountain or in vale,
Down to the veins of earth, thence gliding hot
To some cave’s mouth, or whether washed by stream
From underground ; the liquid ore he drained 570
Into fit moulds prepared ; from which he formed
First his own tools ; then, what might else be wrought
Fusil or grav’n in metal. After these,
But on the hither side, a different sort
From the high neighbouring hills, which was their seat,
Down to the plain descended : by their guise
Just men they seemed,⁴ and all their study bent
To worship God aright, and know His works
Not hid ; nor those things last, which might preserve
Freedom and peace to men : they on the plain 580
Long had not walked, when from the tents behold
A bevy of fair women, richly gay
In gems and wanton dress ; to the harp they sung
Soft amorous ditties, and in dance came on :
The men, though grave, eyed them, and let their eyes
Rove without rein, till, in the amorous net
Fast caught, they liked, and each his liking chose :
And now of love they treat, till the ev’ning star,
Love’s harbinger, appeared ; then all in heat
They light the nuptial torch, and bid invoke 590

Paradise Lost

Hymen, then first to marriage rites invoked ;
With feast and music all the tents resound.
Such happy interview and fair event
Of love and youth not lost, songs, garlands, flow'rs,
And charming symphonies attached the heart
Of Adam, soon inclined to admit delight,
The bent of nature, which he thus expressed :

“ True opener of mine eyes, prime angel blest,
Much better seems this vision, and more hope
Of peaceful days portends, than those two past : 600
Those were of hate and death, or pain much worse ;
Here nature seems fulfilled in all her ends.”

To whom thus Michael : “ Judge not what is best
By pleasure, though to nature seeming meet,
Created, as thou art, to nobler end
Holy and pure, conformity divine.
Those tents, thou saw'st so pleasant, were the tents
Of wickedness, wherein shall dwell his race
Who slew his brother ; studious they appear
Of arts that polish life, inventors rare, 610
Unmindful of their Maker, though His Spirit
Taught them, but they His gifts acknowledged none.
Yet they a beauteous offspring shall beget ;
For that fair female troupe thou saw'st, that seemed
Of Goddesses, so blithe, so smooth, so gay,
Yet empty of all good wherein consists
Woman's domestic honour and chief praise ;
Bred only and completed to the taste
Of lustful appetite, to sing, to dance,
To dress, and troll the tongue, and roll the eye. 620
To these that sober race of men, whose lives
Religious titled them the sons of God,
Shall yield up all their virtue, all their fame
Ignobly, to the trains and to the smiles
Of these fair atheists ; and now swim in joy,
Erelong to swim at large, and laugh ; for which
The world erelong a world of tears must weep.”

To whom thus Adam of short joy bereft :
“ O pity and shame, that they, who to live well
Entered so fair, should turn aside to tread 630

Paradise Lost

Paths indirect, or in the midway faint !

But still I see the tenor of man's woe

Holds on the same, from woman to begin."

"From man's effeminate slackness it begins,"

Said the Archangel, "who should better hold his place

By wisdom and superior gifts received.

But now prepare thee for another scene."

He looked, and saw wide territory spread

Before him, towns, and rural works between,

Cities of men with lofty gates and tow'rs, 640

Concourse in arms, fierce faces threat'ning war,

Giants of mighty bone, and bold emprise ;

Part wield their arms, part curb the foaming steed,

Single, or in array of battle ranged

Both horse and foot, nor idly must'ring stood :

One way a band select from forage drives

A herd of beeves, fair oxen and fair kine,

From a fat meadow ground ; or fleecy flock,

Ewes and their bleating lambs, over the plain,

Their booty ; scarce with life the shepherds fly, 650

But call in aid, which makes a bloody fray.

With cruel tournament the squadrons join ;

Where cattle pastured late, now scattered lies

With carcasses and arms th' ensanguined field

Deserted. Others to a city strong

Lay siege, encamped, by battery, scale, and mine,

Assaulting ; others from the wall defend

With dart and javelin, stones and sulphurous fire ;

On each hand slaughter and gigantic deeds.

In other part the sceptred heralds call 660

To council in the city gates : anon

Gray-headed men and grave, with warriors mixed,

Assemble, and harangues are heard ; but soon

In factious opposition ; till at last

Of middle age one rising,¹ eminent

In wise deport, spake much of right and wrong,

Of justice, of religion, truth and peace,

And judgment from above : him old and young

Paradise Lost

Exploded, and had seized with violent hands,
Had not a cloud descending snatched him thence, 670
Unseen amid the throng: so violence
Proceeded, and oppression, and sword-law,
Through all the plain, and refuge none was found.
Adam was all in tears, and to his guide
Lamenting turned full sad: "O! what are these,
Death's ministers, not men, who thus deal death
Inhumanly to men, and multiply
Ten thousand-fold the sin of him who slew
His brother; for of whom such massacre
Make they but of their brethren, men of men? 680
But who was that just man, whom had not heav'n
Rescued, had in his righteousness been lost?"

To whom thus Michael: "These are the product
Of those ill-mated marriages thou saw'st;
Where good with bad were matched, who of themselves
Abhor to join; and by imprudence mixed
Produce prodigious births of body or mind.
Such were these giants, men of high renown;
For in those days might only shall be admired,
And valour an heroic virtue called: 690
To overcome in battle, and subdue
Nations, and bring home spoils with infinite
Manslaughter, shall be held the highest pitch
Of human glory, and for glory done
Of triumph, to be styled great conquerors,
Patrons of mankind, gods, and sons of gods,
Destroyers rightlier called and plagues of men.
Thus fame shall be achieved, renown on earth,
And what most merits fame in silence hid.
But he, the seventh from thee, whom thou beheld'st
The only righteous in a world perverse, 700
And therefore hated, therefore so beset
With foes for daring single to be just,
And utter odious truth, that God would come
To judge them with His saints; him the Most High
Wrapt in a balmy cloud with winged steeds
Did, as thou saw'st, receive, to walk with God
High in salvation and the climes of bliss,

Paradise Lost

Exempt from death : to show thee what reward
Awaits the good, the rest what punishment : 710
Which now direct thine eyes and soon behold."

He looked, and saw the face of things quite changed,
The brazen throat of war had ceased to roar ;
All now was turned to jollity and game,
To luxury and riot, feast and dance,
Marrying or prostituting as befell,
Rape or adultery, where passing fair
Allured them ; thence from cups to civil broils.
At length a reverend sire ¹ among them came,
And of their doings great dislike declared, 720
And testified against their ways ; he oft
Frequented their assemblies, whereso met,
Triumphs, or festivals, and to them preached
Conversion and repentance, as to souls
In prison under judgments imminent :
But all in vain : which when he saw, he ceased
Contending, and removed his tents far off : ²
Then from the mountain hewing timber tall,
Began to build a vessel of huge bulk,
Measured by cubit, length, and breadth, and highth, 730
Smeared round with pitch, and in the side a door
Contrived, and of provisions laid in large
For man and beast : when lo, a wonder strange !
Of every beast, and bird, and insect small,
Came sevens, and pairs, and entered in, as taught
Their order : last the sire and his three sons
With their four wives ; and God made fast the door.
Meanwhile the south wind rose, and, with black wings
Wide hovering, all the clouds together drove
From under heav'n ; the hills to their supply 740
Vapour, and exhalation dusk and moist
Sent up amain : and now the thickened sky
Like a dark ceiling stood ; down rushed the rain
Impetuous, and continued till the earth
No more was seen ; the floating vessel swum

Paradise Lost

Uplifted ; and secure with beakèd prow
Rode tilting o'er the waves, all dwellings else
Flood overwhelmed, and them with all their pomp
Deep under water rolled ; sea covered sea,
Sea without shore, and in their palaces, 750
Where luxury late reigned, sea-monsters whelped
And stabled ; of mankind, so numerous late,
All left in one small bottom swum embarked.
How didst thou grieve then, Adam, to behold
The end of all thy offspring, end so sad,
Depopulation ! thee another flood,
Of tears and sorrow a flood thee also drowned,
And sunk thee as thy sons ; till gently reared
By the angel, on thy feet thou stood'st at last,
Though comfortless, as when a father mourns 760
His children, all in view destroyed at once ;
And scarce to the angel utteredst thus thy plaint :
 "O visions ill foreseen ! better had I
Lived ignorant of future, so had borne
My part of evil only, each day's lot
Enough to bear ; those now, that were dispensed
The burden of many ages, on me light
At once, by my foreknowledge gaining birth
Abortive, to torment me ere their being,
With thought that they must be. Let no man seek 770
Henceforth to be foretold what shall befall
Him or his children ; evil he may be sure,
Which neither his foreknowing can prevent,
And he the future evil shall no less
In apprehension than in substance feel,
Grievous to bear : but that care now is past,
Man is not whom to warn ; those few escaped
Famine and anguish will at last consume
Wand'ring that wat'ry desert. I had hope,
When violence was ceased, and war on earth, 780
All would have then gone well ; peace would have crowned
With length of happy days the race of man ;
But I was far deceived ; for now I see
Peace to corrupt no less than war to waste.

Paradise Lost

How comes it thus? unfold, celestial guide,
And whether here the race of man will end."

To whom thus Michael: "Those whom last thou saw'st

In triumph and luxurious wealth, are they
First seen in acts of prowess eminent
And great exploits, but of true virtue void ; 790
Who having spilled much blood, and done much waste,
Subduing nations, and achieved thereby
Fame in the world, high titles, and rich prey,
Shall change their course to pleasure, ease, and sloth,
Surfeit, and lust, till wantonness and pride
Raise, out of friendship, hostile deeds in peace.
The conquered also and enslaved by war
Shall with their freedom lost all virtue lose
And fear of God, from whom their piety feigned
In sharp contest of battle found no aid 800
Against invaders ; therefore cooled in zeal
Thenceforth shall practise how to live secure,
Worldly, or dissolute, on what their lords
Shall leave them to enjoy, for the earth shall bear
More than enough, that temperance may be tried :
So all shall turn degenerate, all depraved,
Justice and temperance, truth and faith forgot ;
One man except, the only son of light
In a dark age, against example good,
Against allurements, custom, and a world - 810
Offended ; fearless of reproach and scorn,
Or violence, he of their wicked ways
Shall them admonish, and before them set
The paths of righteousness, how much more safe
And full of peace, denouncing wrath to come
On their impenitence ; and shall return
Of them derided, but of God observed
The one just man alive ; by His command
Shall build a wondrous ark, as thou beheld'st,
To save himself and household from amidst 820
A world devote to universal wreck.
No sooner he with them of man and beast
Select for life shall in the ark be lodged

Paradise Lost

And shelter'd round, but all the cataracts
Of heav'n set open on the earth shall pour
Rain day and night ; all fountains of the deep
Broke up shall heave the ocean to usurp
Beyond all bounds, till inundation rise
Above the highest hills : then shall this mount
Of Paradise by might of waves be moved 830
Out of his place, pushed by the hornèd flood,
With all his verdure spoiled, and trees adrift,
Down the great river to the op'ning gulf,
And there take root, an island salt and bare,
The haunt of seals, and orcs, and sea-mews' clang ;
To teach thee that God attributes to place
No sanctity, if none be thither brought
By men who there frequent, or therein dwell.
And now what further shall ensue, behold."

He looked, and saw the ark hull on the flood, 840
Which now abated, for the clouds were fled,
Driv'n by a keen north-wind, that blowing dry
Wrinkled the face of deluge, as decayed ;
And the clear sun on his wide wat'ry glass
Gazed hot, and of the fresh wave largely drew,
As after thirst, which made their flowing shrink
From standing lake to tripping ebb, that stole
With soft foot towards the deep, who now had stopped
His sluices, as the heav'n his windows shut.
The ark no more now floats, but seems on ground 850
Fast on the top of some high mountain fixed.
And now the tops of hills as rocks appear ;
With clamour thence the rapid currents drive
Towards the retreating sea their furious tide.
Forthwith from out the ark a raven flies,
And after him, the surer messenger,
A dove, sent forth once and again to spy
Green tree or ground whereon his foot may light :
The second time returning, in his bill
An olive leaf he brings, pacific sign : 860
Anon dry ground appears, and from his ark
The ancient sire descends with all his train ;
Then with uplifted hands, and eyes devout,

Paradisè Lost

Grateful to heav'n, over his head beholds
A dewy cloud, and in the cloud a bow
Conspicuous with three listed colours gay, Betok'ning peace from GOD, and cov'nant new.
Whereat the heart of Adam erst so sad
Greatly rejoiced, and thus his joy broke forth :

“O thou, who future things canst represent 870
As present, heav'nly Instructor, I revive
At this last sight, assured that man shall live
With all the creatures, and their seed preserve.
Far less I now lament for one whole world
Of wicked sons destroyed, than I rejoice
For one man found so perfect and so just,
That GOD vouchsafes to raise another world
From him, and all His anger to forget.
But say, what mean those coloured streaks in heav'n,
Distended, as the brow of GOD appeased? 880
Or serve they as a flow'ry verge to bind
The fluid skirts of that same wat'ry cloud
Lest it again dissolve and show'r the earth?”

To whom the Archangel : “Dext'rously thou aim'st ;
So willingly doth GOD remit His ire,
Though late repenting Him of man depraved,
Grieved at His heart, when looking down He saw
The whole earth filled with violence, and all flesh
Corrupting each their way ; yet, those removed,
Such grace shall one just man find in His sight, 890
That He relents, not to blot out mankind,
And makes a covenant never to destroy
The earth again by flood, nor let the sea
Surpass his bounds, nor rain to drown the world
With man therein or beast ; but when He brings
Over the earth a cloud, will therein set
His triple-coloured bow, whereon to look,
And call to mind His cov'nant : day and night,
Seed-time and harvest, heat and hoary frost,
Shall hold their course, till fire purge all things new, 900
Both heav'n and earth, wherein the just shall dwell.”

Paradise Lost

BOOK XII.

THE ARGUMENT.

The angel Michael continues from the flood to relate what shall succeed ; then, in the mention of Abraham, comes by degrees to explain, who that seed of the woman shall be, which was promised Adam and Eve in the fall ; His incarnation, death, resurrection, and ascension ; the state of the Church till His second coming. Adam, greatly satisfied, and recomforted by these relations and promises, descends the hill with Michael ; wakens Eve, who all this while had slept, but with gentle dreams composed to quietness of mind and submission. Michael in either hand leads them out of Paradise, the fiery sword waving behind them, and the Cherubim taking their stations to guard the place.

As one who in his journey bates at noon, I
Though bent on speed, so here the archangel paused
Betwixt the world destroyed and world restored,
If Adam aught perhaps might interpose ;
Then with transition sweet new speech resumes :

“ Thus thou hast seen one world begin and end ;
And man as from a second stock proceed.
Much thou hast yet to see, but I perceive
Thy mortal sight to fail : objects divine
Must needs impair and weary human sense : 10
Henceforth what is to come I will relate,
Thou therefore give due audience, and attend.

“ This second source of men, while yet but few,
And while the dread of judgment past remains
Fresh in their minds, fearing the Deity,
With some regard to what is just and right
Shall lead their lives, and multiply apace,
Labouring the soil, and reaping plenteous crop,
Corn, wine, and oil ; and from the herd, or flock,
Oft sacrificing bullock, lamb, or kid, 20
With large wine-offerings poured, and sacred feast,
Shall spend their days in joy unblamed, and dwell
Long time in peace by families and tribes
Under paternal rule ; till one shall rise
Of proud ambitious heart, who not content
With fair equality, fraternal state,
Will arrogate dominion undeserved
Over his brethren, and quite dispossess
Concord and law of nature from the earth ;
Hunting, and men not beasts shall be his game, 30
With war and hostile snare such as refuse

Paradise Lost

Subjection to his empire tyrannous.
A mighty hunter thence he shall be styled ¹
Before the Lord, as in despite of heav'n,
Or from heav'n claiming second sov'reignty ;
And from rebellion shall derive his name,² Though of rebellion others he accuse.
He with a crew, whom like ambition joins
With him or under him to tyrannise,
Marching from Eden towards the west,³ shall find 40
The plain, wherein a black bituminous gurge
Boils out from under ground, the mouth of hell :
Of brick and of that stuff they cast to build
A city and tow'r, whose top may reach to heav'n,
And get themselves a name, lest far disperst
In foreign lands their memory be lost,
Regardless whether good or evil fame.
But GOD, who oft descends to visit men
Unseen, and through their habitations walks
To mark their doings, them beholding soon, 50
Comes down to see their city, ere the tower
Obstruct Heav'n-tow'rs, and in derision sets
Upon their tongues a various spirit, to rase
Quite out their native language, and instead
To sow a jangling noise of words unknown.
Forthwith a hideous gabble rises loud
Among the builders, each to other calls
Not understood, till hoarse, and all in rage,
As mocked, they storm ; great laughter was in heav'n,
And looking down, to see the hubbub strange 60
And hear the din ; thus was the building left Ridiculous, and the work Confusion⁴ named."

Whereto thus Adam fatherly displeased :
"O execrable son ! so to aspire
Above his brethren, to himself assuming Authority usurped, from God not giv'n.

¹ Nimrod, who is supposed to have been the first who assumed kingly power. See Gen. x. 9.

² The name Nimrod is derived from a Hebrew word that signifies to rebel.

³ "And it came to pass, as they journeyed from the east, that they found a plain in the land of Shinar. And they had brick for stone, and slime had they for mortar." Gen. xi. 2, etc.

⁴ Babel signifies confusion in Hebrew.

Paradise Lost

He gave us only over beast, fish, fowl,
Dominion absolute ; that right we hold
By His donation ; but man over men
He made not lord ; such title to Himself 70
Reserving, human left from human free.

But this usurper his encroachment proud
Stays not on man ; to GOD his tower intends
Siege and defiance. Wretched man ! what food
Will he convey up thither to sustain
Himself and his rash army, where thin air
Above the clouds will pine his entrails gross,
And famish him of breath, if not of bread ? ”

To whom thus Michael : “ Justly thou abhorr’st
That son, who on the quiet state of men 80
Such trouble brought, affecting to subdue
Rational liberty ; yet know withal,
Since thy original lapse, true liberty
Is lost, which always with right reason dwells
Twinned, and from her hath no dividual being :
Reason in man obscured, or not obeyed,
Immediately inordinate desires

And upstart passions catch the government
From reason, and to servitude reduce Man till then free. Therefore, since he permits 90
Within himself unworthy powers to reign
Over free reason, GOD in judgment just Subjects him from without to violent lords
Who oft as undeservedly enthrall
His outward freedom. Tyranny must be,
Though to the tyrant thereby no excuse.
Yet sometimes nations will decline so low
From virtue, which is reason, that no wrong,
But justice, and some fatal curse annexed,
Deprives them of their outward liberty, 100

Their inward lost : witness the irreverent son
Of him who built the ark, who for the shame
Done to his father, heard this heavy curse,
Servant of servants, on his vicious race.¹
Thus will this latter, as the former world,

¹ Gen. ix. 22-25.

Paradise Lost

Still tend from bad to worse, till God at last,
Wearied with their iniquities, withdraw
His presence from among them, and avert
His holy eyes ; resolving from thenceforth
To leave them to their own polluted ways ; 110
And one peculiar nation to select
From all the rest, of whom to be invoked,
A nation from one faithful man ¹ to spring :
Him on this side Euphrates yet residing Bred up in idol-worship.² O that men,
Canst thou believe ? should be so stupid grown,
While yet the patriarch lived who scaped the flood,
As to forsake the living God, and fall
To worship their own work in wood and stone
For gods ; yet him God the Most High vouchsafes 120
To call by vision from his father's house,
His kindred, and false gods, into a land
Which He will show him, and from him will raise A mighty nation, and upon him show'r
His benediction so, that in his seed
All nations should be blessed ; he straight obeys,
Not knowing to what land, yet firm believes.
I see him, but thou canst not, with what faith
He leaves his gods, his friends, and native soil,
Ur of Chaldæa, passing now the ford 130
To Haran, after him a cumbrous train
Of herds, and flocks, and numerous servitude ;
Not wand'ring poor, but trusting all his wealth
With God, who called him, in a land unknown.
Canaan he now attains ; I see his tents
Pitched about Sechem, and the neighbouring plain
Of Moreh ; there by promise he receives
Gift to his progeny of all that land ;
From Hamath northward to the desert south ;
Things by their names I call, though yet unnamed, 140
From Hermon east to the great western sea ;
Mount Hermon, yonder sea, each place behold

¹ Abraham.

² Terah, Abraham's father, was an idolater. See Josh. xxiv. 2. Jewish tradition represents the father and grandfather of Abraham to have been carvers of idols. Terah was born in Noah's lifetime.

Paradise Lost

In prospect, as I point them ; on the shore
Mount Carmel ; here the double-founted stream
Jordan, true limit eastward ; but his sons
Shall dwell to Senir, that long ridge of hills.
This ponder, that all nations of the earth
Shall in his seed be blessèd ; by that seed
Is meant thy great Deliverer, who shall bruise
The serpent's head ; whereof to thee anon 150
Plainlier shall be revealed. This patriarch blest,
Whom 'faithful Abraham' due time shall call,
A son, and of his son a grandchild, leaves,
Like him in faith, in wisdom, and renown.
The grandchild, with twelve sons increased departs
From Canaan, to a land hereafter called
Egypt, divided by the river Nile ;
See where it flows, disgorging at seven mouths
Into the sea. To sojourn in that land
He comes, invited by a younger son 160
In time of dearth ; a son, whose worthy deeds
Raise him to be the second in that realm
Of Pharaoh : there he dies, and leaves his race
Growing into a nation ; and now grown
Suspected to a sequent king, who seeks
To stop their overgrowth, as inmate guests
Too numerous ; whence of guests he makes them slaves
Inhospitably, and kills their infant males :
Till by two brethren (those two brethren call Moses and Aaron), sent from GOD to claim 170
His people from enthralment, they return
With glory and spoil back to their promised land.
But first the lawless tyrant, who denies
To know their GOD, or message to regard,
Must be compelled by signs and judgments dire ;
To blood unshed the rivers must be turned ;
Frogs, lice, and flies must all his palace fill
With loathed intrusion, and fill all the land :
His cattle must of rot and murrain die ;
Blotches and blains must all his flesh imboss, 180
And all his people ; thunder mixed with hail,
Hail mixed with fire, must rend the Egyptian sky,

Paradise Lost

And wheel on the earth, devouring where it rolls ;
What it devours not, herb, or fruit, or grain,
A darksome cloud of locusts swarming down
Must eat, and on the ground leave nothing green :
Darkness must overshadow all his bounds,
Palpable darkness, and blot out three days ;
Last with one midnight stroke all the first-born
Of Egypt must lie dead. Thus with ten wounds 190
This river-dragon ¹ tamed at length submits
To let his sojourners depart, and oft
Humbles his stubborn heart ; but still as ice
More hardened after thaw, till, in his rage
Pursuing whom he late dismissed, the sea
Swallows him with his host, but them lets pass
As on dry land between two crystal walls,
Awed by the rod of Moses so to stand
Divided, till his rescued gain their shore :
Such wondrous power God to His saint will lend, 200
Though present in His angel, who shall go
Before them in a cloud, and pillar of fire.
By day a cloud, by night a pillar of fire,
To guide them in their journey, and remove
Behind them, while the obdurate king pursues :
All night he will pursue, but his approach
Darkness defends between till morning watch ;
Then through the fiery pillar and the cloud
God looking forth will trouble all his host,
And craze their chariot wheels : when by command
Moses once more his potent rod extends [210
Over the sea ; the sea his rod obeys ;
On their imbattled ranks the waves return,
And overwhelm their war. The race elect
Safe towards Canaan from the shore advance
Through the wild Desert ; not the readiest way,
Lest ent'ring on the Canaanite alarmed,
War terrify them inexpert, and fear
Return them back to Egypt, choosing rather Inglorious life with servitude ; for life 220

¹ An allusion to the crocodile, the Egyptian animal. Ezekiel styles Pharaoh "the great dragon that lieth in the midst of his rivers."

Paradise Lost

To noble and ignoble is more sweet
Untrained in arms, where rashness leads not on.
This also shall they gain by their delay
In the wide wilderness, there they shall found
Their government, and their great senate choose
Through the twelve tribes, to rule by laws ordained.
God from the mount of Sinai, whose grey top
Shall tremble, He descending, will Himself
In thunder, lightning, and loud trumpets' sound
Ordain them laws ; part, such as appertain 230
To civil justice ; part, religious rites
Of sacrifice, informing them by types
And shadows of that destined Seed to bruise
The serpent, by what means He shall achieve
Mankind's deliverance. But the voice of God
To mortal ear is dreadful : they beseech
That Moses might report to them His will
And terror cease ; he grants what they besought,
Instructed that to God is no access
Without Mediator, whose high office now 240
Moses in figure bears, to introduce
One greater, of whose day he shall foretell ;
And all the prophets in their age the times
Of great Messiah shall sing. Thus laws and rites
Established, such delight hath God in men
Obedient to His will, that He vouchsafes
Among them to set up His tabernacle,
The Holy One with mortal men to dwell.
By His prescript a sanctuary is framed
Of cedar, overlaid with gold, therein 250
An ark, and in the ark His testimony,
The records of His cov'nant, over these
A mercy-seat of gold between the wings
Of two bright Cherubim ; before Him burn
Seven lamps, as in a zodiac representing
The heav'nly fires ; over the tent a cloud
Shall rest by day, a fiery gleam by night.
Save when they journey, and at length they come
Conducted by His angel to the land
Promised to Abraham and his seed. The rest 260

Paradise Lost

Were long to tell, how many battles fought,
How many kings destroyed, and kingdoms won ;
Or how the sun shall in mid heav'n stand still
A day entire, and night's due course adjourn,
Man's voice commanding : ' Sun, in Gibeon stand,
And thou, Moon, in the vale of Aialon,
Till Israel overcome ' ;—so call the third
From Abraham, son of Isaac, and from him
His whole descent, who thus shall Canaan win."

Here Adam interposed : " O sent from heav'n, 270
Enlightener of my darkness, gracious things
Thou hast revealed, those chiefly which concern
Just Abraham and his seed : now first I find
Mine eyes true op'ning, and my heart much eased, Erewhile perplexed with thoughts what would become
Of me and all mankind ; but now I see
His day, in whom all nations shall be blessed ;
Favour unmerited by me, who sought
Forbidden knowledge by forbidden means.
This yet I apprehend not, why to those 280
Among whom GOD will deign to dwell on earth
So many and so various laws are giv'n :
So many laws argue so many sins
Among them ; how can GOD with such reside ?"

To whom thus Michael : " Doubt not but that sin
Will reign among them, as of thee begot ;
And therefore was law given them to evince
Their natural pravity, by stirring up
Sin against law to fight ; that when they see
Law can discover sin, but not remove, 290
Save by those shadowy expiations weak,
The blood of bulls and goats, they may conclude
Some blood more precious must be paid for man,
Just for unjust, that in such righteousness
To them by faith imputed they may find
Justification towards GOD, and peace
Of conscience, which the law by ceremonies
Cannot appease, nor man the moral part
Perform, and not performing cannot live.
So law appears imperfect, and but giv'n 300

Paradise Lost

With purpose to resign them in full time
Up to a better covenant, disciplined
From shadowy types to truth, from flesh to spirit,
From imposition of strict laws to free
Acceptance of large grace, from servile fear
To filial, works of law to works of faith.
And therefore shall not Moses, though of God
Highly beloved, being but the minister
Of law, his people into Canaan lead ;
But Joshua, whom the Gentiles Jesus call, 310
His name and office bearing, who shall quell
The adversary serpent, and bring back
Through the world's wilderness long wandered man
Safe to eternal Paradise of rest.
Meanwhile they in their earthly Canaan placed
Long time shall dwell and prosper, but when sins
National interrupt their public peace,
Provoking God to raise them enemies,
From whom as oft He saves them penitent,
By judges first, then under kings ; of whom 320
The second, both for piety renowned
And puissant deeds, a promise shall receive
Irrevocable, that his regal throne
For ever shall endure ; the like shall sing
All prophecy, that of the royal stock
Of David (so I name this king), shall rise
A son, the woman's seed to thee foretold,
Foretold to Abraham, as in whom shall trust
All nations, and to kings foretold, of kings
The last, for of his reign shall be no end. 330
But first a long succession must ensue,
And his next son, for wealth and wisdom famed,
The clouded ark of GOD, till then in tents
Wand'ring, shall in a glorious temple enshrine.
Such follow him, as shall be registered
Part good, part bad, of bad the longer scroll ;
Whose foul idolatries, and other faults
Heaped to the popular sum, will so incense
GOD, as to leave them, and expose their land,
Their city, His temple, and His Holy ark, 340

Paradise Lost

With all His sacred things, a scorn and prey
To that proud city, whose high walls thou saw'st
Left in confusion, Babylon thence called.
There in captivity He lets them dwell
The space of seventy years, then brings them back, Rememb'ring mercy and His cov'nant sworn
To David stablished as the days of heav'n.
Returned from Babylon by leave of kings
Their lords, whom GOD disposed, the house of GOD
They first re-edify, and for a while 350
In mean estate live moderate, till grown
In wealth and multitude, factious they grow :
But first among the priests dissension springs,¹ Men who attend the altar, and should most Endeavour peace : their strife pollution brings
Upon the temple itself : at last they seize
The sceptre, and regard not David's sons ;²
Then lose it to a stranger,³ that the true
Anointed king Messiah might be born
Barred of His right ; yet at His birth a star 360
Unseen before in heav'n proclaims Him come ;
And guides the eastern sages, who inquire
His place, to offer incense, myrrh, and gold :
His place of birth a solemn angel tells
To simple shepherds, keeping watch by night ;
They gladly thither haste, and by a choir
Of squadroned angels hear His carol sung.
A virgin is His mother, but His sire
The power of the Most High ; He shall ascend
The throne hereditary, and bound His reign 370
With earth's wide bounds, His glory with the heav'ns." ⁴

¹ The murder of Jesus, or Joshua, in the Temple by his brother John, the high priest, is perhaps alluded to here. Bagoas, the general of Artaxerxes' army, had promised to procure Jesus the high priesthood. In confidence of the Persian's support, Jesus insulted his brother in the Temple, and so provoked him that the latter slew him. Thus the Temple was polluted by fratricide, committed by the high priest himself. The old commentators suppose, however, that the passage alludes to the quarrels between Jason and Menelaus for the high priesthood, which led to the profanation of the Temple by Antiochus Epiphanes.

² Aristobulus, a Maccabee, or Asmonean, erected the theocratic republic of the Jews into a kingdom 481 years after the return from the Babylonian captivity. ³ Herod, an Idumean or Edomite.

Paradise Lost

He ceased, discerning Adam with such joy
Surcharged, as had, like grief, been dewed in tears,
Without the vent of words, which these he breathed.

“O prophet of glad tidings, finisher
Of utmost hope ! now clear I understand What oft my steadiest thoughts have searched in vain,

Why our great expectation should be called
The seed of woman : Virgin Mother, hail !
High in the love of heav’n, yet from my loins 380
Thou shalt proceed, and from thy womb the Son
Of GOD most high ; so GOD with man unites.
Needs must the serpent now his capital bruise
Expect with mortal pain : say where and when
Their fight, what stroke shall bruise the victor’s heel.”

To whom thus Michael : “ Dream not of their fight,
As of a duel, or the local wounds
Of head or heel : not therefore joins the Son
Manhood to Godhead, with more strength to foil
The enemy ; nor so is overcome 390
Satan, whose fall from heav’n, a deadlier bruise,
Disabled not to give thee thy death’s wound ;
Which He, who comes thy Saviour, shall recure,
Not by destroying Satan, but his works
In thee and in thy seed : nor can this be,
But by fulfilling that which thou didst want,
Obedience to the law of GOD, imposed
On penalty of death, and suffering death,
The penalty to thy transgression due,
And due to theirs which out of thine will grow : 400
So only can high justice rest appaid.
The law of GOD exact He shall fulfil,
Both by obedience and by love, though love
Alone fulfil the law ; thy punishment
He shall endure by coming in the flesh
To a reproachful life and cursèd death,
Proclaiming life to all who shall believe
In His redemption ; and that His obedience
Imputed becomes theirs by faith ; His merits
To save them, not their own, though legal, works. 410

Paradise Lost

For this He shall live hated, be blasphemed,
Seized on by force, judged, and to death condemned
A shameful and accursed, nailed to the cross
By His own nation, slain for bringing life :
But to the cross He nails thy enemies,
The law that is against thee, and the sins
Of all mankind, with Him there crucified,
Never to hurt them more who rightly trust
In this His satisfaction : so He dies,
But soon revives ; death over Him no power 420
Shall long usurp ; ere the third dawning light
Return, the stars of morn shall see Him rise
Out of His grave, fresh as the dawning light,
Thy ransom paid, which man from death redeems,
His death for man, as many as offered life
Neglect not, and the benefit embrace
By faith not void of works. This godlike act
Annuls thy doom, the death thou shouldst have died
In sin, for ever lost from life ; this act
Shall bruise the head of Satan, crush his strength, 430
Defeating sin and death, his two main arms,
And fix far deeper in his head their stings,
Than temporal death shall bruise the Victor's heel,
Or theirs whom He redeems ; a death, like sleep,
A gentle wafting to immortal life.
Nor after resurrection shall He stay
Longer on earth than certain times to appear
To His disciples, men who in His life
Still followed Him ; to them shall leave in charge
To teach all nations what of Him they learned 440
And His salvation ; them who shall believe,
Baptizing in the profluent stream, the sign
Of washing them from guilt of sin to life
Pure, and in mind prepared, if so befall,
For death, like that which the Redeemer died.
All nations they shall teach ; for from that day
Not only to the sons of Abraham's loins
Salvation shall be preached, but to the sons
Of Abraham's faith wherever through the world ;
So in His seed all nations shall be blessed. 450

Paradise Lost

Then to the heav'n of heav'ns He shall ascend
With victory, triúmphing through the air
Over His foes and thine : there shall surprise
The serpent, prince of air, and drag in chains
Through all his realm, and there confounded leave ;
Then enter into glory, and resume
His seat at God's right hand, exalted high
Above all names in heav'n ; and thence shall come,
When this world's dissolution shall be ripe,
With glory and power to judge both quick and dead, 460
To judge th' unfaithful dead, but to reward
His faithful, and receive them into bliss,
Whether in heav'n or earth ; for then the earth
Shall all be Paradise, far happier place
Than this of Eden, and far happier days."

So spake the Archangel Michaël, then paused,
As at the world's great period ; and our sire,
Replete with joy and wonder, thus replied :

"O goodness infinite, goodness immense !
That all this good of evil shall produce, 470
And evil turn to good ; more wonderful
Than that which by creation first brought forth
Light out of darkness ! full of doubt I stand,
Whether I should repent me now of sin
By me done and occasioned, or rejoice
Much more, that much more good thereof shall spring.
To God more glory, more good will to men
From God, and over wrath grace shall abound.
But say, if our Deliverer up to heav'n
Must reascend, what will betide the few 480
His faithful, left among the unfaithful herd,
The enemies of truth ? who then shall guide
His people, who defend ? will they not deal
Worse with His followers than with Him they dealt?"

"Be sure they will," said the angel ; "but from heav'n
He to His own a Comforter will send,
The promise of the Father, who shall dwell
His Spirit within them, and the law of faith
Working through love upon their hearts shall write,
To guide them in all truth, and also arm 490

Paradise Lost

With spiritual armour, able to resist
Satan's assaults, and quench his fiery darts,
What man can do against them, not afraid,
Though to the death, against such cruelties
With inward consolations recompensed,
And oft supported so as shall amaze
Their proudest persecutors : for the Spirit
Poured first on His apostles, whom He sends
To evangelise the nations, then on all
Baptized, shall them with wondrous gifts indue, 500
To speak all tongues, and do all miracles,
As did their Lord before them. Thus they win
Great numbers of each nation to receive
With joy the tidings brought from heav'n : at length
Their ministry performed, and race well run,
Their doctrine and their story written left,
They die ; but in their room, as they forewarn,
Wolves shall succeed for teachers, grievous wolves,
Who all the sacred mysteries of heav'n
To their own vile advantages shall turn 510
Of lucre and ambition, and the truth
With superstitions and traditions taint,
Left only in those written records pure,
Though not but by the Spirit understood.
Then shall they seek to avail themselves of names,
Places, and titles, and with these to join
Secular power, though feigning still to act
By spiritual, to themselves appropriating
The Spirit of GOD, promised alike and giv'n
To all believers ; and from that pretence 520
Spiritual laws by carnal power shall force
On every conscience ; laws which none shall find Left them enrolled, or what the Spirit within Shall on the heart engrave. What will they then
But force the Spirit of Grace itself, and bind
His consort Liberty ? what, but unbuild
His living temples, built by faith to stand,
Their own faith, not another's ? for on earth
Who against faith and conscience can be heard
Infallible ? yet many will presume : 530

Paradise Lost

Whence heavy persecution shall arise
On all who in the worship persevere
Of spirit and truth ; the rest, far greater part,
Will deem in outward rites and specious forms
Religion satisfied ; truth shall retire
Bestuck with slanderous darts, and works of faith
Rarely be found : so shall the world go on,
To good malignant, to bad men benign,
Under her own weight groaning, till the day
Appear of respiration to the just, 540
And vengeance to the wicked, at return
Of Him so lately promised to thy aid,
The Woman's Seed, obscurely then foretold,
Now amplier known thy Saviour and thy Lord,
Last in the clouds from heav'n to be revealed
In glory of the Father, to dissolve
Satan with his perverted world, then raise
From the conflagrant mass, purged and refined,
New heav'ns, new earth, ages of endless date
Founded in righteousness, and peace, and love, 550
To bring forth fruits, joy and eternal bliss."

He ended ; and thus Adam last replied :
"How soon hath thy prediction, Seer blessed,
Measured this transient world, the race of time,
Till time stand fixed ! beyond is all abyss,
Eternity, whose end no eye can reach.
Greatly instructed I shall hence depart,
Greatly in peace of thought, and have my fill
Of knowledge, what this vessel can contain ;
Beyond which was my folly to aspire. 560
Henceforth I learn that to obey is best,
And love with fear the only GOD, to walk
As in His presence, ever to observe
His providence, and on Him sole depend,
Merciful over all His works, with good
Still overcoming evil ; and by small
Accomplishing great things, by things deemed weak
Subverting worldly strong, and worldly wise
By simply meek ; that suffering for truth's sake
Is fortitude to highest victory, 570

Paradise Lost

And to the faithful death the gate of life ;
Taught this by His example, whom I now
Acknowledge my Redeemer ever blessed."

To whom thus also the angel last replied :
" This having learned, thou hast attained the sum
Of wisdom ; hope no higher, though all the stars
Thou knew'st by name, and all th' ethereal powers,
All secrets of the deep, all nature's works,
Or works of GOD in heav'n, air, earth, or sea,
And all the riches of the world enjoyedst, 580
And all the rule, one empire ; only add
Deeds to thy knowledge answerable ; add faith ;
Add virtue, patience, temperance ; add love,
By name to come called charity, the soul
Of all the rest ; then wilt thou not be loth
To leave this Paradise, but shalt possess
A Paradise within thee, happier far.
Let us descend now, therefore, from this top
Of speculation, for the hour precise
Exacts our parting hence ; and see, the guards, 590
By me encamped on yonder hill, expect
Their motion, at whose front a flaming sword,
In signal of remove, waves fiercely round ;
We may no longer stay : go, waken Eve ;
Her also I with gentle dreams have calmed,
Portending good, and all her spirits composed
To meek submission : thou at season fit
Let her with thee partake what thou hast heard,
Chiefly what may concern her faith to know,
The great deliverance by her seed to come, 600
For by the Woman's Seed, on all mankind ;
That ye may live, which will be many days,
Both in one faith unanimous, though sad,
With cause, for evils past ; yet much more cheered
With meditation on the happy end."

He ended, and they both descend the hill :
Descended, Adam to the bower, where Eve
Lay sleeping, ran before, but found her waked ;
And thus with words not sad she him received ; [610

" Whence thou return'st, and whither went'st, I know ;

Paradise Lost

For GOD is also in sleep, and dreams advise,
Which He hath sent propitious, some great good
Presaging, since with sorrow and heart's distress
Wearied I fell asleep : but now lead on ;
In me is no delay ; with thee to go
Is to stay here ; without thee here to stay
Is to go hence unwilling ; thou to me
Art all things under heav'n, all places thou,
Who for my wilful crime art banished hence.
This further consolation yet secure 620
I carry hence : though all by me is lost,
Such favour I unworthy am vouchsafed,
By me the Promised Seed shall all restore."

So spake our mother Eve, and Adam heard
Well pleased, but answered not ; for now too nigh
The Archangel stood, and from the other hill
To their fixed station all in bright array
The Cherubim descended ; on the ground
Gilding meteorous, as ev'ning mist
Ris'n from a river o'er the marish¹ glides, 630
And gathers ground fast at the labourer's heel
Homeward returning. High in front advanced,
The brandished sword of GOD before them blazed
Fierce as a comet ; which with torrid heat,
And vapour as the Libyan air adust,
Began to parch that temperate clime : whereat
In either hand the hast'ning angel caught
Our ling'ring parents, and to the eastern gate
Led them direct, and down the cliff as fast
To the subjected plain ; then disappeared. 640
They looking back all th' eastern side beheld
Of Paradise, so late their happy seat,
Waved over by that flaming brand ; the gate
With dreadful faces thronged and fiery arms :
Some natural tears they dropped, but wiped them soon ;
The world was all before them, where to choose
Their place of rest, and Providence their guide.
They, hand in hand, with wand'ring steps and slow,
Through Eden took their solitary way.

Paradise Regained

BOOK I.

ARGUMENT.

The subject proposed. Invocation of the Holy Spirit. John is baptizing at the river Jordan ; Jesus coming is there baptized ; and is attested by the descent of the Holy Ghost, and by a voice from heaven, to be the Son of God. Satan, who is present, flies up into the regions of the air ; where, summoning his infernal council, he acquaints them with his apprehensions that Jesus is the Seed of the Woman destined to destroy all their power, and points out to them the necessity of bringing the matter to proof, and of attempting to counteract and defeat the persons from whom they have so much to dread. This office he undertakes, and sets out on his enterprise. In the meantime, God, in the assembly of Holy Angels, declares that He has given up His Son to be tempted by Satan ; but foretells that the Tempter shall be completely defeated by Him ; upon which the angels sing a hymn of triumph. Jesus is led by the Spirit into the wilderness, while He is meditating on the commencement of His great office of Saviour of mankind. He narrates, in a soliloquy, what divine and philanthropic impulses He had felt from His early youth, and how His mother Mary had acquainted Him with the circumstances of His birth, and informed Him that He was no less a person than the Son of God ; to which He adds what His own reflections and enquiries had supplied, in confirmation of this great truth, and particularly dwells on the recent attestation of it at the river Jordan. Our Lord passes forty days fasting in the wilderness ; where the wild beasts become harmless in His presence. Satan now appears under the form of an old peasant, and enters into discourse with our Lord. Jesus replies. Satan rejoins with a description of the difficulty of supporting life in the wilderness ; and entreats Jesus, if He be really the Son of God, to manifest His divine power by changing some of the stones into bread. Jesus reproves him, and, at the same time, tells him that He knows who he is. Satan avows himself, and offers an artful apology. Our Blessed Lord severely reprimands him, and confutes every part of his justification. Satan still endeavours to justify himself ; and, professing his admiration of Jesus, and his regard for virtue, requests to be permitted at a future time to hear more of His conversation ; but is answered, that this must be as he shall find permission from above. Satan then disappears, and the book closes with a short description of night coming on the desert.

I, WHO erewhile the happy garden sung,
By one man's disobedience lost, now sing
Recovered Paradise to all mankind,
By one Man's firm obedience fully tried
Through all temptation, and the Tempter foiled
In all his wiles, defeated, and repulsed,
And Eden raised in the waste wilderness.

Paradise Regained

Thou Spirit, who led'st this glorious Eremite
Into the desert, His victorious field,
Against the spiritual foe, and brought'st Him thence 10
By proof the undoubted Son of GOD, inspire,
As thou art wont, my prompted song, else mute,
And bear through highth or depth of nature's bounds
With prosperous wing full summed ¹ to tell of deeds
Above heroic, though in secret done,
And unrecorded left through many an age,
Worthy to have not remained so long unsung.

Now had the great Proclaimer,² with a voice
More awful than the sound of trumpet, cried
Repentance, and heaven's kingdom nigh at hand 20
To all baptized : to his great baptism flocked
With awe the regions round, and with them came From Nazareth the Son of Joseph deemed
To the flood Jordan, came, as then obscure,
Unmarked, unknown ; but Him the Baptist soon
Descried, divinely warned, and witness bore
As to his worthier, and would have resigned
To Him his heavenly office, nor was long
His witness unconfirmed : on Him baptized
Heav'n opened, and in likeness of a dove 30
The Spirit descended, while the Father's voice
From heav'n pronounced Him His belovèd Son.
That heard the adversary, who, roving still
About the world, at that assembly famed
Would not be last, and, with the voice divine
Nigh thunder-struck, th' exalted Man, to whom Such high attest was given, a while surveyed
With wonder ; then, with envy fraught and rage,
Flies to his place, nor rests, but in mid air
To council summons all his mighty peers, 40
Within thick clouds and dark ten-fold involved,
A gloomy consistory ; and them amidst
With looks aghast and sad he thus bespake :

“O ancient Powers of air³ and this wide world,
—For much more willingly I mention air,

Paradise Regained

This our old conquest, than remember Hell,
Our hated habitation,—well ye know
How many ages, as the years of men,
This universe we have possest, and ruled
In manner at our will th' affairs of earth, 50
Since Adam and his facile consort Eve
Lost Paradise, deceived by me, though since
With dread attending when that fatal wound
Shall be inflicted by the seed of Eve
Upon my head ; long the decrees of heav'n
Delay, for longest time to Him is short ;
And now too soon for us the circling hours
This dreaded time have compast, wherein we Must bide the stroke of that long threatened wound,
At least if so we can, and by the head 60
Broken be not intended all our power
To be infringed, our freedom, and our being,
In this fair empire won of earth and air.
For this ill news I bring, the Woman's Seed,
Destined to this, is late of woman born ;
His birth to our just fear gave no small cause,
But His growth now to youth's full flow'r, displaying
All virtue, grace, and wisdom to achieve
Things highest, greatest, multiplies my fear.
Before Him a great prophet to proclaim 70
His coming is sent harbinger, who all
Invites, and in the consecrated stream
Pretends to wash off sin, and fit them so Purified to receive Him pure, or rather
To do Him honour as their King : all come,
And He Himself among them was baptized,
Not thence to be more pure, but to receive
The testimony of heav'n, that who He is Thenceforth the nations may not doubt. I saw
The prophet do Him reverence ; on Him rising 80
Out of the water, heav'n above the clouds
Unfold her crystal doors, thence on His head
A perfect dove descend, whate'er it meant,
And out of heav'n the sov'ran voice I heard,
—'This is my Son beloved, in Him am pleased.'

Paradise Regained

His mother then is mortal, but His sire
He who obtains the monarchy of heav'n;
And what will He not do to advance His Son?
His first-begot we know, and sore have felt,
When His fierce thunder drove us to the deep; 90
Who this is we must learn,¹ for man He seems
In all His lineaments, though in His face
The glimpses of His Father's glory shine.
Ye see our danger on the utmost edge
Of hazard, which admits no long debate,
But must with something sudden be opposed,
Not force, but well-couched fraud, well-woven snares,
Ere in the head of nations He appear
Their King, their leader, and supreme on earth.
I, when no other durst, sole undertook 100
The dismal expedition to find out
And ruin Adam, and the exploit performed
Successfully; a calmer voyage now
Will waft me; and the way found prosp'rous once
Induces best to hope of like success."

He ended, and his words impression left
Of much amazement to th' infernal crew,
Distracted and surprised with deep dismay
At these sad tidings; but no time was then
For long indulgence to their fears or grief. 110
Unanimous they all commit the care
And management of this main enterprise
To him their great dictator, whose attempt
At first against mankind so well had thrived
In Adam's overthrow, and led their march
From hell's deep-vaulted den to dwell in light,
Regents, and potentates, and kings, yea gods,
Of many a pleasant realm and province wide.
So to the coast of Jordan he directs
His easy steps, girded with snaky wiles,² 120
Where he might likeliest find this new-declared,

¹ Milton's idea that Satan did not know that the wondrous Man baptized was the Messiah, originated probably by the opinions of Ignatius, Beza, etc., who believed that the devil did not recognise in mortal form the Son of God.—From NEWTON.

² Alluding to the habits of pretended sorcerers, who wore a girdle of snake's skin.—NEWTON. Milton also alluded to the temptation of Eve.

Paradise Regained

This Man of men, attested Son of God,
Temptation and all guile on Him to try ;
So to subvert whom he suspected raised
To end his reign on earth so long enjoyed :
But contrary unweeting he fulfilled
The purposed counsel pre-ordained and fixed
Of the Most High, who, in full frequency bright
Of angels, thus to Gabriel¹ smiling spake :

“ Gabriel, this day by proof thou shalt behold, 130
Thou and all angels conversant on earth
With man or men's affairs, how I begin
To verify that solemn message late,
On which I sent thee to the Virgin pure
In Galilee, that she should bear a son
Great in renown, and called the Son of God ;
Thou told'st her, doubting how these things could be

To her a virgin, that on her should come
The Holy Ghost, and the power of the Highest O'ershadow her. This Man, born, and now up-grown,
To show Him worthy of His birth divine [140
And high prediction, henceforth I expose
To Satan ; let him tempt and now assay
His utmost subtlety, because he boasts
And vaunts of his great cunning to the throng
Of his apostasy ; he might have learnt
Less overweening, since he failed in Job,
Whose constant perseverance overcame
Whate'er his cruel malice could invent.
He now shall know I can produce a Man 150
Of female seed, far abler to resist
All his solicitations, and at length
All his vast force, and drive him back to hell,
Winning by conquest what the first man lost
By fallacy surprised. But first I mean
To exercise Him in the wilderness ;
There He shall first lay down the rudiments
Of His great warfare, ere I send Him forth

¹ The rabbis say that Gabriel was the angel of mercy ; Michael, of justice.

Paradise Regained

To conquer Sin and Death, the two grand foes,
By humiliation and strong sufferance. 160
His weakness shall o'ercome Satanic strength,
And all the world, and mass of sinful flesh ;
That all the angels and ethereal powers
(They now, and men hereafter,) may discern,
From what consummate virtue I have chose
This perfect Man, by merit called my Son,
To earn salvation for the sons of men."

So spake th' eternal Father, and all heav'n
Admiring stood a space, then into hymns 170
Burst forth, and in celestial measures moved,
Circling the throne and singing, while the hand
Sung with the voice, and this the argument :

"Victory and triumph to the Son of GOD,
Now ent'ring His great duel, not of arms,
But to vanquish by wisdom hellish wiles.
The Father knows the Son ; therefore secure
Ventures His filial virtue, though untried,
Against whate'er may tempt, whate'er seduce,
Allure, or terrify, or undermine.
Be frustrate, all ye stratagems of hell, 180
And, devilish machinations, come to nought !"

So they in heav'n their odes and vigils tuned :
Meanwhile the Son of GOD, who yet some days
Lodged in Bethabara, where John baptized,
Musing and much revolving in His breast,
How best the mighty work He might begin
Of Saviour to mankind, and which way first Publish His godlike office now mature,
One day forth walked alone, the Spirit leading,
And His deep thoughts, the better to converse 190
With solitude, till far from track of men,
Thought following thought, and step by step led on,
He entered now the bordering desert wild,¹
And, with dark shades and rocks environed round,
His holy meditations thus pursued :

¹ The wilderness of Judea, or Ziph. It extends from the Jordan along the western side of the Dead Sea. But this locality has been disputed.

Paradise Regained

“O what a multitude of thoughts at once
Awakened in me swarm, while I consider
What from within I feel myself, and hear
What from without comes often to my ears,
Ill sorting with my present state compared. 200
When I was yet a child, no childish play
To me was pleasing, all my mind was set
Serious to learn and know, and thence to do
What might be public good ; myself I thought
Born to that end, born to promote all truth,
All righteous things : therefore, above my years,
The law of GOD I read, and found it sweet,
Made it my whole delight, and in it grew
To such perfection, that, ere yet my age
Had measured twice six years, at our great feast 210
I went into the Temple, there to hear
The teachers of our law, and to propose
What might improve my knowledge or their own,
And was admired by all ; yet this not all
To which my spirit aspired ; victorious deeds
Flamed in my heart, heroic acts ; one while
To rescue Israel from the Roman yoke,
Then to subdue and quell o’er all the earth
Brute violence and proud tyrannic pow’r,
Till truth were freed, and equity restored : 220
Yet held it more humane, more heav’nly, first
By winning words to conquer willing hearts,
And make persuasion do the work of fear ;
At least to try, and teach the erring soul,
Not wilfully misdoing, but unaware
Mised ; the stubborn only to subdue.
These growing thoughts my Mother soon perceiving,
By words at times cast forth, inly rejoiced,
And said to me apart : ‘ High are thy thoughts,
O Son ; but nourish them, and let them soar 230
To what highth sacred virtue and true worth
Can raise them, though above example high ;
By matchless deeds express thy matchless Sire.
For know, thou art no son of mortal man,
Though men esteem thee low of parentage,

Paradise Regained

Thy Father is the eternal King who rules
All heav'n and earth, angels and sons of men.
A messenger from GOD foretold thy birth
Conceived in me a virgin ;¹ he foretold
Thou should'st be great, and sit on David's throne, 240
And of thy kingdom there should be no end.
At thy nativity a glorious quire
Of angels in the fields of Bethlehem sung
To shepherds watching at their folds by night,²
And told them the Messiah now was born,
Where they might see Him ; and to thee they came,
Directed to the manger where thou lay'st,
For in the inn was left no better room.
A star, not seen before, in heav'n appearing,
Guided the wise men thither from the east³ 250
To honour thee with incense, myrrh, and gold ;
By whose bright course led on, they found the place,
Affirming it thy star new grav'n in heav'n,
By which they knew the King of Israel born.
Just Simeon and prophetic Anna, warned
By vision, found thee in the temple, and spake
Before the altar and the vested priest,
Like things of thee to all that present stood.'
This having heard, straight I again revolved
The law and prophets, searching what was writ 260
Concerning the Messiah, to our scribes
Known partly, and soon found of whom they spake
I am ; this chiefly, that my way must lie
Through many a hard assay, even to the death,
Ere I the promised kingdom can attain,
Or work redemption for mankind, whose sins'
Full weight must be transferred upon my head.
Yet, neither thus disheartened or dismayed,
The time prefixed I waited, when, behold !
The Baptist, of whose birth I oft had heard, 270
Not knew by sight,⁴ now come, who was to come
Before Messiah, and His way prepare.

⁴ St. John was brought up in a different part of the country from Jesus, and first saw his divine cousin at His baptism. John i. 31, 32 :
"I knew Him not."

Paradise Regained

I, as all others, to his baptism came,
Which I believed was from above ; but he Straight knew me, and with loudest voice proclaimed
Me Him, (for it was shown him so from heav'n,)
Me Him whose harbinger he was ; and first Refused on me his baptism to confer,
As much his greater, and was hardly won :
But as I rose out of the laving stream, --- 280
Heaven opened her eternal doors, from whence
The Spirit descended on me like a dove ;
And last, the sum of all, my Father's voice,
Audibly heard from heav'n, pronounced me His,
Me His belovèd Son, in whom alone
He was well pleased ; by which I knew the time
Now full, that I no more should live obscure,
But openly begin, as best becomes
The authority which I derived from heav'n.
And now by some strong motion I am led 290
Into this wilderness, to what intent
I learn not yet ; perhaps I need not know ;
For what concerns my knowledge GOD reveals."

So spake our Morning Star, then in His rise,
And, looking round, on every side beheld
A pathless desert, dusk with horrid shades ;
The way He came not having marked, return
Was difficult, by human steps untrod ;
And He still on was led, but with such thoughts
Accompanied of things past and to come 300
Lodged in His breast, as well might recommend Such solitude before choicest society.

Full forty days He passed, whether on hill
Sometimes, anon in shady vale, each night
Under the covert of some ancient oak
Or cedar, to defend Him from the dew,
Or harboured in one cave, is not revealed ;
Nor tasted human food, nor hunger felt,
Till those days ended ; hungered then at last
Among wild beasts : they at His sight grew mild, 310
Nor sleeping Him nor waking harmed ; His

Paradise Regained

The fiery serpent fled and noxious worm,
The lion and fierce tiger glared aloof.
But now an agèd man in rural weeds,
Following, as seemed, the quest of some stray ewe,
Or withered sticks to gather, which might serve
Against a winter's day, when winds blow keen,
To warm him wet returned from field at eve,
He saw approach, who first with curious eye
Perused Him, then with words thus uttered spake : 320

“Sir, what ill chance hath brought thee to this place,
So far from path or road of men, who pass
In troop or caravan, for single none
Durst ever, who returned, and dropt not here
His carcass, pined with hunger and with drouth ?
I ask the rather, and the more admire,
For that to me thou seem'st the Man, whom late
Our new baptizing prophet at the ford
Of Jordan honoured so, and called thee Son
Of GOD : I saw and heard, for we sometimes, 330
Who dwell this wild, constrained by want, come forth
To town or village nigh, (nighest is far,)
Where aught we hear, and curious are to hear,
What happens new ; fame also finds us out.”

To whom the Son of GOD : “Who brought me
hither

Will bring me hence ; no other guide I seek.”

“By miracle he may,” replied the swain ;

“What other way I see not, for we here

Live on tough roots and stubs, to thirst inured

More than the camel, and to drink go far,

Men to much misery and hardship born. 340

But if thou be the Son of GOD, command

That out of these hard stones be made thee bread,

So shalt thou save thyself and us relieve

With food, whereof we wretched seldom taste.”

He ended, and the Son of GOD replied :

“Think'st thou such force in bread ? is it not written,

(For I discern thee other than thou seem'st,) 350

Man lives not by bread only, but each word
Proceeding from the mouth of GOD, who fed

Moses was forty days, nor eat, nor drank ;
And forty days Elijah without food
Wandered this barren waste, the same I now.

Knowing Who I am, as I know who thou art ? ”

Whom thus answered the Arch-fiend, now undisguised :

“ ’Tis true, I am that spirit unfortunate,
Who, leagued with millions more in rash revolt,
Kept not my happy station, but was driv’n 360
With them from bliss to the bottomless deep ;
Yet to that hideous place not so confined
By rigour unconniving, but that oft,
Leaving my dolorous prison, I enjoy
Large liberty, to round this globe of earth,
Or range in the air ; nor from the Heav’n of Heav’n’s
Hath He excluded my resort sometimes.
I came among the sons of God, when He Gave up into my hands Uzzean Job
To prove him, and illustrate his high worth ; 370
And when to all His angels He proposed
To draw the proud king Ahab into fraud,
That he might fall in Ramoth, they demurring,
I undertook that office, and the tongues
Of all his flattering prophets glibbed with lies ¹
To his destruction, as I had in charge ;
For what He bids I do. Though I have lost
Much lustre of my native brightness, lost
To be beloved of God, I have not lost
To love, at least contemplate and admire, 380
What I see excellent in good, or fair,
Or virtuous ; I should so have lost all sense.
What can be then less in me than desire
To see thee and approach thee, whom I know
Declared the Son of God, to hear attent
Thy wisdom, and behold thy godlike deeds ?
Men generally think me much a foe
To all mankind : why should I ? they to me

Never did wrong or violence. By them
I lost not what I lost ; rather by them 390
I gained what I have gained, and with them dwell,
Copartner in these regions of the world,
If not disposer ; lend them oft my aid,
Oft my advice by presages, and signs,
And answers, oracles, portents, and dreams,
Whereby they may direct their future life.
Envy, they say, excites me, thus to gain
Companions of my misery and woe.
At first it may be ; but, long since with woe
Nearer acquainted, now I feel by proof 400
That fellowship in pain divides not smart,
Nor lightens aught each man's peculiar load.
Small consolation then, were man adjoined :
This wounds me most, what can it less ? that man,

Man fall'n, shall be restored, I never more."

To whom our Saviour sternly thus replied :
"Deservedly thou griev'st, composed of lies
From the beginning, and in lies wilt end,
Who boast'st release from hell, and leave to come Into the Heav'n of Heav'ns. Thou comest, indeed, 410
As a poor miserable captive thrall
Comes to the place where he before had sat
Among the prime in splendour, now deposed,
Ejected, emptied, gazed, unpitied, shunned,
A spectacle of ruin or of scorn
To all the host of heav'n. The happy place
Imports to thee no happiness, no joy ;
Rather inflames thy torment, representing
Lost bliss to thee no more communicable,
So never more in hell than when in heav'n. 420
But thou art serviceable to heav'n's King !
Wilt thou impute to obedience what thy fear
Extorts, or pleasure to do ill excites ?
What but thy malice moved thee to misdeem
Of righteous Job, then cruelly to afflict him
With all inflictions ? but his patience won.
The other service was thy chosen task,

To be a liar in four hundred mouths ;
For lying is thy sustenance, thy food.
Yet thou pretend'st to truth ! All oracles 430
By thee are giv'n, and what confessed more true
Among the nations ? that hath been thy craft,
By mixing somewhat true to vent more lies.
But what have been thy answers ? what but dark,
Ambiguous, and with double sense deluding,
Which they who asked have seldom understood,
And not well understood as good not known ?
Who ever by consulting at thy shrine
Returned the wiser, or the more instruct
To fly or follow what concerned him most, 440
And run not sooner to his fatal snare ?
For GOD hath justly given the nations up
To thy delusions ; justly, since they fell Idolatrous. But when His purpose is Among them to declare His providence
To thee not known, whence hast thou then thy truth,
But from Him or His angels president
In ev'ry province ? who, themselves disdaining
To approach thy temples, give thee in command
What to the smallest tittle thou shalt say 450
To thy adorers ; thou with trembling fear,
Or like a fawning parasite, obey'st ;
Then to thyself ascribest the truth foretold.
But this thy glory shall be soon retrenched ;
No more shalt thou by oracling abuse
The Gentiles ; henceforth oracles are ceased,¹
And thou no more with pomp and sacrifice
Shall be inquired at Delphos or elsewhere ;
At least in vain, for they shall find thee mute.²

GOD hath now sent His living Oracle 460
Into the world to teach His final will,
And sends His Spirit of Truth henceforth to dwell
In pious hearts, an inward oracle
To all truth requisite for men to know."

So spake our Saviour ; but the subtle fiend,
Though inly stung with anger and disdain,
Dissembled, and this answer smooth returned :
"Sharply thou hast insisted on rebuke,
And urged me hard with doings, which not will,
But misery, hath wrested from me ; where 470
Easily canst thou find one miserable,

And not enforced oftentimes to part from truth ;
If it may stand him more in stead to lie,
Say and unsay, feign, flatter, or abjure ?
But thou art placed above me, thou art Lord ;
From thee I can, and must, submit endure
Check or reproof, and glad to 'scape so quit.
Hard are the ways of truth, and rough to walk,
Smooth on the tongue discoursed, pleasing to the ear,

And tuneable as sylvan pipe or song ; 480
What wonder then if I delight to hear
Her dictates from thy mouth ? most men admire
Virtue, who follow not her lore : permit me
To hear thee when I come, since no man comes,
And talk at least, though I despair to attain.
Thy Father, who is holy, wise, and pure,

To tread His sacred courts, and minister
About His altar, handling holy things,
Praying or vowing, and vouchsafed His voice 490

Inspired : disdain not such access to me."

To whom our Saviour with unaltered brow :
"Thy coming hither, though I know thy scope,
I bid not nor forbid : do as thou find'st
Permission from above ; thou canst not more."

He added not ; and Satan, bowing low
His gray dissimulation, disappeared

BOOK II.

THE ARGUMENT.

The disciples of Jesus, uneasy at His long absence, reason among themselves concerning it. Mary also gives vent to her maternal anxiety; in the expression of which she recapitulates many circumstances respecting the birth and early life of her Son. Satan again meets his infernal council, reports the bad success of his first temptation of our Blessed Lord, and calls upon them for counsel and assistance. Belial proposes the tempting of Jesus with women. Satan rebukes Belial for his dissoluteness, charging on him all the profligacy of that kind ascribed by the poets to the heathen gods, and rejects his proposal as in no respect likely to succeed. Satan then suggests other modes of temptation, particularly proposing to avail himself of the circumstance of our Lord's hungering; and, taking a band of chosen spirits with him, returns to resume his enterprise. Jesus hungers in the desert. Night comes on; the manner in which our Saviour passes the night is described. Morning advances. Satan again appears to Jesus, and, after expressing wonder that He should be so entirely neglected in the wilderness, where others had been miraculously fed, tempts Him with a sumptuous banquet of the most luxurious kind. This our Lord rejects, and the banquet vanishes. Satan, finding our Lord not to be assailed on the ground of appetite, tempts Him again by offering Him riches, as the means of acquiring power; this Jesus also rejects, producing many instances of great actions performed by persons under virtuous poverty, and specifying the danger of riches, and the cares and pains inseparable from power and greatness.

MEANWHILE the new-baptized, who yet remained 1
At Jordan with the Baptist, and had seen
Him whom they heard so late expressly called Jesus, Messiah, Son of God declared,
And on that high authority had believed,
And with Him talked, and with Him lodged,¹ I mean
Andrew and Simon, famous after known,
With others, though in holy writ not named,
Now missing Him, their joy so lately found,
So lately found, and so abruptly gone, 10
Began to doubt, and doubted many days,
And, as the days increased, increased their doubt:
Sometimes they thought He might be only shown,
And for a time caught up to God, as once
Moses was in the Mount, and missing long;
And the great Thishbite,² who on fiery wheels
Rode up to heav'n, yet once again to come.
Therefore, as those young prophets then with care
Sought lost Elijah,³ so in each place these

The city of palms,¹ Ænon, and Salem old,
Machærus,² and each town or city walled
On this side the broad lake Genezaret,
Or in Peræa : but returned in vain.
Then on the bank of Jordan, by a creek,
Where winds with reeds and osiers whisp'ring play,
Plain fishermen—no greater men them call—
Close in a cottage low together got,
Their unexpected loss and plaints outbreathed :
“ Alas, from what high hope to what relapse
Unlooked for are we fall'n ! our eyes beheld
Messiah certainly now come, so long
Expected of our fathers ; we have heard
His words, His wisdom full of grace and truth :
' Now, now, for sure, deliverance is at hand,
The kingdom shall to Israel be restored : '
Thus we rejoiced, but soon our joy is turned Into perplexity and new amaze :
For whither is He gone, what accident
Hath rapt Him from us ? will He now retire
After appearance, and again prolong
Our expectation ? God of Israel,
Send thy Messiah forth, the time is come.
Behold the kings of the earth, how they oppress
Thy chosen, to what highth their power unjust
They have exalted, and behind them cast
All fear of thee. Arise and vindicate
Thy glory, free thy people from their yoke.
But let us wait : thus far He hath performed,
Sent His Anointed, and to us revealed Him,
By His great prophet, pointed at and shown
In public, and with Him we have conversed ;
Let us be glad of this, and all our fears
Lay on His providence ; He will not fail,
Nor will withdraw Him now, nor will recall—
Mock us with His blest sight, then snatch Him hence ;
Soon we shall see our hope, our joy return.”
Thus they out of their plaints new hope resume

Paradise Regained

To find whom at the first they found unsought :
But to His mother Mary, when she saw 60
Others returned from baptism, not her Son,
Nor left at Jordan, tidings of Him none,
Within her breast though calm, her breast though pure,
Motherly cares and fears got head, and raised
Some troubled thoughts, which she in sighs thus clad :
“ O what avails me now that honour high
To have conceived of GOD, or that salute,
‘ Hail, highly favoured, among women blest ! ’
While I to sorrows am no less advanced,
And fears as eminent, above the lot 70
Of other women, by the birth I bore ;
In such a season born, when scarce a shed
Could be obtained to shelter Him or me
From the bleak air ! a stable was our warmth,
A manger His : yet soon enforced to fly
Thence into Egypt, till the murd’rous king
Were dead, who sought His life, and missing, filled
With infant blood the streets of Bethlehem.
From Egypt home returned, in Nazareth
Hath been our dwelling many years ; His life 80
Private, unactive, calm, contemplative,
Little suspicious to any king ; but now
Full grown to man, acknowledged, as I hear,
By John the Baptist, and in public shown,
Son owned from heav’n by His Father’s voice ;
I looked for some great change : to honour ? no,
But trouble, as old Simeon plain foretold,
That to the fall and rising He should be
Of many in Israël, and to a sign
Spoken against, that through my very soul 90
A sword shall pierce. This is my favoured lot,
My exaltation to afflictions high !
Afflicted I may be, it seems, and blest.
I will not argue that, nor will repine.
But where delays He now ? some great intent
Conceals Him. When twelve years He scarce had seen,
I lost Him, but so found, as well I saw
He could not lose Himself, but went about

Paradise Regained

His Father's business. What He meant I mused,
Since understand. Much more His absence now 100
Thus long to some great purpose He obscures.
But I to wait with patience am inured ;
My heart hath been a store-house long of things
And sayings laid up, portending strange events."

Thus Mary pond'ring oft, and oft to mind
Recalling what remarkably had passed
Since first her salutation heard, with thoughts
Meekly composed awaited the fulfilling :
The while her Son, tracing the desert wild,
Sole but with holiest meditations fed, 110
Into Himself descended, and at once
All His great work to come before Him set :
How to begin, how to accomplish best
His end of being on earth, and mission high :
For Satan, with sly preface to return,
Had left Him vacant, and with speed was gone
Up to the middle region of thick air,
Where all his Potentates in council sat ;
There, without sign of boast, or sign of joy,
Solicitous and blank he thus began : 120

"Princes, heav'n's ancient sons, ethereal thrones,
Demonian spirits now, from the element
Each of his reign allotted, rightlier called Pow'rs of Fire, Air, Water, and Earth beneath,
So may we hold our place and these mild seats
Without new trouble ; such an enemy
Is risen to invade us, who no less
Threatens, than our expulsion down to hell.
I, as I undertook, and with the vote
Consenting in full frequency was empowered, 130
Have found Him, viewed Him, tasted Him,¹ but find Far other labour to be undergone
Than when I dealt with Adam, first of men,
Though Adam by his wife's allurements fell,
However to this Man inferior far,
If He be man by mother's side, at least

With more than human gifts from heav'n adorned,
Perfections absolute, graces divine,
And amplitude of mind to greatest deeds.
Therefore I am returned, lest confidence 140
Of my success with Eve in Paradise
Deceive ye to persuasion oversure
Of like succeeding here : I summon all
Rather to be in readiness, with hand
Or counsel to assist, lest I, who erst
Thought none my equal, now be overmatched."

So spoke the old Serpent doubting, and from all
With clamour was assured their utmost aid
At his command ; when from amidst them rose
Belial, the dissolutest spirit that fell, 150
The sensualest, and after Asmodai¹
The fleshliest Incubus, and thus advised :

"Set women in His eye, and in His walk,
Among daughters of men the fairest found ;
Many are in each region passing fair
As the noon sky ; more like to goddesses
Than mortal creatures, graceful and discreet,
Expert in amorous arts, enchanting tongues
Persuasive, virgin majesty with mild
And sweet allayed, yet terrible to approach, 160
Skilled to retire, and in retiring draw
Hearts after them tangled in amorous nets.
Such object hath the power to soften and tame
Severest temper, smooth the rugged'st brow,
Enerve, and with voluptuous hope dissolve,
Draw out with credulous desire, and lead
At will the manliest, resolute breast,
As the magnetic² hardest iron draws.
Women, when nothing else, beguiled the heart
Of wisest Solomon, and made him build, 170
And made him bow to the gods of his wives."

To whom quick answer Satan thus returned :

All others by thyself ; because of old
Thou thyself doated'st on woman-kind, admiring
Their shape, their colour, and attractive grace,
None are, thou think'st, but taken with such toys.
Before the flood, thou with thy lusty crew,
False titled sons of God, roaming the earth,
Cast wanton eyes on the daughters of men, 180
And coupled with them, and begot a race.
Have we not seen, or by relation heard,
In courts and regal chambers how thou lurk'st,
In wood or grove by mossy fountain side,
In valley or green meadow, to waylay
Some beauty rare, Calisto, Clymene,
Daphne, or Semele, Antiopa,¹
Or Amymone, Syrinx, many more
Too long ; then lay'st thy 'scapes on names adored,
Apollo, Neptune, Jupiter, or Pan, 190
Satyr, or Fawn, or Silvan ? But these haunts
Delight not all ; among the sons of men,
How many have with a smile made small account
Of beauty and her lures, easily scorned
All her assaults, on worthier things intent !
Remember that Pellean conqueror,²
A youth, how all the beauties of the East
He slightly viewed, and slightly overpassed ;
How he surnamed of Africa³ dismissed
In his prime youth the fair Iberian maid. 200
For Solomon, he lived at ease, and full
Of honour, wealth, high fare, aimed not beyond
Higher design than to enjoy his state ;
Thence to the bait of women lay exposed :
But He whom we attempt is wiser far
Than Solomon, of more exalted mind,
Made and set wholly on the accomplishment
Of greatest things ; what woman will you find,
Though of this age the wonder and the fame,

On whom His leisure will vouchsafe an eye 210
Of fond desire? or should she, confident,
As sitting queen adored on beauty's throne,
Descend with all her winning charms begirt
To enamour, as the zone of Venus once
Wrought that effect on Jove, so fables tell,
How would one look from His majestic brow,
Seated as on the top of virtue's hill,
Discount'nance her despised, and put to rout
All her array; her female pride deject,
Or turn to reverent awe! For beauty stands 220
In the admiration only of weak minds
Led captive. Cease to admire, and all her plumes
Fall flat and shrink into a trivial toy,
At every sudden slighting quite abashed.
Therefore with manlier objects we must try
His constancy, with such as have more show
Of worth, of honour, glory, and popular praise;
Rocks whereon greatest men have oftst wrecked;
Or that which only seems to satisfy
Lawful desires of nature, not beyond. 230
And now I know He hungers, where no food
Is to be found, in the wide wilderness;
The rest commit to me, I shall let pass
No advantage, and His strength as oft assay."

He ceased, and heard their grant in loud acclaim:
Then forthwith to him takes a chosen band
Of spirits, likest to himself in guile,
To be at hand, and at his beck appear,
If cause were to unfold some active scene
Of various persons each to know his part; 240
Then to the desert takes with these his flight,
Where still from shade to shade the Son of God,
After forty days' fasting, had remained,
Now hung'ring first, and to Himself thus said:
"Where will this end? Four times ten days I've passed
Wand'ring this woody maze, and human food
Nor tasted, nor had appetite: that fast
To virtue I impute not, or count part
Of what I suffer here. If nature need not,

Paradise Regained

Or GOD support nature without repast 250
Though needing, what praise is it to endure?
But now I feel I hunger, which declares
Nature hath need of what she asks ; yet GOD
Can satisfy that need some other way,
Though hunger still remain : so it remain
Without this body's wasting, I content me,
And from the sting of famine fear no harm,
Nor mind it, fed with better thoughts, that feed Me hungering more to do my Father's will."

It was the hour of night, when thus the Son 260
Communed in silent walk, then laid Him down
Under the hospitable covert nigh
Of trees thick interwoven ; there He slept,
And dreamed, as appetite is wont to dream,
Of meats and drinks, nature's refreshment sweet.
Him thought He by the brook of Cherith stood,
And saw the ravens with their horny beaks¹
Food to Elijah bringing even and morn ;
Though ravenous, taught to abstain from what they brought :

He saw the prophet also how he fled 270
Into the desert, and how there he slept
Under a juniper : then how, awaked,
He found his supper on the coals prepared,
And by the angel was bid rise and eat,
And eat the second time after repose,
The strength whereof sufficed him forty days ;
Sometimes that with Elijah He partook,
Or as a guest with Daniel at his pulse.²
Thus wore out night, and now the herald lark
Left his ground-nest, high tow'ring to descry 280
The Morn's approach, and greet her with his song.
As lightly from His grassy couch up rose
Our Saviour, and found all was but a dream ;
Fasting He went to sleep, and fasting waked.
Up to a hill anon His steps He reared,
From whose high top to ken the prospect round,
If cottage were in view, sheep-cote, or herd ;

Paradise Regained

But cottage, herd, or sheep-cote none He saw,
Only in a bottom saw a pleasant grove,
With chaunt of tuneful birds resounding loud. 290
Thither He bent His way, determined there
To rest at noon, and entered soon the shade
High roofed, and walks beneath, and alleys brown,
That opened in the midst a woody scene ;
Nature's own work it seemed, nature taught art,
And to a superstitious eye the haunt
Of wood-gods and wood-nymphs ; He viewed it round,
When suddenly a man before Him stood,
Not rustic as before, but seemlier clad,
As one in city, court, or palace bred, 300
And with fair speech these words to Him addressed :

“With granted leave officious I return,
But much more wonder that the Son of God
In this wild solitude so long should bide,
Of all things destitute, and well I know,
Not without hunger. Others of some note,
As story tells, have trod this wilderness ;
The fugitive bond-woman with her son,
Outcast Nebaioth, yet found here relief
By a providing angel ;¹ all the race 310
Of Israel here had famished, had not God
Rained from heav'n manna ; and that prophet bold,
Native of Thebez,² wand'ring here was fed
Twice by a voice inviting him to eat.³
Of thee these forty days none hath regard,
Forty and more deserted here indeed.”

To whom thus Jesus : “What conclud'st thou hence ?

They all had need ; I, as thou seest, have none.”

“How hast thou hunger then ?” Satan replied.

“Tell me, if food were now before thee set, 320

Would'st thou not eat?" "Thereafter as I like
The giver," answered Jesus. "Why should that Cause thy refusal?" said the subtle fiend.
"Hast thou not right to all created things?
Owe not all creatures by just right to thee
Duty and service, nor to stay till bid,
But tender all their power? Nor mention I
Meats by the law unclean, or offered first
To idols, those young Daniel could refuse;
Nor proffered by an enemy, though who 330
Would scruple that, with want opprest? behold
Nature ashamed, or, better to express,
Troubled that thou should'st hunger, hath purveyed
From all the elements her choicest store
To treat thee as beseems, and as her Lord
With honour, only deign to sit and eat."

He spake no dream, for, as his words had end,
Our Saviour, lifting up His eyes, beheld
In ample space under the broadest shade
A table richly spread, in regal mode, 340
With dishes piled, and meats of noblest sort
And savour; beasts of chase, or fowl of game,
In pastry built,¹ or from the spit, or boiled,
Gris-amber² steamed; all fish from sea or shore,

Alas, how simple, to these cates compared,
Was that crude apple that diverted⁵ Eve!
And at a stately side-board by the wine, 350

And all the while harmonious airs were heard
Of chiming strings or charming pipes, and winds
Of gentlest gale Arabian odours fanned
From their soft wings, and Flora's earliest smells.
Such was the splendour; and the tempter now
His invitation earnestly renewed:

"What doubts the Son of God to sit and eat?
These are not fruits forbidden; no interdict
Defends the touching of these viands pure; 370
Their taste no knowledge works, at least of evil,
But life preserves, destroys life's enemy,
Hunger, with sweet restorative delight.
All these are spirits of air, and woods, and springs,
Thy gentle ministers, who come to pay
Thee homage, and acknowledge thee their Lord:
What doubt'st thou, Son of God? sit down and eat."

To whom thus Jesus temperately replied:
"Said'st thou not that to all things I had right?
And who withholds my pow'r that right to use? 380
Shall I receive by gift what of my own,
When and where likes me best, I can command?
I can at will, doubt not, as soon as thou,

Command a table in this wilderness,
And call swift flights of angels ministrant,
Arrayed in glory, on my cup to attend :
Why should'st thou then obtrude this diligence
In vain, where no acceptance it can find ?
And with my hunger what hast thou to do ?
Thy pompous delicacies I contemn,
And count thy specious gifts no gifts, but guiles." 390

To whom thus answered Satan, malecontent :
"That I have also power to give, thou seest :
If of that power I bring thee voluntary
What I might have bestowed on whom I pleased,
And rather opportunely in this place
Chose to impart to thy apparent need,
Why should'st thou not accept it ? but I see
What I can do or offer is suspect ;
Of these things others quickly will dispose, 400 Whose pains have earned the far-fet¹ spoil." With that Both table and provision vanished quite,
With sound of harpies' wings and talons heard ;
Only the importune Tempter still remained,
And with these words his temptation pursued :

"By hunger, that each other creature tames,
Thou art not to be harmed, therefore not moved ;
Thy temperance invincible besides,
For no allurement yields to appetite,
And all thy heart is set on high designs, 410
High actions ; but wherewith to be achieved ?
Great acts require great means of enterprise ;
Thou art unknown, unfriended, low of birth,
A carpenter thy father known, thyself
Bred up in poverty and straits at home,
Lost in a desert here and hunger-bit.
Which way, or from what hope, dost thou aspire
To greatness ? whence authority derivest ?
What followers, what retinue canst thou gain ?
Or at thy heels the dizzy multitude, 420
Longer than thou canst feed them on thy cost ?

Accomplish what they did, perhaps, and more?
Extol not riches then, the toil of fools,
The wise man's cumbrance, if not snare ; more apt
To slacken Virtue, and abate her edge,
Than prompt her to do aught may merit praise.
What if with like aversion I reject
Riches and realms? yet not, for that a crown,
Golden in show, is but a wreath of thorns,
Brings dangers, troubles, cares, and sleepless nights 460
To him who wears the regal diadem,
When on his shoulders each man's burden lies ;
For therein stands the office of a king,
His honour, virtue, merit, and chief praise,
That for the public all this weight he bears.
Yet he who reigns within himself, and rules
Passions, desires, and fears, is more a king ;
Which ev'ry wise and virtuous man attains :
And who attains not, ill aspires to rule
Cities of men, or head-strong multitudes, 470
Subject himself to anarchy within,
Or lawless passions in him, which he serves.
But to guide nations in the way of truth
By saving doctrine, and from error lead
To know, and knowing worship GOD aright,
Is yet more kingly ; this attracts the soul,
Governs the inner man, the nobler part ;
That other o'er the body only reigns,
And oft by force, which to a gen'rous mind,
So reigning, can be no sincere delight. 480
Besides, to give a kingdom hath been thought
Greater and nobler done, and to lay down
Far more magnanimous than to assume.
Riches are needless then, both for themselves,
And for thy reason why they should be sought—
To gain a sceptre, ofttest better missed."

Paradise Regained

BOOK III.

THE ARGUMENT.

Satan endeavours to awaken in Jesus a passion for glory, by particularising various great actions performed by persons at an early period of life. Our Lord replies, by showing the vanity of worldly fame, and contrasts with it the true glory of religious patience and virtuous wisdom. Satan justifies the love of glory from the example of God Himself, who requires it from all His creatures. Jesus detects the fallacy of this argument, by showing that as goodness is the true ground on which glory is due to the Great Creator, sinful man can have no right to it. Satan then urges our Lord respecting His claim to the throne of David; he tells Him that the kingdom of Judea, being at that time a province of Rome, cannot be got possession of without much personal exertion on His part, and presses Him to lose no time in beginning to reign. Jesus refers him to the time allotted for this, as for all other things; and, after intimating somewhat respecting His own previous sufferings, asks Satan why he should be solicitous for the exaltation of one whose rising was destined to be his fall. Satan replies that his own desperate state, by excluding all hope, leaves little room for fear; and that as his own punishment was equally doomed, he is not interested in preventing the reign of one from whose apparent benevolence he might rather hope for some interference in his favour. Satan, still supposing that the seeming reluctance of Jesus to be thus advanced might arise from His being unacquainted with the world and its glories, conveys Him to the summit of a high mountain, and from thence shows Him most of the kingdoms of Asia, pointing out to His notice some extraordinary military preparations of the Parthians to resist the incursions of the Scythians. He then informs our Lord that he showed Him this purposely that He might see how necessary military exertions are to retain the possession of kingdoms, as well as to subdue them at first; and advises Him to consider how impossible it was to maintain Judea against two such powerful neighbours as the Romans and Parthians, and how necessary it would be to form an alliance with one or other of them. At the same time he recommends, and engages to secure to Him, that of the Parthians, and tells Him that by this means His power will be defended from anything that Rome or Cæsar might attempt against it; and that He will be able to extend His glory wide, and especially to accomplish what was particularly necessary to make the throne of Judea really the throne of David, the deliverance and restoration of the Ten Tribes, still in a state of captivity. Jesus, having briefly noticed the vanity of military efforts, and the weakness of the arm of flesh, says that when the time comes for ascending His allotted throne, He shall not be slack; He remarks on Satan's extraordinary zeal for the deliverance of the Israelites, to whom he had always shown himself an enemy, and declares their servitude to be the consequence of their idolatry; but adds, that at a future time it may, perhaps, please God to recall them, and restore them to their liberty and native land.

So spake the Son of God, and Satan stood I
Awhile as mute, confounded what to say,
What to reply, confuted, and convinced
Of his weak arguing and fallacious drift;
At length, collecting all his serpent wiles,
With soothing words renewed, Him thus accosts:
“I see thou know’st what is of use to know,
What best to say canst say, to do canst do;
Thy actions to thy words accord, thy words
To thy large heart give utterance due, thy heart IQ

Yet years, and to ripe years judgment mature,
Quench not the thirst of glory, but augment.
Great Julius, whom now all the world admires,
The more he grew in years, the more inflamed 40
With glory, wept that he had lived so long
Inglorious,⁵ but thou yet art not too late."

³ Scipio was only twenty-nine years old when he conquered the Carthaginians.

⁴ Pompey distinguished himself in his youth ; but when he conquered Mithridates he was forty years old.

⁵ Julius Cæsar, whilst meditating over a Life of Alexander, was seen to weep by his friends. On being asked the reason of his tears, he replied, "Do you not think I have just cause to weep, when I consider that Alexander at my age had conquered so many nations, and I in all these years have done nothing memorable ?"—PLUTARCH.

To whom our Saviour calmly thus replied :
"Thou neither dost persuade me to seek wealth
For empire's sake, nor empire to affect
For glory's sake, by all thy argument.
For what is glory but the blaze of fame,
The people's praise, if always praise unmixed ?
And what the people but a herd confused,
A miscellaneous rabble, who extol 50 Things vulgar, and, well weighed, scarce worth the praise ?
They praise and they admire they know not what,
And know not whom, but as one leads the other :
And what delight to be by such extolled,
To live upon their tongues and be their talk,
Of whom to be dispraised were no small praise,
His lot who dares be singularly good.
Th' intelligent among them and the wise
Are few, and glory scarce of few is raised.
This is true glory and renown, when GOD, 60
Looking on the earth, with approbation marks
The just man, and divulges him through heaven
To all His angels, who with true applause
Recount his praises. Thus He did to Job,
When, to extend his fame through heav'n and earth,
As thou to thy reproach may'st well remember,
He asked thee, 'Hast thou seen my servant Job ?'
Famous he was in heav'n, on earth less known ;
Where glory is false glory, attributed
To things not glorious, men not worthy of fame. 70
They err who count it glorious to subdue
By conquest far and wide, to overrun
Large countries, and in field great battles win,
Great cities by assault. What do these worthies,
But rob, and spoil, burn, slaughter, and enslave
Peaceable nations, neighbouring or remote,
Made captive, yet deserving freedom more
Than those their conquerors, who leave behind
Nothing but ruin wheresoe'er they rove,
And all the flourishing works of peace destroy, 80
Then swell with pride, and must be titled gods,

Great benefactors of mankind, deliverers,
Worshipped with temple, priest, and sacrifice?
One is the son of Jove, of Mars the other;
Till conqueror death discover them scarce men,
Rolling in brutish vices, and deformed,
Violent or shameful death their due reward.
But if there be in glory aught of good,
It may by means far different be attained,
Without ambition, war, or violence; 90
By deeds of peace, by wisdom eminent,
By patience, temperance. I mention still
Him whom thy wrongs, with saintly patience borne,
Made famous in a land and times obscure;
Who names not now with honour patient Job?
Poor Socrates—who next more memorable?—
By what he taught and suffered for so doing,
For truth's sake suffering death unjust, lives now
Equal in fame to proudest conquerors.
Yet if for fame and glory aught be done, 100
Aught suffered; if young African¹ for fame

The deed becomes unpraised, the man at least,
And loses, though but verbal, his reward.
Shall I seek glory then, as vain men seek,
Oft not deserved? I seek not mine, but His
Who sent me, and thereby witness whence I am.”

To whom the Tempter murmuring thus replied:
“Think not so slight of glory, therein least Resembling thy great Father: He seeks glory, 110
And for His glory all things made, all things
Orders and governs; nor content in heav’n,
By all His angels glorified, requires
Glory from men, from all men good or bad,
Wise or unwise, no difference, no exemption;
Above all sacrifice or hallowed gift
Glory He requires, and glory He receives
Promiscuous from all nations, Jew, or Greek,
Or barbarous, nor exception hath declared:
From us, His foes pronounced, glory He exacts.” 120

Paradise Regained

To whom our Saviour fervently replied :
“ And reason, since His Word all things produced,
Though chiefly not for glory as prime end,
But to show forth His goodness, and impart
His good communicable to every soul
Freely ; of whom what could He less expect
Than glory and benediction, that is, thanks,
The slightest, easiest, readiest recompense
From them who could return Him nothing else,
And not returning that would likeliest render Contempt instead, dishonour, obloquy ?

130

Hard recompense, unsuitable return
For so much good, so much beneficence.
But why should man seek glory, who of his own
Hath nothing, and to whom nothing belongs
But condemnation, ignominy, and shame ?
Who for so many benefits received
Turned recreant to God, ingrate and false,
And so of all true good himself despoiled,
Yet, sacrilegious, to himself would take
That which to GOD alone of right belongs :
Yet so much bounty is in GOD, such grace,
That who advance His glory, not their own,
Them He Himself to glory will advance.”

140

So spake the Son of GOD ; and here again
Satan had not to answer, but stood struck
With guilt of his own sin, for he himself
Insatiable of glory had lost all ;
Yet of another plea bethought him soon.

“ Of glory, as thou wilt,” said he, “ so deem ;
Worth or not worth the seeking, let it pass.
But to a kingdom thou art born, ordained
To sit upon thy father David’s throne,
By mother’s side thy father ; though thy right
Be now in powerful hands, that will not part
Easily from possession won with arms.

For where no hope is left, is left no fear :
If there be worse, the expectation more

With that, (such power was given him then,) he took The Son of God up to a mountain high.

It was a mountain at whose verdant feet
A spacious plain outstretched in circuit wide
Lay pleasant ; from his side two rivers flowed,
The one winding, the other straight, and left between Fair champaign with less rivers interveined,
Then meeting joined their tribute to the sea :

The prospect was, that here and there was room
For barren desert, fountainless and dry.

To this high mountain top the Tempter brought
Our Saviour, and new train of words began :

Such and so numerous was their chivalry;

Angelica, his daughter was fabled to be the most beautiful woman of the age, and, like Helen of Troy, a fair mischief, who gave rise to continual strife. She reappears in Ariosto's "Orlando Furioso." Orlando goes mad for love of her. We must remember, when we marvel somewhat at this blending of truth and fiction, that the poems of Ariosto and Boiardo had probably been the delight of Milton's youth ; and that he is alluding to the greatest poets of his own age, not merely to romances.

Of Egypt, Baal next, and Ashtaroth,
And all th' idolatries of heathen round,
Besides their other worse than heathenish crimes ;
Nor in the land of their captivity 420
Humbled themselves, or penitent besought
The GOD of their forefathers ; but so died
Impenitent, and left a race behind
Like to themselves, distinguishable scarce
From Gentiles, but by circumcision vain,
And GOD with idols in their worship joined.
Should I of these the liberty regard,
Who, freed as to their ancient patrimony,
Unhumbled, unrepentant, unreformed,
Headlong would follow ; and to their gods perhaps 430
Of Bethel and of Dan ? no ; let them serve
Their enemies, who serve idols with GOD.
Yet He at length, time to Himself best known,
Rememb'ring Abraham, by some wondrous call
May bring them back repentant and sincere,
And at their passing cleave the Assyrian flood,
While to their native land with joy they haste,
As the Red Sea and Jordan once He cleft,
When to the promised land their fathers passed ;
To His due time and providence I leave them." 440
So spake Israel's true King, and to the fiend
Made answer meet, that made void all his wiles.
So fares it when with truth falsehood contends.

Paradise Regained

BOOK IV.

THE ARGUMENT.

Satan, persisting in the temptation of our Lord, shows Him Imperial Rome in its greatest splendour, and tells Him that He might with the greatest ease expel Tiberius, restore the Romans to their liberty, and make Himself master, not only of the Roman Empire, but, by so doing, of the whole world, and inclusively of the throne of David. Our Lord, in reply, expresses His contempt of grandeur and worldly power, and notices the luxury, vanity, and profligacy of the Romans, declaring how little they merited to be restored to that liberty which they had lost by their misconduct. Satan, now desperate to enhance the value of his proffered gifts, professes that the only terms on which he will bestow them, are our Saviour's falling down and worshipping him. Our Lord expresses a firm but temperate indignation at such a proposition, and rebukes the Tempter. Satan then assumes a new ground of temptation, and, proposing to Jesus the intellectual gratifications of wisdom and knowledge, points out to Him the celebrated seat of ancient learning, Athens; its schools, and other various resorts of learned teachers and their disciples. Jesus replies, by showing the vanity and insufficiency of the boasted heathen philosophy. Satan, irritated at the failure of all his attempts, upbraids the indiscretion of our Saviour in rejecting his offers; and, having foretold the sufferings that our Lord was to undergo, carries Him back to the wilderness, and leaves Him there. Night comes on; Satan raises a tremendous storm, and attempts farther to alarm Jesus with frightful dreams and terrific threatening spectres. A calm, bright, beautiful morning succeeds to the horrors of the night. Satan again presents himself to our Blessed Lord, and takes occasion once more to insult Him with an account of the sufferings which He was certainly to undergo. This only draws from our Lord a brief rebuke. Satan, now at the height of his desperation, confesses that he had frequently watched Jesus from His birth, purposely to discover if He was the Messiah, and assiduously followed Him, in hopes of gaining some advantage over Him, which would most effectually prove that He was not really that Divine Person destined to be his "fatal enemy." In this he acknowledges that he has hitherto failed; but still determines to make one more trial. Accordingly, he conveys Him to the Temple at Jerusalem; and, placing Him on a pointed eminence, requires Him to prove His divinity, either by standing there, or casting Himself down with safety. Our Lord reproves the Tempter, and manifests His own divinity by standing on this dangerous point. Satan, amazed and terrified, instantly falls, and repairs to his infernal compeers to relate the bad success of his enterprise. Angels convey our Blessed Lord to a beautiful valley, and, while they minister to Him a repast of celestial food, celebrate His victory in a triumphant hymn.

PERPLEXED and troubled at his bad success I
The Tempter stood, nor had what to reply,

From nations far and nigh. What honour that,
But tedious waste of time to sit and hear
So many hollow compliments and lies,
Outlandish flatteries? Then proceed'st to talk
Of the emperor, how easily subdued,
How gloriously! I shall, thou say'st, expel
A brutish monster: what if I withal
Expel a devil who first made him such?
Let his tormentor conscience find him out; 130
For him I was not sent, nor yet to free
That people, victor once, now vile and base,
Deservedly made vassal, who, once just,
Frugal, and mild, and temperate, conquered well,
But govern ill the nations under yoke,
Peeling their provinces; exhausted all
By lust and rapine; first ambitious grown
Of triumph, that insulting vanity;
Then cruel, by their sports to blood inured
Of fighting beasts, and men to beasts exposed; 140
Luxurious by their wealth, and greedier still,
And from the daily scene effeminate.
What wise and valiant man would seek to free
These thus degenerate, by themselves enslaved,
Or could of inward slaves make outward free?
Know therefore, when my season comes to sit
On David's throne, it shall be like a tree
Spreading and overshadowing all the earth,
Or as a stone that shall to pieces dash
All monarchies besides throughout the world, 150
And of my kingdom there shall be no end.
Means there shall be to this, but what the means,
Is not for thee to know, nor me to tell."

To whom the Tempter impudent replied:
"I see all offers made by me how slight
Thou valu'st, because offered, and reject'st;
Nothing will please the difficult and nice,
Or nothing more than still to contradict.
On the other side know also thou, that I

On what I offer set as high esteem, 160
Nor what I part with mean to give for nought;
All these which in a moment thou behold'st,
The kingdoms of the world, to thee I give;
For, giv'n to me, I give to whom I please,
No trifle; yet with this reserve, not else,
On this condition, if thou wilt fall down,
And worship me as thy superior lord,
Easily done, and hold them all of me:
For what can less so great a gift deserve?"

Whom thus our Saviour answered with disdain: 170
"I never liked thy talk, thy offers less;
Now both abhor, since thou hast dared to utter
The abominable terms, impious condition;
But I endure the time, till which expired,
Thou hast permission on me. It is written,
The first of all commandments, 'Thou shalt worship
The Lord thy GOD, and only Him shalt serve';
And dar'st thou to the Son of GOD propound
To worship thee, accurst? now more accurst
For this attempt, bolder than that on Eve, 180
And more blasphemous; which expect to rue.
'The kingdoms of the world to thee were giv'n,' Permitted rather, and by thee usurped,
Other donation none thou canst produce:
If giv'n, by whom but by the King of kings,
GOD over all Supreme? if given to thee,
By thee how fairly is the Giver now
Repaid? but gratitude in thee is lost
Long since. Wert thou so void of fear or shame,
As offer them to me the Son of GOD, 190
To me my own, on such abhorrèd pact,
That I fall down and worship thee as GOD?
Get thee behind me! plain thou now appear'st
That evil one, Satan for ever damned."

To whom the fiend with fear abashed replied:
"Be not so sore offended, Son of GOD,
(Though sons of GOD both angels are and men,)
If I, to try whether in higher sort
Than these thou bear'st that title, have proposed

To whom our Saviour sagely thus replied :
"Think not but that I know these things, or think
I know them not ; not therefore am I short
Of knowing what I ought : he who receives
Light from above, from the fountain of light,
No other doctrine needs, though granted true : 290

For all his tedious talk is but vain boast,
Or subtle shifts conviction to evade.
Alas! what can they teach and not mislead,
Ignorant of themselves, of GOD much more, 310
And how the world began, and how man fell,
Degraded by himself, on grace depending?
Much of the soul they talk, but all awry,
And in themselves seek virtue, and to themselves
All glory arrogate, to GOD give none;
Rather accuse Him under usual names,
Fortune and fate, as one regardless quite
Of mortal things. Who therefore seeks in these True wisdom, finds her not, or by delusion
Far worse, her false resemblance only meets, 320

Such are from GOD inspired, not such from thee ; 350
Unless where moral virtue is expressed
By light of nature not in all quite lost.
Their orators thou then extol'st, as those
The top of eloquence, statistis indeed,
And lovers of their country, as may seem ;
But herein to our prophets far beneath,
As men divinely taught, and better teaching
The solid rules of civil government
In their majestic unaffected style,
Than all the oratory of Greece and Rome. 360
In them is plainest taught, and easiest learnt,
What makes a nation happy, and keeps it so,
What ruins kingdoms, and lays cities flat ;
These only, with our law, best form a king."

So spake the Son of GOD ; but Satan, now,
Quite at a loss, (for all his darts were spent,)
Thus to our Saviour with stern brow replied :

" Since neither wealth nor honour, arms nor arts,
Kingdom nor empire, pleases thee, nor aught
By me proposed, in life contemplative 370
Or active, tended on by glory or fame,
What dost thou in this world ? the wilderness
For thee is fittest place ; I found thee there,
And thither will return thee. Yet remember
What I foretell thee : soon thou shalt have cause
To wish thou never hadst rejected thus
Nicely or cautiously my offered aid,
Which would have set thee in short time with ease
On David's throne, or throne of all the world,
Now at full age, fulness of time, thy season, 380
When prophecies of thee are best fulfilled.
Now contrary, if I read aught in heav'n,
Or heav'n write aught of fate, by what the stars,
Voluminous, or single characters,

A kingdom they portend thee, but what kingdom,
Real or allegoric, I discern not, 390
Nor when—eternal sure, as without end,
Without beginning ; for no date prefixed
Directs me in the starry rubric set.”

So saying, he took (for still he knew his pow'r
Not yet expired) and to the wilderness
Brought back the Son of God, and left Him there,
Feigning to disappear. Darkness now rose,
As daylight sunk, and brought in louring Night,
Her shadowy offspring, unsubstantial both,
Privation mere of light and absent day. 400
Our Saviour, meek, and with untroubled mind
After His aery jaunt, though hurried sore,
Hungry and cold betook Him to His rest,
Wherever, under some concourse of shades,
Whose branching arms thick intertwined might shield
From dews and damps of night His sheltered head ;
But sheltered slept in vain, for at His head
The Tempter watched, and soon with ugly dreams Disturbed His sleep. And either tropic now
'Gan thunder, and both ends of heav'n ; the clouds 410
From many a horrid rift abortive poured
Fierce rain with light'ning mixed, water with fire
In ruin reconciled : nor slept the winds
Within their stony caves, but rushed abroad
From the four hinges ¹ of the world, and fell
On the vexed wilderness, whose tallest pines,
Though rooted deep as high, and sturdiest oaks
Bowed their stiff necks, loaden with stormy blasts,
Or torn up sheer : ill wast thou shrouded then,
O patient Son of God, yet only stood'st 420
Unshaken. Nor yet stayed the terror there,

Environed thee; some howled, some yelled, some shrieked,

Some bent at thee their fiery darts, while thou
Sat'st unappalled in calm and sinless peace.
Thus passed the night so foul, till Morning fair
Came forth with pilgrim steps in amice gray,
Who with her radiant finger stilled the roar
Of thunder, chased the clouds, and laid the winds,
And grisly spectres, which the fiend had raised 430
To tempt the Son of God with terrors dire.

And now the sun with more effectual beams
Had cheered the face of earth, and dried the wet
From drooping plant or dropping tree; the birds,
Who all things now behold more fresh and green,
After a night of storm so ruinous,
Cleared up their choicest notes in bush and spray
To gratulate the sweet return of morn:
Nor yet amidst this joy and brightest morn
Was absent, after all his mischief done, 440
The prince of darkness, glad would also seem
Of this fair change, and to our Saviour came,
Yet with no new device, they all were spent;
Rather by this his last affront resolved,
Desperate of better course, to vent his rage
And mad despite to be so oft repelled.

Him walking on a sunny hill he found,
Backed on the north and west by a thick wood:
Out of the wood he starts in wonted shape,
And in a careless mood thus to Him said: 450

"Fair morning yet betides thee, Son of God,
After a dismal night. I heard the wrack
As earth and sky would mingle, but myself
Was distant; and these flaws,¹ though mortals fear them
As dangerous to the pillared frame of heav'n,
Or to the earth's dark basis underneath,
Are to the main as inconsiderable
And harmless, if not wholesome, as a sneeze
To man's less universe, and soon are gone;
Yet as being oftentimes noxious where they light 460

On man, beast, plant, wasteful and turbulent,
Like turbulencies in the affairs of men,
Over whose heads they roar, and seem to point,
They oft fore-signify and threaten ill.
This tempest at this desert most was bent :
Of men at thee, for only thou here dwell'st.
Did I not tell thee, if thou did'st reject
The perfect season offered with my aid
To win thy destined seat, but wilt prolong
All to the push of fate, pursue thy way 470
Of gaining David's throne no man knows when,
For both the when and how is no where told,
Thou shalt be what thou art ordained, no doubt ;
For angels have proclaimed it, but concealing
The time and means ; each act is rightliest done
Not when it must, but when it may be best ?
If thou observe not this, be sure to find,
What I foretold thee, many a hard assay
Of dangers, and adversities, and pains,
Ere thou of Israel's sceptre get fast hold ; 480
Whereof this ominous night that closed thee round,
So many terrors, voices, prodigies,
May warn thee, as a sure fore-going sign."
So talked he, while the Son of GOD went on
And stayed not, but in brief him answered thus :
" Me worse than wet thou find'st not ; other harm
Those terrors, which thou speak'st of, did me none ;
I never feared they could, though noising loud
And threat'ning nigh ; what they can do as signs
Betok'ning, or ill-boding, I condemn 490
As false portents, not sent from GOD, but thee ;
Who, knowing I shall reign past thy preventing,
Obtrud'st thy offered aid, that I accepting
At least might seem to hold all pow'r of thee,
Ambitious spirit ! and would'st be thought my Gon,
And storm'st refused, thinking to terrify
Me to thy will. Desist, thou art discerned,
And toil'st in vain, nor me in vain molest."
To whom the fiend, now swoll'n with rage, replied :
" Then hear, O Son of David, virgin-born ; 500

Paradise Regained

For Son of GOD to me is yet in doubt :
Of the Messiah I have heard foretold
By all the prophets ; of thy birth, at length
Announced by Gabriel, with the first I knew,
And of the angelic song in Bethlehem field,
On thy birthnight, that sung thee Saviour born.
From that time seldom have I ceased to eye
Thy infancy, thy childhood, and thy youth,
Thy manhood last, though yet in private bred ;
'Till at the ford of Jordan, whither all 510
Flocked to the Baptist, I among the rest
—Though not to be baptized—by voice from heav'n
Heard thee pronounced the Son of GOD beloved.
Thenceforth I thought thee worth my nearer view
And narrower scrutiny, that I might learn
In what degree or meaning thou art called
The Son of GOD, which bears no single sense.
The son of GOD I also am, or was,
And if I was I am ; relation stands ;
All men are sons of GOD ! yet thee I thought 520
In some respect far higher so declared.
Therefore I watched thy footsteps from that hour,
And followed thee still on to this waste wild ;
Where by all best conjectures I collect
Thou art to be my fatal enemy.
Good reason then, if I beforehand seek
To understand my adversary, who
And what he is ; his wisdom, power, intent ;
By parle or composition, truce, or league,
To win him, or win from him what I can. 530
And opportunity I here have had
To try thee, sift thee, and confess have found thee
Proof against all temptation, as a rock
Of adamant, and as a centre firm,
To the utmost of mere man both wise and good,
Not more ; for honours, riches, kingdoms, glory,
Have been before contemned, and may again :
Therefore to know what more thou art than man,
Worth naming Son of GOD by voice from heav'n,
Another method I must now begin." 540

Paradise Regained

So saying, he caught Him up, and, without wing
Of hippogrif,¹ bore through the air sublime
Over the wilderness and o'er the plain ;
Till underneath them fair Jerusalem,
The holy city, lifted high her towers,
And higher yet the glorious Temple reared
Her pile, far off appearing like a mount
Of alabaster, topped with golden spires :
There on the highest pinnacle he set
The Son of God, and added thus in scorn : 550
" There stand, if thou wilt stand ; to stand upright
Will ask thee skill ; I to thy Father's house
Have brought thee, and highest placed ; highest is best.

Now show thy progeny ; if not to stand,
Cast thyself down ; safely, if Son of God ;
For it is written, ' He will give command
Concerning thee to His angels ; in their hands
They shall uplift thee, lest at any time
Thou chance to dash thy foot against a stone.' "

To whom thus Jesus : " Also it is written, 560
' Tempt not the Lord thy God.' " He said, and stood :
But Satan, smitten with amazement, fell.
As when earth's son, Antæus,² to compare
Small things with greatest, in Itrassa strove
With Jove's Alcides, and, oft foiled, still rose,
Receiving from his mother Earth new strength,
Fresh from his fall, and fiercer grapple joined,
Throttled at length in the air, expired and fell ;
So, after many a foil, the Tempter proud,
Renewing fresh assaults, amidst his pride, 570
Fell whence he stood to see his victor fall.
And as that Theban monster,³ that proposed
Her riddle, and him who solved it not, devoured,
That once found out and solved, for grief and spite

Cast herself headlong from th' Ismenian steep ;
So, struck with dread and anguish, fell the fiend,
And to his crew that sat consulting, brought Joyless triumphals of his hoped success,
Ruin, and desperation, and dismay,
Who durst so proudly tempt the Son of GOD. 580
So Satan fell ; and straight a fiery globe
Of angels on full sail of wing flew nigh,
Who on their plummy vans received Him soft
From His uneasy station, and upbore
As on a floating couch through the blithe air,
Then in a flow'ry valley set Him down
On a green bank, and set before Him spread
A table of celestial food, divine,
Ambrosial fruits, fetched from the Tree of Life,
And from the Fount of Life ambrosial drink, 590
That soon refreshed Him wearied, and repaired
What hunger, if aught hunger had impaired
Or thirst ; and, as He fed, angelic quires
Sung heav'nly anthems of His victory
Over temptation and the Tempter proud :

But thou, infernal Serpent, shalt not long
Rule in the clouds ; like an autumnal star
Or light'ning thou shalt fall from heav'n, trod down 620
Under His feet : for proof, ere this thou feel'st
Thy wound, yet not thy last and deadliest wound,
By this repulse received, and hold'st in hell
No triumph. In all her gates Abaddon¹ rues
Thy bold attempt ; hereafter learn with awe
To dread the Son of GOD : He all unarmed
Shall chase thee with the terror of His voice
From thy demoniac holds, possession foul,
Thee and thy legions ; yelling they shall fly,
And beg to hide them in a herd of swine, 630
Lest He command them down into the deep
Bound, and to torment sent before their time.
Hail, Son of the Most High, heir of both worlds,
Queller of Satan ! on thy glorious work
Now enter, and begin to save mankind."

Thus they the Son of GOD, our Saviour meek,
Sung victor, and, from heav'nly feast refreshed,
Brought on His way with joy ; He unobserved
Home to His mother's house private returned.

Samson Agonistes

A Dramatic Poem

"Τραγωδία μίμησις πράξεως σπουδαίας," etc.

ARISTOT. Poet. c. vi.

"Tragedia et imitatio actionis seriæ, etc., per misericordiam et metum perficiens taliū affectuū lustrationem."

OF THAT SORT OF DRAMATIC POEM WHICH IS CALLED TRAGEDY.

PREFACE WRITTEN BY MILTON.

TRAGEDY, as it was anciently composed, hath been ever held the gravest, moralest, and most profitable of all other poems; therefore said by Aristotle to be of power, by raising pity, and fear, or terror, to purge the mind of those and such-like passions; that is, to temper and reduce them to just measure with a kind of delight, stirred up by reading or seeing those passions well imitated. Nor is Nature wanting in her own effects to make good his assertion, for so in physic, things of melancholic hue and quality are used against melancholy, sour against sour, salt to remove salt humours. Hence philosophers and other gravest writers, as Cicero, Plutarch, and others, frequently cite out of tragic poets, both to adorn and illustrate their discourse. The Apostle Paul himself thought it not unworthy to insert a verse of Euripides into the text of Holy Scripture, 1 Cor. xv. 33; and Paræus, commenting on the Revelation, divides the whole book, as a tragedy, into acts, distinguished each by a chorus of heavenly harpings and song between. Heretofore men in highest dignity have laboured not a little to be thought able to compose a tragedy. Of that honour Dionysius the Elder was no less ambitious than before of his attaining to the tyranny. Augustus Cæsar also had begun his "Ajax," but, unable to please his own judgment with what he had begun, left it unfinished. Seneca, the philosopher, is by some thought the author of those tragedies, at least the best of them, that go under that name. Gregory Nazianzen, a Father of the Church, thought it not unbecoming the sanctity of his person to write a tragedy, which is entitled "Christ Suffering." This is mentioned to vindicate tragedy from the small esteem, or rather infamy, which in the account of many it undergoes at this day¹ with other common interludes; happening through the ¹ The Puritans held the drama in the utmost abhorrence. It was probably on this account that the Puritan poet wrote this defence of tragedy, to justify himself for writing a drama.

poet's error of intermixing comic stuff with tragic sadness and gravity, or introducing trivial and vulgar persons, which by all judicious hath been counted absurd, and brought in without discretion, corruptly to gratify the people. And though ancient tragedy use no prologue, yet using sometimes, in case of self-defence, or explanation, that which Martial calls an epistle, in behalf of this tragedy coming forth after the ancient manner, much different from what among us passes for best, thus much beforehand may be epistled : that Chorus is here introduced after the Greek manner, not ancient only but modern, and still in use among the Italians. In the modelling, therefore, of this poem, with good reason, the ancients and Italians are rather followed, as of much more authority and fame. The measure of verse used in the Chorus is of all sorts, called by the Greeks Monostrophic, or rather Apolelymenon, without regard had to Strophe, Antistrophe, or Epode, which were a kind of stanzas framed only for the music then used with the Chorus that sung ; not essential to the poem, and therefore not material ; or, being divided into stanzas or pauses, they may be called Allœostropha. Division into act and scene referring chiefly to the stage, to which this work never was intended, is here omitted.

It suffices if the whole drama be found not produced beyond the fifth act ; of the style and uniformity, and that commonly called the plot, whether intricate or explicit, which is nothing indeed but such economy or disposition of the fable as may stand best with verisimilitude and decorum, they only will best judge who are not unacquainted with Æschylus, Sophocles, and Euripides, the three tragic poets, unequalled yet by any, and the best rule to all who endeavour to write tragedy. The circumscription of time wherein the whole drama begins and ends is, according to ancient rule and best example, within the space of twenty-four hours.

THE ARGUMENT.

Samson made captive, blind, and now in the prison at Gaza, there to labour as in a common workhouse, on a festival-day, in the general cessation from labour, comes forth into the open air, to a place nigh, somewhat retired, there to sit awhile and bemoan his condition; where he happens at length to be visited by certain friends and equals of his tribe, which make the chorus, who seek to comfort him what they can; then by his old father Manoah, who endeavours the like, and withal tells him his purpose to procure his liberty by ransom; and, lastly, that this feast was proclaimed by the Philistines as a day of thanksgiving for their deliverance from the hands of Samson, which yet more troubles him. Manoah then departs to prosecute his endeavour with the Philistine lords for Samson's redemption; who in the meanwhile is visited by other persons; and lastly by a public officer to require his coming to the feast before the lords and people, to play or show his strength in their presence. He at first refuses, dismissing the public officer with absolute denial to come; at length, persuaded inwardly that this was from God, he yields to go along with him, who came now the second time with great threatenings to fetch him. The chorus yet remaining on the place, Manoah returns full of joyful hope to procure ere long his son's deliverance; in the midst of which discourse a Hebrew comes in haste, confusedly at first, and afterward more distinctly, relating the catastrophe, what Samson had done to the Philistines, and by accident to himself; wherewith the tragedy ends.

The Scene before the Prison in Gaza.

SAMS. A little onward lend thy guiding hand I
To these dark steps, a little further on;
For yonder bank hath choice of sun or shade:
There I am wont to sit, when any chance
Relieves me from my task of servile toil,
Daily in the common prison else enjoined me,
Where I, a prisoner chained, scarce freely draw
The air imprisoned also, close and damp,
Unwholesome draught: but here I feel amends,
The breath of heav'n fresh blowing, pure and sweet, 10

¹ That is, Samson an actor; or, the fate of Samson acted in a play. "Agonistes," Dunster supposes, "is rather here athleta, the subject being Samson's being brought forth to exhibit as an athlete."

Samson Agonistes

With day-spring born ; here leave me to respire.
This day a solemn feast the people hold
To Dagon, their sea-idol, and forbid
Laborious works ; unwillingly this rest
Their superstition yields me ; hence, with leave
Retiring from the popular noise, I seek
This unfrequented place to find some ease ;
Ease to the body some, none to the mind
From restless thoughts, that, like a deadly swarm
Of hornets armed, no sooner found alone, 20
But rush upon me thronging, and present
Times past, what once I was, and what am now.
Oh ! wherefore was my birth from heav'n foretold
Twice by an angel, who at last in sight
Of both my parents all in flames ascended
From off the altar, where an off'ring burned,
As in a fiery column charioting
His godlike presence, and from some great act
Or benefit revealed to Abraham's race ?¹
Why was my breeding ordered and prescribed 30
As of a person separate to God,
Designed for great exploits, if I must die
Betrayed, captived, and both my eyes put out,
Made of my enemies the scorn and gaze,
To grind in brazen fetters under task
With this heav'n-gifted strength ? O glorious strength
Put to the labour of a beast, debased
Lower than bond-slave ! Promise was that I Should Israel from Philistian yoke deliver ;
Ask for this great deliverer now, and find him 40
Eyeless in Gaza at the mill with slaves,
Himself in bonds under Philistian yoke.
Yet stay, let me not rashly call in doubt
Divine prediction : what if all foretold
Had been fulfilled but through mine own default ?
Whom have I to complain of but myself ?
Who, this high gift of strength committed to me,
In what part lodged, how easily bereft me,
Under the seal of silence could not keep,

¹ Judges xiii. 3, 11-20.

Samson Agonistes

But weakly to a woman must reveal it, 50
O'ercome with importunity and tears?
O impotence of mind in body strong!
But what is strength without a double share
Of wisdom? Vast, unwieldy, burthensome,
Proudly secure, yet liable to fall
By weakest subtleties, not made to rule,
But to subserve where wisdom bears command.
God, when He gave me strength, to show withal
How slight the gift was, hung it in my hair.
But peace! I must not quarrel with the will 60
Of highest dispensation, which herein
Haply had ends above my reach to know:
Suffices that to me strength is my bane,
And proves the source of all my miseries,
So many, and so huge, that each apart
Would ask a life to wail; but chief of all,
O loss of sight, of thee I most complain!
Blind among enemies, O worse than chains,
Dungeon, or beggary, or decrepit age!
Light, the prime work of God, to me's extinct, 70
And all her various objects of delight
Annulled, which might in part my grief have eased.
Inferior to the vilest now become
Of man or worm, the vilest here excel me;
They creep, yet see; I, dark in light, exposed
To daily fraud, contempt, abuse, and wrong.
Within doors, or without, still as a fool
In power of others, never in my own;
Scarce half I seem to live, dead more than half.
O dark, dark, dark, amid the blaze of noon, 80
Irrecoverably dark, total eclipse
Without all hope of day!
O first created beam, and thou great Word,
"Let there be light," and light was over all;
Why am I thus bereaved Thy prime decree?
The sun to me is dark
And silent as the moon,¹

¹ Silens luna is the moon at or near the change, and in conjunction with the sun

Samson Agonistes

When she deserts the night,
Hid in her vacant interlunar cave.
Since light so necessary is to life, 90
And almost life itself, if it be true
That light is in the soul,
She all in every part ; why was the sight
To such a tender ball as th' eye confined,
So obvious and so easy to be quenched ?
And not, as feeling, through all parts diffused,
That she might look at will through every pore ?
Then had I not been thus exiled from light,
As in the land of darkness yet in light,
To live a life half dead, a living death, 100
And buried ; but, O yet more miserable !
Myself my sepulchre, a moving grave,
Buried, yet not exempt
By privilege of death and burial
From worst of other evils, pains, and wrongs,
But made hereby obnoxious more
To all the miseries of life,
Life in captivity
Among inhuman foes.
But who are these ? for with joint pace I hear 110
The tread of many feet steering this way ;
Perhaps my enemies, who come to stare
At my affliction, and perhaps t' insult,
Their daily practice to afflict me more.
CHOR. This, this is he ; softly a while,
Let us not break in upon him.
O change beyond report, thought, or belief !
See how he lies at random, carelessly diffused,¹
With languished head unpropped,
As one past hope, abandoned, 120
As by himself given over ;
In slavish habit, ill-fitted weeds
O'er-worn and soiled ;
Or do my eyes misrepresent ? can this be he,
That heroic, that renowned,
Irresistible Samson ? whom unarmed

¹ Stretched out.

Samson Agonistes

No strength of man or fiercest wild beast could withstand ;

Who tore the lion, as the lion tears the kid,

Ran on imbattled armies clad in iron,

(And, weaponless himself,)

130

Made arms ridiculous, useless the forgery

Of brazen shield and spear, the hammered cuirass,

Chalybean¹ tempered steel, and frock of mail

Adamantean proof ;

But safest he who stood aloof,

When insupportably his foot advanced,

In scorn of their proud arms and warlike tools,

Spurned them to death by troops. The bold Ascalonite²

Fled from his lion ramp ;³ old warriors turned

Their plated backs under his heel,

140

Or grov'ling soiled their crested helmets in the dust.

Then with what trivial weapon came to hand,

The jaw of a dead ass, his sword of bone,

A thousand fore-skins fell, the flower of Palestine,

In Ramath-lechi,⁴ famous to this day :

Then by main force pulled up, and on his shoulders bore

The gates of Azza,⁵ post and massy bar,

Up to the hill by Hebron, seat of giants old,⁶

No journey of a Sabbath day,⁷ and loaded so ;

Like whom the Gentiles feign to bear up heav'n.⁸

150

Which shall I first bewail,

Thy bondage or lost sight,

Prison within prison

Inseparably dark ?

Thou art become, O worst imprisonment !

¹ The Chalybes were famous in the old world for their skill in working iron. Hence the best tempered steel was called Chalybean. VIRG. Georg. I. 58. "Ad Chalybes nudi ferrum."—NEWTON.

Samson Agonistes

The dungeon of thyself ; thy soul,
Which men enjoying sight oft without cause complain,
Imprisoned now indeed,
In real darkness of the body dwells,
Shut up from outward light, 160
To incorporate with gloomy night :
For inward light, alas !

Puts forth no visual beam.
O mirror of our fickle state,
Since man on earth unparalleled !
The rarer thy example stands,
By how much from the top of wondrous glory,
Strongest of mortal men,
To lowest pitch of abject fortune thou art fall'n ;
For him I reckon not in high estate, 170
Whom long descent of birth

Or the sphere of fortune raises :
But thee, whose strength, while virtue was her mate,
Might have subdued the earth,
Universally crowned with highest praises.

SAMS. I hear the sound of words, their sense the air
Dissolves unjointed ere it reach my ear.

CHOR. He speaks : let us draw nigh. Matchless in might,

The glory late of Israel, now the grief,
We come, thy friends and neighbours not unknown, 180
From Eshtaol and Zora's ¹ fruitful vale,
To visit or bewail thee ; or, if better,
Counsel or consolation we may bring,
Salve to thy sores : apt words have power to swage
The tumours of a troubled mind,
And are as balm to festered wounds.

SAMS. Your coming, friends, revives me, for I learn
Now of my own experience, not by talk,
How counterfeit a coin they are who friends
Bear in their superscription, of the most 190
I would be understood ; in prosperous days
They swarm, but in adverse withdraw their head,
Not to be found, though sought. Ye see, O friends,

¹ Towns in the tribe of Dan. Zora was the birthplace of Samson.

Samson Agonistes

How many evils have inclosed me round ;
Yet that which was the worse now least afflicts me,
Blindness ; for, had I sight, confused with shame,
How could I once look up, or heave the head,
Who, like a foolish pilot, have shipwrecked
My vessel trusted to me from above,
Gloriously rigged ; and for a word, a tear, 200
Fool ! have divulged the secret gift of God
To a deceitful woman ? Tell me, friends,
Am I not sung and proverb'd for a fool
In every street ? do they not say, How well
Are come upon him his deserts ! Yet why ?
Immeasurable strength they might behold
In me, of wisdom nothing more than mean :
This with the other should at least have paired ;
These two, proportioned ill, drove me transverse.

CHOR. Tax not divine disposal : wisest men 210
Have erred, and by bad women been deceived ;
And shall again, pretend they ne'er so wise.
Deject not then so overmuch thyself,
Who hast of sorrow thy full load besides.
Yet, truth to say, I oft have heard men wonder Why thou shouldst wed Philistian women rather Than of thine own tribe fairer, or as fair,
At least of thy own nation, and as noble.

SAMS. The first I saw at Timna, and she pleased
Me, not my parents, that I sought to wed 220
The daughter of an infidel. They knew not
That what I motioned was of God ; I knew
From intimate impulse, and therefore urged
The marriage on, that by occasion hence
I might begin Israel's deliverance,
The work to which I was divinely called.
She proving false, the next I took to wife,
O that I never had ! fond wish too late !
Was in the vale of Sorec, Dalila,
That specious monster, my accomplished snare. 230
I thought it lawful from my former act,
And the same end, still watching to oppress
Israel's oppressors. Of what now I suffer

Samson Agonistes

She was not the prime cause, but I myself,
Who, vanquished with a peal of words,—O weakness!—
Gave up my fort of silence to a woman.

CHOR. In seeking just occasion to provoke
The Philistine, thy country's enemy,
Thou never wast remiss, I bear thee witness :
Yet Israel still serves with all his sons. 240

SAMS. That fault I take not on me, but transfer
On Israel's governors, and heads of tribes,
Who, seeing those great acts which God had done
Singly by me against their conquerors,
Acknowledged not, or not at all considered
Deliverance offered. I, on the other side,
Used no ambition to commend my deeds ;
The deeds themselves, though mute, spoke loud the doer.

But they persisted deaf, and would not seem
To count them things worth notice, till at length 250
Their lords the Philistines with gathered powers
Entered Judea seeking me, who then
Safe to the rock of Etham¹ was retired,
Not flying, but forecasting in what place
To set upon them, what advantaged best.
Meanwhile the men of Judah, to prevent
The harass of their land, beset me round ;
I willingly on some conditions came Into their hands, and they as gladly yield me
To the uncircumcised a welcome prey, 260
Bound with two cords : but cords to me were threads Touched with the flame. On their whole host I flew Unarmed, and with a trivial weapon felled
Their choicest youth ; they only lived who fled.
Had Judah that day joined, or one whole tribe,
They had by this possessed the towers of Gath,
And lorded over them whom now they serve :
But what more oft in nations grown corrupt,
And by their vices brought to servitude,
Than to love bondage more than liberty, 270
Bondage with ease than strenuous liberty ;

¹ Judges xv. 8.

Samson Agonistes

And to despise, or envy, or suspect
Whom GOD hath of His special favour raised
As their deliverer? If he aught begin,
How frequent to desert him, and at last
To heap ingratitude on worthiest deeds.

CHOR. Thy words to my remembrance bring
How Succoth and the fort of Penuel
Their great deliverer contemned,¹
The matchless Gideon in pursuit
Of Madian and her vanquished kings :

280

And how ingrateful Ephraim
Had dealt with Jephtha,² who by argument,
Not worse than by his shield and spear,
Defended Israel from the Ammonite,
Had not his prowess quelled their pride
In that sore battle, when so many died
Without reprieve adjudged to death,³
For want of well pronouncing Shibboleth.

SAMS. Of such examples add me to the roll.
Me easily indeed mine may neglect,
But GOD's proposed deliverance not so.

290

CHOR. Just are the ways of GOD,
And justifiable to men ;
Unless there be who think not GOD at all :
If any be, they walk obscure ;
For of such doctrine never was there school,
But the heart of the fool,
And no man therein doctor but himself.

Yet more there be who doubt His ways not just,

300

And to His own edicts found contradicting,
Then give the reins to wand'ring thought,
Regardless of His glory's diminution ;
Till, by their own perplexities involved,
They ravel more, still less resolved,
But never find self-satisfying solution.

As if they would confine th' Interminable,
And tie Him to His own prescript,

¹ They refused Gideon provisions. See Judges viii. 4, 9.

² See Judges xi. 15-27.

³ Judges xii. 1-6.

Samson Agonistes

Who made our laws to bind us, not Himself,
And hath full right to exempt 310
Whomso it pleases Him by choice
From national obstruction, without taint
Of sin, or legal debt ;
For with His own laws He can best dispense.

He would not else, who never wanted means,
Nor in respect of th' enemy just cause
To set His people free,
Have prompted this heroic Nazarite,
Against his vow of strictest purity,
To seek in marriage that fallacious bride, 320
Unclean, unchaste.

Down, Reason, then ; at least, vain reasonings, down ;
Though Reason here aver
That moral verdict quits her of unclean :
Unchaste was subsequent, her stain not his.

But see ! here comes thy reverend sire,
With careful step, locks white as down,
Old Manoah ; advise
Forthwith how thou ought'st to receive him.
SAMS. Ay me ! another inward grief, awaked 330
With mention of that name, renews th' assault.

MAN. Brethren and men of Dan, for such ye seem,
Though in this uncouth place, if old respect,
As I suppose, towards your once gloried friend,
My son, now captive, hither hath informed
Your younger feet, while mine, cast back with age,
Came lagging after ; say if he be here.

CHOR. As signal now in low dejected state
As erst in highest, behold him where he lies.

MAN. O miserable change ! is this the man, 340
That invincible Samson, far renowned,
The dread of Israel's foes, who with a strength
Equivalent to angels' walked their streets,
None offering fight ; who single combatant
Duelled their armies ranked in proud array,
Himself an army, now unequal match

Samson Agonistes

To save himself against a coward armed
At one spear's length? O ever-failing trust
In mortal strength! and oh! what not in man
Deceivable and vain! nay, what thing good, 350
Prayed for, but often proves our woe, our bane?
I prayed for children, and thought barrenness
In wedlock a reproach; I gained a son,
And such a son as all men hailed me happy:
Who would be now a father in my stead?
O wherefore did God grant me my request,
And as a blessing with such pomp adorned?
Why are His gifts desirable, to tempt
Our earnest prayers, then, giv'n with solemn hand
As graces, draw a scorpion's tail behind? 360
For this did the angel twice descend? for this Ordained thy nurture holy, as of a plant
Select and sacred, glorious for a while,
The miracle of men; then in an hour
Ensnared, assaulted, overcome, led bound,
Thy foes' derision, captive, poor, and blind,
Into a dungeon thrust to work with slaves?
Alas! methinks whom God hath chosen once
To worthiest deeds, if he through frailty err,
He should not so o'erwhelm, and as a thrall 370
Subject him to so foul indignities,
Be it but for honour's sake of former deeds.

SAMS. Appoint¹ not heav'nly disposition, father:
Nothing of all these evils hath befall'n me
But justly; I myself have brought them on;
Sole author I, sole cause; if aught seem vile,
As vile hath been my folly, who have profaned
The mystery of God given me under pledge
Of vow, and have betrayed it to a woman,
A Canaanite, my faithless enemy. 380
This well I knew, nor was at all surprised,
But warned by oft experience: did not she
Of Timna first betray me, and reveal
The secret wrested from me in her highth
Of nuptial love professed, carrying it straight

¹ That is, arraign not, summon not to answer.—WARBURTON.

Samson Agonistes

To them who had corrupted her, my spies
And rivals? In this other was there found
More faith, who also in her prime of love,
Spousal embraces, vitiated with gold,
Though offered only, by the scent conceived 390
Her spurious first-born, treason against me?
Thrice she assayed, with flattering prayers and sighs,
And amorous reproaches, to win from me
My capital secret,—in what part my strength Lay stored, in what part summed, that she might know ;—

Thrice I deluded her, and turned to sport
Her importunity, each time perceiving
How openly and with what impudence
She purposed to betray me, and, which was worse
Than undissembled hate, with what contempt 400
She sought to make me traitor to myself ;
Yet, the fourth time, when, mustering all her wiles,
With blandished parleys, feminine assaults,
Tongue-batteries, she surceased not day nor night
To storm me over-watched and wearied out,
At times when men seek most repose and rest,
I yielded, and unlocked her all my heart,
Who with a grain of manhood well resolved
Might easily have shook off all her snares :
But foul effeminacy held me yoked 410
Her bond-slave. O indignity ! O blot
To honour and religion ! servile mind
Rewarded well with servile punishment !
The base degree to which I now am fall'n,
These rags, this grinding, is not yet so base
As was my former servitude, ignoble,
Unmanly, ignominious, infamous,
True slavery ; and that blindness worse than this,
That saw not how degenerately I served.

MAN. I cannot praise thy marriage choices, son, 420
Rather approved them not ; but thou didst plead
Divine impulsion prompting how thou might'st
Find some occasion to infest our foes.
I state not that ; this I am sure, our foes

Samson Agonistes

Found soon occasion thereby to make thee
Their captive and their triumph ; thou the sooner
Temptation found'st, or over-potent charms
To violate the sacred trust of silence
Deposited within thee ; which to have kept Tacit was in thy power. True : and thou bear'st 430
Enough and more the burthen of that fault ;
Bitterly hast thou paid, and still art paying
That rigid score. A worse thing yet remains :
This day the Philistines a popular feast
Here celebrate in Gaza ;¹ and proclaim
Great pomp, and sacrifice, and praises loud
To Dagon, as their god, who hath delivered
Thee, Samson, bound and blind into their hands,
Them out of thine, who slew'st them many a slain.

So Dagon shall be magnified, and God, 440
Besides whom is no GOD, compared with idols,
Disglorified, blasphemed, and had in scorn
By the idolatrous rout amidst their wine ;
Which to have come to pass by means of thee,
Samson, of all thy sufferings think the heaviest,
Of all reproach the most with shame that ever
Could have befall'n thee and thy father's house.

SAMS. Father, I do acknowledge and confess
That I this honour, I this pomp, have brought
To Dagon, and advanced his praises high 450
Among the heathen round ; to GOD have brought Dishonour, obloquy, and oped the mouths
Of idolists and atheists ; have brought scandal
To Israel, diffidence of GOD, and doubt
In feeble hearts, propense enough before
To waver, or fall off, and join with idols ;
Which is my chief affliction, shame, and sorrow,
The anguish of my soul, that suffers not
Mine eye to harbour sleep, or thoughts to rest.
This only hope relieves me, that the strife 460
With me hath end ; all the contést is now
'Twixt God and Dagon ; Dagon hath presumed,

¹ Judges xvi. 23.

Samson Agonistes

Me overthrown, to enter lists with God,
His deity comparing and preferring
Before the God of Abraham. He, be sure,
Will not connive, or linger, thus provoked,
But will arise, and His great name assert :
Dagon must stoop, and shall ere long receive
Such a discomfit, as shall quite despoil him
Of all these boasted trophies won on me, 470
And with confusion blank ¹ his worshippers.

MAN. With cause this hope relieves thee, and these words

I as a prophecy receive : for God,
Nothing more certain, will not long defer
To vindicate the glory of His name
Against all competition, nor will long
Endure it, doubtful whether God be lord,
Or Dagon. But for thee what shall be done ?
Thou must not in the meanwhile here forgot
Lie in this miserable loathsome plight 480
Neglected. I already have made way
To some Philistian lords, with whom to treat
About thy ransom : well they may by this
Have satisfied their utmost of revenge
By pains and slaveries, worse than death, inflicted
On thee, who now no more canst do them harm.

SAMS. Spare that proposal, father, spare the trouble

Of that solicitation : let me here,
As I deserve, pay on my punishment,
And expiate, if possible, my crime, 490
Shameful garrulity. To have revealed
Secrets of men, the secrets of a friend,
How heinous had the fact been, how deserving Contempt and scorn of all ; to be excluded
All friendship, and avoided as a blab,
The mark of fool set on his front !
But I God's counsel have not kept, His holy secret
Presumptuously have published, impiously,
Weakly at least, and shamefully ; a sin

¹ Confound.

Samson Agonistes

That Gentiles in their parables condemn 500
To their abyss and horrid pains confined.¹

MAN. Be penitent and for thy fault contrite,
But act not in thy own affliction, son ;
Repent the sin, but if the punishment
Thou canst avoid, self-preservation bids ;
Or th' execution leave to high disposal,
And let another hand, not thine, exact
Thy penal forfeit from thyself ; perhaps
GOD will relent, and quit thee all His debt,
Who evermore approves and more accepts, 510
—Best pleased with humble and filial submission,—
Him who imploring mercy sues for life,
Than who self-rigorous chooses death as due,
Which argues over-just, and self-displeased
For self-offence, more than for God offended.
Reject not then what offered means : who knows
But God hath set before us, to return thee
Home to thy country and His sacred house,
Where thou may'st bring thy off'rings, to avert
His further ire, with prayers and vows renewed? 520

SAMS. His pardon I implore ; but as for life,
To what end should I seek it ? when in strength
All mortals I excelled, and great in hopes
With youthful courage and magnanimous thoughts
Of birth from heav'n foretold, and high exploits,
Full of divine instinct, after some proof
Of acts indeed heroic, far beyond
The sons of Anak, famous now and blazed,
Fearless of danger, like a petty god
I walked about, admired of all and dreaded 530
On hostile ground, none daring my affront.
Then, swoll'n with pride, into the snare I fell
Of fair fallacious looks, venereal trains,
Softened with pleasure and voluptuous life,
At length to lay my head and hallowed pledge
Of all my strength in the lascivious lap

¹ Milton is supposed here to allude to the fable of Tantalus, who, for revealing the secrets of the gods, was punished in hell by an insatiable thirst, and, though placed in a pool of water, could never succeed in tasting a drop.

Samson Agonistes

Of a deceitful concubine, who shore me,
Like a tame wether, all my precious fleece,
Then turned me out ridiculous, despoiled,
Shav'n, and disarmed, among mine enemies. 540

CHOR. Desire of wine and all delicious drinks,
Which many a famous warrior overturns,
Thou could'st repress, nor did the dancing ruby,
Sparkling out-poured, the flavour or the smell,
Or taste, that cheers the hearts of gods and men,¹ Allure thee from the cool crystalline stream.

SAMS. Wherever fountain or fresh current flowed
Against the eastern ray, translucent, pure,
With touch ethereal of heav'n's fiery rod,
I drank, from the clear milky juice allaying 550
Thirst, and refreshed ; nor envied them the grape,
Whose heads that turbulent liquor fills with fumes.

CHOR. O madness, to think use of strongest wines
And strongest drinks our chief support of health,
When GOD with these forbidden made choice to rear
His mighty champion, strong above compare,
Whose drink was only from the liquid brook.²

SAMS. But what availed this temperance, not complete
Against another object more enticing ?
What boots it at one gate to make defence, 560
And at another to let in the foe,
Effeminately vanquished ? by which means,
Now blind, disheartened, shamed, dishonoured, quelled,
To what can I be useful, wherein serve
My nation, and the work from heav'n imposed ?
But to sit idle on the household hearth,
A burd'nous drone ; to visitants a gaze,
Or pitied object, these redundant locks
Robustious to no purpose clust'ring down,
Vain monument of strength, till length of years 570
And sedentary numbness craze my limbs
To a contemptible old age obscure ?
Here rather let me drudge and earn my bread,

¹ Judges ix. 13 : "Wine which cheereth God and man."

² Samson was a Nazarite from his birth. See Judges xiii. 7 ; Num. vi.

Samson Agonistes

Till vermin or the draff¹ of servile food
Consume me, and oft-invoked death
Hasten the welcome end of all my pains.

MAN. Wilt thou then serve the Philistines with that gift

Which was expressly given thee to annoy them?

Better at home lie bedrid, not only idle,

Inglorious, unemployed, with age outworn.

580

But GOD, who caused a fountain at thy prayer

From the dry ground to spring,² thy thirst to allay

After the brunt of battle, can as easy

Cause light again within thy eyes to spring,

Wherewith to serve Him better than thou hast ;

And I persuade me so : why else this strength

Miraculous yet remaining in those locks ?

His might continues in thee not for nought,

Nor shall His wondrous gifts be frustrate thus.

SAMS. All otherwise to me my thoughts portend, 590

That these dark orbs no more shall treat with light,

Nor the other light of life continue long,

But yield to double darkness nigh at hand :

So much I feel my genial spirits droop,

My hopes all flat, nature within me seems

In all her functions weary of herself,

My race of glory run, and race of shame,

And I shall shortly be with them that rest.

MAN. Believe not these suggestions, which proceed
From anguish of the mind and humours black, 600

That mingle with thy fancy. I, however,

Must not omit a father's timely care

To prosecute the means of thy deliverance

By ransom or how else : meanwhile be calm,

And healing words from these thy friends admit. [Exit.]

SAMS. O that torment should not be confined

To the body's wounds and sores,

With maladies innumerable

² Milton differs from our translation of the Bible. See Judges xv. 18, 19. He agrees with the Chaldee paraphrast, who understood that God made a cleft in the earth or rock at a place called Lehi. Lehi also signifies a jaw. See NEWTON's notes.

Samson Agonistes

In heart, head, breast, and reins ;
But must secret passage find 610
To the inmost mind,
There exercise all his fierce accidents,
And on her purest spirits prey,
As on entrails, joints, and limbs,
With answerable pains, but more intense,
Though void of corporal sense.

My griefs not only pain me
As a lingering disease,
But, finding no redress, ferment and rage,
Nor less than wounds immedicable 620
Rankle, and fester, and gangrene,
To black mortification.
Thoughts, my tormentors, armed with deadly stings,
Mangle my apprehensive tenderest parts,
Exasperate, exulcerate, and raise
Dire inflammation, which no cooling herb,
Or medicinal¹ liquor can assuage,
Nor breath of vernal air from snowy Alp.
Sleep hath forsook and given me o'er
To death's benumbing opium as my only cure : 630
Thence faintings, swoonings of despair,
And sense of heav'n's desertion.

I was His nursling once, and choice delight,
His destined from the womb,
Promised by heavenly message twice descending :
Under His special eye
Abstemious I grew up and thrived amain ;
He led me on to mightiest deeds,
Above the nerve of mortal arm,
Against the uncircumcised, our enemies : 640
But now hath cast me off as never known,
And to those cruel enemies,
Whom I by His appointment had provoked,
Left me all helpless with the irreparable loss
Of sight, reserved alive to be repeated
The subject of their cruelty and scorn.
Nor am I in the list of them that hope ;

¹ Milton always spells this word "medcinal."—MITFORD.

Samson Agonistes

Hopeless are all my evils, all remediless ;
This one prayer yet remains, might I be heard,
No long petition—speedy death, 650
The close of all my miseries, and the balm.

CHOR. Many are the sayings of the wise,
In ancient and in modern books enrolled,
Extolling patience as the truest fortitude ;
And to the bearing well of all calamities,
All chances incident to man's frail life,
Consolatories writ
With studied argument, and much persuasion sought,
Lenient of grief and anxious thought :
But with the afflicted in his pangs their sound 660
Little prevails, or rather seems a tune
Harsh and of dissonant mood from his complaint,
Unless he feel within
Some source of consolation from above,
Secret refreshings, that repair his strength,
And fainting spirits uphold.

GOD of our fathers, what is man !
That thou towards him with hand so various,
Or may I say contrarious,
Temper'st thy providence through his short course
Not evenly, as thou rul'st 670
The angelic orders and inferior creatures mute,
Irrational and brute.

Nor do I name of men the common rout,
That wandering loose about
Grow up and perish, as the summer fly,
Heads without name no more remembered,
But such as thou hast solemnly elected,
With gifts and graces eminently adorned
To some great work, thy glory, 680
And people's safety, which in part they effect :
Yet toward these thus dignified, thou oft
Amidst their height of noon,
Changest thy countenance, and thy hand with no regard
Of highest favours past
From thee on them, or them to thee of service.

Samson Agonistes

Nor only dost degrade them, or remit
To life obscured, which were a fair dismissal,
But throw'st them lower than thou didst exalt them high,
Unseemly falls in human eye, 690
Too grievous for the trespass of omission ;
Oft leav'st them to the hostile sword
Of heathen and profane, their carcasses
To dogs and fowls a prey, or else captiv'd ;
Or to the unjust tribunals, under change of times,
And condemnation of the ingrateful multitude.
If these they 'scape, perhaps in poverty
With sickness and disease thou bow'st them down,
Painful diseases and deformed,
In crude old age : 700
Though not disordinate, yet causeless suff'ring
The punishment of dissolute days : in fine,
Just or unjust, alike seem miserable,
For oft alike both come to evil end.

So deal not with this once thy glorious champion,
The image of thy strength, and mighty minister.
What do I beg? how hast thou dealt already !
Behold him in this state calamitous, and turn
His labours, for thou canst, to peaceful end.

But who is this? what thing of sea or land? 710
Female of sex it seems,
That so bedecked, ornate, and gay,
Comes this way sailing
Like a stately ship.
Of Tarsus, bound for the isles
Of Javan or Gadire,¹
With all her bravery on, and tackle trim,
Sails filled, and streamers waving,
Court'd by all the winds that hold them play,
An amber scent of odorous perfume 720
Her harbinger ; a damsel train behind?
Some rich Philistian matron she may seem ;
And now, at nearer view, no other certain
Than Dalila thy wife.

SAMS. My wife ! my traitress ! let her not come near me.

¹ Cadiz.

Samson Agonistes

CHOR. Yet on she moves, now stands and eyes thee fixed,

About to have spoke, but now, with head declined,
Like a fair flow'r surcharged with dew, she weeps,
And words addressed seem into tears dissolved,
Wetting the borders of her silken veil : 730
But now again she makes address to speak.

DAL. With doubtful feet and wavering resolution
I came, still dreading thy displeasure, Samson ;
Which to have merited, without excuse,
I cannot but acknowledge ; yet if tears
May expiate, though the fact more evil drew
In the perverse event than I foresaw,
My penance hath not slackened, though my pardon
No way assured : but conjugal affection,
Prevailing over fear and timorous doubt, 740
Hath led me on, desirous to behold
Once more thy face, and know of thy estate,
If aught in my ability may serve
To lighten what thou suffer'st, and appease
Thy mind with what amends is in my power,
Though late, yet in some part to recompense
My rash, but more unfortunate, misdeed.

SAMS. Out, out, hyæna ! these are thy wonted arts,

And arts of every woman false like thee,
To break all faith, all vows, deceive, betray, 750
Then, as repentant, to submit, beseech,
And reconciliation move with feigned remorse,
Confess, and promise wonders in her change :
Not truly penitent, but chief to try
Her husband, how far urged his patience bears,
His virtue or weakness which way to assail ;
Then with more cautious and instructed skill
Again transgresses, and again submits ;
That wisest and best men full oft beguiled,
With goodness principled not to reject 760
The penitent, but ever to forgive,
Are drawn to wear out miserable days,
Entangled with a pois'nous bosom snake,

Samson Agonistes

If not by quick destruction soon cut off,
As I by thee ; to ages an example.

DAL. Yet hear me, Samson ; not that I endeavour
To lessen or extenuate my offence,
But that, on th' other side, if it be weighed
By itself, with aggravations not surcharged,
Or else with just allowance counterpoised, 770
I may, if possible, thy pardon find
The easier towards me, or thy hatred less.
First granting, as I do, it was a weakness
In me, but incident to all our sex,
Curiosity, inquisitive, importune
Of secrets, then with like infirmity
To publish them, both common female faults :
Was it not weakness also to make known
For importunity, that is, for nought,
Wherein consisted all thy strength and safety ? 780
To what I did thou show'dst me first the way.
But I to enemies revealed, and should not ;
Nor should'st thou have trusted that to woman's frailty :
Ere I to thee, thou to thyself wast cruel.
Let weakness then with weakness come to parle,
So near related, or the same of kind,
Thine forgive mine ; that men may censure thine
The gentler, if severely thou exact not
More strength from me than in thyself was found.
And what if love, which thou interpret'st hate, 790
The jealousy of love, powerful of sway
In human hearts, nor less in mine towards thee,
Caused what I did ? I saw thee mutable
Of fancy, feared lest one day thou would'st leave me
As her at Timna, sought by all means therefore
How to endear, and hold thee to me firmest :
No better way I saw than by importuning
To learn thy secrets, get into my power
Thy key of strength and safety. Thou wilt say,
"Why then revealed ?" I was assured by those 800
Who tempted me, that nothing was designed
Against thee but safe custody and hold :
That made for me ; I knew that liberty

Samson Agonistes

Would draw thee forth to perilous enterprises,
While I at home sat full of cares and fears,
Wailing thy absence in my widowed bed :
Here I should still enjoy thee day and night,
Mine and love's prisoner, not the Philistines',
Whole to myself, unhazarded abroad,
Fearless at home of partners in my love. 810
These reasons in love's law have passed for good,
Though fond and reasonless to some perhaps :
And love hath oft, well meaning, wrought much woe,
Yet always pity or pardon hath obtained.
Be not unlike all others, not austere
As thou art strong, inflexible as steel.
If thou in strength all mortals dost exceed,
In uncompassionate anger do not so.

SAMS. How cunningly the sorceress displays
Her own transgressions, to upbraid me mine ! 820
That malice not repentance brought thee hither,
By this appears : I gave, thou say'st, th' example,
I led the way ; bitter reproach, but true ;
I to myself was false ere thou to me ;
Such pardon therefore as I give my folly,
Take to thy wicked deed ; which when thou seest
Impartial, self-severe, inexorable,
Thou wilt renounce thy seeking, and much rather Confess it feigned. Weakness is thy excuse,
And I believe it, weakness to resist 830
Philistian gold. If weakness may excuse,
What murderer, what traitor, parricide,
Incestuous, sacrilegious, but may plead it ?
All wickedness is weakness : that plea therefore
With God or man will gain thee no remission.
But love constrained thee ? call it furious rage
To satisfy thy lust. Love seeks to have love :
My love how could'st thou hope, who took'st the way
To raise in me inexpiable hate,
Knowing, as needs I must, by thee betrayed ? 840
In vain thou strivest to cover shame with shame,
Or by evasions thy crime uncoverest more.

DAL. Since thou determinest weakness for no plea

Samson Agonistes

In man or woman, though to thy own condemning,
Hear what assaults I had, what snares besides,
What sieges girt me round, ere I consented,
Which might have awed the best resolved of men,
The constantest, to have yielded without blame.
It was not gold, as to my charge thou lay'st,
That wrought with me. Thou know'st the magistrates
And princes of my country came in person,¹ [850
Solicited, commanded, threatened, urged,
Adjured by all the bonds of civil duty
And of religion, pressed how just it was,
How honourable, how glorious, to entrap
A common enemy, who had destroyed
Such numbers of our nation : and the priest
Was not behind, but ever at my ear,
Preaching how meritorious with the gods
It would be to ensnare an irreligious 860
Dishonourer of Dagon. What had I
To oppose against such powerful arguments?
Only my love of thee held long debate,
And combated in silence all these reasons
With hard contest : at length that grounded maxim,
So rife and celebrated in the mouths
Of wisest men, that to the public good
Private respects must yield, with grave authority
Took full possession of me and prevailed ;
Virtue, as I thought, truth, duty, so enjoining. 870 SAMS. I thought where all thy circling wiles would end :

In feigned religion, smooth hypocrisy.
But had thy love, still odiously pretended,
Been, as it ought, sincere, it would have taught thee
Far other reasonings, brought forth other deeds.
I, before all the daughters of my tribe
And of my nation, chose thee from among
My enemies, loved thee, as too well thou knew'st,
Too well, unbosomed all my secrets to thee,
Not out of levity, but over-powered 880
By thy request, who could deny thee nothing ;

¹ Judges xvi. 5.

Samson Agonistes

Yet now am judged an enemy. Why then
Didst thou at first receive me for thy husband,
Then, as since then, thy country's foe professed?
Being once a wife, for me thou wast to leave
Parents and country; nor was I their subject,
Nor under their protection, but my own;
Thou mine, not theirs. If aught against my life
Thy country sought of thee, it sought unjustly,
Against the law of nature, law of nations; 890
No more thy country, but an impious crew
Of men, conspiring to uphold their state
By worse than hostile deeds, violating the ends
For which our country is a name so dear;
Not therefore to be obeyed. But zeal moved thee;
To please thy gods thou didst it; gods unable
To acquit themselves and prosecute their foes
But by ungodly deeds; the contradiction
Of their own deity, gods cannot be;
Less therefore to be pleased, obeyed, or feared. 900
These false prettexts and varnished colours failing,
Bare in thy guilt how foul must thou appear!

DAL. In argument with men a woman ever
Goes by the worse, whatever be her cause.

SAMS. For want of words, no doubt, or lack of breath!
Witness when I was worried with thy peals.

DAL. I was a fool, too rash, and quite mistaken
In what I thought would have succeeded best.

Let me obtain forgiveness of thee, Samson,
Afford me place to show what recompense 910
Towards thee I intend for what I have misdone,
Misguided; only what remains past cure
Bear not too sensibly, nor still insist
To afflict thyself in vain. Though sight be lost,
Life yet hath many solaces, enjoyed
Where other senses want not their delights,
At home, in leisure, and domestic ease,
Exempt from many a care and chance to which Eyesight exposes daily men abroad.

I to the lords will intercede, not doubting 920
Their favourable ear, that I may fetch thee

Samson Agonistes

From forth this loathsome prison-house, to abide
With me, where my redoubled love and care,
With nursing diligence, to me glad office,
May ever tend about thee to old age,
With all things grateful cheered, and so supplied,
That what by me thou hast lost thou least shalt miss.

SAMS. No, no; of my condition take no care;
It fits not; thou and I long since are twain;
Nor think me so unwary or accurst, 930
To bring my feet again into the snare
Where once I have been caught: I know thy trains,
Though dearly to my cost, thy gins, and toils;
Thy fair enchanted cup and warbling charms
No more on me have power, their force is nulled;
So much of adder's wisdom I have learnt,
To fence my ear against thy sorceries.
If in my flower of youth and strength, when all men
Loved, honoured, feared me, thou alone could'st hate me,
Thy husband, slight me, sell me, and forego me; 940
How would'st thou use me now, blind, and thereby
Deceivable, in most things as a child
Helpless, thence easily contemned, and scorned,
And last neglected? how would'st thou insult,
When I must live uxorious to thy will
In perfect thralldom; how again betray me,
Bearing my words and doings to the lords
To gloss upon, and, censuring, frown or smile!
This gaol I count the house of liberty
To thine, whose doors my feet shall never enter. 950

DAL. Let me approach at least and touch thy hand.

SAMS. Not for thy life, lest fierce remembrance wake
My sudden rage to tear thee joint by joint.
At distance I forgive thee; go with that,
Bewail thy falsehood, and the pious works
It hath brought forth to make thee memorable
Among illustrious women, faithful wives:
Cherish thy hastened widowhood with the gold
Of matrimonial treason: so farewell.

DAL. I see thou art implacable, more deaf 960
To prayers than winds and seas; yet winds to seas

Samson Agonistes

Are reconciled at length, and sea to shore :
Thy anger, unappeasable, still rages,
Eternal tempest never to be calmed.
Why do I humble thus myself, and, suing
For peace, reap nothing but repulse and hate,
Bid go with evil omen, and the brand
Of infamy upon my name denounced ?
To mix with thy concernments I desist
Henceforth, nor too much disapprove my own. 970
Fame, if not double-faced, is double-mouthed,
And with contráry blasts proclaims most deeds
On both his wings, one black, the other white,
Bears greatest names in his wild aery flight.
My name perhaps among the circumcised,
In Dan, in Judah, and the bordering tribes,
To all posterity may stand defamed,
With malediction mentioned, and the blot
Of falsehood most unconjugal traduced.
But in my country, where I most desire, 980
In Ecron, Gaza, Asdod, and in Gath,
I shall be named among the famousest
Of women, sung at solemn festivals,
Living and dead recorded, who to save
Her country from a fierce destroyer chose
Above the faith of wedlock-bands ; my tomb
With odours visited and annual flowers ;
Not less renowned than in Mount Ephraim
Jael, who with inhospitable guile
Smote Sisera sleeping through the temples nailed.¹ 990
Nor shall I count it heinous to enjoy
The public marks of honour and reward
Conferred upon me, for the piety
Which to my country I was judged to have shown.
At this who ever envies or repines,
I leave him to his lot, and like my own. [Exit.
CHOR. She's gone, a manifest serpent by her sting,
Discovered in the end, till now concealed.
SAMS. So let her go : GOD sent her to debase me,
And aggravate my folly, who committed 1000

¹ Judges v.

Samson Agonistes

To such a viper His most sacred trust
Of secrecy, my safety, and my life.

CHOR. Yet beauty, though injurious, hath strange
After offence returning, to regain [power,
Love once possessed, nor can be easily
Repulsed, without much inward passion felt
And secret sting of amorous remorse.

SAMS. Love-quarrels oft in pleasing concord end ;
Not wedlock-treachery endangering life.

CHOR. It is not virtue, wisdom, valour, wit, 1010
Strength, comeliness of shape, or amplest merit,
That woman's love can win or long inherit ;
But what it is, hard is to say,
Harder to hit,
Which way soever men refer it,
Much like thy riddle, Samson, in one day
Or seven, though one should musing sit.

If any of these, or all, the Timnian bride
Had not so soon preferred
Thy paranymp¹,¹ worthless to thee compared, 1020
Successor in thy bed,
Nor both so loosely disallied
Their nuptials, nor this last so treacherously
Had shorn the fatal harvest of thy head.
Is it for that such outward ornament
Was lavished on their sex, that inward gifts
Were left for haste unfinished, judgment scant,
Capacity not raised to apprehend
Or value what is best
In choice, but ofttest to affect the wrong? 1030
Or was too much of self-love mixed,
Of constancy no root infixed,
That either they love nothing, or not long?

Whate'er it be, to wisest men and best
Seeming at first all heav'nly under virgin veil,
Soft, modest, meek, demure,
Once joined, the contrary she proves, a thorn
Intestine, far within defensive arms
A cleaving mischief, in his way to virtue

¹ Bridegroom's-man. Judges xiv. 20.

Samson Agonistes

Adverse and turbulent, or by her charms 1040
Draws him awry enslaved
With dotage, and his sense depraved
To folly and shameful deeds which ruin ends.
What pilot so expert but needs must wreck,
Imbarked with such a steers-mate at the helm?

Favoured of heav'n who finds
One virtuous, rarely found,
That in domestic good combines :
Happy that house ! his way to peace is smooth ;
But virtue, which breaks through all opposition, 1050
And all temptation can remove,
Most shines and most is acceptable above.

Therefore God's universal law
Gave to the man despotic power
Over his female in due awe,
Nor from that right to part an hour,
Smile she or lour :
So shall he least confusion draw
On his whole life, not swayed
By female usurpation, or dismayed. 1060

But had we best retire ? I see a storm.

SAMS. Fair days have oft contracted wind and rain.

CHOR. But this another kind of tempest brings.

SAMS. Be less abstruse ; my riddling days are past.

CHOR. Look now for no enchanting voice, nor fear
The bait of honeyed words ; a rougher tongue
Draws hitherward, I know him by his stride,
The giant Harapha of Gath, his look
Haughty as is his pile high-built and proud.
Comes he in peace ? what wind hath blown him hither
I less conjecture than when first I saw [1070
The sumptuous Dalila floating this way :
His habit carries peace, his brow defiance.

SAMS. Or peace or not, alike to me he comes.

CHOR. His freight¹ we soon shall know, he now arrives.

HARAPHA. I come not, Samson, to condole thy chance,

¹ Freight ; his purpose, with which he is freighted.

Samson Agonistes

As these perhaps, yet wish it had not been,
Though for no friendly intent. I am of Gath,
Men call me Harapha, of stock renowned
As Og, or Anak, and the Emims old 1080
That Kiriathaim¹ held; thou know'st me now,
If thou at all art known. Much I have heard
Of thy prodigious might and feats performed,
Incredible to me, in this displeased,
That I was never present on the place
Of those encounters, where we might have tried
Each other's force in camp or listed field:
And now am come to see of whom such noise
Hath walked about, and each limb to survey,
If thy appearance answer loud report. 1090

SAMS. The way to know were not to see, but taste.

HAR. Dost thou already single me? I thought
Gyves and the mill had tamed thee. O that fortune
Had brought me to the field where thou art famed
To have wrought such wonders with an ass's jaw!
I should have forced thee soon with other arms,
Or left thy carcass where the ass lay thrown;
So had the glory of prowess been recovered
To Palestine, won by a Philistine
From the unforeskinned race, of whom thou bearest
The highest name for valiant acts: that honour [1100
Certain to have won by mortal duel from thee,
I lose, prevented by thy eyes put out.

SAMS. Boast not of what thou would'st have done, but do

What then thou would'st, thou seest it in thy hand.

HAR. To combat with a blind man I disdain,
And thou hast need much washing to be touched.

SAMS. Such usage as your honourable lords
Afford me, assassinated and betrayed,
Who durst not with their whole united powers 1110
In fight withstand me single and unarmed,
Nor in the house with chamber ambushes
Close-banded durst attack me, no, not sleeping,
Till they had hired a woman with their gold,

¹ Gen. xiv. 5.

Samson Agonistes

Breaking her marriage faith to circumvent me.
Therefore, without feigned shifts, let be assigned
Some narrow place inclosed, where sight may give thee,

Or rather flight, no great advantage on me ;
Then put on all thy gorgeous arms, thy helmet
And brigandine of brass,¹ thy broad habergeon, 1120
Vant-brass and greaves, and gauntlet, add thy spear,
A weaver's beam, and seven-times-folded shield ;
I only with an oaken staff will meet thee,
And raise such outcries on thy clattered iron,
Which long shall not withhold me from thy head,
That in a little time, while breath remains thee,
Thou oft shalt wish thyself at Gath, to boast
Again in safety what thou would'st have done
To Samson, but shalt never see Gath more.

HAR. Thou durst not thus disparage glorious arms,
Which greatest heroes have in battle worn, [1130
Their ornament and safety, had not spells
And black enchantments, some magician's art, Armed thee, or charmed thee strong, which thou from heav'n

Feignedst at thy birth was giv'n thee in thy hair,
Where strength can least abide, though all thy hairs
Were bristles ranged like those that ridge the back
Of chafed wild boars or ruffled porcupines.

SAMS. I know no spells, use no forbidden arts ;
My trust is in the living GOD, who gave me 1140
At my nativity this strength, diffused
No less through all my sinews, joints, and bones,
Than thine, while I preserved these locks unshorn,
The pledge of my unviolated vow.
For proof hereof, if Dagon be thy god,
Go to his temple, invoke his aid
With solemnest devotion, spread before him
How highly it concerns his glory now
To frustrate and dissolve these magic spells,
Which I to be the power of Israel's God 1150

¹ Coat of mail, armour for the neck and shoulders. Vant-brace is armour for the arms. Greaves covered the legs.

Samson Agonistes

Avow, and challenge Dagon to the test,
Offering to combat thee his champion bold,
With the utmost of his godhead seconded :
Then thou shalt see, or rather to thy sorrow
Soon feel, whose GOD is strongest, thine or mine.

HAR. Presume not on thy GOD, whate'er He be,
Thee He regards not, owns not, hath cut off
Quite from His people, and delivered up
Into thy enemies' hand ; permitted them
To put out both thine eyes, and fettered send thee
Into the common prison, there to grind [1160
Among the slaves and asses, thy comrades,
As good for nothing else, no better service
With those thy boisterous locks ; no worthy match
For valour to assail, nor by the sword
Of noble warrior, so to stain his honour,
But by the barber's razor best subdued.

SAMS. All these indignities, for such they are
From thine, these evils I deserve and more,
Acknowledge them from GOD inflicted on me 1170
Justly, yet despair not of His final pardon
Whose ear is ever open, and His eye
Gracious to readmit the suppliant ;
In confidence whereof I once again
Defy thee to the trial of mortal fight,
By combat to decide whose god is GOD,
Thine, or Whom I with Israel's sons adore.

HAR. Fair honour that thou dost thy GOD, in trusting
He will accept thee to defend His cause,
A murderer, a revolter, and a robber ! 1180

SAMS. Tongue-doughty giant, how dost thou prove me these ?

HAR. Is not thy nation subject to our lords ?
Their magistrates confessed it, when they took thee
As a league-breaker, and delivered bound
Into our hands ; for hadst thou not committed
Notorious murder on those thirty men
At Ascalon, who never did thee harm,
Then like a robber strippedst them of their robes ?
The Philistines, when thou hadst broke the league,

Samson Agonistes

Went up with armèd powers thee only seeking, 1190
To others did no violence nor spoil.

SAMS. Among the daughters of the Philistines
I chose a wife, which argued me no foe ;
And in your city held my nuptial feast :
But your ill-meaning politician lords,
Under pretence of bridal friends and guests,
Appointed to await me thirty spies,
Who, threat'ning cruel death, constrained the bride
To wring from me and tell to them my secret,
That solved the riddle which I had proposed. 1200

When I perceived all set on enmity,
As on my enemies, wherever chanced,
I used hostility, and took their spoil
To pay my underminers in their coin.
My nation was subjected to your lords ?
It was the force of conquest ; force with force
Is well ejected when the conquered can.
But I, a private person, whom my country
As a league-breaker gave up bound, presumed Single rebellion, and did hostile acts ! 1210

I was no private, but a person raised
With strength sufficient and command from heav'n
To free my country ; if their servile minds
Me their deliverer sent would not receive,
But to their masters gave me up for nought,
The unworthier they ; whence to this day they serve.
I was to do my part from heav'n assigned,
And had performed it, if my known offence
Had not disabled me ; not all your force :
These shifts refuted, answer thy appelland, 1220
Though by his blindness maimed for high attempts,
Who now defies thee thrice to single fight,
As a petty enterprise of small enforce.

HAR. With thee, a man condemned, a slave enrolled,
Due by the law to capital punishment ?
To fight with thee no man of arms will deign.

SAMS. Camest thou for this, vain boaster, to survey me,
To descant on my strength, and give thy verdict ?

Samson Agonistes

Come nearer ; part not hence so slight informed ;
But take good heed my hand survey not thee. 1230

HAR. O Baal-zebub !¹ can my ears unused
Hear these dishonours, and not render death ?

SAMS. No man withholds thee ; nothing from thy hand

Fear I incurable ; bring up thy van,
My heels are fettered, but my fist is free.

HAR. This insolence other kind of answer fits.

SAMS. Go, baffled coward, lest I run upon thee,
Though in these chains—bulk without spirit vast—
And with one buffet lay thy structure low,
Or swing thee in the air, then dash thee down 1240
To the hazard of thy brains and shattered sides.

HAR. By Astaroth,² ere long thou shalt lament
These braveries in irons loaden on thee. [Exit.

CHOR. His giantship is gone, somewhat crestfall'n
Stalking with less unconscionable strides,
And lower looks, but in a sultry chafe.

SAMS. I dread him not, nor all his giant brood,
Though fame divulge him father of five sons,
All of gigantic size, Goliath chief.

CHOR. He will directly to the lords, I fear, 1250
And with malicious counsel stir them up
Some way or other yet further to afflict thee.

SAMS. He must allege some cause, and offered fight
Will not dare mention, lest a question rise
Whether he durst accept the offer or not,
And that he durst not plain enough appeared.
Much more affliction than already felt
They cannot well impose, nor I sustain,
If they intend advantage of my labours,
The work of many hands, which earns my keeping, 1260
With no small profit daily to my owners.
But come what will, my deadliest foe will prove My speediest friend, by death to rid me hence,
The worst that he can give, to me the best.

¹ A deity of the Philistines ; the god of flies.

² Another deity of the Philistines and Sidonians. The "Venus" of the East, or, it is thought, the Moon.

Samson Agonistes

Yet so it may fall out, because their end
Is hate, not help to me, it may with mine
Draw their own ruin who attempt the deed.

CHOR. Oh, how comely it is, and how reviving
To the spirits of just men long oppressed !
When God into the hands of their deliverer 1270 Puts invincible might

To quell the mighty of the earth, the oppressor,
The brute and boisterous force of violent men,
Hardy and industrious to support
Tyrannic power, but raging to pursue
The righteous, and all such as honour truth !
He all their ammunition

And feats of war defeats,
With plain heroic magnitude of mind
And celestial vigour armed, 1280
Their armouries and magazines contemns,
Renders them useless, while
With wingèd expedition,
Swift as the lightn'ing glance, he executes
His errand on the wicked, who, surprised,
Lose their defence, distracted and amazed.

But Patience is more oft the exercise
Of saints, the trial of their fortitude,
Making them each his own deliverer,
And victor over all 1290

That tyranny or fortune can inflict :
Either of these is in thy lot,
Samson, with might endued
Above the sons of men ; but sight bereaved
May chance to number thee with those Whom Patience finally must crown.

This idol's day hath been to thee no day of rest,
Labouring thy mind

More than the working day thy hands.
And yet perhaps more trouble is behind, 1300
For I descry this way

Some other tending ; in his hand
A sceptre or quaint staff he bears,
Comes on amain, speed in his look.

Samson Agonistes

By his habit I discern him now
A public officer, and now at hand.

His message will be short and voluble.

OFF. Hebrews, the pris'ner Samson here I seek.

CHOR. His manacles remark him ; there he sits.

OFF. Samson, to thee our lords thus bid me say :

This day to Dagon is a solemn feast, [1310

With sacrifices, triumph, pomp, and games ;

Thy strength they know surpassing human rate,

And now some public proof thereof require

To honour this great feast and great assembly ;

Rise therefore with all speed and come along,

Where I will see thee heartened and fresh clad

To appear as fits before th' illustrious lords.

SAMS. Thou know'st I am an Hebrew ; therefore tell them

Our law forbids at their religious rites 1320

My presence ; for that cause I cannot come.

OFF. This answer, be assured, will not content
them.

SAMS. Have they not sword-players, and ev'ry sort

Of gymnastic artists, wrestlers, riders, runners,

Jugglers and dancers, antics, mummers, mimics,

But they must pick me out, with shackles tired,

And over-laboured at their public mill,

To make them sport with blind activity ?

Do they not seek occasion of new quarrels,

On my refusal, to distress me more, 1330

Or make a game of my calamities ?

Return the way thou camest ; I will not come.

OFF. Regard thyself ; this will offend them highly.

SAMS. Myself ? my conscience and internal peace.

Can they think me so broken, so debased

With corporal servitude, that my mind ever

Will condescend to such absurd commands ?

Although their drudge, to be their fool or jester,

And in my midst of sorrow and heart-grief

To show them feats, and play before their god, 1340

The worst of all indignities, yet on me

Joined with extreme contempt ? I will not come.

Samson Agonistes

OFF. My message was imposed on me with speed,
Brooks no delay: Is this thy resolution?

SAMS. So take it with what speed thy message needs.

OFF. I am sorry what this stoutness will produce.

[Exit.

SAMS. Perhaps thou shalt have cause to sorrow indeed.

CHOR. Consider, Samson, matters now are strained
Up to the height, whether to hold or break.
He's gone, and who knows how he may report 1350
Thy words by adding fuel to the flame?
Expect another message more imperious,
More lordly thund'ring than thou well wilt bear.

SAMS. Shall I abuse this consecrated gift
Of strength, again returning with my hair
After my great transgression, so require
Favour renewed, and add a greater sin
By prostituting holy things to idols; .
A Nazarite in place abominable,
Vaunting my strength in honour to their Dagon? 1360
Besides, how vile, contemptible, ridiculous,
What act more execrably unclean, profane?

CHOR. Yet with this strength thou servest the Philistines,
Idolatrous, uncircumcised, unclean.

SAMS. Not in their idol-worship, but by labour
Honest and lawful to deserve my food
Of those who have me in their civil power.

CHOR. Where the heart joins not, outward acts defile not.

SAMS. Where outward force constrains, the sentence holds;
But who constrains me to the temple of Dagon, 1370
Not dragging? the Philistian lords command;
Commands are no constraints. If I obey them,
I do it freely, venturing to displease
GOD for the fear of man, and man prefer,
Set GOD behind: which in His jealousy
Shall never, unrepented, find forgiveness.

Samson Agonistes

Yet that He may dispense with me or thee
Present in temples at idolatrous rites

For some important cause, thou need'st not doubt.

CHOR. How thou wilt here come off surmounts my reach. 1380

SAMS. Be of good courage, I begin to feel
Some rousing motions in me, which dispose
To something extraordinary my thoughts.
I with this messenger will go along,
Nothing to do, be sure, that may dishonour
Our law, or stain my vow of Nazarite.
If there be aught of presage in the mind,
This day will be remarkable in my life
By some great act, or of my days the last. [1390

CHOR. In time thou hast resolved; the man returns.

OFF. Samson, this second message from our lords
To thee I am bid say. Art thou our slave,
Our captive, at the public mill our drudge,
And darest thou at our sending and command
Dispute thy coming? come without delay;
Or we shall find such engines to assail
And hamper thee, as thou shalt come of force,
Though thou wert firmlier fastened than a rock.

SAMS. I could be well content to try their art,
Which to no few of them would prove pernicious. 1400
Yet knowing their advantages too many,
Because they shall not trail me through their streets
Like a wild beast, I am content to go.
Masters' commands come with a power resistless
To such as owe them absolute subjection;
And for a life who will not change his purpose?
So mutable are all the ways of men!
Yet this be sure, in nothing to comply
Scandalous or forbidden in our law.

OFF. I praise thy resolution: doff these links; 1410
By this compliance thou wilt win the lords
To favour, and, perhaps, to set thee free.

SAMS. Brethren, farewell; your company along
I will not wish, lest it perhaps offend them
To see me girt with friends; and how the sight

Samson Agonistes

Of me as of a common enemy,
So dreaded once, may now exasperate them,
I know not. Lords are lordliest in their wine;
And the well-feasted priest then soonest fired
With zeal, if aught religion seem concerned; 1420
No less the people on their holy-days
Impetuous, insolent, unquenchable:
Happen what may, of me expect to hear
Nothing dishonourable, impure, unworthy
Our God, our law, my nation, or myself;
The last of me or no I cannot warrant. [Exit.

CHOR. Go, and the Holy One
Of Israel be thy guide
To what may serve His glory best, and spread His name
Great among the heathen round; 1430
Send thee the Angel of thy birth, to stand
Fast by thy side, who from thy father's field
Rode up in flames after his message told
Of thy conception, and be now a shield
Of fire; that Spirit that first rushed on thee
In the camp of Dan
Be efficacious in thee now at need.
For never was from heaven imparted
Measure of strength so great to mortal seed,
As in thy wondrous actions hath been seen. 1440
But wherefore comes old Manoah in such haste,
With youthful steps? much livelier than ere while
He seems; supposing here to find his son,
Or of him bringing to us some glad news?

MAN. Peace with you, brethren! my inducement
hither
Was not at present here to find my son,
By order of the lords new parted hence,
To come and play before them at their feast.
I heard all as I came; the city rings,
And numbers thither flock; I had no will, 1450
Lest I should see him forced to things unseemly.
But that which moved my coming now was chiefly
To give ye part with me what hope I have
With good success to work his liberty.

Samson Agonistes

CHOR. That hope would much rejoice us to partake
With thee ; say, reverend Sire, we thirst to hear.

MAN. I have attempted one by one the lords,
Either at home or through the high street passing,
With supplication prone and father's tears,
To accept of ransom for my son their pris'ner. 1460
Some much averse I found, and wondrous harsh,
Contemptuous, proud, set on revenge and spite ;
That part most revered Dagon and his priests :
Others more moderate seeming, but their aim
Private reward, for which both God and State
They easily would set to sale : a third
More generous far and civil, who confessed
They had enough revenged, having reduced
Their foe to misery beneath their fears,
The rest was magnanimity to remit, 1470
If some convenient ransom were proposed.—
What noise or shout was that ? it tore the sky.

CHOR. Doubtless the people shouting to behold
Their once great dread, captive and blind before them,
Or at some proof of strength before them shown.

MAN. His ransom, if my whole inheritance
May compass it, shall willingly be paid
And numbered down : much rather I shall choose
To live the poorest in my tribe, than richest,
And he in that calamitous prison left. 1480
No, I am fixed not to part hence without him.
For his redemption all my patrimony,
If need be, I am ready to forego
And quit : not wanting him, I shall want nothing.

CHOR. Fathers are wont to lay up for their sons ;
Thou for thy son are bent to lay out all :
Sons wont to nurse their parents in old age ;
Thou in old age carest how to nurse thy son,
Made older than thy age through eyesight lost.

MAN. It shall be my delight to tend h's eyes, 1490
And view him sitting in the house, ennobled,
With all those high exploits by him achieved,
And on his shoulders waving down those locks,
That of a nation armed the strength contained :

Samson Agonistes

And I persuade me God hath not permitted
His strength again to grow up with his hair,
Garrisoned round about him like a camp
Of faithful soldiery, were not His purpose
To use him further yet in some great service,
Not to sit idle with so great a gift 1500
Useless, and thence ridiculous, about him.
And since his strength with eyesight was not lost,
God will restore him eyesight to his strength.

CHOR. Thy hopes are not ill-founded, nor seem vain,
Of his delivery, and thy joy thereon
Conceived, agreeable to a father's love;
In both which we, as next, participate.

MAN. I know your friendly minds, and—O what noise!

Mercy of heav'n, what hideous noise was that?
Horribly loud, unlike the former shout. 1510

CHOR. Noise call you it, or universal groan?
As if the whole inhabitation perished!
Blood, death, and deathful deeds are in that noise,
Ruin, destruction at the utmost point.

MAN. Of ruin indeed methought I heard the noise.
Oh, it continues: they have slain my son!

CHOR. Thy son is rather slaying them; that outcry
From slaughter of one foe could not ascend.

MAN. Some dismal accident it needs must be:
What shall we do, stay here, or run and see? 1520

CHOR. Best keep together here, lest running thither
We unawares run into danger's mouth.
This evil on the Philistines is fallen;
From whom could else a general cry be heard?
The sufferers then will scarce molest us here;
From other hands we need not much to fear.
What if his eyesight (for to Israel's God Nothing is hard), by miracle restored,
He now be dealing dole among his foes,
And over heaps of slaughtered walk his way? 1530

MAN. That were a joy presumptuous to be thought.

CHOR. Yet God hath wrought things as incredible
For His people of old; what hinders now?

Samson Agonistes

MAN. He can, I know, but doubt to think He will ;
Yet hope would fain subscribe, and tempts belief.
A little stay will bring some notice hither.

CHOR. Of good or bad so great, of bad the sooner ;
For evil news rides post, while good news baits.
And to our wish I see one hither speeding,
An Hebrew, as I guess, and of our tribe. 1540

MESSANGER. O whither shall I run, or which way fly
The sight of this so horrid spectacle,
Which erst my eyes beheld, and yet behold ?
For dire imagination still pursues me.
But Providence or instinct of nature seems,
Or reason, though disturbed and scarce consulted,
To have guided me aright, I know not how,
To thee first, reverend Manoah, and to these
My countrymen, whom here I knew remaining,
As at some distance from the place of horror, 1550
So in the sad event too much concerned.

MAN. The accident was loud, and here before thee
With rueful cry, yet what it was we hear not ;
No preface needs, thou seest we long to know.

MESS. It would burst forth, but I recover breath,
And sense distract, to know well what I utter.

MAN. Tell us the sum, the circumstance defer.

MESS. Gaza yet stands, but all her sons are fallen,
All in a moment overwhelmed and fallen.

MAN. Sad ; but thou know'st to Israelites not saddest 1560
The desolation of a hostile city.

MESS. Feed on that first, there may in grief be surfeit.

MAN. Relate by whom.

MESS. By Samson.

MAN. That still lessens
The sorrow, and converts it nigh to joy.
MESS. Ah ! Manoah, I refrain too suddenly
To utter what will come at last too soon ;
Lest evil tidings with too rude irruption
Hitting thy aged ear should pierce too deep.
MAN. Suspense in news is torture, speak them out.

Samson Agonistes

MESS. Take then the worst in brief, Samson is dead. [1570]

MAN. The worst indeed ! Oh, all my hopes defeated
To free him hence ! but death, who sets all free,
Hath paid his ransom now and full discharge.
What windy joy this day had I conceived
Hopeful of his delivery, which now proves
Abortive as the first-born bloom of spring
Nipt with the lagging rear of winter's frost !
Yet, ere I give the reins to grief, say first,
How died he ? death to life is crown or shame.
All by him fell, thou say'st ; by whom fell he ? 1580
What glorious hand gave Samson his death's wound ?

MESS. Unwounded of his enemies he fell.

MAN. Wearied with slaughter, then, or how ? explain.

MESS. By his own hands.

MAN. Self-violence ? what cause
Brought him so soon at variance with himself
Among his foes ?

MESS. Inevitable cause
At once both to destroy and be destroyed :
The edifice, where all were met to see him,
Upon their heads and on his own he pulled.

MAN. O lastly over-strong against thyself ! 1590
A dreadful way thou took'st to thy revenge.
More than enough we know ; but, while things yet
Are in confusion, give us, if thou canst,
Eye-witness of what first or last was done,
Relation more particular and distinct.

MESS. Occasions drew me early to this city,
And as the gates I entered with sunrise,
The morning trumpets festival proclaimed
Through each high street. Little I had dispatched,
When all abroad was rumoured, that this day 1600
Samson should be brought forth to show the people
Proof of his mighty strength in feats and games ;
I sorrowed at his captive state, but minded
Not to be absent at that spectacle.
The building was a spacious theatre,
Half-round, on two main pillars vaulted high,

Samson Agonistes

With seats, where all the lords and each degree
Of sort might sit in order to behold ;
The other side was open, where the throng
On banks and scaffolds under sky might stand ; 1610
I among these aloof obscurely stood.
The feast and noon grew high, and sacrifice
Had filled their hearts with mirth, high cheer, and wine,

When to their sports they turned. Immediately
Was Samson as a public servant brought,
In their state livery clad ; before him pipes
And timbrels, on each side went armed guards,
Both horse and foot, before him and behind
Archers, and slingers, cataphracts,¹ and spears.
At sight of him the people with a shout 1620
Rifted the air, clamouring their god with praise,
Who had made their dreadful enemy their thrall.
He patient, but undaunted, where they led him,
Came to the place, and what was set before him,
Which without help of eye might be assayed,
To heave, pull, draw, or break, he still performed,
All with incredible stupendous force,
None daring to appear antagonist.
At length, for intermission sake, they led him
Between the pillars ; he his guide requested, 1630
For so from such as nearer stood we heard,
As over-tired, to let him lean awhile
With both his arms on those two massy pillars,
That to the arched roof gave main support.
He, unsuspecting, led him ; which when Samson
Felt in his arms, with head awhile inclined,
And eyes fast fixed he stood, as one who prayed,
Or some great matter in his mind revolved :
At last, with head erect, thus cried aloud :
“ Hitherto, lords, what your commands imposed 1640
I have performed, as reason was, obeying,
Not without wonder or delight beheld :
Now of my own accord such other trial
I mean to show you of my strength, yet greater ;

¹ Men and horses in armour.

Samson Agonistes

As with amaze shall strike all who behold."
This uttered, straining all his nerves, he bowed.
As with the force of winds and waters pent,
When mountains tremble, those two massy pillars
With horrible convulsion to and fro
He tugged, he shook, till down they came, and drew
The whole roof after them, with burst of thunder, [1650
Upon the heads of all who sat beneath,
Lords, ladies, captains, counsellors, or priests
Their choice nobility and flower, not only
Of this, but each Philistian city round,
Met from all parts to solemnise this feast,
Samson, with these immixed, inevitably
Pulled down the same destruction on himself;
The vulgar only 'scaped who stood without.

CHOR. O dearly-bought revenge, yet glorious! 1660
Living or dying, thou hast fulfilled
The work for which thou wast foretold
To Israel, and now liest victorious
Among thy slain, self-killed
Not willingly, but tangled in the fold
Of dire necessity, whose law in death conjoined
Thee with thy slaughtered foes in number more
Than all thy life had slain before.

I SEMICHOR. While their hearts were jocund and sublime,
Drunk with idolatry, drunk with wine, 1670
And fat regorged of bulls and goats,
Chanting their idol, and preferring
Before our living Dread who dwells
In Silo¹ His bright sanctuary:
Among them He a spirit of frenzy sent,
Who hurt their minds,
And urged them on with mad desire
To call in haste for their destroyer;
They, only set on sport and play,
Unweetingly importuned 1680
Their own destruction to come speedy upon them.
So fond are mortal men,

¹ Where the Ark then was.

Samson Agonistes

Fallen into wrath divine,
As their own ruin on themselves to invite,
Insensate left, or to sense reprobate,
And with blindness internal struck.

2 SEMICHOR. But he, though blind of sight,
Despised and thought extinguished quite,
With inward eyes illuminated,
His fiery virtue roused. 1690
From under ashes into sudden flame,
And as an evening dragon came,
Assailant on the perchèd roosts
And nests in order ranged
Of tame villatic fowl ; but as an eagle
His cloudless thunder bolted on their heads.
So virtue, given for lost,
Depressed and overthrown, as seemed,
Like that self-begotten bird
In the Arabian woods imboſt, 1700
That no second knows nor third,
And lay ere while a holocaust,
From out her ashy womb now teemed ;
Revives, reflourishes, then vigorous most
When most unactive deemed ;
And though her body die, her fame survives
A secular bird ages of lives.

MAN. Come, come, no time for lamentation now,
Nor much more cause : Samson hath quit himself
Like Samson, and heroically hath finished 1710
A life heroic, on his enemies
Fully revenged ; hath left them years of mourning,
And lamentation to the sons of Caphtor¹
Through all Philistian bounds. To Israel
Honour hath left and freedom, let but them
Find courage to lay hold on this occasion ;
To himself and father's house eternal fame ;
And, which is best and happiest yet, all this
With GOD not parted from him, as was feared,
But favouring and assisting to the end. 1720

¹ The Philistines are called the sons of Caphtor, because they came originally from the island of Caphtor, or Crete.

Samson Agonistes

Nothing is here for tears, nothing to wail
Or knock the breast ; no weakness, no contempt,
Dispraise, or blame ; nothing but well and fair,
And what may quiet us in a death so noble.
Let us go find the body where it lies,
Soaked in his enemies' blood, and from the stream
With lavers pure and cleansing herbs wash off
The clotted gore. I, with what speed the while Gaza is not in plight to say us nay;
Will send for all my kindred, all my friends, 1730
To fetch him hence, and solemnly attend
With silent obsequy and funeral train
Home to his father's house : there will I build him
A monument, and plant it round with shade
Of laurel ever green, and branching palm,
With all his trophies hung, and acts inrolled
In copious legend, or sweet lyric song.
Thither shall all the valiant youth resort,
And from his memory inflame their breasts
To matchless valour and adventures high : 1740
The virgins also shall on feastful days
Visit his tomb with flowers, only bewailing
His lot unfortunate in nuptial choice,
From whence captivity and loss of eyes.

CHOR. All is best, though we oft doubt,
What the unsearchable dispose
Of Highest Wisdom brings about,
And ever best found in the close.
Oft He seems to hide His face,
But unexpectedly returns, 1750
And to His faithful champion hath in place
Bore witness gloriously ; whence Gaza mourns,
And all that band them to resist
His uncontrollable intent :
His servants He, with new acquist
Of true experience from this great event,
With peace and consolation hath dismissed,
And calm of mind, all passion spent.

Sonnets and Canzone

I.

TO THE NIGHTINGALE.

O NIGHTINGALE, that on yon bloomy spray
Warblest at eve, when all the woods are still,
Thou with fresh hope the lover's heart dost fill,
While the jolly hours lead on propitious May.
Thy liquid notes that close the eye of day,
First heard before the shallow cuckoo's bill,
Portend success in love ;¹ O, if Jove's will Have linked that amorous power to thy soft lay,
Now timely sing, ere the rude bird of hate
Foretell my hopeless doom in some grove nigh ;
As thou from year to year hast sung too late
For my relief, yet hadst no reason why :
Whether the Muse, or Love, call thee his mate,
Both them I serve, and of their train am I.

" But as I lay this othir night waking,
I thought how lovers had a tokining,
And among 'hem it was a commerne tale
That it were gode to here the Nightingale
Moche rathir than the leudè Cuckowe singe."
Cuckowe and Nightingale, Stanza 10.

TO AN ITALIAN LADY, PERHAPS LEONORA BARONI.

DONNA leggiadra il cui bel nome honora ¹
L'herbosa val di Rheno, e il nobil varco,
Bene è colui d'ogni valore scarco
Qual tuo spirto gentil non innamora ;
Che dolcemente mostrasi di fuora
De sui atti soavi giamai parco,
E i don', che son d'amor saette ed arco,
Là onde l' alta tua virtù s'infiora.
Quando tu vaga parli, o lieta canti
Che mover possa duro alpestre legno
Guardi ciascun agli occhi, ed agli orecchi
L'entrata, chi di te si truova indegno ;
Grazia sola di sù gli vaglia, innanti
Che'l disio amoroso al cuor s'invecchi.

III.

QUAL in colle aspro, all' imbrunir di sera
L'avezza giovinetta pastorella
Va bagnando l'herbetta strana e bella
Che mal si spande a disusata spera
Fuor di sua natia alma primavera,
Così Amor meco insù la lingua snella
Desta il fior novo di strania favella,
Mentre io di te, vezzosamente altera,
Canto, dal mio buon popol non inteso
E'l bel Tamigi cangio col bell' Arno.
Amor lo volse, ed io all'altrui peso
Seppi ch' Amor cosa mai volse indarno.
Deh ! foss' il mio cuor lento e'l duro seno
A chi pianta dal ciel si buon terreno.

¹ Onora. The h is dropped in modern Italian ; this was the spelling of Milton's age.

CANZONE.

RIDONSI donne e giovani amorosi
M' accostandosi attorno, e " Perchè scrivi,
Perchè tu scrivi in lingua ignota e strana
Verseggiando d' amor, e come t'osi?
Dinne, se la tua speme sia mai vana,
E de' pensieri lo miglior t'arrivi ";
Così mi van burlando, " altri rivi
Altri lidi t'aspettan, ed altre onde
Nelle cui verdi sponde
Spuntati ad hor, ad hor¹ alla tua chioma
L'immortal guiderdon d' eterne frondi
Perchè alle spalle tue soverchia soma? "
Canzon dritti, e tu per me rispondi :
" Dice mia Donna, e' l suo dir è il mio cuore Questa è lingua di cui si vanta Amore."

IV.

DIODATI, e te'l dirò con maraviglia,
Quel ritroso io ch'amor spreggiar solea
E de' suoi lacci spesso mi ridea
Già caddi, ov'huom dabben talhor s'impiglia.
Nè trecchie d'oro, nè guancia vermiglia
M'abbaglian sì, ma sotto nova idea
Pellegrina bellezza che'l cuor bea,
Portamenti alti honesti, e nelle ciglia
Quel sereno fulgor d'amabil nero,
Parole adorne di lingua più d'una,
E'l cantar che di mezzo l'hemispero
Traviar ben può la faticosa luna,
E degli occhi suoi avventa sì gran fuoco
Che l'incerar gli orecchi mi fia poco.

¹ Ad or, ad or—the h is old Italian.

v.

PER certo i bei vostr' occhi, Donna mia
Esser non può che non sian lo mio sole
Sì mi percuoton forte, come ei suole
Per l'arene di Libia ch' s'invia,
Mentre un caldo vapor (nè senti pria)
Da quel lato si spinge ove mi duole,
Che forse amanti nelle lor parole
Chiaman sospir ; io non so che si sia :
Parte rinchiusa, e turbida si cela
Scosso mi il petto, e poi n'uscendo poco
Quivi d' attorno o s'agghiaccia, o singiela ;
Ma quanto agli occhi giunge a trovar loco
Tutte le notti a me suol far piovose
Finchè mia alba rivien colma di rose.

vi.

GIOVANE piano, e semplicetto amante
Poichè fuggir me stesso in dubbio sono,
Madonna, a voi del mio cuor l'humil dono
Farò divoto ; io certo a prove tante
L'ebbi fedele, intrepido, costante,
De' pensieri leggiadro, accorto, e buono ;
Quando rugge il gran mondo, e scocca il tuono,
S'arma di se, e d' intero diamante ;
Tanto del forse, e d' invidia sicuro,
Di timori, e speranze al popol use
Quanto d'ingegno, e d'alto valor vago,
E di cetra sonora, e delle Muse :
Sol troverete in tal parte men duro
Ove Amor mise l'insanabil ago.

VII.

ON HIS BEING ARRIVED TO THE AGE OF TWENTY-THREE.¹

1631.

How soon hath Time, the subtle thief of youth,
Stolen on his wing my three and twentieth year!
My hasting days fly on with full career,
But my late spring no bud or blossom showeth.
Perhaps my semblance might deceive the truth,
That I to manhood am arrived so near,
And inward ripeness doth much less appear,
That some more timely-happy spirits indueth.
Yet be it less or more, or soon or slow,
It shall be still in strictest measure even
To that same lot, however mean or high,
Toward which Time leads me, and the will of Heaven.
All is, if I have grace to use it so,
As ever in my great Task-master's eye.

VIII.

WHEN THE ASSAULT WAS INTENDED TO THE CITY.²

1642.

CAPTAIN, or Colonel, or Knight in arms,
Whose chance on these defenceless doors may seize,
If deed of honour did thee ever please,
Guard them, and him within protect from harms.

¹ This sonnet was written at Cambridge, and sent in a letter to a friend.

² Written when the King's troops had arrived at Brentford, and London expected an immediate attack.

Sonnets

He can requite thee, for he knows the charms
That call fame on such gentle acts as these,
And he can spread thy name o'er lands and seas,
Whatever clime the sun's bright circle warms.
Lift not thy spear against the Muses' bower :
The great Emathian conqueror ¹ bid spare
The house of Pindarus, when temple and tower
Went to the ground : and the repeated air
Of sad Electra's poet ² had the power
To save the Athenian walls from ruin bare.

IX.

TO A VIRTUOUS YOUNG LADY.

LADY, that in the prime of earliest youth
Wisely hast shunned the broad way and the green,
And with those few art eminently seen,
That labour up the hill of heavenly truth,

¹ Alexander. He suffered the house of Pindar alone to stand untouched ; and honoured the family of the great lyric poet, while making frightful havoc of the Thebans. Milton claims the same favour from the royal forces.

² Euripides. When Lysander had taken Athens, Plutarch tells us that,—

“Some say he really did, in the Council of the Allies, propose to reduce the Athenians to slavery ; and that Erianthus, a Theban officer, gave it as his opinion that the city should be levelled with the ground, and the spot on which it stood turned to pasture.”

“Afterwards, however, when the general officers met at an entertainment, a musician of Phocis happened to begin a chorus in the ‘Electra’ of Euripides, the first lines of which are these :—

“‘Unhappy daughter of the great Atrides,*
Thy straw-crowned palace I approach.’

“The whole company were greatly moved at this incident, and could not help reflecting how barbarous a thing it would be to raze that noble city, which had produced so many great and illustrious men.”—PLUTARCH, Life of Lysander.

Thus Athens was spared ; but in cruel mockery, the Spartan collected all the musicians in the city, and pulled down the fortifications, and burned the Athenian ships, to the sound of their instruments.

Sonnets

The better part with Mary and with Ruth
Chosen thou hast ; and they that overween,
And at thy growing virtues fret their spleen,
No anger find in thee, but pity and ruth.
Thy care is fixed, and zealously attends
To fill thy odorous lamp with deeds of light
And hope that reaps not shame. Therefore be sure
Thou, when the Bridegroom with His feastful friends
Passes to bliss at the mid hour of night,
Hast gained thy entrance, Virgin wise and pure.

TO THE LADY MARGARET LEY.¹

1643.

DAUGHTER to that good Earl,² once President
Of England's Council, and her Treasury,
Who lived in both, unstained with gold or fee,
And left them both, more in himself content,
Till sad the breaking of that Parliament
Broke him, as that dishonest victory
At Chæronea, fatal to liberty,
Killed with report that old man eloquent.³
Though later born than to have known the days
Wherein your father flourished, yet by you,
Madam, methinks I see him living yet ;
So well your words his noble virtues praise,
That all both judge you to relate them true,
And to possess them, honoured Margaret.

¹ Milton used frequently to visit this lady, who married Captain Hobson, of the Isle of Wight.

² Earl of Marlborough, Lord High Treasurer, and Lord President of the Council to King James I. Parliament was dissolved the 10th of March 1628-9 ; he died on the 14th, but at an advanced age.

³ Isocrates, the orator, who could not survive the ruin of his country. Chæronea was gained by Philip of Macedon.

XI.

ON THE DETRACTION WHICH FOLLOWED UPON MY WRITING CERTAIN TREATISES.

1645.

A BOOK was writ of late called Tetrachordon,¹
And woven close, both matter, form, and style ;
The subject new : it walked the town a while,
Numb'ring good intellects ; now seldom pored on.
Cries the stall-reader, " Bless us ! what a word on A title-page is this ! " and some in file
Stand spelling false, while one might walk to Mile End Green. Why, is it harder, Sirs, than Gordon,
Colkitto, or Macdonnel, or Galasp ?²
Those rugged names to our like mouths grow sleek,
That would have made Quintilian stare and gasp.
Thy age, like ours, O Soul of Sir John Cheke,³
Hated not learning worse than toad or asp,
When thou taught'st Cambridge, and king Edward,
Greek.

XII.

ON THE SAME.

I DID but prompt the age to quit their clogs
By the known rules of ancient liberty,
When straight a barbarous noise environs me
Of owls and cuckoos, asses, apes, and dogs :⁴

¹ Tetrachordon means exposition ; it was on the four chief places in Scripture which mention nullities in marriage.

² Colkitto and Macdonnel are one and the same person, a brave officer on the royal side, an Irishman of the Antrim family, who served under Montrose. The Macdonnells of that family are styled, by way of distinction, Mac Colcittok, i.e. descendants of lame Colin. Galasp is George Gillespie, a Scottish writer against the Independents ; for whom see Milton's verses on the " Forcers of Conscience."—WARTON.

³ Sir John Cheke has been already named in the notes to this volume. He was the first Professor of Greek at Cambridge, and restored the original pronunciation of it. He was tutor to Edward VI.

⁴ Milton's treatises were on the subject of " Divorce." The Presbyterian clergy were much (and justly) scandalised at them, and brought

Sonnets

As when those hinds that were transformed to frogs¹
Railed at Latona's twin-born progeny,
Which after held the sun and moon in fee.
But this is got by casting pearl to hogs ;
That bawl for freedom in their senseless mood,
And still revolt when truth would set them free.
Licence they mean when they cry Liberty ;
For who loves that, must first be wise and good ;
But from that mark how far they rove we see,
For all this waste of wealth, and loss of blood.

TO MR. H. LAWES² ON THE PUBLISHING HIS AIRS.

HARRY, whose tuneful and well-measured song
First taught our English music how to span
Words with just note and accent, not to scan
With Midas' ears, committing short and long ;
Thy worth and skill exempts thee from the throng,
With praise enough for envy to look wan ;
To after age thou shalt be writ the man,
That with smooth air couldst humour best our tongue.
Thou honour'st verse, and verse must lend her wing
To honour thee, the priest of Phœbus' quire,
That tunest their happiest lines in hymn, or story.³
Dante shall give Fame leave to set thee higher
Than his Casella,⁴ whom he wooed to sing,
Met in the milder shades of Purgatory.

Milton before the Lords for them ; but they thought the subject simply speculative, and he was discharged. He thus stigmatises the Presbyterian clergy.

¹ See OVID, Met. VI. fab. iv. " Latona's progeny " were Apollo and Diana, the sun god and moon goddess.

² The musician who put the music to " Comus."

³ The " Story of Ariadne," set by Lawes.—WARTON.

⁴ Amongst the souls in Purgatory, Dante recognises his friend Casella, the musician. In the course of an affectionate conversation, Dante asks for a song to soothe him, and Casella sings, with ravishing sweetness, the poet's second Canzone. See second cant. of Dante's " Purgatorio."

XIV.

ON THE RELIGIOUS MEMORY OF MRS. CATHERINE THOMSON,¹

MY CHRISTIAN FRIEND, DECEASED 16TH DEC. 1646.

WHEN Faith and Love, which parted from thee never,
Had ripened thy just soul to dwell with GOD,
Meekly thou didst resign this earthly load
Of death, called life ; which us from life doth sever.
Thy works, and alms, and all thy good endeavour,
Stayed not behind, nor in the grave were trod ;
But, as Faith pointed with her golden rod,
Followed thee up to joy and bliss for ever.
Love led them on, and Faith, who knew them best
Thy handmaids, clad them o'er with purple beams
And azure wings, that up they flew so drest,
And spake the truth of thee on glorious themes
Before the Judge, who thenceforth bid thee rest,
And drink thy fill of pure immortal streams.

XV.

TO THE LORD GENERAL FAIRFAX.²

1648.

FAIRFAX, whose name in arms through Europe rings,
Filling each mouth with envy or with praise,
And all her jealous monarchs with amaze
And rumours loud, that daunt remotest kings,

¹ When Milton was first made Latin Secretary to Cromwell, he lodged at a Mr. Thomson's, next to the "Bull Head" Tavern, Charing Cross. Mrs. Thomson is supposed to have been the wife of his landlord.—NEWTON.

² Addressed to Fairfax at the siege of Colchester. It was first printed, together with the two following sonnets, and the two to Cyriac Skinner, at the end of Phillips's Life of Milton, 1694.

Sonnets

Thy firm unshaken virtue ever brings
Victory home, though new rebellions raise
Their Hydra heads, and the false North displays
Her broken league¹ to imp their serpent wings.
O yet a nobler task awaits thy hand,
(For what can war, but endless war still breed?)
Till truth and right from violence be freed,
And public faith cleared from the shameful brand
Of public fraud. In vain doth valour bleed,
While avarice and rapine share the land.

XVI.

TO THE LORD GENERAL CROMWELL,

ON THE PROPOSALS OF CERTAIN MINISTERS OF THE COMMITTEE FOR THE PROPAGATION OF THE GOSPEL.

1652.

CROMWELL, our chief of men, who through a cloud
Not of war only, but detractions rude,
Guided by faith and matchless fortitude,
To peace and truth thy glorious way hast ploughed,
And on the neck of crownèd Fortune proud
Hast reared God's trophies, and His work pursued,
While Darwen stream² with blood of Scots imbrued,
And Dunbar field resounds thy praises loud,
And Worcester's³ laureat wreath. Yet much remains
To conquer still; peace hath her victories
No less renowned than war: new foes arise,
Threatening to bind our souls with secular chains:⁴
Help us to save free conscience from the paw
Of hireling wolves, whose gospel is their maw.

¹ The English Parliament held that the Scotch had broken their covenant by marching into England, led by Hamilton.

² A small river near Preston, in Lancashire, where Cromwell defeated the Scots under the Duke of Hamilton in August 1648.

³ Dunbar and Worcester were both fought September 3—one 1650, the other 1651.

⁴ He alludes to the Presbyterian clergy. They tried to persuade Cromwell to use the secular power against sectaries.

Sonnets

XVII.

TO SIR HENRY VANE THE YOUNGER.¹

1652.

VANE, young in years, but in sage counsel old,
Than whom a better senator ne'er held
The helm of Rome, when gowns not arms repelled
The fierce Epirot and the African bold,
Whether to settle peace, or to unfold
The drift of hollow states ² hard to be spelled,
Then to advise how war may, best upheld,
Move by her two main nerves, iron and gold,
In all her equipage: besides to know
Both spiritual power and civil, what each means,
What severs each, thou hast learned, which few have done:
The bounds of either sword to thee we owe:
Therefore on thy firm hand Religion leans
In peace, and reckons thee her eldest son.

XVIII.

ON THE LATE MASSACRE IN PIEDMONT.³

AVENGE, O Lord, thy slaughtered saints, whose bones
Lie scattered on the Alpine mountains cold;
Even them who kept thy truth so pure of old,
When all our fathers worshipped stocks and stones,

¹ This sonnet seems to have been written in behalf of the Independents against the Presbyterian hierarchy. Vane was the chief of the Independents, and therefore Milton's friend. He was a most eccentric character, a mixture of the wildest fanaticism and good sense. He was beheaded after the Restoration, 1662.

² The States of Holland.

³ In 1665 the Duke of Savoy determined to make his reformed subjects in Piedmont return to the Roman Church. All who refused compliance with the sovereign's will were massacred. Those who escaped, concealed in their mountain fastnesses, sent to Cromwell for relief. Milton's holy indignation found expression in this fine sonnet, which

Sonnets

Forget not : in thy book record their groans
Who were thy sheep, and in their ancient fold
Slain by the bloody Piedmontese, that rolled
Mother with infant down the rocks. Their moans
The vales redoubled to the hills, and they
To Heav'n. Their martyred blood and ashes sow
O'er all th' Italian fields, where still doth sway
The triple tyrant ;¹ that from these may grow
A hundred fold, who, having learned thy way,
Early may fly the Babylonian woe.²

XIX.

ON HIS BLINDNESS.

WHEN I consider how my light is spent
Ere half my days, in this dark world and wide,
And that one talent which is death to hide,
Lodged with me useless, though my soul more bent
To serve therewith my Maker, and present
My true account, lest He returning chide ;
“ Doth God exact day-labour, light denied ? ”
I fondly ask : but Patience, to prevent
That murmur, soon replies : “ God doth not need
Either man’s work, or His own gifts ; who best
Bear His mild yoke, they serve Him best : His state
Is kingly ; thousands at His bidding speed,
And post o’er land and ocean without rest ;
They also serve who only stand and wait.”

was of great effect. Cromwell commanded a general fast, and a national contribution for the relief of the sufferers. £40,000 were collected. He then wrote to the Duke ; and so great was the terror of the English name—the Protector threatened that his ships should visit Civita Vecchia—that the persecution was stopped, and the surviving inhabitants of the valleys were restored to their homes and to freedom of worship.

TO MR. LAWRENCE.¹

LAWRENCE, of virtuous father virtuous son,
Now that the fields are dank, and ways are mire,
Where shall we sometimes meet, and by the fire
Help waste a sullen day, what may be won
From the hard season gaining? Time will run
On smoother, till Favonius² re-inspire
The frozen earth, and clothe in fresh attire
The lily and rose, that neither sowed nor spun.
What neat repast shall feast us, light and choice,
Of Attic taste, with wine, whence we may rise
To hear the lute well touched, or artful voice
Warble immortal notes and Tuscan air?
He who of those delights can judge, and spare
To interpose them oft, is not unwise.

XXI.

TO CYRIAC SKINNER.

CYRIAC, whose grandsire³ on the royal bench
Of British Themis, with no mean applause
Pronounced and in his volumes taught our laws,
Which others at their bar so often wrench;
To-day deep thoughts resolve with me to drench
In mirth, that after no repenting draws;
Let Euclid rest and Archimedes pause,
And what the Swede⁴ intends, and what the French.

¹ Son of Henry Lawrence, Member for Hertfordshire, who was active in settling the Protectorate on Cromwell. Milton's friend was the author of a work called Of our Communion and Warre with Angels, etc., 1646. 4to.—TODD.

² The West Wind.

³ Lord Coke. Cyriac Skinner was the son of William Skinner and Bridget, daughter of Lord Coke. He had been a pupil of Milton's, and was one of the principal members of Harrington's Political Club.

⁴ Charles Gustavus, King of Sweden, was then at war with Poland, and the French were fighting the Spaniards in the Netherlands.

Sonnets

To measure life learn thou betimes, and know
Toward solid good what leads the nearest way ;
For other things mild Heav'n a time ordains,
And disapproves that care, though wise in show,
That with superfluous burden loads the day,
And, when GOD sends a cheerful hour, refrains.

XXII.

TO THE SAME.

CYRIAC, this three years' day these eyes, though clear,
To outward view, of blemish or of spot,
Bereft of light, their seeing have forgot,
Nor to their idle orbs doth sight appear
Of sun, or moon, or star, throughout the year,
Or man, or woman. Yet I argue not Against Heav'n's hand or will, nor bate a jot
Of heart or hope ; but still bear up and steer
Right onward. What supports me, dost thou ask ?
The conscience, Friend, to have lost them overplied
In liberty's defence,¹ my noble task,
Of which all Europe talks from side to side.
This thought might lead me through the world's vain mask,
Content, though blind, had I no better guide.²

¹ When Milton was engaged to answer Salmasius, one of his eyes had nearly lost its sight. The physicians predicted the loss of both, if he used them. But Milton told Du Moulin, "I did not long balance whether my duty should be preferred to my eyes."

² The celebrated controversy with Salmasius originated thus : Charles II. employed that great scholar to write a "Defence of Monarchy," and to vindicate his father's memory. Salmasius was the greatest scholar of his age. Grotius alone could compete with him. Selden speaks of him as "most admirable." The Council of the Commonwealth, therefore, did wisely in ordering Milton to answer him. How he did so at the price of his sight, we see above.

Sonnets

XXIII.

ON HIS DECEASED WIFE.¹

METHOUGHT I saw my late espousèd saint
Brought to me like Alcestis² from the grave,
Whom Jove's great son to her glad husband gave,
Rescued from death by force, though pale and faint.
Mine, as whom washed from spot of child-bed taint
Purification in the old law did save ;
And such, as yet once more I trust to have Full sight of her in heaven without restraint,
Came vested all in white, pure as her mind :
Her face was veiled, yet to my fancied sight
Love, sweetness, goodness, in her person shined
So clear, as in no face with more delight.
But oh ! as to embrace me she inclined,
I waked, she fled, and day brought back my night.

ON THE NEW FORCERS OF CONSCIENCE UNDER THE LONG PARLIAMENT.

1647.

BECAUSE you have thrown off your prelate lord,
And with stiff vows renounced his liturgy,
To seize the widowed whore Plurality
From them whose sin ye envied, not abhorred,

¹ Catherine, the daughter of Captain Woodcock, of Hackney. She died in giving birth to a daughter, a year after her marriage. She was Milton's second wife.

² Alcestis, being told by an oracle that her husband Admetus could never recover from a disease unless a friend died for him, willingly laid down her life for him. Hercules, "Jove's great son," brought her back from hell.

Sonnets

Dare ye for this adjure the civil sword
To force our consciences that Christ set free,
And ride us with a classic hierarchy¹
Taught ye by mere A. S.² and Rotherford?³
Men whose life, learning, faith, and pure intent
Would have been held in high esteem with Paul,
Must now be named and printed heretics
By shallow Edwards⁴ and Scotch what d'ye call:⁵
But we do hope to find out all your tricks,
Your plots and packing worse than those of Trent,⁶
That so the Parliament
May, with their wholesome and preventive shears,
Clip your phylacteries, though bauk your ears,⁷
And succour our just fears,
When they shall read this clearly in your charge,
New Presbyter is but Old Priest writ large.⁸

¹ In classes, or assemblies. The Presbyterians distributed London into twelve classes; each chose two ministers and four lay elders to represent them in a Provincial Assembly.

² Adam Stuart, a polemical writer of the times, who answered the "Independents' Plea for Toleration."

³ Samuel Rutherford, one of the Chief Commissioners of the Church of Scotland, and an avowed enemy to the Independents, Milton's sect.

⁴ Thomas Edwards, who wrote against the Independents.

⁵ Perhaps George Gillespie, a Scotch writer against the Independents. Milton hated the Scotch, and ridiculed their names.

⁶ The Council of Trent.

⁷ Balk, or bauk, is to spare. The meaning is, "Your errors will be corrected, and your ears spared." Our readers will remember that the Star Chamber had inflicted the cruel punishment of loss of ears on Prynne.

⁸ More tyrannical than of old.

TAKEN FROM MILTON'S PROSE WORKS

THE FIFTH ODE OF HORACE, LIB. I.

WHAT slender youth, bedewed with liquid odours,
Courts thee on roses in some pleasant cave,
Pyrrha? For whom bind'st thou
In wreaths thy golden hair,
Plain in thy neatness? O how oft shall he
On faith and changèd gods complain, and seas
Rough with black winds, and storms
Unwonted shall admire!
Who now enjoys thee credulous, all gold,
Who always vacant, always amiable
Hopes thee, of flattering gales
Unmindful. Hapless they
To whom thou untried seem'st fair. Me, in my vowed Picture, the sacred wall declares to have hung
My dank and dropping weeds
To the stern god of sea.

FROM GEOFFREY OF MONMOUTH.¹

Brutus thus addresses Diana in the country of Leogecia :—

GODDESS of shades, and huntress, who at will Walk'st on the rolling spheres, and through the deep;
On thy third reign, the earth, look now, and tell
What land, what seat of rest, thou bidd'st me seek,
What certain seat, where I may worship thee
For aye, with temples vowed, and virgin quires.

To whom, sleeping before the altar, Diana answers in a vision the same night —

BRUTUS, far to the west, in the ocean wide,
Beyond the realm of Gaul, a land there lies,
Sea-girt it lies, where giants dwelt of old,
Now void, it fits thy people : thither bend
Thy course, there shalt thou find a lasting seat ;
There to thy sons another Troy shall rise,
And kings be born of thee, whose dreaded might Shall awe the world, and conquer nations bold.

Not thy conversion, but those rich domains
That the first wealthy pope received of thee.

FROM PETRARCH.

FOUNDED in chaste and humble poverty,
'Gainst them that raised thee dost thou lift thy horn,
Impudent whore, where hast thou placed thy hope ?

THEN passed he to a flow'ry mountain green,
Which once smelt sweet, now stinks as odiously :
This was the gift, if you the truth will have,
That Constantine to good Sylvester gave.

FROM HORACE.

PSALM I. DONE INTO VERSE, 1653.

BLESSED is the man who hath not walked astray
In counsel of the wicked, and i' th' way
Of sinners hath not stood, and in the seat
Of scorers hath not sat. But in the great
Jehovah's law is ever his delight,
And in His law he studies day and night.
He shall be as a tree which planted grows
By watery streams, and in his season knows
To yield his fruit, and his leaf shall not fall,
And what he takes in hand shall prosper all.
Not so the wicked, but as chaff which fanned
The wind drives, so the wicked shall not stand
In judgment, or abide their trial then,
Nor sinners in th' assembly of just men.
For the Lord knows th' upright way of the just,
And the way of bad men to ruin must.

PSALM II. DONE AUG. 8, 1653. TERZETTE.

WHY do the Gentiles tumult, and the nations
Muse a vain thing, the kings of th' earth upstand
With pow'r, and princes in their congregations
Lay deep their plots together through each land

¹ Milton's father composed Psalm tunes; and metrical Psalmody was very popular in Milton's time.

Psalms

Against the Lord and His Messiah dear?
Let us break off, say they, by strength of hand
Their bonds, and cast from us, no more to wear,
Their twisted cords : He who in heav'n doth dwell
Shall laugh ; the Lord shall scoff them, then severe,
Speak to them in His wrath, and in His fell
And fierce ire trouble them ; but I, saith He,
Anointed have my King (though ye rebel)
On Sion my holy hill. A firm decree
I will declare ; the Lord to me hath said,
Thou art my Son, I have begotten thee
This day ; ask of me, and the grant is made ;
As thy possession I on thee bestow
Th' Heathen, and as thy conquest to be swayed
Earth's utmost bounds : them shalt thou bring full low
With iron sceptre bruised, and them disperse
Like to a potter's vessel shivered so.
And now be wise at length, ye kings averse ;
Be taught, ye judges of the earth ; with fear
Jehovah serve, and let your joy converse
With trembling ; kiss the Son lest He appear
In anger, and ye perish in the way.
If once His wrath take fire like fuel sere,
Happy all those who have in Him their stay.

PSALM III. AUG. 9, 1653.

WHEN HE FLED FROM ABSALOM.

LORD, how many are my foes !
How many those
That in arms against me rise !
Many are they
That of my life distrustfully thus say,
No help for him in God there lies.
But thou, Lord, art my shield, my glory,
Thee through my story,

Psalms

Th' exalter of my head I count :
Aloud I cried
Unto Jehovah, He full soon replied,
And heard me from His holy mount.
I lay and slept ; I waked again ;
For my sustain¹
Was the Lord. Of many millions
The populous rout
I fear not, though encamping round about
They pitch against me their pavilions.
Rise, Lord, save me, my God, for thou
Hast smote ere now
On the cheek-bone all my foes,
Of men abhorred
Hast broke the teeth. This help was from the Lord ;
Thy blessing on thy people flows.

PSALM IV. AUG. 10, 1653.

ANSWER me when I call,
God of my righteousness,
In straits and in distress
Thou didst me disenthral
And set at large ; now spare,
Now pity me, and hear my earnest prayer.
Great ones, how long will ye
My glory have in scorn,
How long be thus forborn
Still to love vanity,
To love, to seek, to prize
Things false and vain, and nothing else but lies ?
Yet know the Lord hath chose,
Chose to Himself apart,
The good and meek of heart ;
(For whom to choose He knows)
Jehovah from on high
Will hear my voice what time to Him I cry.

Psalms

Be awed, and do not sin,
Speak to your hearts alone,
Upon your beds, each one,
And be at peace within.
Offer the offerings just

Of righteousness, and in Jehovah trust.
Many there be that say,
Who yet will show us good?
Talking like this world's brood;
But, Lord, thus let me pray;
On us lift up the light,

Lift up the favour of thy count'nance bright.
Into my heart more joy
And gladness thou hast put,
Than when a year of glut
Their stores doth overcloy,
And from their plenteous grounds

With vast increase their corn and wine abounds.
In peace at once will I
Both lay me down and sleep
For thou alone dost keep Me safe where'er I lie;
As in a rocky cell
Thou, Lord, alone in safety makest me dwell

PSALM V. AUG. 12, 1653.

JEHOVAH, to my words give ear,
My meditation weigh;
The voice of my complaining hear,
My King and God; for unto thee I pray.
Jehovah, thou my early voice
Shalt in the morning hear:
I' th' morning I to thee with choice
Will rank my pray'rs, and watch till thou appear.
For thou art not a God that takes
In wickedness delight,

Psalms

Evil with thee no 'biding makes,
Fools or madmen stand not within thy sight.
All workers of iniquity
Thou hatest ; and them unblest
Thou wilt destroy that speak a lie ;
The bloody and guileful man God doth detest.
But I will, in thy mercies dear,
Thy numerous mercies, go
Into thy house ; I, in thy fear,
Will towards thy holy temple worship low.
Lord, lead me in thy righteousness,
Lead me because of those
That do observe if I transgress,
Set thy ways right before, where my step goes.
For in his falt'ring mouth unstable
No word is firm or sooth ;¹
Their inside, troubles miserable ;
An open grave their throat, their tongue they smooth
God, find them guilty, let them fall
By their own counsels quelled ;
Push them in their rebellions all
Still on ; for against thee they have rebelled.
Then all who trust in thee shall bring
Their joy, while thou from blame
Defend'st them, they shall ever sing
And shall triumph in thee, who love thy name.
For thou, Jehovah, wilt be found
To bless the just man still ;
As with a shield thou wilt surround
Him with thy lasting favour and good-will.

PSALM VI. AUG. 13, 1653.

LORD, in thine anger do not reprehend me
Nor in thy hot displeasure me correct ;
Pity me, Lord, for I am much deject,
And very weak and faint ; heal and amend me ;

¹ True.

Psalms

For all my bones, that e'en with anguish ache,
Are troubled, yea, my soul is troubled sore,
And thou, O Lord, how long? Turn, Lord, restore
My soul, O save me for thy goodness' sake :
For in death no remembrance is of thee ;
Who in the grave can celebrate thy praise ?
Wearied I am with sighing out my days ;
Nightly my couch I make a kind of sea ;
My bed I water with my tears ; mine eye
Through grief consumes, is waxen old and dark
I' the midst of all mine enemies that mark.
Depart all ye that work iniquity,
Depart from me, for the voice of my weeping
The Lord hath heard, the Lord hath heard my prayer.
My supplication with acceptance fair
The Lord will own, and have me in His keeping.
Mine enemies shall all be blank and dashed
With much confusion ; then, grown red with shame,
They shall return in haste the way they came,
And in a moment shall be quite abashed.

PSALM VII. AUG. 14, 1653.

UPON THE WORDS OF CHUSH THE BENJAMITE AGAINST HIM.

LORD, my God, to thee I fly ;
Save me, and secure me under
Thy protection while I cry,
Lest as a lion (and no wonder) ,
He haste to tear my soul asunder,
Tearing, and no rescue nigh.

Lord, my God, if I have thought
Or done this, if wickedness
Be in my hands, if I have wrought
Ill to him that meant me peace,
Or to him have rendered less,
And not freed my foe for nought ;

Psalms

Let the enemy pursue my soul
And overtake it ; let him tread
My life down to the earth, and roll
In the dust my glory dead,
In the dust, and there outspread
Lodge it with dishonour foul.

Rise, Jehovah, in thine ire,
Rouse thyself amidst the rage
Of my foes that urge like fire,
And wake for me, their fury assuage ;
Judgment here thou didst engage
And command, which I desire.

So the assemblies of each nation
Will surround thee, seeking right,
Thence to thy glorious habitation
Return on high, and in their sight.
Jehovah judgeth most upright
All people from the world's foundation.

Judge me, Lord, be judge in this
According to my righteousness,
And the innocence which is Upon me : cause at length to cease
Of evil men the wickedness
And their power that do amiss.

But the just establish fast,
Since thou art the just God that tries
Hearts and reins. On God is cast
My defence, and in Him lies,
In Him who, both just and wise,
Saves the upright of heart at last.

God is a just judge and severe,
And God is every day offended ;
If the unjust will not forbear,
His sword He whets, His bow hath bended
Already, and for him intended
The tools of death, that waits him near.

Psalms

(His arrows purposely made He
For them that persecute.) Behold
He travels big with vanity ;
Trouble he hath conceived of old
As in a womb, and from that mould
Hath at length brought forth a lie.

He digged a pit, and delved it deep,
And fell into the pit he made :
His mischief that due course doth keep,
Turns on his head, and his ill trade
Of violence will undelayed
Fall on his crown with ruin steep.

Then will I Jehovah's praise
According to His justice raise,
And sing the Name and Deity
Of Jehovah the Most High.

PSALM VIII. AUG. 14, 1653.

O JEHOVAH our Lord, how wondrous great
And glorious is thy name through all the earth !
So as above the heavens thy praise to set
Out of the tender mouths of latest birth.

Out of the mouths of babes and sucklings thou
Hast founded strength because of all thy foes,
To stint the enemy, and slack th' avenger's brow,
That bends his rage thy providence to oppose.

When I behold thy heav'ns, thy fingers' art,
The moon and stars which thou so bright hast set
In the pure firmament, then saith my heart,
O what is man that thou remember'st yet,

And think'st upon him ; or of man begot,
That him thou visit'st, and of him art found ?
Scarce to be less than gods, thou mad'st his lot,
With honour and with state thou hast him crowned.

Psalms

O'er the works of thy hand thou madest him lord,
Thou hast put all under his lordly feet ;
All flocks, and herds, by thy commanding word,
All beasts that in the field or forest meet,
Fowl of the heavens, and fish that through the wet
Sea paths in shoals do slide, and know no dearth.
O Jehovah our Lord, how wondrous great
And glorious is thy name through all the earth !

APRIL, 1648.

Nine of the Psalms done into metre, wherein all, but what is in a different character, are the very words of the text, translated from the original.

PSALM LXXX.

THOU Shepherd that dost Israel keep,
Give ear in time of need,
Who ledest like a flock of sheep
Thy lovèd Joseph's seed ;
That sitt'st between the Cherubs bright,
Between their wings outspread,
Shine forth, and from thy cloud give light,
And on our foes thy dread.
In Ephraim's view and Benjamin's,
And in Manasseh's sight,
Awake thy strength, come, and be seen
To save us by thy might.
Turn us again, thy grace divine
To us, O God, vouchsafe ;
Cause thou thy face on us to shine,
And then we shall be safe.
Lord God of Hosts, how long wilt thou,
How long wilt thou declare
Thy smoking wrath, and angry brow.
Against thy people's prayer !

Psalms

Thou feed'st them with the bread of tears,
Their bread with tears they eat,
And mak'st them largely drink the tears
Wherewith their cheeks are wet.

A strife thou mak'st us and a prey
To every neighbour foe;
Among themselves they laugh, they play,
And flouts at us they throw.

Return us, and thy grace divine,
O God of Hosts, vouchsafe;
Cause thou thy face on us to shine,
And then we shall be safe.

A Vine from Egypt thou hast brought,
Thy free love made it thine,
And drovest out nations, proud and haut,
To plant this lovely vine.

Thou didst prepare for it a place,
And root it deep and fast;
That it began to grow apace,
And filled the land at last.

With her green shade that covered all,
The hills were overspread;
Her boughs as high as cedars tall
Advanced their lofty head.

Her branches on the western side
Down to the sea she sent,
And upward to that river wide
Her other branches went.

Why hast thou laid her hedges low,
And broken down her fence,
That all may pluck her, as they go,
With rudest violence?

The tuskèd boar out of the wood
Up turns it by the roots;
Wild beasts there browse, and make their food
Her grapes and tender shoots.

Psalms

Return now, God of Hosts, look down
From Heav'n, thy seat divine ;
Behold us, but without a frown,
And visit this thy vine.

Visit this vine, which thy right hand
Hath set, and planted long,
And the young branch, that for thyself
Thou hast made firm and strong.

But now it is consumed with fire,
And cut with axes down ;
They perish at thy dreadful ire,
At thy rebuke and frown.

Upon the man of thy right hand
Let thy good hand be laid,
Upon the son of man, whom thou
Strong for thyself hast made.

So shall we not go back from thee
To ways of sin and shame,
Quicken us thou, then gladly we Shall call upon thy Name.

Return us, and thy grace divine,
Lord God of Hosts, vouchsafe ;
Cause thou thy face on us to shine,
And then we shall be safe.

PSALM LXXXI.

To God our strength sing loud, and clear,
Sing loud to God our King,
To Jacob's God, that all may hear,
Loud acclamations ring.

Prepare a hymn, prepare a song,
The timbrel hither bring,
The cheerful psaltery bring along,
And harp with pleasant string.

Psalms

Blow, as is wont, in the new moon
With trumpets' lofty sound,
The appointed time, the day whereon
Our solemn feast comes round.

This was a statute giv'n of old
For Israel to observe,
A law of Jacob's God, to hold,
From whence they might not swerve.

This He a testimony ordained
In Joseph, not to change,
When as he passed through Egypt land,
The tongue I heard was strange.

From burden and from slavish toil
I set his shoulder free ;
His hands from pots, and miry soil,
Delivered were by me.

When trouble did thee sore assail,
On me then didst thou call,
And I to free thee did not fail,
And led thee out of thrall.

I answered thee in thunder deep,
With clouds encompassed round ;
I tried thee at the water steep
Of Meribah renowned.

Hear, O my people, hearken well ;
I testify to thee,
Thou ancient stock of Israel,
If thou wilt list to me :

Throughout the land of thy abode
No alien god shall be,
Nor shalt thou to a foreign god
In honour bend thy knee.

I am the Lord thy God, which brought Thee out of Egypt land ;
Ask large enough, and I, besought,
Will grant thy full demand.

Psalms

And yet my people would not hear,
Nor hearken to my voice ;
And Israel, whom I loved so dear,
Misliked me for his choice.

Then did I leave them to their will,
And to their wand'ring mind ;
Their own conceits they followed still,
Their own devices blind.

O that my people would be wise,
To serve me all their days !
And O that Israel would advise
To walk my righteous ways !

Then would I soon bring down their foes,
That now so proudly rise,
And turn my hand against all those
That are their enemies.

Who hate the Lord should then be fain
To bow to Him and bend,
But they, His people, should remain,
Their time should have no end.

And He would feed them from the shock
With flour of finest wheat,
And satisfy them from the rock
With honey for their meat.

PSALM LXXXII.

God in the great assembly stands
Of kings and lordly states,
Among the gods, on both His hands,
He judges and debates.

How long will ye pervert the right
With judgment false and wrong,
Favouring the wicked by your might,
Who thence grow bold and strong ?

Psalms

Regard the weak and fatherless,
Despatch the poor man's cause,
And raise the man in deep distress
By just and equal laws.

Defend the poor and desolate,
And rescue from the hands
Of wicked men the low estate
Of him that help demands.

They know not, nor will understand,
In darkness they walk on ;
The earth's foundations all are moved,
And out of order gone.

I said that ye were gods, yea all
The sons of God Most High ;
But ye shall die like men, and fall
As other princes die.

Rise, God, judge thou the earth in might,
This wicked earth redress,
For thou art He who shall by right
The nations all possess.

PSALM LXXXIII.

BE not thou silent now at length,
O God, hold not thy peace ;
Sit thou not still, O God of strength,
We cry, and do not cease.

For lo, thy furious foes now swell,
And storm outrageously,
And they that hate thee proud and fell
Exalt their heads full high.

Against thy people they contrive
Their plots and counsels deep ;
Them to ensnare they chiefly strive,
Whom thou dost hide and keep.

Psalms

"Come, let us cut them off," say they,
"Till they no nation be,
That Israel's name for ever may
Be lost in memory."

For they consult with all their might,
And all as one in mind
Themselves against thee they unite,
And in firm union bind.

The tents of Edom, and the brood
Of scornful Ishmael,
Moab, with them of Hagar's blood,
That in the desert dwell,

Gebal and Ammon there conspire,
And hateful Amalek,
The Philistines, and they of Tyre,
Whose bounds the sea doth check.

With them great Ashur also bands,
And doth confirm the knot:
All these have lent their armed hands
To aid the sons of Lot.

Do to them as to Midian bold,
That wasted all the coast,
To Sisera, and as is told
Thou didst to Jabin's host,

When at the brook of Kishon old
They were repulsed and slain,
At Endor quite cut off, and rolled
As dung upon the plain.

As Zeb and Oreb evil sped,
So let their princes speed,
As Zeba and Zalmunna bled,
So let their princes bleed.

For they amidst their pride have said,
By right now shall we seize God's houses, and will now invade
Their stately palaces.

Psalms

My God, O make them as a wheel,
No quiet let them find ;
Giddy and restless let them reel,
Like stubble from the wind.

As when an aged wood takes fire
Which on a sudden strays,
The greedy flame runs higher and higher,
Till all the mountains blaze ;

So with thy whirlwind them pursue,
And with thy tempest chase ;
And till they yield thee honour due,
Lord, fill with shame their face.

Ashamed and troubled let them be,
Troubled and shamed for ever,
Ever confounded, and so die
With shame, and 'scape it never.

Then shall they know that thou whose name
Jehovah is alone,
Art the Most High, and thou the same
O'er all the earth art one.

PSALM LXXXIV.

How lovely are thy dwellings fair !
O Lord of Hosts, how dear
The pleasant tabernacles are,
Where thou dost dwell so near !

My soul doth long and almost die
Thy courts, O Lord, to see ;
My heart and flesh aloud do cry,
O living God, for thee.

There ev'n the sparrow, freed from wrong,
Hath found a house of rest,
The swallow there, to lay her young,
Hath built her brooding nest ;

Psalms

Even by thy altars, Lord of Hosts,
They find their safe abode,
And home they fly from round the coasts
Toward thee, my King, my God.

Happy, who in thy house reside,
Where thee they ever praise ;
Happy, whose strength in thee doth 'bide,
And in their hearts thy ways.

They pass through Baca's thirsty vale,
That dry and barren ground,
As through a fruitful watery dale
Where springs and showers abound.

They journey on from strength to strength
With joy and gladsome cheer,
Till all before our God at length
In Sion do appear.

Lord God of Hosts, hear now my prayer,
O Jacob's God, give ear,
Thou God our shield, look on the face
Of thy anointed dear.

For one day in thy courts to be
Is better, and more blest,
Than in the joys of vanity
A thousand days at best.

I in the temple of my God
Had rather keep a door,
Than dwell in tents, and rich abode,
With sin for evermore.

For God the Lord, both sun and shield,
Gives grace and glory bright,
No good from them shall be withheld
Whose ways are just and right.

Lord God of Hosts, that reign'st on high.
That man is truly blest,
Who only on thee doth rely,
And in thee only rest.

Psalms

PSALM LXXXV.

THY land to favour graciously
Thou hast not, Lord, been slack ;
Thou hast from hard captivity
Returnèd Jacob back.

Th' iniquity thou didst forgive
That wrought thy people woe,
And all their sin, that did thee grieve,
Hast hid where none shall know.

Thine anger all thou hadst removed,
And calmly didst return
From thy fierce wrath which we had proved
Far worse than fire to burn.

God of our saving health and peace,
Turn us, and us restore ;
Thine indignation cause to cease
Towards us, and chide no more.

Wilt thou be angry without end,
For ever angry thus ;
Wilt thou thy frowning ire extend
From age to age on us ?

Wilt thou not turn, and hear our voice,
And us again revive,
That so thy people may rejoice,
By thee preserved alive ?

Cause us to see thy goodness, Lord,
To us thy mercy show,
Thy saving health to us afford,
And life in us renew.

And now, what God the Lord will speak,
I will go straight and hear,
For to His people He speaks peace,
And to His saints full dear,

Psalms

To His dear saints He will speak peace ;
But let them never more
Return to folly, but surcease
To trespass as before.

Surely to such as do Him fear
Salvation is at hand,
And glory shall ere long appear
To dwell within our land.

Mercy and Truth, that long were missed,
Now joyfully are met ;
Sweet Peace and Righteousness have kissed,
And hand in hand are set.

Truth from the earth, like to a flow'r,
Shall bud and blossom then,
And Justice from her heav'nly bow'r
Look down on mortal men.

The Lord will also then bestow
Whatever thing is good,
Our land shall forth in plenty throw
Her fruits to be our food.

Before Him righteousness shall go,
His royal harbinger ;
Then will He come, and not be slow,
His footsteps cannot err.

PSALM LXXXVI.

THY gracious ear, O Lord, incline,
O hear me, I thee pray,
For I am poor, and almost pine
With need, and sad decay.

Preserve my soul, for I have trod
Thy ways, and love the just,
Save thou thy servant, O my God,
Who still in thee doth trust.

Psalms

Pity me, Lord, for daily thee
I call; O make rejoice
Thy servant's soul; for, Lord, to thee
I lift my soul and voice.

For thou art good, thou, Lord, art prone
To pardon; thou to all
Art full of mercy; thou alone
To them that on thee call.

Unto my supplication, Lord,
Give ear, and to the cry
Of my incessant pray'rs afford
Thy hearing graciously.

I in the day of my distress
Will call on thee for aid;
For thou wilt grant me free access,
And answer what I prayed.

Like thee among the gods is none,
O Lord, nor any works
Of all that other gods have done
Like to thy glorious works.

The nations all whom thou hast made,
Shall come, and all shall frame
To bow them low before thee, Lord,
And glorify thy name.

For great thou art, and wonders great
By thy strong hand are done,
Thou in thy everlasting seat
Remainest God alone.

Teach me, O Lord, thy way most right,
I in thy truth will 'bide,
To fear thy name my heart unite,
So shall it never slide.

Thee will I praise, O Lord my God,
Thee honour and adore
With my whole heart, and blaze abroad
Thy name for evermore.

Psalms

For great thy mercy is toward me,
And thou hast freed my soul,
Ev'n from the lowest hell set free,
From deepest darkness foul.

O God, the proud against me rise,
And violent men are met
To seek my life, and in their eyes
No fear of thee have set.

But thou, Lord, art the God most mild,
Readiest thy grace to show,
Slow to be angry, and art styled
Most merciful, most true.

O turn to me thy face at length,
And me have mercy on ;
Unto thy servant give thy strength,
And save thy handmaid's son.

Some sign of good to me afford,
And let my foes then see,
And be ashamed, because thou, Lord,
Dost help and comfort me.

PSALM LXXXVII.

AMONG the holy mountains high
Is His foundation fast,
There seated in His sanctuary,
His temple there is placed.

Sion's fair gates the Lord loves more
Than all the dwellings fair
Of Jacob's land, though there be store,
And all within His care.

City of God, most glorious things
Of thee abroad are spoke ;

Psalms

I mention Egypt, where proud kings
Did our forefathers yoke.

I mention Babel to my friends,
Philistia full of scorn,
And Tyre with Ethiop's utmost ends,
Lo this man there was born :

But twice that praise shall in our ear
Be said of Sion last,
This and this man was born in her ;
High God shall fix her fast.

The Lord shall write it in a scroll
That ne'er shall be out-worn,
When He the nations doth enroll,
That this man there was born.

Both they who sing, and they who dance,
With sacred songs are there ;
In thee fresh brooks, and soft streams glance,
And all my fountains clear.

PSALM LXXXVIII.

LORD GOD, that dost me save and keep,
All day to thee I cry ;
And all night long before thee weep,
Before thee prostrate lie.

Into thy presence let my prayer
With sighs devout ascend,
And to my cries, that ceaseless are,
Thine ear with favour bend.

For, cloyed with woes and trouble store,
Surcharged my soul doth lie,
My life, at death's uncheerful door,
Unto the grave draws nigh.

Psalms

Reckoned I am with them that pass
Down to the dismal pit ;
I am a man, but weak, alas !
And for that name unfit.

From life discharged and parted quite,
Among the dead to sleep,
And like the slain in bloody fight,
That in the grave lie deep.

Whom thou rememberest no more,
Dost never more regard,
Them from thy hand delivered o'er
Death's hideous house hath barred.

Thou in the lowest pit profound
Hast set me all forlorn,
Where thickest darkness hovers round,
In horrid deeps to mourn.

Thy wrath, from which no shelter saves,
Full sore doth press on me ;
Thou break'st upon me all thy waves,
And all thy waves break me.

Thou dost my friends from me estrange,
And makest me odious,
Me to them odious, for they change,
And I here pent up thus.

Through sorrow and affliction great,
Mine eye grows dim and dead ;
Lord, all the day I thee intreat,
My hands to thee I spread.

Wilt thou do wonders on the dead ?
Shall the deceased arise,
And praise thee from their loathsome bed
With pale and hollow eyes ?

Shall they thy loving-kindness tell
On whom the grave hath hold ?
Or they who in perdition dwell,
Thy faithfulness unfold ?

Psalms

In darkness can thy mighty hand
Or wondrous acts be known?
Thy justice in the gloomy land
Of dark oblivion?

But I to thee, O Lord, do cry,
Ere yet my life be spent,
And up to thee my pray'r doth hie
Each morn, and thee prevent.

Why wilt thou, Lord, my soul forsake,
And hide thy face from me,
That am already bruised, and shake
With terror sent from thee?

Bruised and afflicted, and so low
As ready to expire,
While I thy terrors undergo,
Astonished with thine ire.

Thy fierce wrath over me doth flow,
Thy threat'nings cut me through:
All day they round about me go,
Like waves they me pursue.

Lover and friend thou hast removed,
And severed from me far:
They fly me now whom I have loved,
And as in darkness are.

A PARAPHRASE ON PSALM CXIV.¹

WHEN the blest seed of Terah's faithful son,
After long toil their liberty had won,
And past from Pharian fields to Canaan land,
Led by the strength of the Almighty's hand,

¹ This and the following Psalm are Milton's earliest performances. He was only fifteen when he translated them. The first he afterwards translated into Greek.

Psalms

Jehovah's wonders were in Israel shown,
His praise and glory was in Israel known.
That saw the troubled sea, and shivering fled,
And sought to hide his froth-becurlèd head
Low in the earth ; Jordan's clear streams recoil,
As a faint host that hath received the foil.
The high, huge-bellied mountains skip like rams
Amongst their ewes, the little hills like lambs.
Why fled the ocean ? And why skipped the mountains ?
Why turnèd Jordan toward his crystal fountains ?
Shake, Earth, and at the presence be aghast
Of Him that ever was, and aye shall last ;
That glassy floods from rugged rocks can crush,
And make soft rills from fiery flint-stones gush.

PSALM CXXXVI.

LET us with a gladsome mind
Praise the Lord, for He is kind :
For His mercies aye endure,
Ever faithful, ever sure.

Let us blaze His name abroad,
For of gods He is the God :
For His, etc.

O let us His praises tell,
Who doth the wrathful tyrants quell :
For His, etc.

Who with His miracles doth make
Amazèd heav'n and earth to shake :
For His, etc.

Who by His wisdom did create
The painted heavens so full of state :
For His, etc.

Who did the solid earth ordain
To rise above the watery plain :
For His, etc.

Psalms

Who by His all-commanding might
Did fill the new-made world with light :
For His, etc.

And caused the golden-tressèd sun
All the day long his course to run :
For His, etc.

The hornèd moon to shine by night,
Amongst her spangled sisters bright :
For His, etc.

He with His thunder-clasping hand
Smote the first-born of Egypt land :
For His, etc.

And in despite of Pharaoh fell,
He brought from thence His Israel :
For His, etc.

The ruddy waves He cleft in twain,
Of the Erythræan main :¹
For His, etc.

The floods stood still like walls of glass,
While the Hebrew bands did pass :
For His, etc.

But full soon they did devour
The tawny king with all his power :
For His, etc.

His chosen people He did bless
In the wasteful wilderness :
For His, etc.

In bloody battle He brought down
Kings of prowess and renown :
For His, etc.

He foiled bold Seon and his host,
That ruled the Amorrean coast :
For His, etc.

¹ Red Sea.

Psalms

And large-limbed Og He did subdue,
With all his over-hardy crew :
For His, etc.

And to His servant Israel
He gave their land therein to dwell :
For His, etc.

He hath with a piteous eye
Beheld us in our misery :
For His, etc.

And freed us from the slavery
Of the invading enemy :
For His, etc.

All living creatures He doth feed,
And with full hand supplies their need :
For His, etc.

Let us therefore warble forth
His mighty majesty and worth :
For His, etc.

That His mansion hath on high
Above the reach of mortal eye :
For His mercies aye endure,
Ever faithful, ever sure.

PSALM CXIV.

Ἰσραὴλ ὅτε παῖδες, ὅτ' ἀγλαὰ φύλ' Ἰακώβου

Φαίης τάχ' ἂν, πρὸς εἶδος αὐτοφυὲς βλέπων,
Τὸν δ' ἐκτυπωτὸν οὐκ ἐπιγνόντες, φίλοι,
Τελᾶτε φαύλου δυσμύμημα ζωγράφου.

Johannis Miltoni Londinensis Poemata

Quorum pleraque intra annum ætatis vigesimum conscripsit.

HÆC quæ sequuntur de Autóre testimonia, tametsi ipse intelligebat non tam de se quam supra se esse dicta, eo quod præclaro ingenio viri, nec non amici ita fere solent laudare, ut omnia suis potius virtutibus, quam veritati, congruentia nimis cupide affingant, noluit tamen horum egregiam in se voluntatem non esse notam; cum alii præsertim ut id faceret magnopere suaderent. Dum enim nimix laudis invidiam totis ab se viribus amolitur, sibi quod plus æquo est non attributum esse mavult, judicium interim hominum cordatorum atque illustrium quin summo sibi honori ducat, negare; non potest.

Joannes Baptista Mansus, Marchio Villensis, Neapolitanus, ad Joannem Miltonium Anglum.

UT mens, forma, decor, facies, mos, si pietas sic,
Non Anglus, verùm herclè Angelus ipse, fores.

Ad Joannem Miltonem Anglum triplici poeseos laureâ coronandum, Græcâ nimirum Latinâ, atque Hetruscâ, Epigramma Joannis Salsilli Romani.

CEDE Meles; cedat depressâ Mincius urnâ;
Sebetus Tassum desinat usque loqui;
At Thamesis victor cunctis ferat altior undas;
Nam per te, Milto, par tribus unus erit.

Ad Joannem Miltonum.

GRÆCIA Mæonidem, jactet sibi Roma Maronem,
Anglia Miltonum jactat utrique parem.

ODE.

ERGIMI all' Etra ò Clio
Perchè di stelle intreccierò corona l
Non più del Biondo Dio
La Fronde eterna in Pindo, e in Elicona
Diensi a merto maggior, maggiori i fregi
A' celeste virtù celesti pregi.

Non può del tempo edace
Rimaner preda, eterno alto valore ;
Non può l' obbligo rapace
Furar dalle memorie eccelso onore,
Su l' arco di mia cetra un dardo forte
Virtù m' adatti, e ferirò la morte.

Del Ocean profondo
Cinta dagli ampi gorgi Anglia resiede
Separata dal mondo,
Però che il suo valor l' umano eccede
Questa feconda sà produrre Eroi,
Ch' hanno a ragion del sovrumano tra noi.

Alla virtù sbandita
Danno nei petti lor fido ricetta,
Quella gli è sol gradita,
Perchè in lei san trovar gioia, e diletto ;
Ridillo tu, Giovanni, e mostra in tanto
Con tua vera virtù, vero il mio Canto.

Lungi dal Patrio lido
Spinse Zeusi l' industrie ardente brama ;
Ch' udio d' Helena il grido
Con aurea tromba rimbombar la fama,
E per poterla effigiare al paro
Dalle più belle Idee trasse il più raro.

Ode

Così l'ape ingegnosa
Trae con industria il suo liquor pregiato
Dal giglio e dalla rosa,
E quanti vaghi fiori ornano il prato ;
Formano un dolce suon diverse chorde,
Fan varie voci melodia concorde.

Di bella gloria amante
Milton dal Ciel natio per varie parti
Le peregrine piante
Volgesti a ricercar scienze, ed arti ;
Del Gallo regnator vedesti i Regni,
E dell' Italia ancor gl' Eroi più degni.

Fabro quasi divino
Sol virtù rintracciando il tuo pensiero
Vide in ogni confino
Chi di nobil valor calca il sentiero ;
L' ottimo dal miglior dopo scegliea
Per fabbricar d' ogni virtù l' idea.

Quanti nacquero in Flora
O in lei del parlar Tosco appreser l' arte,
La cui memoria onora
Il mondo fatta eterna in dotte carte,
Volesti ricercar per tuo tesoro,
E parlasti con lor nell' opre loro.

Nell' altera Babelle
Per te il parlar confuse Giove in vano,
Che per varie favelle
Di se stessa trofeo cadde sul piano :
Ch' Ode oltr' all' Anglia il suo più degno Idioma
Spagna, Francia, Toscana, e Grecia, e Roma.

I più profondi arcani
Ch' occulta la natura e in cielo e in terra
Ch' à Ingegni sovrumani

Ode

Troppo avaro talhor gli chiude, e serra,
Chiaramente conosci, e giungi al fine
Della moral virtude al gran confine.

Non batta il Tempo l' ale,
Fermisi immoto, e in un ferminsi gli anni,
Che di virtù immortale
Scorron di troppo ingiuriosi a i danni;
Che s' opre degne di Poema e storia
Furon già, l'hai presenti alla memoria.

Dammi tua dolce Cetra
Se vuoi ch' io dica del tuo dolce canto,
Ch' inalzandoti all' Etra
Di farti huomo celeste ottiene il vanto,
Il Tamigi il dirà che gl' è concesso
Per te suo cigno pareggiar Permesso.

Io che in riva del Arno
Tento spiegar tuo merto alto, e preclaro,
So che fatieo indarno,
E ad ammirar, non a lodarlo imparo ;
Freno dunque la lingua, e ascolto il core
Che ti prende a lodar con lo stupore.

Joanni Miltoni Londinensi

Juveni patria, virtutibus eximio,
VIRO qui multa peregrinatione, studio cuncta orbis terrarum loca perspexit, ut novus Ulysses omnia ubique ab omnibus apprehenderet :

Polyglotto, in cujus ore linguæ jam deperditæ sic reviviscunt, ut idiomata omnia sint in ejus laudibus infacunda ; et jure ea percallet ut admirationes et plausus populorum ab propria sapientia excitatos intelligat :

Illi, cujus animi dotes corporisque sensus ad admirationem commovent, et per ipsam motum cuique auferunt ; cujus opera ad plausus hortantur, sed venustate vocem laudatoribus adimunt :

Cui in memoria totus orbis ; in intellectu sapientia ; in voluntate ardor gloriæ ; in ore eloquentia ; harmonicos cœlestium sphærarum sonitus astronomia duce audienti ;
characteres mirabilium naturæ per quos Dei magnitudo describitur, magistra philosophia legente ; antiquitatum latebras, vetustatis excidia, eruditionis ambages, comite assidua autorum lectione,

Exquirenti restauranti, percurrenti :
At cur nilor in arduum ?

Illi in cujus virtutibus evulgandis ora Famæ non sufficiant, nec hominum stupor in laudandis satis est, reverentiæ et amoris ergo hoc ejus meritis debitum admirationis tributum
offert CAROLUS DATUS, Patricius Florentinus,

Tanto homini servus, tantæ virtutis amator.

ELEGIARUM LIBER.

ELEG. I. AD CAROLUM DEODATUM.¹

1627.

TANDEM, chare, tuæ mihi pervenere tabellæ,
Pertulit et vocēs nuncia charta tuas ;
Pertulit, occiduâ Devæ Cestrensis ab orâ
Vergivium prono quâ petit amne salum.
Multûm, crede, juvat terras aluisse remotas
Pectus amans nostri, tamque fidele caput,
Quoddque mihi lepidum tellus longinqua sodalem
Debet, at unde brevi reddere jussa velit.
Me tenet urbs reflua quam Thamesis alluit undâ,
Meque, nec invitum, patria dulcis habet,
Jam nec arundiferum mihi cura revisere Camum,
Nec dudum vetiti me laris angit amor :
Nuda nec arva placent, umbrasque negantia molles ;
Quàm male Phœbicolis convenit ille locus !
Nec duri libet usque minas perferre Magistri,
Cæteraque ingenio non subeunda meo.
Si sit hoc exilium patrios adiisse penates,
Et vacuum curis otia grata sequi,
Non ego vel profugi nomē sortemve recuso,
Lætus et exilii-conditione fruor.
O utinam vates nunquam graviora tulisset
Ille Tomitano flebilis exul agro ;
Non tunc Ionio quicquam cessisset Homero,
Neve foret victo laus tibi prima, Maro.
Tempora nam licet hic placidis dare libera Musis,
Et totum rapiunt me, mea vita, libri.
Excipit hinc fessum sinuosi pompa theatri,
Et vocat ad plausus garrula scena suos.
Seu catus auditur senior, seu prodigus hæres.

Elegiarum Liber

Seu procus, aut positâ casside miles adest,
Sive decennali fœcundus lite patronus
Detonat inculto barbara verba foro ;
Sæpe vafer gnato succurrit servus amanti,
Et nasum rigidi fallit ubique patris ;
Sæpe novos illic virgo mirata calores
Quid sit amor nescit, dum quoque nescit, amat.
Sive cruentatum furiosa Tragœdia sceptrum
Quassat, et effusis crinibus ora rotat ;
Et dolet et specto, juvat et spectasse dolendo,
Interdum et lacrymis dulcis amator inest ;
Seu puer infelix indelibata reliquit
Gaudia, et abrupto flendus amore cadit ;
Seu ferus è tenebris iterat Styga criminis ultor,
Conscia funereo pectora torre movens :
Seu mœret Pelopeia domus, seu nobilis Ili,
Aut luit incestos aula Creontis avos.
Sed neque sub tecto semper nec in urbe latemus,
Irrita nec nobis tempora veris eunt.
Nos quoque lucus habet vicina consitus ulmo,
Atque suburbani nobilis umbra loci.
Sæpius hic blandas spirantia sidera flammæ
Virgineos videas præteriisse choros.
Ah quoties dignæ stupui miracula formæ,
Quæ possit senium vel reparare Jovis !
Ah quoties vidi superantia lumina gemmas,
Atque faces, quotquot volvit uterque polus ;
Collaque bis vivi Pelopis quæ brachia vincant
Quæque fluit puro nectare tincta via ;
Et decus eximium frontis, tremulosque capillos.
Aurea quæ fallax retia tendit Amor ;
Pellacesque genas, ad quas hyacinthina sordet
Purpura, et ipse tui floris, Adoni, rubor !
Cedite laudatæ toties Herôides olim,
Et quæcunque vagum cepit amica Jovem :
Cedite Achæmenia turritâ fronte puellæ,
Et quot Susa colunt, Memnoniamque Ninon :
Vos etiam Danaæ fasces submitte Nymphæ,
Et vos Iliacæ, Romuleæque nurus :
Nec Pompeianas Tarpeia Musa columnas

Elegiarum Liber

Jactet, et Ausoniis plena theatra stolis.
Gloria Virginibus debetur prima Britannis,
Extera sat tibi sit fœmina posse sequi.
Tuque urbs Dardaniis, Londinum, structa colonis,
Turrigerum latè conspicienda caput,
Tu nimium felix intra tua mœnia claudis
Quicquid formosi pendulus orbis habet.
Non tibi tot cœlo scintillant astra sereno,
Endymioneæ turba ministra deæ,
Quot tibi, conspicuæ formæque auroque, puellæ
Per medias radiant turba videnda vias.
Creditur huc geminis venisse invecta columbis
Alma pharetrigero milite cincta Venus,

Huic Paphon, et roseam posthabitura Cypron.
Ast ego, dum pueri sinit indulgentia cæci,
Mœnia quàm subitò linquere fausta paro ;
Et vitare procul malefidæ infamia Circes
Atria, divini Molyos usus ope.
Stat quoque juncosas Cami remeare paludes,
Atque iterum raucæ murmur adire Scholæ.
Interea fidi parvum cape munus amici,
Paucaque in alternos verba coacta modos.

IN OBITUM PRÆCONIS ACADEMICI CANTABRIGIENSIS.¹

1626.

TE, qui conspicuus baculo fulgente solebas
Palladium toties ore ciere gregem,
Ultima præconum præconem te quoque sæva
Mors rapit, officio nec favet ipsa suo ;
Candidiora licet fuerint tibi tempora plumis
Sub quibus accipimus delituisse Jovem ;

¹ Richard Redding, M.A., of St. John's, Cambridge. He died in October 1626.

Elegiarum Liber

O dignus tamen Hæmonio juvenescere succo,
Dignus in Æsonios vivere posse dies,
Dignus quem Stygiis medicâ revocaret ab undis
Arte Coronides, sæpe rogante deâ :
Tu si jussus eras acies accire togatas,
Et celer a Phœbo nuntius ire tuo,
Talis in Iliacâ stabat Cyllenius aulâ
Alipes, ætherea missus ab arce Patris :
Talis et Eurybates ante ora furentis Achillei
Rettulit Atridæ jussa severa ducis.
Magna sepulchrorum regina, satelles Averni,
Sæva nimis Musis, Palladi sæva nimis,
Quin illos rapias qui pondus inutile terræ ?
Turba quidem est telis ista petenda tuis.
Vestibus hunc igitur pullis, Academia, luge,
Et madeant lachrymis nigra feretra tuis.
Fundat et ipsa modos querebunda Elegeïa tristes,
Personet et totis nænia mœsta scholis.

ELEG. III. ANNO ÆTATIS 17.

IN OBITUM PRÆSULIS WINTONIENSIS.¹

1626.

MÆSTUS eram, et tacitus nullo comitante sedebam,
Hærebantque animo tristia plura meo,
Protinus en subiit funestæ cladis imago,
Fecit in Angliaco quam Libitina solo ;
Dum procerum ingressa est splendentes marmore turres.
Dira sepulchrali Mors metuenda face ;
Pulsavitque auro gravidos et jaspide muros,
Nec metuit satrapum sternere falce greges.
Tunc memini clarique ducis, fratrisque verendi
Intempestivis ossa cremata rogis :
Et memini Heroum quos vidit ad æthera raptos.
Flevit et amissos Belgia tota duces :

Elegiarum Liber

At te præcipuè luxi, dignissime Præsul,
Wintoniæque olim gloria magna tuæ;
Delicui fletu, et tristi sic ore querebar:
“Mors fera, Tartareo diva secunda Jovi,
Nonne satis quod sylva tuas persentiat iras,
Et quod in herbosos jus tibi detur agros,
Quodque afflata tuo marcescant lilia tabo,
Et crocus, et pulchræ Cypridi sacra rosa;
Nec sinis, ut semper fluvio contermina quercus
Miretur lapsus prætereuntis aquæ?
Et tibi succumbit, liquido quæ plurima cœlo
Evehitur pennis, quamlibet augur avis,
Et quæ mille nigris errant animalia sylvis,
Et quot alunt mutum Proteos antra pecus
Invida, tanta tibi cum sit concessa potestas,
Quid juvat humanâ tingere cæde manus?
Nobileque in pectus certas acuisse sagittas,
Semideamque animam sede fugâsse sua?”
Talia dum lacrymans alto sub pectore volvo,
Roscidus occiduis Hesperus exit aquis,
Et Tartessiaco submerserat æquore currum
Phœbus, ab Eöo littore mensus iter:
Nec mora, membra cavo posui refovenda cubili,
Condiderant oculos noxque soporque meos;
Cum mihi visus eram lato spatiarier agro:
Heu! nequit ingenium visa referre meum.
Illic punicea radiabant omnia luce,
Ut matutino cum juga sole rubent.
Ac veluti cum pandit opes Thaumantia proles,
Vestitu nituit multicolore solum:
Non dea tam variis ornavit floribus hortos
Alcinoi, Zephyro Chloris amata levi.
Flumina vernantes lambunt argentea campos,
Ditior Hesperio flavet arena Tago.
Serpit odoriferas per opes levis aura Favoni,
Aura sub innumeris humida nata rosis.
Talis in extremis terræ Gangetidis oris
Luciferi regis fingitur esse domus.
Ipse racemiferis dum densas vitibus umbras,
Et pelluentes miror ubique locos,

Elegiarum Liber

Ecce mihi subito Præsul Wintonius, astat,
Sidereum nitido fulsit in ore jubar ;
Vestis ad auratos defluxit candida talos,
Infula divinum cinxerat alba caput.
Dumque senex tali incedit venerandus amictu,
Intremuit læto florea terra sono.
Agmina gemmatis plaudunt cœlestia pennis,
Pura triumphali personat æthra tubâ.
Quisque novum amplexu comitem cantuque salutat,
Hosque aliquis placido misit ab ore sonos :
“ Nate, veni, et patrii felix cape gaudia regni, Semper abhinc duro, nate, labore vaca.”
Dixit, et aligeræ tetigerunt nablia turbæ :
At mihi cum tenebris aurea pulsa quies.
Flebam turbatos Cephaleiâ pellice somnos :
Talia contingant somnia sæpe mihi.

ELEG. IV. ANNO ÆTATIS 18.

Ad Thomam Junium¹ præceptorem suum, apud mercatores Anglicos Hamburgæ agentes, Pastoris munere fungentem.

CURRE per immensum subitò, mea littera, pontum :
I, pete Teutonicos læve per æquor agros :
Segnes rumpe moras, et nil, precor, obstat eunti,
Et festinantis nil remoretur iter.
Ipse ego Sicanio frænantem carcere ventos
Æolon, et virides sollicitabo Deos,
Cæruleamque suis comitatam Dorida Nymphis,
Ut tibi dent placidam per sua regna viam.
At tu, si poteris, celeres tibi sume jugales,
Vecta quibus Colchis fugit ab ore viri ;
Aut queis Triptolemus Scythicas devenit in oras,
Gratas Eleusina missus ab urbe puer.
Atque ubi Germanas flavere videbis arenas,
Ditis ad Hamburgæ mœnia flecte gradum,
Dicitur occiso quæ ducere nomen ab Hamâ,
Cimbrica quem fertur clava dedisse neci :

¹ Young was private tutor to Milton before he went to St. Paul's School.

Elegiarum Liber

Vivit ibi antiquæ clarus pietatis honore
Præsul, Christicolas pascere doctus oves ;
Ille quidem est animæ plusquam pars altera nostræ,
Dimidio vitæ vivere cogor ego.
Hei mihi quot pelagi, quot montes interjecti,
Me faciunt aliâ parte carere mei !
Charior ille mihi, quàm tu, doctissime Graium
Cliniadi, pronepos qui Telamonis erat ;
Quàmque Stagyrites generoso magnus alumno,
Quem peperit Lybico Chaonis alma Jovi.
Qualis Amyntorides, qualis Philyræius Heros
Myrmidonum regi, talis et ille mihi.
Primus ego Aönios illo, præeunte, recessus
Lustrabam, et bifidi sacra vireta jugi ;
Pieriosque hausî latices ; Clioque favente,
Castalio sparsi læta ter ora mero.
Flammeus at signum ter viderat arietis Æthon,
Induxitque auro lanea terga novo ;
Bisque novo terram sparsisti, Chlorig, senilem
Gramine, bisque tuas abstulit Auster opes :
Necdum ejus licuit mihi lumina pascere vultu,
Aut linguæ dulces aure bibisse sonos.
Vade igitur, cursuque Eurum præverte sonorum,
Quàm sit opus monitis, res docet ipsa, vides.
Invenies dulci cum conjuge fortè sedentem,
Mulcentem gremio pignora chara suo.
Forsitan aut veterum prælargâ volumina patrum
Versantem, aut verî Biblia sacra Dei :
Cœlestive animas saturantem rore tenellas ;
Grande salutiferæ religionis opus.
Utque solet, multam sit dicere cura salutem,
Dicere quam decuit, si modo adesset, herum.
Hæc quoque, paulum oculos in humum defixa modestos
Verba verecundo sis memor ore loqui :
“ Hæc tibi, si teneris vacat inter prælia Musis, Mittit ab Angliaco littore fida manus.
Accipe sinceram, quamvis sit sera, salutem ;
Fiat et hoc ipso gratior illa tibi.
Sera quidem, sed vera fuit, quam casta recepit
Icaris à lento Penelopeia viro.

Elegiarum Liber

Ast ego quid volui manifestum tollere crimen
Ipse quod ex omni parte levare nequit ?
Arguitur tardus meritò, noxamque fatetur,
Et pudet officium deseruisse suum.
Tu modò da veniam fasso, veniamque roganti,
Crimina diminui, quæ patuere, solent.
Non ferus in pavidos rictus diducit hiantes,
Vulnifico pronos nec rapit ungue leo.
Sæpe sarissiferi crudelia pectora Thracis
Supplicis ad mœstas deliquere preces :
Extensæque manus avertunt fulminis ictus,
Placat et iratos hostia parva Deos.
Jamque diu scripsisse tibi fuit impetus illi,
Neve moras ultra ducere passus Amor ;
Nam vaga Fama refert, heu nuntia vera malorum.
In tibi finitimis bella tumere locis,
Teque tuamque urbem truculento milite cingi,
Et jam Saxonicos arma parâsse duces.
Te circum latè campos populatur Enyo,
Et sata carne virûm jam cruor arva rigat ;
Germanisque suum concessit Thracia Martem,
Illuc Odrysios Mars pater egit equos ;
Perpetuòque comans jam deflorescit oliva,
Fugit et ærisonam Diva perosa tubam,
Fugit io terris, et jam non ultima virgo
Creditur ad superas justa volâsse domos.
Te tamen interea belli circumsonat horror,
Vivis et ignoto solus inopsque solo ;
Et, tibi quam patrii non exhibuere penates,
Sede peregrinâ quæris egenus opem
Patria dura parens, et saxis sævior albis
Spumea quæ pulsat littoris unda tui,
Siccine te decet innocuos exponere fœtus,
Siccine in externam ferrea cogis humum,
Et sinis ut terris quærant alimenta remotis
Quos tibi prospiciens miserat ipse Deus ;
Et qui læta ferunt de cœlo nuntia, quique,
Quæ via post cineres ducat ad astra, docent ?
Digna quidem Stygiis quæ vivas clausa tenebris,
Æternaque animæ digna perire fame !

Elegiarum Liber

Haud aliter vates terræ Thesbitidis olim
Pressit inassueto devia tesqua pede,
Desertasque Arabum salebras dum regis Achabi
Effugit, atque tuas, Sidoni dira, manus :
Talis et horrisono laceratus membra flagello,
Paulus ab Æmathiâ pellitur urbe Cilix.
Piscosæque ipsum Gergessæ civis Iësum
Finibus ingratus jussit abire suis.
At tu sume animos, nec spes cadat anxia curis,
Nec tua concutiat decolor ossa metus.
Sis etenim quamvis fulgentibus obsitus armis,
Intententque tibi millia tela necem,
At nullis vel inerme latus violabitur armis,
Deque tuo cuspis nulla cruore bibet.
Namque eris ipse Dei radiante sub ægide tutus,
Ille tibi custos, et pugil ille tibi ;
Ille Sionææ qui tot sub mœnibus arcis
Assyrios fudit nocte silente viros ;
Inque fugam vertit quos in Samaritidas oras
Misit ab antiquis prisca Damascus agris,
Terruit et densas pavidò cum rege cohortes,
Aere dum vacuo buccina clara sonat,
Cornea pulvereum dum verberat ungula campum,
Currus arenosam dum quatit actus humum,
Auditurque hinnitus equorum ad bella ruentûm,
Et strepitus ferri, murmuraque alta virûm.
Et tu (quod superest miseris) sperare memento,
Et tua magnanimo pectore vince mala ;
Nec dubites quandoque frui melioribus annis,
Atque iterum patrios posse videre lares."

ELEG. V. ANNO ÆTATIS 20.

IN ADVENTUM VERIS.

IN se perpetuo Tempus revolubile gyro
Jam revocat Zephyros, vere tepente, novos ;
Induiturque brevem Tellus reparata juventam,
Jamque soluta gelu dulcè virescit humus.

Elegiarum Liber

Fallor? an et nobis redeunt in carmina vires,
Ingeniumque mihi munere veris adest?
Munere veris adest, iterumque vigescit ab illo, (Quis putet?) atque aliquod jam sibi poscit opus.
Castalis ante oculos, bifidumque cacumen oberrat,
Et mihi Pyrenen somnia nocte ferunt;
Concitaque arcano fervent mihi pectora motu,
Et furor, et sonitus me sacer intus agit.
Delius ipse venit, video Penëide lauro
Implicitos crines, Delius ipse venit.
Jam mihi mens liquidi raptatur in ardua cœli,
Perque vagas nubes corpore liber eo;
Perque umbras, perque antra feror penetralia vatum,
Et mihi fana patent interiora Deum;
Intuiturque animus toto quid agatur Olympo,
Nec fugiunt oculos Tartara cæca meos.
Quid tam grande sonat distento spiritus ore?
Quid parit hæc rabies, quid sacer iste furor?
Ver mihi, quod dedit ingenium, cantabitur illo;
Profuerint isto reddita dona modo.
Jam, Philomela, tuos, foliis adoperta novellis,
Instituis modulos, dum silet omne nemus:
Urbe ego, tu sylvâ, simul incipiamus utrique,
Et simul adventum veris uterque canat.
Veris iō rediere vices, celebremus honores
Veris, et hoc subeat Musa perennis opus.
Jam sol Æthiopas fugiens Tithoniaque arva,
Flectit ad Arctoas aurea lora plagas.
Est breve noctis iter, brevis est mora noctis opacæ,
Horrida cum tenebris exulat illa suis.
Jamque Lycaonius plaustrum cœleste Bootes
Non longa sequitur fessus ut ante viâ;
Nunc etiam solitas circum Jovis atria toto
Excubias agitant sidera rara polo:
Nam dolus, et cædes, et vis cum nocte recessit
Neve Giganteum Dii timuere scelus.
Fortè aliquis scopuli recubans in vertice pastor,
Roscida cum primo sole rubescit humus,
“Hac,” ait, “hac certè caruisti nocte puellâ, Phœbe, tuâ, celeres quæ retineret equos.”

Elegiarum Liber

Læta suas repetit sylvas, pharetramque resumit
Cynthia, Luciferas ut videt alta rotas ;
Et tenues ponens radios, gaudere videtur
Officium fieri tam breve fratris ope.
“Desere,” Phoebus ait, “thalamos, Aurora, seniles,
Quid juvat effæto procubuisse toro ?
Te manet Æolides viridi venator in herbâ :
Surge, tuos ignes altus Hymettus habet.”
Flava verecundo dea crimen in ore fatetur,
Et matutinos ociùs urget equos.
Exiit invisam Tellus rediviva senectam,
Et cupit amplexus, Phœbe, subire tuos ;
Et cupit, et digna est. Quid enim formosius illâ,
Pandit ut omniferos luxuriosa sinus,
Atque Arabum spirat messes, et ab ore venusto
Mitia cum Paphiis fundit amoma roris ?
Ecce coronatur sacro frons ardua luco,
Cingit ut Idæam pinea turris Opim ;
Et vario madidos intexit flore capillos,
Floribus et visa est posse placere suis.
Floribus effusos ut erat redimita capillos,
Tænario placuit diva Sicana Deo.
Aspice, Phœbe, tibi faciles hortantur amores,
Mellitasque movent flamina verna preces :
Cinnamea Zephyrus leve plaudit odorifer alâ,
Blanditiasque tibi ferre videntur aves.
Nec sine dote tuos temeraria quærit amores
Terra, nec optatos poscit egena toros ;
Alma salutiferum medicos tibi gramen in usus
Præbet, et hinc titulos adjuvat ipsa tuos :
Quòd si te pretium, si te fulgentia tangunt
Munera, (muneribus sæpe coemptus Amor)
Illa tibi ostentat quascunque sub æquore vasto,
Et superinjectis montibus abdit opes.
Ah, quoties, cum tu clivoso fessus Olympo
In vespertinas præcipitaris aquas,
“Cur te,” inquit, “cursu languentem, Phœbe, diurno
Hesperii recipit Cærula mater aquis ?
Quid tibi cum Tethy ? Quid cum Tartesside lympha ?
Dia quid immundo perluis ora salo ?

Elegiarum Liber

Frigora, Phœbe, meâ melius captabis in umbrâ,
Huc ades, ardentes imbue rore comas.
Mollior egelidâ veniet tibi somnus in herbâ ;
Huc ades, et gremio lumina pone meo.
Quâque jaces, circum mulcebit lene susurrans
Aura me humentes corpora fusa rosas :
Nec me (crede mihi) terrent Semelëia fata,
Nec Phaetonteo fumidus axis equo ;
Cum tu, Phœbe, tuo sapientiùs uteris igni :
Huc ades, et gremio lumina pone meo.”
Sic Tellus lasciva suos suspirat amores ;
Matris in exemplum cætera turba ruunt :
Nunc etenim toto currit vagus orbe Cupido,
Languentesque fovet solis ab igne faces.
Insonuere novis lethalia cornua nervis,
Triste micant ferro tela corusca novo.
Jamque vel invictam tentat superâsse Dianam,
Quæque sedet sacro Vesta pudica foco.
Ipsa senescentem reparat Venus annua formam,
Atque iterum tepido creditur orta mari.
Marmoreas juvenes clamant Hymenæe per urbes,
Littus, io Hymen, et cava saxa sonant.
Cultior ille venit, tunicâque decentior aptâ,
Puniceum redolet vestis odora crocum.
Egrediturque frequens, ad amœni gaudia veris,
Virgineos auro cincta puella sinus :
Votum est cuique suum, votum est tamen omnibus
Ut sibi, quem cupiat, det Cytherea virum. [unum,
Nunc quoque septenâ modulatur arundine pastor,
Et sua, quæ jungat, carmina Phyllis habet.
Navita nocturno placat sua sidera cantu,
Delphinâsque leves ad vada summa vocat.
Jupiter ipse alto cum conjuge ludit Olympo,
Convocat et famulos ad sua festa Deos.
Nunc etiam Satyri, cum sera crepuscula surgunt,
Pervolitant celeri florea rura choro,
Sylvanusque sua cyparissi fronde revinctus,
Semicaperque Deus, semideusque caper.
Quæque sub arboribus Dryades latuere vetustis.
Per juga, per solos expatiantur agros.

Elegiarum Liber

Per sata luxuriat fruticetaque Mænalius Pan,
Vix Cybele mater, vix sibi tuta Ceres;
Atque aliquam cupidus prædatur Oreada Faunus,
Consulit in trepidos dum sibi nympha pedes;
Jamque latet, latitansque cupit malè tecta videri,
Et fugit, et fugiens pervelit ipsa capi.
Dii quoque non dubitant cœlo præponere sylvas,
Et sua quisque sibi numina lucus habet.
Et sua quisque diu sibi numina lucus habeto,
Nec vos arboreâ dii precor ite domo.
Te referant miseris te, Jupiter, aurea terris
Sæcla : quid ad nimbos aspera tela redis?
Tu saltem lentè rapidos age, Phœbe, jugales,
Quâ potes, et sensim tempora veris eant;
Brumaque productas tardè ferat hispida noctes,
Ingruat et nostro senior umbra polo.

ELEG. VI.

AD CAROLUM DEODATUM¹ RURI COMMORANTEM.

Qui cum Idibus Decemb. scripsisset, et sua carmina excusari postulasset si solito minus essent bona, quod inter lautitias, quibus erat ab amicis exceptus, haud satis felicem operam Musis dare se posse affirmabat, hoc habuit responsum.

MITTO tibi sanam non pleno ventre salutem,
Quâ tu distento fortè carere potes.
At tua quid nostram prolectat Musa camœnam,
Nec sinit optatas posse sequi tenebras?
Carmine scire velis quàm te redamemque colamque,
Crede mihi vix hoc carmine scire qucas.
Nam neque noster amor modulis includitur arctis,
Nec venit ad claudos integer ipse pedes.
Quàm bene solennes epulas, hilaremque Decembrim,
Festaque cœlifugam quæ coluere Deum,
Deliciasque refers, hiberni gaudia ruris,
Haustaque per lepidos Gallica musta focos!

Elegiarum Liber

Quid quereris refugam vino dapibusque poesin?
Carmen amat Bacchum, carmina Bacchus amat.
Nec puduit Phœbum virides gestâsse corymbos,
Atque hederam lauro præposuisse suâ.
Sæpius Aoniis clamavit collibus Eue
Mista Thyoneo turba novena choro.
Naso Corallæis mala carmina misit ab agris:
Non illic epulæ, non sata vitis erat.
Quid nisi vina, rosasque, racemiferumque Lyæum,
Cantavit brevibus Tëia Musa modis?
Pindaricosque inflat numeros Teumesius Euan,
Et redolet sumptum pagina quæque merum;
Dum gravis everso currus crepat axe supinus,
Et volat Eleo pulvere fuscus eques.
Quadrimoque madens Lyricen Romanus Iaccho,
Dulce canit Glyceran, flavicomamque Chloen.
Jam quoque lauta tibi generoso mensa paratu
Mentis alit vires, ingeniumque fovet.
Massica fœcundam despumant pocula venam,
Fundis et ex ipso condita metra cado.
Addimus his artes, fusumque per intima Phœbum
Corda; favent uni Bacchus, Apollo, Ceres.
Scilicet haud mirum, tam dulcia carmina per te,
Numine composito, tres peperisse Deos.
Nunc quoque Thressa tibi cælato barbitos auro
Insonat argutâ molliter icta manu:
Auditurque chelys suspensa tapetia circum,
Virgineos tremulâ quæ regat arte pedes.
Illa tuas saltem teneant spectacula Musas,
Et revocent, quantum crapula pellit iners.
Crede mihi, dum psallit ebur, comitataque plectrum
Implet odoratos festa chorea tholos,
Percipies tacitum per pectora serpere Phœbum,
Quale repentinus permeat ossa calor,
Perque puellares oculos, digitumque sonantem.
Irruet in totos lapsa Thalia sinus.
Namque Elegia levis multorum cura Deorum est,
Et vocat ad numeros quemlibet illa suos;
Liber adest elegis, Eratoque, Ceresque, Venusque,
Et cum purpureâ matre tenellus Amor.

Elegiarum Liber

Talibus inde licent convivia larga poetis,
Sæpiùs et veteri commaduisse mero :
At qui bella refert, et adulto sub Jove cœlum,
Heroasque pios, semideosque duces,
Et nunc sancta canit superûm consulta deorum,
Nunc latrata fero regna profunda cane,
Ille quidem parcè, Samii pro more magistri,
Vivat, et innocuos præbeat herba cibos ;
Stet prope fagineo pellucida lymphæ catillo,
Sobriaque e puro pocula fonte bibat.
Additur huic scelerisque vacans, et casta juvenus,
Et rigidi mores, et sine labe manus :
Qualis veste nitens sacra, et lustralibus undis,
Surgis ad infensos augur iture Deos.
Hoc ritu vixisse ferunt post rapta sagacem
Lumina Tiresian, Ogygiumque Linon.
Et lare devoto profugum Calchanta, senemque
Orpheon, edomitæ sola per antra feris ;
Sic dapis exiguus, sic rivi potor Homerus
Dulichium vexit per freta longa virum,
Et per monstrificam Perseïæ Phœbados aulam,
Et vada scæmineis insidiosa sonis,
Perque tuas, rex ime, domos, ubi sanguine nigro
Dicitur umbrarum detinuisse greges.
Diis etenim sacer est vates, divûmque sacerdos,
Spirat et occultum pectus et ora Jovem.
At tu siquid agam scitabere (si modò saltem Esse putas tanti noscere siquid agam)
Paciferum canimus cœlesti semine regem,
Fausta que sacratis sæcula pacta libris ;
Vagitumque Dei, et stabulantem paupere tecto
Qui suprema suo cum patre regna colit ;
Stelliparumque polum, modulantesque æthere turmas,
Et subito elisos ad sua fana Deos.
Dona quidem dedimus Christi natalibus illa,
Illa sub auroram lux mihi prima tulit.
Te quoque pressa manent patriis meditata cicutis ;
Tu mihi, cui recitem, iudicis instar eris.

ELEG. VII. ANNO ÆTATIS 19.

1628.

NONDUM, blanda, tuas leges, Amathusia, nôram,
Et Paphio vacuum pectus ab igne fuit.
Sæpe cupidineas, puerilia tela, sagittas,
Atque tuum sprevi, maxime, numen, Amor.
“Tu, puer, imbelles,” dixi, “transfige columbas,
Conveniunt tenero mollia bella duci :
Aut de passeribus timidos age, parve, triumphos,
Hæc sunt militiæ digna trophæ tuæ.
In genus humanum quid inania dirigit arma ?
Non valet in fortes ista pharetra viros.”
Non tulit hoc Cyprius, neque enim Deus ullus ad iras
Promptior, et duplici jam ferus igne calet.
Ver erat, et summæ radians per culmina villæ
Attulerat primam lux tibi, Maie, diem :
At mihi adhuc refugam quærebant lumina noctem,
Nec matutinum sustinuerè jubar.
Astat Amor lecto, pictis Amor impiger alis ;
Prodidit astantem mota pharetra Deum :
Prodidit et facies, et dulcè minantis ocelli,
Et quicquid puero dignum et Amore fuit.
Talis in æterno juvenis Sigeius Olympo
Miscet amatori pocula plena Jovi ;
Aut, qui formosas pellexit ad oscula nymphas,
Thiodamantæus Naiade raptus Hylas.
Addideratque iras, sed et has decuisse putares,
Addideratque truces, nec sine felle, minas.
Et “miser exemplo sapuisses tutius,” inquit :
“Nunc mea quid possit dextera, testis eris.
Inter et expertos vires numerabere nostras,
Et faciam vero per tua damna fidem.
Ipse ego, si nescis, statò Pythone superbum
Edomui Phœbum, cessit et ille mihi ;
Et quoties meminit Penëidos, ipse fatetur
Certius et gravius tela nocere mea.
Me nequit adductum curvare peritiûs arcum,
Qui post terga solet vincere, Parthus eques :

Elegiarum Liber

Cydoniusque mihi cedit venator, et ille
Inscius uxori qui necis author erat.
Est etiam nobis ingens quoque victus Orion, Herculeæque manus, Herculeusque comes.
Jupiter ipse licet sua fulmina torqueat in me,
Hærebunt lateri spicula nostra Jovis.
Cætera, quæ dubitas, melius mea tela docebunt,
Et tua non leviter corda petenda mihi.
Nec te, stulte, tuæ poterunt defendere Musæ,
Nec tibi Phœbæus porriget anguis opem.”
Dixit, et aurato quatiens mucrone sagittam,
Evolat in tepidos Cypridos ille sinus.
At mihi risuro tonuit ferus ore minaci,
Et mihi de puero non metus ullus erat.
Et modò quà nostri spatiantur in urbe Quirites,
Et modò villarum proxima rura placent.
Turba frequens, facieque simillima turba dearum,
Splendida per medias itque reditque vias ;
Auctaque luce dies gemino fulgore coruscat :
Fallor ? An et radios hinc quoque Phœbus habet ?
Hæc ego non fugi spectacula grata severus,
Impetus et quò me fert juvenilis, agor :
Lumina luminibus malè providus obvia misi,
Neve oculos potui continuisse meos.
Unam fortè aliis supereminuisse notabam ;
Principium nostri lux erat illa mali.
Sic Venus optaret mortalibus ipsa videri,
Sic regina Deûm conspicienda fuit.
Hanc memor objecit nobis malus ille Cupido,
Solutus et hos nobis texuit antè dolos.
Nec procul ipse vafer latuit ; multæque sagittæ,
Et facis a tergo grande pependit onus :
Nec mora : nunc ciliis hæsit, nunc virginis ori,
Insilit hinc labiis, insidet inde genis :
Et quascunque agilis partes jaculator oberrat,
Hei mihi, mille locis pectus inerme ferit.
Protinus insoliti subierunt corda furores,
Uror amans intus, flammaque totus eram.
Interea misero quæ jam mihi sola placebat,
Ablata est oculis non reditura meis.

Elegiarum Liber

Ast ego progredior tacitè querebundus, et excors
Et dubius volui sæpe referre pedem.
Findor, et hæc remanet : sequitur pars altera votum
Raptaque tam subitò gaudia flere juvat.
Sic dolet amissum proles Junonia cœlum,
Inter Lemniacos præcipitata focos :
Talis et abreptum solem respexit, ad Orcum
Vectus ab attonitis Amphiarus equis.
Quid faciam infelix, et luctu victus? Amores
Nec licet inceptos ponere, neve sequi.
O utinam, spectare semel mihi detur amatos
Vultus, et coràm tristia verba loqui !
Forsitan et duro non est adamante creata,
Fortè nec ad nostras surdeat illa preces !
Crede mihi, nullus sic infelicitè arsit,
Ponar in exemplo primus et unus ego.
Parce precor, teneri cum sis Deus ales amoris,
Pugnent officio nec tua facta tuo.
Jam tuus O certè est mihi formidabilis arcus,
Nate deâ, jaculis nec minus igne potens ;
Et tua fumabunt nostris altaria donis,
Solum et in superis tu mihi summus eris.
Deme meos tandem, verùm nec deme, furores,
Nescio cur, miser est suaviter omnis amans :
Tu modò da facilis, posthæc mea siqua futura est,
Cuspis amatuos figat ut una duos.

HÆC ego, mente olim lævâ, studioque supino,
Nequitia posui vana trophæa meæ.
Scilicet abreptum sic me malus impulit error,
Indocilisque ætas prava magistra fuit.
Donec Socraticos umbrosa Academia rivos
Præbuit, admissum dedocuitque jugum.
Protinùs, extinctis ex illo tempore flammis,
Cincta rigent multo pectora nostra gelu.
Unde suis frigus metuit puer ipse sagittis,
Et Diomedeam vim timet ipsa Venus.

EPIGRAMMATUM LIBER.

I.

IN PRODITIONEM BOMBARDICAM.

Cum simul in regem nuper satrapasque Britannos
Ausus es infandum, perfide Fauxe, nefas,
Fallor? An et mitis voluisti ex parte videri
Et pensare malâ cum pietate scelus?
Scilicet hos alti missurus ad atria cœli,
Sulphureo curru, flammivolisque rotis:
Qualiter ille, feris caput inviolabile Parcîs,
Liquit Iôrdanios turbine raptus agros.

II.

IN EANDEM.

Siccine tentâsti cœlo donâsse Iăcobum,
Quæ septemgemino Bellua monte lates?
Ni meliora tuum poterit dare munera numen,
Parce, precor, donis insidiosa tuis.
Ille quidem sine te consortia serus adivit
Astra, nec inferni pulveris usus ope.
Sic potius fœdos in cœlum pelle cucullos,
Et quot habet brutos Roma profana Deos:
Namque hac aut aliâ nisi quemque adjuveris arte,
Crede mihi, cœli vix bene scandet iter.

III.

IN EANDEM.

Purgatorem animæ derisit Iăcobus ignem,
Et sine quo superûm non adeunda domus.
Frenduit hoc trinâ monstrum Latiale coronâ,
Movit et horrificum cornua dena minax.

Epigrammatum Liber

Et "nec inultus," ait, "temnes mea sacra, Britanne:
Supplicium spretâ religione dabis.
Et si stelligeras unquam penetraveris arces,
Non nisi per flammâs triste patebit iter."
O quàm funesto cecinisti proxima vero,
Verbaque ponderibus vix caritura suis!
Nam prope Tartareo sublime rotatus ab igni,
Ibat ad æthereas, umbra perusta, plagas.

IV.

IN EANDEM.

QUEM modô Roma suis devoverat impia diris,
Et Styge damnârat, Tænarioque sinu;
Hunc, vice mutatâ, jam tollere gestit ad astra,
Et cupit ad superos evehere usque Deos.

V.

IN INVENTOREM BOMBARDÆ.

IAPETIONIDEM laudavit cæca vetustas,
Qui tulit ætheream solis ab axe facem;
At mihi major erit qui lurida creditur arma,
Et trifidum fulmen surripuisse Jovi.

AD LEONORAM¹ ROMÆ CANENTEM.

ANGELUS unicuique suus, sic credite, gentes,
Obtigit æthereis ales ab ordinibus.
Quid mirum, Leonora, tibi si gloria major?
Nam tua præsentem vox sonat ipsa Deum.
Aut Deus, aut vacui certè mens tertia cœli
Per tua secretò guttura serpit agens;
Serpit agens, facilisque docet mortalia corda
Sensim immortalî assuescere posse sono.
Quod si cuncta quidem Deus est, per cunctaque fusus,
In te unâ loquitur, cætera mutus habet.

AD EANDEM.

ALTERA Torquatum cepit Leonora poetam,
Cujus ab insano cessit amore furens.
Ah miser ille tuo quanto feliciùs ævo
Perditus, et propter te, Leonora, foret !
Et te Pieriâ sensisset voce canentem
Aurea maternæ fila movere lyræ :
Quamvis Dirçæo torsisset lumina Pentheo
Sævior, aut totus desipuisset iners,
Tu tamen errantes cæcâ vertigine sensus
Voce eadem poteras composuisse tuâ ;
Et poteras, ægro spirans sub corde, quietem
Flexanimo cantu restituisse sibi.

AD EANDEM.

CREDULA quid liquidam Sirena, Neapoli, jactas,
Claraque Parthenopes fana Achelœiados ;
Littoreamque tuâ defunctam Naiada ripâ,
Corpora Chalcidico sacra dedisse rogo ?
Illa quidem vivitque, et amœnâ Tibridis undâ
Mutavit rauci murmura Pausilipi.
Illic Romulidum studiis ornata secundis,
Atque homines cantu detinet atque Deos.

Chartæque largus, apparat papyrinos
Vobis cucullos, præferentes Claudii

APOLOGUS DE RUSTICO ET HERO.

1673.

RUSTICUS ex malo sapidissima poma quotannis
Legit, et urbano lecta dedit Domino :
Hic, incredibili fructûs dulcedine captus,
Malum ipsam in proprias transtulit areolas.
Hactenus illa ferax, sed longo debilis ævo,
Mota solo assueto, protinûs aret iners.
Quod tandem ut patuit Domino, spe lusus inani,
Damnavit celeres in sua damna manus ;
Atque ait, " Heu quanto satius fuit illa Coloni,
Parva licet, grato dona tulisse animo !
Possem ego avaritiam frænare, gulamque voracem ;
Nunc periire mihi et foetus, et ipse parens."

Utque senex armis impiger ora tero ;

PARERE Fati discite legibus,
Manusque Parcæ jam date supplices,
 Qui pendulum telluris orbem
 Iâpeti colitis nepotes.
Vos si relicto Mors vaga Tænaro
Semel vocârit flebilis, heu, moræ
 Tentantur incassum, dolique ;
 Per tenebras Stygis ire certum est.
Si destinatam pellere dextera
Mortem valeret, non ferus Hercules,
 Nessi venenatus cruore,

Nec fraude turpi Palladis invidæ
Vidisset occisum Ilion Hectora, aut
 Quem larva Pelidis peremit
 Ense Locro, Jove lacrymante.
Si triste fatum verba Hecatæia
Fugare possint, Telegoni parens

 Nec tela te fulmenque avitum,

Tuque, O alumno major Apolline,
Gentis togatæ cui regimen datum,
 Froncosa quem nunc Cirrha luget,
 Et mediis Helicon in undis ;

Lætus, superstes, nec sine gloriâ ;
 Nec puppe lustrâsses Charontis

 Succoque pollenti, tot artibus
 Faucibus eripuisse mortis.
Colende Præses, membra precor tua
Molli quiescant cespitem, et ex tuo

JAM pius extremâ veniens Iacobus ab arcto,
Teucrigenas populos, latèque patentia regna
Albionum tenuit ; jamque, inviolabile fœdus,
Sceptra Caledoniis conjunxerat Anglica Scotis :
Pacificusque novo, felix divesque, sedebat
In solio, occultique doli securus et hostis :
Cum ferus ignifluo regnans Acheronte tyrannus,
Eumenidum pater, æthereo vagus exul Olympo,
Forte per immensum terrarum erraverat orbem,
Dinumerans sceleris socios, vernasque fideles,

Participes regni post funera mœsta futuros.
Hic tempestates medio ciet aëre diras,
Illic unanimes odium struit inter amicos,
Armat et invictas in mutua viscera gentes ;
Regnaque oliviferâ vertit florentia pace :
Et quoscunque videt puræ virtutis amantes,
Hos cupit adjicere imperio, fraudumque magister
Tentat inaccessum sceleri corrumpere pectus ;
Insidiasque locat tacitas, cassesque latentes
Tendit, ut incautos rapiat ; seu Caspia tigris
Insequitur trepidam deserta per avia prædam
Nocte sub illuni, et somno nictantibus astris :
Talibus infestat populos Summanus et urbes,
Cinctus cæruleæ fumanti turbine flammæ.
Jamque fluentisonis albentia rupibus arva
Apparent, et terra Deo dilecta marino,
Cui nomen dederat quondam Neptunia proles ;
Amphitryoniaden qui non dubitavit atrocem,
Æquore tranato, furiali poscere bello,
Ante expugnataæ crudelia sæcula Trojæ.

At simul hanc, opibusque et festa pace beatam,
Aspicit, et pingues donis Cerealibus agros,
Quodque magis doluit, venerantem numina veri
Sancta Dei populum, tandem suspiria rupit
Tartareos ignes et luridum olentia sulphur ;
Qualia Trinaoriâ trux ab Jove clausus in Ætnâ
Efflat tabifico monstrosus ob ore Typhœus.
Ignescunt oculi, stridetque adamantinus ordo
Dentis, ut armorum fragor, ictaque cuspide cuspis.
Atque, “Pererrato solum hoc lacrymabile mundo
Inveni,” dixit, “gens hæc mihi sola rebellis,
Contemtrixque jugi, nostrâque potentior arte.
Illa tamen, mea si quicquam tentamina possunt,
Non feret hoc impune diu, non ibit inulta.”
Hactenus ; et piccis liquido natat aëre pennis :
Quà volat, adversi præcursant agmine venti,

Immemor, O, fidei, pecorumque oblite tuorum !
Dum cathedram, venerande, tuam, diademaque triplex
Ridet Hyperboreo gens barbara nata sub axe,
Dumque pharetrati spernunt tua jura Britanni :
Surge, age ; surge piger, Latius quem Cæsar adorat,
Cui reserata patet convexi janua cœli,
Turgentes animos, et fastus frange procaces,
Sacrilegique sciant tua quid maledictio possit,
Et quid Apostolicæ possit custodia clavis ;
Et memor Hesperiae disjectam ulciscere classem,
Mersaque Iberorum lato vexilla profundo,
Sanctorumque cruci tot corpora fixa probrosæ,
Thermodoontêâ nuper regnante puellâ.
At tu si tenero mavis torpescere lecto,
Crescentesque negas hosti contundere vires ;
Tyrrhenum implebit numeroso milite pontum
Signaque Aventino ponet fulgentia colle :

Hos tu membratim poteris conspergere in auras,
Atque dare in cineres, nitrati pulveris igne
Ædibus injecto, quâ convenere, sub imis.
Protinus ipse igitur quoscunque habet Anglia fidos
Propositi, factique, mone : quisquamne tuorum
Audebit summi non jussa facessere Papæ ?
Perculsoque metu subito, casuque stupentes,
Invadat vel Gallus atrox, vel sævus Iberus.
Sæcula sic illic tandem Mariana redibunt,
Tuque belligeros iterum dominaberis Anglos.
Et, nequid timeas, divos divasque secundas
Accipe, quotque tuis celebrantur numina fastis.”

Sylvarum Liber

Dixit, et adscitos ponens malefidus amictus,
Fugit ad infandam, regnum illætabile, Lethen.

Jam rosea Eoas pandens Tithonia portas,
Vestit inauratas redeunti lumine terras ;
Mœstaque adhuc nigri deplorans funera nati,
Irrigat ambrosiis montana cacumina guttis :
Cum somnos pepulit stellatæ janitor aulæ,
Nocturnos visus, et somnia grata revolvens.

Est locus æternâ septus caligine noctis,
Vasta ruinosi quondam fundamina tecti,
Nunc torvi spelunca Phoni, Prodotæque bilinquis,
Effera quos uno peperit Discordia partu.
Hic inter cæmenta jacent, præruptaque saxa,
Ossa inhumata virum, et trajecta cadavera ferro ;
Hic Dolus intortis semper sedet ater ocellis,
Jurgiaque, et stimulis armata Calumnia fauces,
Et Furor, atque viæ moriendi mille videntur,
Et Timor, exsanguisque locum circumvolat Horror ;
Perpetuûque leves per muta silentia Manes
Exululant ; tellus et sanguine conscia stagnat.
Ipsi etiam pavidî latitant pœnetralibus antri
Et Phonos, et Prodotes ; nulloque sequente per antrum, Antrum horrens, scopulosum, atrum feralibus umbris,
Diffugiunt sontes, et retrò lumina vortunt :
Hos pugiles Romæ per sæcula longa fideles
Evocat antistes Babylonius, atque ita fatur.

“ Finibus occiduis circumfusum incolit æquor
Gens exosa mihi ; prudens natura negavit
Indignam penitus nostro conjungere mundo :
Illuc, sic jubeo, celeri contendite gressu,
Tartareoque leves diffilentur pulvere in auras
Et rex et pariter satrapæ, scelerata propago :
Et quotquot fidei caluere cupidine veræ,
Consilii socios adhibete, operisque ministros.”
Finierat ; rigidi cupidè parvare gemelli.

Interea longo flectens curvamine cœlos
Despicit æthereâ Dominus qui fulgurat arce,
Vanaque perversæ ridet conamina turbæ,
Atque sui causam populi volet ipse tueri.

Esse ferunt spatium, quâ distat ab Aside terrâ

Sylvarum Liber

Fertilis Europe, et spectat Mareotidas undas ;
Hic turris posita est Titanidos ardua Famæ,
Ærea, lata, sonans, rutilis vicinior astris
Quàm superimpositum vel Athos vel Pelion Ossæ.
Mille fores aditusque patent, totidemque fenestræ,
Amplaque per tenues translucent atria muros :
Excitat hic varios plebs agglomerata susurros ;
Qualiter instrepitant circum mulctralia bombis
Agmina muscarum, aut texto per ovilia junco,
Dum Canis æstivum cœli petit ardua culmen.
Ipsa quidem sumnâ sedet ultrix matris in arce ;
Auribus innumeris cinctum caput eminent olli,
Queis sonitum exiguum trahit, atque levissima captat
Murmura, ab extremis patuli confinibus orbis.
Nec tot, Aristoride servator inique juvencæ
Isidos, immiti volvebas lumina vultu,
Lumina non unquam tacito nutantia somno,
Lumina subjectas latè spectantia terras.
Istis illa solet loca luce carentia sæpe
Perlustrare, etiam radianti impervia soli :
Millenisque loquax auditaque visaque linguis
Cuilibet effundit temeraria ; veraque mendax
Nunc minuit, modò confictis sermonibus auget.

Sed tamen a nostro meruisti carmine laudes,
Fama, bonum quo non aliud veracius ullum,
Nobis digna cani, nec te memorasse pigebit
Carmine tam longo ; servati scilicet Angli
Officiis, vaga diva, tuis, tibi reddimus æqua.
Te Deus, æternos motu qui temperat ignes,
Fulmine præmisso alloquitur, terræque tremante :
“Fama, siles ? An te latet impia Papistarum
Conjurata cohors in meque meosque Britannos,
Et nova sceptrigero cædes meditata Iäcobo ?”

Nec plura ; illa statim sensit mandata Tonantis,
Et, satis antè fugax, stridentes induit alas,
Induit et variis exilia corpora plumis ;
Dextra tubam gestat Temesæo ex ære sonoram.
Nec mora : jam pennis cedentes remigat auras,
Atque parum est cursu celeres prævertere nubes ;
Jam ventos, jam solis equos post terga reliquit :

Sylvarum Liber

Et primo Angliacas, solito de more, per urbes.
Ambiguas voces, incertaque murmura spargit :
Mox arguta dolos, et detestabile vulgat
Proditionis opus, nec non facta horrida dictu,
Authoresque addit sceleris, nec garrula cæcis
Insidiis loca structa silet ; stupuere relatis
Et pariter juvenes, pariter tremuere puellæ,
Effœtisque senes pariter ; tantæque ruinæ
Sensus ad ætatem subitò penetraverat omnem.

Attamen interea populi miserescit ab alto
Æthereus Pater, et crudelibus obstitit ausis
Papicolûm ; capti pœnas raptantur ad acres :
At pia thura Deo, et grati solvuntur honores ;
Compita læta focis genialibus omnia fumant ;
Turba choros juvenilis agit : Quintoque Novembris
Nulla dies toto occurrit celebratior anno.

IN OBITUM PRÆSULIS ELIENSIS.¹

ANNO ÆTATIS 17.

1626.

ADHUC madentes rore squalebant genæ,
Et sicca nondum lumina
Adhuc liquentis imbre turgebant salis,
Quem nuper effudi pius,
Dum mœsta charo justa persolvi rogo
Wintoniensis Præsulis.
Cum centilinguis Fama, proh ! semper mali
Cladisque vera nuntia,
Spargit per urbes divitis Britanniæ,
Populosque Neptuno satos,
Cessisse morti, et ferreis sororibus,
Te, generis humani decus,

¹ Nicholas Felton, Bishop of Ely. He died a few days after Andrewes, Bishop of Winchester.

Sylvarum Liber

Qui Rex sacrorum illâ fuisti in insula
Quæ nomen Anguillæ tenet.
Tunc inquietum pectus irâ protinûs
Ebulliebat fervidâ,
Tumulis potentem sæpe devovens deam :
Nec vota Naso in Ibida
Concepit alto diriora pectore ;
Graiusque vates parciûs
Turpem Lycambis execratus est dolum,
Sponsamque Neobulen suam.
At ecce, diras ipse dum fundo graves,
Et imprecor Neci necem,
Audisse tales videor attonitus sonos
Leni, sub aurâ, flamine :
“Cæcos furores pone, pone vitream
Bilemque, et irritas minas ;
Quid temerè violas non nocenda numina,
Subitòque ad iras percita ?
Non est, ut arbitraris elusus miser,
Mors atra Noctis filia,
Erebove patre creta, sive Erinnye,
Vastove nata sub Chao :
Ast illa, cœlo missa stellato, Dei
Messés ubique colligit ;
Animasque mole carneâ reconditas
In lucem et auras evocat ;
Ut cum fugaces excitant Horæ diem,
Themidos Jovisque filiæ ;
Et sempiterni ducit ad vultus Patris :
At justa raptat impios
Sub regna furvi luctuosa Tartari,
Sedesque subterraneas.
Hanc ut vocantem lætus audivi, citò
Fœdum reliqui carcerem,
Volatilesque faustus inter milites
Ad astra sublimis feror :
Vates ut olim raptus ad cœlum senex,
Auriga currus ignei.
Non me Boëtis terruere lucidi
Sarraca tarda frigore, aut

Sylvarum Liber

Formidolosi Scorpionis brachia,
Non ensis, Orion, tuus.
Prætervolavi fulgidi solus globum,
Longèque sub pedibus deam
Vidi triformem, dum coërcebat suos
Frænis dracones aureis.
Erraticorum siderum per ordines,
Per lacteas vehor plagas,
Velocitatem sæpe miratus novam ;
Donec nitentes ad fores
Ventum est Olympi, et regiam crystallinam, et Stratum smaragdis atrium.
Sed hic tacebo ; nam quis effari queat.
Oriundus humano patre,
Amœnitates illius loci ? Mihi

NATURAM NON PATI SENIUM.

1628.

HEU, quàm perpetuis erroribus acta fatiscit
Avia mens hominum, tenebrisque immersa profundis,
Oedipodioniam volvit sub pectore noctem !
Quæ vesana suis metiri facta deorum
Audet, et incisas leges adamante perenni
Assimilare suis, nulloque solubile sæclo
Consilium fati perituris alligat horis.

Ergone marcescet sulcantibus obsita rugis
Naturæ facies, et rerum publica Mater
Omniparum contracta uterum sterilescet ab ævo ?
Et se fassa senem, malè certis passibus ibit
Sidereum tremebunda caput ? Num tetra vetustas, Annorumque æterna fames, squalorque situsque,
Sidera vexabunt ? An et insatiabile Tempus
Esuriet Cœlum, rapietque in viscera patrem ?
Heu ! potuitne suas imprudens Jupiter arces

Sylvarum Liber

Hoc contra munisse nefas, et Temporis isto
Exemisse malo, gyrosque dedisse perennes?
Ergo erit ut quandoque sono dilapsa tremendo
Convexi tabulata ruant, atque obvius ictu
Stridat uterque polus, superâque ut Olympius aulâ
Decidat, horribilisque relectâ Gorgone Pallas;
Qualis in Ægeam proles Junonia Lemnon
Deturbata sacro cecidit de limine cœli?
Tu quoque, Phœbe, tui casus imitabere nati;
Præcipiti curru, subitaque ferere ruinâ
Pronus, et extincta fumabit lampade Nereus,
Et dabit attonito feralia sibila ponto.
Tunc etiam aërei divulsis sedibus Hæmi
Dissultabit apex, imoque allisa barathro
Terrebunt Stygium dejecta Ceraunia Ditem,
In superos quibus usus erat, fraternaue bella.
At Pater Omnipotens, fundatis fortius astris,
Consuluit rerum summæ, certoque peregit
Pondere Fatorum lances, atque ordine summo
Singula perpetuum jussit servare tenorem.
Volvitur hinc lapsu mundi rota prima diurno;
Raptat et ambitos sociâ vertigine cœlos.
Tardior haud solito Saturnus, et acer ut olim
Fulmineum rutilat cristatâ casside Mavors.
Floridus æternum Phœbus juvenile coruscat
Nec fovet effœtas loca per declivia terras
Devexo temone Deus; sed semper amicâ
Luce potens, eadem currit per signa rotarum.
Surgit odoratis pariter formosus ab Indis,
Æthereum pecus albenti qui cogit Olympo,
Manè vocans, et serus agens in pascua cœli;
Temporis et gemino dispertit regna colore.
Fulget, obitque vices alterno Delia cornu,
Cæruleumque ignem paribus complectitur ulnis.
Nec variant elementa fidem, solitoque fragore
Lurida perculsas jaculantur fulmina rupes.
Nec per inane furit leviori murmure Corus,
Stringit et armiferos æquali horrore Gelonos
Trux Aquilo, spiratque hyemem, nimbosque volutat
Utque solet, Siculi diverberat ima Pelori

Sylvarum Liber

Rex maris, et raucâ circumstrepit æquora conchâ
Oceani Tubicen, nec vastâ mole minorem
Ægeona ferunt dorso Balearica cete.
Sed neque, Terra, tibi sæcli vigor ille vetusti
Priscus abest, servatque suum Narcissus odorem.
Et puer ille suum tenet, et puer ille, decorem,
Phœbe, tuusque, et, Cypri, tuus ; nec ditior olim
Terra datum sceleri celavit montibus aurum
Conscia, vel sub aquis gemmas. Sic denique in ævum
Ibit cunctarum series justissima rerum ;
Donec flamma orbem populabitur ultima, latè
Circumplexa polos, et vasti culmina cœli ;
Ingentique rogo flagrabit machina mundi.

DE IDEA PLATONICA QUEMADMODUM ARISTOTELES intellexit.

DICITE, sacrorum præsides nemorum deæ,
Tuque O noveni perbeata numinis
Memoria mater, quæque in immenso procul
Antro recumbis otiosa Æternitas,
Monumenta servans, et ratas leges Jovis,
Cœlique fastos atque ephemeridas Deûm ;
Quis ille primus, cujus ex imagine
Natura solers finxit humanum genus,
Æternus, incorruptus, æquævus polo,
Unusque et universus, exemplar Dei ?
Haud ille Palladis gemellus innubæ
Interna proles insidet menti Jovis ;
Sed quamlibet natura sit communior,
Tamen seorsus extat ad morem unius,
Et, mira, certo stringitur spatio loci :
Seu sempiternus ille siderum comes
Cœli pererrat ordines decemplicis,
Citimumve terris incolit Lunæ globum :
Sive, inter animas corpus adituras sedens,
Obliviosas torpet ad Lethes aquas :

Sylvarum Liber

Sive in remotâ fortè terrarum plagâ
Incedit ingens hominis archetypus gigas,
Et diis tremendus erigit celsum caput,
Atlante, major portitore siderum.
Non, cui profundum cæcitas lumen dedit,
Dircæus augur vidit hunc alto sinu ;
Non hunc silenti nocte Plëiones nepos
Vatum sagaci præpes ostendit choro ;
Non hunc sacerdos novit Assyrius, licet
Longos vetusti commemoret atavos Nini,
Priscumque Belon, inclytumque Osiridem ;
Non ille trino gloriosus nomine
Ter magnus Hermes, ut sit arcani sciens,
Talem reliquit Isidis cultoribus.
At tu, perenne ruris Academi decus,
(Hæc monstra si tu primus inducti scholis)
Jam jam poetas, urbis exules tuæ,
Revocabis, ipse fabulator maximus,
Aut institutor ipse migrabis foras.

AD PATREM.

NUNC mea Pierios cupiam per pectora fontes
Irriguas torquere vias, totumque per ora
Volvere laxatum gemino de vertice rivum ;
Ut tenues oblita sonos audacibus alis
Surgat in officium venerandi Musa parentis.
Hoc utcunque tibi gratum, pater optime, carmen
Exiguum meditatur opus ; nec novimus ipsi
Aptius a nobis quæ possint munera donis
Respondere tuis, quamvis nec maxima possint
Respondere tuis, nedum ut par gratia donis
Esse queat, vacuis quæ redditur arida verbis.
Sed tamen hæc nostros ostendit pagina census,
Et quod habemus opum chartâ numeravimus istâ,
Quæ mihi sunt nullæ, nisi quas dedit aurea Clio,

Sylvarum Liber

Quas mihi semoto somni peperere sub antro,
Et nemoris laureta sacri Parnassides umbræ.

Nec tu vatis opus divinum despice carmen,
Quo nihil æthereos ortus, et semina cœli,
Nil magis humanam commendat origine mentem,
Sancta Prometheæ retinens vestigia flammæ.
Carmen amant superi, tremebundaque Tartara
carmen,

Ima ciere valet, divosque ligare profundos,
Et triplici duros Manes adamante coercet :
Carmine sepositi retegunt arcana futuri
Phœbades, et tremulæ pallentes ora Sibyllæ :
Carmina sacrificus solennes pangit ad aras,
Aurea seu sternit motantem cornua taurum ;
Seu cum fata sagax fumantibus abdita fibris
Consulit, et tepidis Parcam scrutatur in extis.
Nos etiam patrium tunc cum repetemus Olympum,
Æternæque moræ stabunt immobilis ævi,
Ibimus auratis per cœli templa coronis,
Dulcia suaviloquo sociantes carmina plectro,
Astra quibus, geminique poli convexa sonabunt,
Spiritus et rapidos qui circinat igneus orbes,
Nunc quoque sidereis intercinit ipse choreis
Immortale melos, et inenarrabile carmen ;
Torrida dum rutilus compescit sibila Serpens,
Demissoque ferox gladio mansuescit Orion ;
Stellarum nec sentit onus Maurusius Atlas.
Carmina regales epulas ornare solebant,
Cum nondum luxus, vastæque immensa vorago
Nota gulæ, et modico spumabat cœna Lyæo.
Tum de more sedens festa ad convivia vates,
Æsculeâ intonsos redimitus ab arbore crines,
Heroumque actus, imitandaque gesta canebat,
Et Chaos, et positi, latè fundamina mundi,
Reptantesque deos, et alentes numina glandes,
Et nondum Ætneo quæsitum fulmen ab antro.
Denique quid vocis modulamen inane juvabit
Verborum sensusque vacans, numerique loquacis ?
Silvestres decet iste choros, non Orphea cantus,
Qui tenuit fluvios, et quercubus addidit aures,

Sylvarum Liber

Carmine, non citharâ ; simulacraque functa canendo
Compulsi in lacrymas : habet has a carmine laudes.

Nec tu perge, precor, sacras contemnere Musas,
Nec vanas inopesque puta, quarum ipse peritus
Munere, mille sonos numeros componis ad aptos ;
Millibus et vocem modulis variare canoram
Doctus Arionii merito sis nominis hæres.
Nunc tibi quid mirum, si me genuisse poëtam
Contigerit, charo si tam propè sanguine juncti,
Cognatas artes, studiumque affine sequamur ?
Ipse volens Phœbus se dispertire duobus,
Altera dona mihi, dedit altera dona parenti ;
Dividuumque Deum, genitorque puerque, tenemus.

Tu tamen ut similes teneras odisse Camœnas,
Non odisse reor ; neque enim, pater, ire jubebas
Quà via lata patet, quà pronior area lucri,
Certaque condendi fulget spes aurea nummi :
Nec rapis ad leges, malé custoditaque gentis
Jura, nec insulsis damnas clamoribus aures ;
Sed magis excultam cupiens ditescere mentem,
Me procul urbano strepitu, secessibus altis
Abductum, Aoniæ jucunda per otia ripæ,
Phœbæo lateri comitem sinis ire beatum.
Officium chari taceo commune parentis ;
Me poscunt majora : tuo, pater optime, sumptu
Cum mihi Romulæ patuit facundia linguæ,
Et Latii veneres, et quæ Jovis ora decebant
Grandia magniloquis elata vocabula Graiis,
Addere suasisti quos jactat Gallia flores ;
Et quam degeneri novus Italus ore loquelam
Fundit, barbaricos testatus voce tumultus ;
Quæque Palæstinus loquitur mysteria vates.
Denique quicquid habet cœlum, subjectaque cœlo
Terra parens, terræque et cœlo interfluis aër,
Quicquid et unda tegit, pontique agitable marmor
Per te nôsse licet, per te, si nôsse libebit :
Dimotâque venit spectanda scientia nube,
Nudaque conspicuos inclinât ad oscula vultus,
Ni fugisse velim, ni sit libâsse molestum.

I nunc, confer opes, quisquis malesanus avitas

Sylvarum Liber

Austriaci gazas, Perŭanaque regna præoptas.
Quæ potuit majora pater tribuisse, vel ipse
Jupiter, excepto, donâsset ut omnia, cœlo?
Non potiora dedit, quamvis et tuta fuissent,
Publica qui juveni commisit lumina nato,
Atque Hyperionios cŭrrus, et fræna diei,
Et circum undantem radiata luce tiaram.
Ergo ego, jam doctæ pars quamlibet ima catervæ,
Victrices hederas inter laurosque sedebo ;
Jamque nec obscurus populo miscebor inerti,
Vitabuntque oculos vestigia nostra profanos.
Este procul vigiles curæ, procul este querelæ,
Invidiæque acies transverso tortilis hirquo,
Sæva nec anguiferos extende, calumnia, rictus ;
In me triste nihil, fœdissima turba, potestis,
Nec vestri sum juris ego ; securaque tutus
Pectora, vipereo gradiar sublimis ab ictu.

At tibi, chare pater, postquam non æqua merenti
Posse referre datur, nec dona rependere factis,
Sit memorâsse satis, repetitaque munera grato,
Percensere animo, fidæque reponere menti.

Et vos, O nostri, juvenilia carmina, lusus,
Si modò perpetuos sperare audebitis annos,
Et domini superesse rogo, lucemque tueri,
Nec spisso rapiant oblivia nigra sub Orco ;
Forsitan has laudes, decantatumque parentis
Nomen, ad exemplum, sero servabitis ævo.

AD SALSILLUM, POETAM ROMANUM, ÆGRO-TANTEM.

SCAZONTES.

O MUSA, gressum quæ volens trahis claudum,
Vulcanioque tarda gaudes incessu,
Nec sentis illud in loco minus gratum,
Quam cum decentes flava Deïope suras
Alternat aureum ante Junonis lectum ;

Sylvarum Liber

Adesdum, et hæc s'is verba pauca Salsillo
Refer, Camœna nostra cui tantum est cordi,
Quamque ille magnis prætulit immeritò divis.
Hæc ergo alumnus ille Londini Milto,
Diebus hisce qui suum linquens nidum,
Polique tractum, pessimus ubi ventorum,
Insanientis impotensque pulmonis,
Pernix anhela sub Jove exercet flabra,
Venit feraces Itali soli ad glebas,
Visum superbâ cognitas urbes famâ,
Virosque, doctæque indolem juventutis.
Tibi optat idem hic fausta multa, Salsille,
Habitumque fesso corpori penitus sanum ;
Cui nunc profunda bilis infestat renes,
Præcordiisque fixa damnosum spirat ;
Nec id pepercit impia, quòd tu Romano
Tam cultus ore Lesbium condis melos.

O dulce divum munus, O Salus, Hebes
Germana ! Tuque, Phœbe, morborum terror,
Pythone cæso, sive tu magis Pæan
Libenter audis, hic tuus sacerdos est.
Querceta Fauni, vosque rore vinoso
Colles benigni, mitis Evandri sedes,
Siquid salubre vallibus frondet vesiris,
Levamen ægro ferte certatim vati.
Sic ille, charis redditus rursùm Musis,
Vicina dulci prata mulcebit cantu.
Ipse inter atros emirabitur lucos
Numa, ubi beatum degit otium æternum,
Suam reclivis semper Ægeriam spectans.
Tumidusque et ipse Tiberis, hinc delinitus,
Spei favebit annuæ colonorum ;
Nec in sepulchris ibit obsessum reges,
Nimiùm sinistro laxis irruens loro :
Sed fræna melius temperabit undarum,
Adusque curvi salsa regna Portumni.

MANSUS.

Joannes Baptista Mansus, Marchio Villensis, vir ingenii laude, tum literarum studio, nec non et bellicâ virtute, apud Italos clarus in primis est. Ad quem Torquati Tassi Dialogus extat de Amicitia scriptus; erat enim Tassi amicissimus; ab quo etiam inter Campaniæ principes celebratur, in illo poemate cui titulus Gerusalemme Conquistata, lib. xx.

Fra cavalier magnanimi, è cortesi,
Risplende il Manso—

Is authorem Neapoli commorantem summâ benevolentia prosecutus est, multaque ei detulit humanitatis officia. Ad hunc itaque hospes ille, antequam ab eâ urbe discederet, ut ne ingratum se ostenderet, hoc carmen misit.

HÆC quoque, Manse, tuæ meditantur carmina laudi
Pierides, tibi, Manse, choro notissime Phœbi; Quandoquidem ille alium haud æquo est dignatus
honore,
Post Galli cineres, et Mecænatis Hetrusci.
Tu quoque, si nostræ tantum valet aura Camœnæ,
Victrices hederas inter laurosque sedebis.
Te pridem magno felix concordia Tasso
Junxit, et æternis inscripsit nomina chartis:
Mox tibi dulciloquum non inscia Musa Marinum
Tradidit; ille tuum dici se gaudet alumnum,
Dum canit Assyrios divûm prolixus amores;
Mollis et Ausonias stupefecit carmine nymphas.
Ille itidem moriens tibi soli debita vates
Ossa, tibi soli, supremaque vota reliquit:
Nec manes pietas tua chara fefellit amici;
Vidimus arridentem operoso ex ære poetam.
Nec satis hoc visum est in utrumque, et nec pia cessant
Officia in tumulto; cupis integros rapere Orco,
Quà potes, atque avidas Parcarum eludere leges:
Amborum genus, et variâ sub sorte peractam
Describis vitam, moresque, et dona Minervæ;
Æmulus illius, Mycalen qui natus ad altam,
Rettulit Æolii vitam facundus Homeri.
Ergo ego te, Clius et magni nomine Phœbi,
Manse pater, jubeo longum salvere per ævum,
Missus Hyperboreo juvenis peregrinus ab axe.
Nec tu longinquam bonus aspernabere Masam,

Sylvarum Liber

Quæ nuper gelidâ vix enutrita sub Arcto,
Imprudens Italas ausa est volitare per urbes.
Nos etiam in nostro modulantes flumine cygnos
Credimus obscuras noctis sensisse per umbras,
Quà Thamesis latè puris argenteus urnis
Oceani glaucos perfundit gurgite crines :
Quin et in has quondam pervenit Tityrus¹ oras.

Sed neque nos genus incultum, nec inutile Phœbo,
Quà plaga septeno mundi sulcata Trione
Brumalem patitur longâ sub nocte Boöten.
Nos etiam colimus Phœbum, nos munera Phœbo,
Flaventes spicas, et lutea mala canistris,
Halantemque crocum, perhibet nisi vana vetustas,
Misimus, et lectas Druidum de gente choreas.
Gens Druides antiqua, sacris operata deorum,
Heroum laudes, imitandaque gesta canebant ;
Hinc quoties festo cingunt altaria cantu,
Delo in herbosâ, Graiæ de more puellæ,
Carminibus lætis memorant Corineïda Loxo,²
Fatidicamque Upin,³ cum flavicoma Hecaërge,
Nuda Caledonio variatas pectora fuco.

Fortunate senex, ergo quacunque per orbem
Torquati decus, et nomen celebrabitur ingens,
Claraque perpetui succrescet fama Marini ;
Tu quoque in ora frequens venies, plausumque virorum,
Et parili carpes iter immortale volatu.
Dicetur tum sponte tuos habitasse penates
Cynthius, et famulas venisse ad limina Musas :
At non sponte domum tamen idem, et regis adivit
Rura Pheretiadæ, cœlo fugitivus Apollo ;
Ille licet magnum Alciden susceperat hospes ;
Tantum ubi clamosos placuit vitare bubulcos,
Nobile mansueti cessit Chironis in antrum,
Irriguos inter saltus, frondosaque tecta,
Peneium prope rivum : ibi sæpe sub ilice nigrâ,
Ad citharæ strepitum, blandâ prece victus amici,
Exilii duros lenibat voce labores.

² One of the British maidens that brought offerings to Apollo.

³ Upin, a Druidical prophetess.

Sylvarum Liber

Tum neque ripa suo, barathro nec fixa sub imo
Saxa stetero loco ; nutat Trachinia rupes,
Nec sentit solitas, immania pondera, silvas ;
Emotæque suis properant de collibus orni,
Mulcenturque novo maculosi carmine lynces.

Diis dilecte senex, te Jupiter æquus oportet
Nascentem, et mihi lustrarit lumine Phœbus,
Atlantisque nepos ; neque enim, nisi charus ab ortu
Diis superis, poterit magno fuisse poetæ.
Hinc longæva tibi lento sub flore senectus
Vernat, et Æsonios lucratur vivida fusos ;
Nondum deciduos servans tibi frontes honores,
Ingeniumque vicens, et adultum mentis acumen.
O mihi si mea sors talem concedat amicum,
Phœbæos decorâsse viros qui tam bene nôrit,
Siquando indigenas revocabo in carmina reges,
Arturumque etiam sub terris bella moventem !
Aut dicam invictæ sociali fœdere mensæ
Magnanimos heroas ; et, O modo spiritus adsit,
Frangam Saxonicas Britonum sub Marte phalanges !
Tandem ubi non tacitæ permensus tempora vitæ,
Annorumque satur, cineri sua jura relinquam,
Ille mihi lecto madidis astartet ocellis,
Astanti sat erit si dicam, sim tibi curæ ;
Ille meos artus, liventi morte solutos,
Curaret parvâ componi molliter urnâ :
Forsitan et nostros ducat de marmore vultus,
Nectens aut Paphiâ myrti aut Parnasside lauri
Fronde comas, et ego securâ pace quiescam.
Tum quoque, si qua fides, si præmia certa bonorum,
Ipse ego cælicolûm semotus in æthera divûm,
Quò labor et mens pura vehunt, atque ignea virtus
Secreti hæc aliquâ mundi de parte videbo,
Quantum fata sinunt ; et totâ mente serenûm
Ridens, purpureo suffundar lumine vultus,
Et simul æthereo plaudam mihi lætus Olympos.

EPITAPHIUM DAMONIS.

ARGUMENTUM.

Thyrsis et Damon, ejusdem viciniae pastores, eadem studia sequuti, a pueritia amici erant, ut qui plurimum. Thyrsis animi causa profectus peregre, de obitu Damonis nuncium accepit. Domum postea reversus, et rem ita esse comperto, se suamque solitudinem hoc carmine deplorat. Damonis autem sub persona hic intelligitur CAROLUS DEODATUS, ex urbe Hetruriæ, Luca paterno genere oriundus, cætera Anglus; ingenio, doctrina, clarissimisque cæteris virtutibus, dum viveret, juvenis egregius.

HIMERIDES Nymphæ (nam vos et Daphnin et Hylan, Et plorata diu meministis fata Bionis)
Dicite Sicelicum Thamesina per oppida carmen :
Quas miser effudit voces, quæ murmura Thyrsis,
Et quibus assiduus exercuit antra querelis,
Fluminaque, fontesque vagos, nemorumque recessus ;
Dum sibi præreptum queritur Damona, neque altam
Luctibus exemit noctem, loca sola pererrans.
Et jam bis viridi surgebat culmus aristâ,
Et totidem flavas numerabant horrea messes,
Ex quo summa dies tulerat Damona sub umbras,
Nec dum aderat Thyrsis ; pastorem scilicet illum
Dulcis amor Musæ Thuscâ retinebat in urbe :
Ast ubi mens expleta domum, pecorisque relictî
Cura vocat, simul assuetâ seditque sub ulmo,
Tum verò amissum tum denique sentit amicum,
Cœpit et immensum sic exonerare dolorem.

“Ite domum impasti, domino jam non vacat, agni.
Hei mihi ! quæ terris, quæ dicam numina coelo,
Postquam te immiti rapuerunt funere, Damon !
Siccine nos linquis, tua sic sine nomine virtus
Ibit, et obscuris numero sociabitur umbris ?
At non ille, animas virgâ qui dividit aureâ,
Ista velit, dignumque tui te ducat in agmen,
Ignavumque procul pecus arceat omne silentium.

“Ite domum impasti, domino jam non vacat, agni.
Quicquid erit, certè nisi me lupo antè videbit,
Indeplorato non comminuere sepulchro,
Constabitque tuus tibi honos, longumque vigebit
Inter pastores. Illi tibi vota secundo

Sylvarum Liber

Solvere post Daphnin, post Daphnin dicere laudes,
Gaudebunt, dum rura Pales, dum Faunus amabit :
Si quid id est, priscamque fidem coluisse, piumque,
Palladiusque artes, sociumque habuisse canorum.

“Ite domum impasti, domino jam non vacat, agni.
Hæc tibi certa manent, tibi erunt hæc præmia,

Damon ;

At mihi quid tandem fiet modò ? quis mihi fidus
Hærebit lateri comes, ut tu sæpe solebas
Frigoribus duris, et per loca fœta pruinis,
Aut rapido sub sole, siti morientibus herbis ?
Sive opus in magnos fuit eminùs ire leones,
Aut avidos terrere lupos præsepibus altis ;
Quis fando sopire diem, cantuque solebit ?

“Ite domum impasti, domino jam non vacat, agni.
Pectora cui credam ? quis me lenire docebit
Mordaces curas, quis longam fallere noctem
Dulcibus alloquìs, grato cum sibilat igni
Molle pyrum, et nucibus strepitat focus, at malus
Auster

Miscet cuncta foris, et desuper intonat ulmo ?

“Ite domum impasti, domino jam non vacat, agni.
Aut æstate, dies medio dum vertitur axe,
Cum Pan æsculeâ somnun capit abditus umbrâ,
Et repetunt sub aquis sibi nota sedilia Nymphæ,
Pastoresque latent, stertit sub sepe colonus ;
Quis mihi blanditiasque tuas, quis tum mihi risus,
Cecropiosque sales referet, cultosque lepores ?

“Ite domum impasti, domino jam non vacat, agni.
At jam solus agros, jam pascua solus oberro,
Sicubi ramosæ densantur vallibus umbræ ;
Hic serum expecto ; supra caput imber et Eurus
Triste sonant, fractæque agitata crepuscula sylvæ.

“Ite domum impasti, domino jam non vacat, agni.
Heu, quam culta mihi priùs arva procacibus herbis
Involvuntur, et ipsa situ seges alta fatiscit !
Innuba neglecto marcescit et uva racemo,
Nec myrteta juvant ; ovium quoque tædet, at illæ
Mœrent, inque suum convertunt ora magistrum.

“Ite domum impasti, domino jam non vacat, agni.

Sylvarum Liber

Tityrus ad corylos vocat, Alpheſibœus ad ornos,
Ad ſalices Aegon, ad flumina pulcher Amyntas.
Hic gelidi fontes, hic illita gramina muſco,
Hic Zephyri, hic placidas interſtrepit arbutus undas;
Iſta canunt ſurdo, frutices ego nactus abibam.

“Ite domum impaſti, domino jam non vacat, agni.
Mopſus ad hæc, nam me redeuntem fortè notârat,
(Et callebat avium linguas, et ſidera Mopſus)
‘Thyrſi, quid hoc?’ dixit: ‘quæ te coquit improbabilis?
Aut te perdit amor, aut te malè fascinat aſtrum;
(Saturni grave sæpe fuit paſtoribus aſtrum:)
Intimaque obliquo figit præcordia plumbo.’

“Ite domum impaſti, domino jam non vacat, agni.
Mirantur nymphæ; et ‘quid te, Thyrſi, futurum eſt?
Quid tibi viſ?’ aiunt; ‘non hæc ſolet eſſe juventæ
Nubila frons, oculique truces, vultusque ſeveri.
Illa choros, luſusque leves, et ſemper amorem
Jure petit: bis ille miſer qui ſerus amavit.’

“Ite domum impaſti, domino jam non vacat, agni.
Venit Hyas, Dryopeque, et filia Baucidis Aegle,
Docta modos, citharæque ſciens, ſed perſita faſtu;
Venit Idumanii Chloſis vicina fluenti;
Nil me blanditiæ, nil me ſolantia verba,
Nil me, ſi quid adeſt, movet, aut ſpes ulla futuri.

“Ite domum impaſti, domino jam non vacat, agni.
Hei mihi, quam ſimiles ludunt per prata juvenci,
Omnes unanimi ſecum ſibi lege ſodales!
Nec magis hunc alio quiſquam ſecernit amicum
De grege; ſic denſi veniunt ad pabula thoës,
Inque vicem hirsuti paribus junguntur onagri;
Lex eadem pelagi; deſerto in littore Proteus
Agmina phocarum numerat, vilisque volucrum
Paſſer habet ſemper quicum ſit, et omnia circum
Farra libens volitet, ſerò ſua tecta revisens;
Quem ſi ſors letho objecit, ſeu milvus adunco
Fata tulit roſtro, ſeu ſtravit arundine foſſor,
Protinùs ille alium ſocio petit inde volatu.
Nos durum genus, et diris exercita fatiſ
Gens, homines, aliena animis, et pectore diſcors;
Vix ſibi quiſque parem de millibus invenit unum;

Sylvarum Liber

Aut si sors dederit tandem non aspera votis,
Illum inopina dies, quâ non speraveris horâ,
Surripit, æternum linquens in sæcula damnum.

“Ite domum impasti, domino jam non vacat, agni.
Heu quis me ignotas traxit vagus error in oras
Ire per aëreas rupes, Alpemque nivosam!
Ecquid erat tantî Romam vidisse sepultam, (Quamvis illa foret, qualem dum viseret olim, Tityrus ipse suas et oves et rura reliquit;)
Ut te tam dulci possem caruisse sodale,
Possem tot maria alta, tot interponere montes,
Tot sylvas, tot saxa tibi, fluviosque sonantes!
Ah! certè extremum licuisset tangere dextram,
Et bene compositos placidè morientis ocellos,
Et dixisse, ‘Vale, nostri memor ibis ad astra.’

“Ite domum impasti, domino jam non vacat, agni.
Quamquam etiam vestri nunquam meminisse pigebit,
Pastores Thusci, Musis operata juvenus:
Hic Charis, atque Lepos; et Thuscus tu quoque
Damon

Antiquâ genus unde petis Lucumonis ab urbe.
O ego quantus eram, gelidi cum stratus ad Arni
Murmura, populeumque nemus, quâ mollior herba,
Carpere nunc violas, nunc summas carpere myrtos,
Et potui Lycidæ certantem audire Menalcam!
Ipse etiam tentare ausus sum; nec puto multum
Displicui, nam sunt et apud me munera vestra,
Fiscellæ, calathique, et cerea vincla cicutæ:
Quin et nostra suas docuerunt nomina fagos
Et Datis, et Francinus, erant et vocibus ambo
Et studiis noti, Lydorum sanguinis ambo.

“Ite domum impasti, domino jam non vacat, agni.
Hæc mihi tum læto dictabat roscida luna,
Dum solus teneros claudebam cratibus hædos.
Ah, quoties dixi, cum te cinis ater habebat,
Nunc canit, aut lepori nunc tendit retia Damon,
‘Vimina nunc textit, varios sibi quod sit in usus!’
Et quæ tum facili sperabam mente futura
Arripui voto levis, et præsentia finxi;
Heus bone numquid agis? nisi te quid fortè retardat:

Sylvarum Liber

Imus? et argutâ paulùm recubamus in umbrâ,
Aut ad aquas Colni, aut ubi jugera Cassibelauni?
Tu mihi percurres medicos, tua gramina, succos, Helleborumque, humilesque crocos, foliumque
hyacinthi,

Quasque habet ista palus herbas, artesque medentùm.
Ah, pereant herbæ, pereant artesque medentùm,
Gramina, postquam ipsi nil profecere magistro!
Ipse etiam, nam nescio quid mihi grande sonabat
Fistula, ab undecimâ jam lux est altera nocte,
Et tum fortè novis admôram labra cicutis,
Dissiluiere tamen ruptâ compage, nec ultra
Ferre graves potuere sonos: dubito quoque ne sim
Turgidulus, tamen et referam; vos cedite, sylvæ.

“Ite domum impasti, domino jam non vacat, agni.
Ipse ego Dardanias Rutupina per æquora puppes
Dicam, et Pandrasidos regnum vetus Inogeniæ,
Brennumque Arviragumque duces, priscumque
Belinum,

Et tandem Armoricos Britonum sub lege colonos;
Tum gravidam Arturo, fatali fraude, Iögernen,
Mendaces vultus, assumptaque Gorlôis arma,
Merlini dolus. O mihi tum si vita supersit,
Tu procul annosâ pendebis, fistula, pinu,
Multum oblita mihi; aut patriis mutata Camœnis
Brittonicum strides, quid enim? omnia non licet uni,
Non sperâsse uni licet omnia, mi satis ampla
Merces, et mihi grande decus (sim ignotus in ævum Tum licet, externo penitusque inglôrius orbi)
Si me flava comas legat Usa, et potor Alauni,
Vorticibusque frequens Abra, et nemos omne Treantæ,
Et Thamesis meus ante omnes, et fusca metallis
Tamara, et extremis me discant Orcades undis.

“Ite domum impasti, domino jam non vacat, agni.
Hæc tibi servabam lentâ sub cortice lauri,
Hæc, et plura simul; tum quæ mihi pocula Mansus,
Mansus, Chalcidicæ non ultima gloria ripæ,
Bina dedit, mirum artis opus, mirandus et ipse,
Et circum gemino cælaverat argumento:
In medio Rubri Maris unda, et odoriferum ver,

Sylvarum Liber

Littora longa Arabum, et sudantes balsama sylvæ
Has inter Phoenix, divina avis, unica terris,
Cæruleum fulgens diversicoloribus alis,
Auroram vitreis surgentem respicit undis ;
Parte alia polus omnipotens, et magnus Olympus ;
Quis putet ? hic quoque Amor, pictæque in nube pharetræ,

Arma corusca faces, et spicula tincta pyropo ;
Nec tenues animas, pectusque ignobile vulgi
Hinc ferit ; at circum flammantia lumina torquens,
Semper in erectum spargit sua tela per orbes
Impiger, et pronos nunquam collimat ad ictus
Hinc mentes ardere sacræ, formæque deorum.

“ Tu quoque in his, nec me fallit spes lubrica, Damon,
Tu quoque in his certè es, nam quò tua dulcis abiret
Sanctaque simplicitas, nam quò tua candida virtus ?
Nec te Lethæo fas quæsisisse sub Orco,
Nec tibi conveniunt lacrymæ, nec flebimus ultra,
Ite procul lacrymæ ; purum colit æthera Damon,
Æthera purus habet, pluvium pede reppulit arcum ;
Heroumque animas inter, divosque perennes,
Æthereos haurit latices, et gaudia potat
Ore sacro. Quin tu, cœli post jura recepta,
Dexter ades, placidusque fave quicumque vocaris,
Seu tu noster eris Damon sive æquior audis
Diodatus, quo te divino nomine cuncti
Cœlicolæ nôrint, sylvisque vocabere Damon.
Quòd tibi purpureus pudor, et sine labe juvenus
Grata fuit, quòd nulla tori libata voluptas,
En etiam tibi virginei servantur honores ;
Ipse caput nitidum cinctus rutilante coronâ,
Lætaque frondentis gestans umbracula palmæ,
Æternum perages immortales hymenæos ;
Cantus ubi, choreisque furit lyra mista beatis,
Festa Sionæo bacchantur et Orgia thyrsò.”

JAN. 23, 1646.

AD JOANNEM ROUSIUM OXONIENSIS ACADEMIÆ BIBLIOTHECARIUM.

De libro Poematum amisso, quem ille sibi denuo mitti postulabat, ut cum aliis nostris in Bibliothecâ publica reponeret, Ode.

STROPHE I.

GEMELLE cultu simplici gaudens liber,
Fronde licet geminâ,
Munditieque nitens non operosâ ;
Quem manus attulit
Juvenilis olim,
Sedula tamen haud nimii poetæ ;
Dum vagus Ausonias nunc per umbras,
Nunc Britannica per vireta ludit,
Insons populi, barbitoque devius
Indulsit patrio, mox itidem pectine Daunio
Longinquum intonuit melos
Vicinis, et humum vix tetigit pede :

ANTISTROPHE.

Quis te, parve liber, quis te fratribus
Subduxit reliquis dolo ?
Cum tu missus ab urbe,
Docto jugiter obsecrante amico,
Illustre tendebas iter
Thamesis ad incunabula
Cærulei patris,
Fontes ubi limpidi
Aonidum, thyasusque sacer,
Orbi notus per immensos
Temporum lapsus redeunte cœlo,
Celeberque futurus in ævum ?

STROPHE II.

Modò quis deus, aut editus deo,
Pristinam gentis miseratus indolem,
(Si satis noxas luimus priores, Mollique luxu degener otium)

Sylvarum Liber

Tollat nefandos civium tumultus,
Almaque revocet studia sanctus,
Et relegatas sine sede Musas
Jam penè totis finibus Angligenûm ;
Immundasque volucres,
Unguibus imminentes,
Fingat Apollineâ pharetrâ,
Phineamque abigat pestem procul amne Pegaseo ?

ANTISTROPHE.

Quin tu, libelle, nuntii licet malâ
Fide, vel oscitantîâ,
Semel erraveris agmine fratrum,
Seu quis te teneat specus,
Seu qua te latebra, forsàn unde vili.
Callo tereris institoris insulsi,
Lætare felix : en iterum tibi
Spes nova fulget, posse profundam
Fugere Lethen, vehique superam
In Jovis aulam, remige pennâ :

STROPHE III.

Nam te Roüsîus sui
Optat peculi, numeroque justo
Sibi pollicitum queritur abesse ;
Rogatque venias ille, cujus inclyta
Sunt data virûm monumenta curæ :
Teque adytis etiam sacris
Voluit reponi, quibus et ipse præsidet
Æternorum operum custos fidelis ;
Quæstorque gazæ nobilioris,
Quam cui præfuit Iôn,
Clarus Erechtheides,
Opulenta dei per templa parentis,
Fulvosque tripodas, donaque Delphica,
Ion Actæa genitus Creusâ.

ANTISTROPHE.

Ergo, tu visere lucos
Musarum ibis amœnos ;

Sylvarum Liber

Diamque Phœbi rursus ibis in domum,
Oxoniâ quam valle colit,
Delo posthabitâ,
Bifidoque Parnassi jugo :
Ibis honestus,
Postquam egregiam tu quoque sortem
Nactus abis, dextri prece sollicitatus amici.
Illic legeris inter alta nomina
Authorum, Graiæ simul et Latinæ
Antiqua gentis lumina, et verum decus.

EPODOS.

Vos tandem, haud vacui mei labores,
Quicquid hoc sterile fudit ingenium,
Jam serò placidam sperare jubeo
Perfunctam invidiâ requiem, sedesque beatas,
Quas bonus Hermes,
Et tutela dabit solers Roûsi ;
Quò neque lingua procax vulgi penetrabit, atque longè
Turba legentûm prava facesset :
At ultimi nepotes,
Et cordatior ætas,
Judicia rebus æquiora forsitan
Adhibebit, integro sinu.
Tum, livore sepulto,
Si quid meremur sana posteritas sciet,
Roûsio favente.

Ode tribus constat Strophis, totidemque Antistrophis, unâ demum Epodo clausis ; quas tametsi omnes nec versuum numero nec certis ubique colis exactè respondeant, ita tamen secuimus, commodè legendi potius, quam ad antiquos concinendi modos rationem spectantes. Alioquin hoc genus rectius fortasse dici monostrophicum debuerat. Metra partim sunt κατὰ σχέσιν, partim ἀπολελευμένα. Phaleucia quæ sunt, Spondæum tertio loco bis admittunt, quod idem in secundo loco Catullus ad libitum fecit.

Bibliography

A BIBLIOGRAPHY of all Milton's works, and the works written on his life and works would fill a small volume. We shall give only the principal editions of the Poems.

The "Epitaph on Shakespeare" was his first printed poem ; it appeared in the Folio of the Plays in 1632. "Comus" was the first of his works published. It appeared in 1634 ; anonymously, edited by Henry Lawes, the musician. It was twice published afterwards by Milton, the title being only "A Masque, presented at Ludlow Castle, 1634."

"Lycidas" was published at Cambridge in 1638, in a collection of elegies on the death of Mr. Edward King. "Poems by me, John Milton, in English and Latin," appeared in 1645. They included the beautiful "Allegro" and "Penseroso." Then followed an interval of twenty-two years, during which the poet wrote prose, with the exception of occasional sonnets.

In 1667 appeared "Paradise Lost, a poem written in ten books, by John Milton." It was in 4to.

In 1671, "Paradise Regained, a poem in four books, to which is added Samson Agonistes. Author, J. Milton."

In 1673, "Poems on several Occasions, both English and Latin, composed at several times."

In 1674 he published a second edition of the "Paradise Lost," dividing the ten books into twelve. This was "The Second Edition, revised and augmented by the Author." 8vo.

Milton died in the November of this year, and the next edition was brought out in 1688, "Adorned with Sculptures," that is illustrated. It was in folio, and under Milton's portrait were printed Dryden's celebrated lines. It was published by subscription.

In 1695, P. Hume edited Milton's Poems, adding notes to "Paradise Lost."

Thomas Tikell, the friend of Addison, edited the next edition, to which he appended the papers from the Spectator, 1720.

Bibliography

Elijah Fenton edited the twelfth edition of "Paradise Lost" in 1726, and prefixed a Memoir of the Author.

Then followed in 1732, Bentley's Edition and objectionable emendations.

Toland had in 1699 published a Life of Milton. In 1734, J. Richardson published "Explanatory Notes and Remarks on Paradise Lost, and a Life of the Author."

It was followed in 1749 by a good edition of the "Paradise Lost," by Bishop Newton, in two volumes, with a Life, Addison's Critique, and Notes. This went through many editions. In 1752 the bishop edited "Paradise Regained" and the minor poems. In 1785, Thomas Warton edited the "Poems upon several Occasions," with Notes, Critical and Explanatory.

In 1795, Charles Dunster edited "Paradise Regained," and prefixed the Argument to each book.

Then came the Standard Edition by the Rev. H. J. Todd, Rector of Allhallows, in which all the poetical works of Milton were given, with the Poet's Life and Notes. It was in six volumes, and was a standard work till it was superseded by the Aldine Edition.

The Aldine Edition, published in 1826, was extremely good. It was re-edited in 1832 by John Mitford, who added an excellent Life. It has been re-edited by John Bradshaw, M.A., LL.D., with Mitford's Life (which occupied a volume) suppressed, and a Memoir by the new editor.

Sir Egerton Brydges's Edition, 1835.

In 1870 the Clarendon Press issued an edition of the Poems, edited by R. C. Browne.

In 1872 the Chandos Edition appeared.

In 1874, David Masson edited the Poetical Works, with Introduction, Notes, and Essay. It was re-edited in 1890. The Globe Edition is by the same editor.

The Life of Milton has been many times written. The first, by his nephew Philips, is the most valuable; but Masson's Life, etc., in six volumes, is an exhaustive and excellent one; that by Mark Pattison is also good.

The following are the principal authors who have written on Milton and his works:—Macaulay in Edinburgh Review, 1825; Channing, De Quincey, Lowell, Matthew Arnold, Dean Farrar, James Montgomery, Leigh Hunt, W. Howitt.
